Mathews' Homer Nearly Cracks Dome

Fourth Level Blast

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ed Mathews struck purple, go-cron Johnson saw red and Bill White battered Chicago black and blue.

Those developments occurred Sunday night as Mathews powered Atlanta past Jack Fisher on Astros 4-2, Lig Angeles Dodgers edged Cincinnati Reds 3-2 with Johnson's 10th and Philadelphia Phillies whipped Chicago Cubs 11 - 5 behind White's big bat.

Mathews, whose home run over the Braves' first game under Billy Hitchcock last Tuesday, did it again against the Astros by hitting a two-run homer in the seventh inning.

The homer was a towering shot, landing in the purple seats at the Astrodome. The seats, located on the fourth level, seldom have been reached in the stadium's two - year history.

Johnson, on the other hand, didn't do much hitting at all, and that had him seeing red.

The Reds' slugger, who has 37 runs batted in this season compared with his major league-leading 130 last year, came to bat in the seventh inning with two runs, in two tying runs on base and two out.

Bob Miller replaced starter Claude Osteen and got Johnson to fly out.

A similar allusion cropped up in the sixth. The Reds scored one run, cutting the Dodger lead to 4-3, and had two men on again with two out. This time Phil Regan replaced Miller, and Johnson struck out.

White didn't hit any mammoth homers, but he didn't hit any rallies either. Instead, he slashed three singles and drove in five runs. He singled home two in the first inning, but the second and one in the eighth.

The output raised his runs batted in total to 79, six more than he had at last season.

Pittsburgh Pirates and San Francisco Giants had a day of rest, so the Pirates maintained their 114-game lead over the Giants. The Dodgers are three games back.

Mathews' home run, following the first of two singles by pitcher Tony Cloninger, boosted the Braves into a 3-2 lead. Mathews singled home their first run in the first inning. Cloninger drove in their fifth, none between the third and the fourth innings.

The Dodgers got all four of their runs in the fourth inning. Jim Gilliam singled and Lou Johnson followed with a double to left. Two outs later, Wes Parker and John Roseboro singled in the others.

White's lusty performance helped Chris Short to his 14th victory although the southpaw needed relief help from Terry Fox. Byron Browne and Ron Santo homered for Chicago.

Motorcycle Races Thrill Huge Crowd

The Ontario dirt track motorcycle championships stole the show at last night's installment of the Belleville Fair. An overflow grandstand crowd thrilled to the speedy and deadern-it spectacle, as top-flight cyclists from Canada and the United States vied for the coveted Ontario titles.

Doug Showler, of Parma, Ohio, drove his big Harley-Davidson 500 cc bike to a repeat victory in the hotly contested Expert Class final, followed by Don McHugh of Brampton in second spot, and popular Yvon DuHamel of Montreal in third.

DuHamel, who won the Expert Class in the 1964 competitions, also captured the 500cc lightweight class event last night. Second was Dave Sehl of Waterdown, Ont., with Herb Eckersley of Mystic, Connecti cut, coming in third.

Robert Noel of Montreal drove his B.S.A. to a runaway victory in the final of the Junior 500 cc Class competition, with Marcel Dufour, also of Montreal, placing second, and Maurice Fraser of Burlington finishing in third spot.

A flood of entries in the Junior Class of 500cc riders necessitated a consolation event in addition to the championship race.

Barry Whitmore of Willowdale, Bob Bootsma of Montreal, and Jack Bunteinsky of Toronto, finished in that order for the Ontario title, with Arthur Cooke of Maple, Ont., Frank Bigge of Oshawa, and Gilles Monnier of Granby, P.Q. being first three finishers in the consolation race.

Title winners each received silver tray "keeper" awards, along with their share of prize money ranging from purses of $1,300.

The winners of the 500cc championships have the honor of using the number 1 plate in motorcycle competitions during the coming year.

Despite breakneck speeds around the half-mile fairground circuit of 70 miles per hour and upward, no mishaps occurred, and no injuries were suffered by the experienced riders.

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—A five-day test of survival leading to the pinnacle of Canadian women's golf, the national amateur open championship, swung off the tee at the rolling Ashburn club at 9 a.m. ADT (7 a.m. EDT) today.

A field of 126 of the country's top female golfers, plus two entries from the United States, launched the opening medal - play round of 18 holes from which only the 32 top qualifiers will emerge to continue in championship match play.

Ties for the 32nd spot will be settled by sudden - death playoffs before the draw pairs off the qualifiers in 16 individual contests Wednesday. Two more rounds of elimination play are set for Thursday with the reduced field leading into the semi - finals Friday.

The championship final for the Duchess of Connaught cup is 36 holes of match play Saturday.

The competitors, most of whom were entered in the Canadian close and interprovincial team matches at Inglewood in neighboring Dartmouth last week, got in practice rounds Sunday and Monday at Ashburn, created to par 71 from 72 for the open.

Jocelyn Bourassa of Trois Rivieres, Que., defending open champion, said the course in this port city's residential west end "is short, but tricky. You have to drive short, short, chip short, then roll down."

Her chief worries in her title defence will come from veteran champion Marlene Stewart Streit of Foothill, Ont., and Ann-Marie Moseley Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., as well as several others—1963 runner-up Mary Ellen Driscoll of Saint John, N.B., Gail Harvey Moore of Toronto, last year's Close winner; Sandra Post of Milton, Ont., three - time junior champion; Barbara Renwick of Vancouver, runner-up in the close, and Gayle Hitchens, also of Vancouver.

The two U.S. entries are Susan Seeligson of Dallas, Texas and Jane Blalock of Greenland, N.H.

Manitoba Wins Canoe Pageant

VICTORIA (CP) — A victorious Manitoba canoe team heads for Montreal today with $1,000 in prize money and a trophy for winning the 400-mile Canadian centennial canoe pageant.

Six paddlers stroked the Manitoba canoe, Radisson, across the finish line in Victoria's Inner Harbor Monday night to complete the race from Fort St. James, B.C., in 30 hours, 59 minutes and 17 seconds.

British Columbia, the closest rival, glided across the line a total of 25 elapsed-time minutes later.

In their order of finish the eight other teams were Alberta, Quebec, Saskatchewan, Ontario, Nova Scotia, Yukon, New Brunswick, and Northwest Territories.

Manitoba; under Commodore Jim Rheaume of Flin Flon, showed its professionalism in a last four-mile dash to the finish line, paddling the distance about 40 minutes ahead of schedule.

The result was that Victoria Mayor A. W. Toone, who left home one-half hour early to greet the winners, arrived as canoes were being stored on a wharf.

Vancouver Boy Wins Net Title

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's biggest tennis honors for boys 18-and-under were won Monday in a match that provided the climax to three days of tournament play at the Canadian Close junior tennis championships.

Robin Ellot, 17, of Vancouver took the crown in a one-sided encounter over Stephane Vezina, 18, of Montreal, 6-3, 6-4, 9-10, 6-2.

Easy - going Elliot, described by a tournament official as "a real gentlemen on the courts," opened a commanding edge midway through the scheduled five-set match, then took it three sets to one.

On the final rally, he returned a high ball with a hard spike drive to win.

Earlier Monday, Andree Martin, a starry 16-year-old Montreal girl, defended her girls 18-and-under single. Then she decided not to compete in the Canadian Open junior tennis championships, and went home.

FELT SICK

A tournament spokesman said Miss Martin had complained of illness Saturday and decided to drop out after playing the Close championship finals against Susan Berger, 16, of Vancouver.

Miss Martin was also defending champion in the more difficult girls' tournament.

VISUALIZE GOLF BALL AS A CLOCKFACE

There seems to be considerable confusion among golfers as to where the club should contact the ball during impact. I think it will help if you would visualize the ball as being a clockface (see illustration).

On iron shots you want the club to contact the ball before it cuts into the turf – in other words, just before it reaches the lowest part of its arc. This is known as "hitting down on the ball" and it produces good control of the ball's flight because it encourages backspin.

I suggest you try to meet that ball at 10 o'clock on your iron shots.

On wood shots you want the club-head to sweep into the ball at the lowest point of its arc. Therefore, hit the ball at 9 o'clock on all wood shots.

Boys Stage 111-Hole Marathon

SASKATOON (CP)—Dennis Olenick, 15, and Kirk Houston, 14, were ready for bed Monday night.

The young Riverside Country Club members set out in a marathon golf game at 5 a.m. Monday and checked into the clubhouse at 9:30 p.m. after 111 holes of non-stop play, except for the odd sandwich. Their longest rest was 30 minutes for lunch.

Dennis and Kirk don't know whether they have set a Canadian record but they are sure they have established a record for their club, and perhaps for Saskatchewan.

On the course for 15 hours, 35 minutes, they came off in good condition except for sore feet. Olenick went 36 the way shouldering his golf bag, but Houston picked up a pull-cart for the final nine.

Measured direct from tee to green, the boys walked about 22.2 miles, which would be increased with off - line shots and their added steps around the greens.

Their aggregate scores for the 111 holes were Olenick 486, Houston 500. Individually their rounds were Olenick 81-83-78-81-83-78 and Houston 80-81-81-83-83-76. They were each one over par for the extra three holes.

Three Share Eastern Scoring Perch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newcomers to the Eastern Football Conference are making their presence felt in the early stages of the schedule.

Each team has played two games and players in their first season in the East lead scoring, rushing and pass catching.

Peter Dalla Riva, signed by Montreal Alouettes from British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial, shares the scoring lead with Whit Tucker of Ottawa Rough Riders and Tommy Grant of Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Each has 12 points.

Bob Paramore who went to the Alis from Alouets and St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League, leads rushing with his only two games. He galloped 280 yards in 19 carries and scored the winning touchdown against Toronto Argonauts in Montreal's 17-6 victory Friday night.

Bobby Taylor, an end who joined Toronto from Calgary Stampeders of Western Conference in the leading pass receiving with 14 catches.

Kemp has caught one touchdown pass to go with three converts and a field goal. Tucker and Grant each have two touchdowns.

Paramore holds a three-yard lead over Ottawa's Bo Scott in rushing. Scott has 186 yards in 41 carries. Paramore's average gain of 7.7 yards, helped by a 76-yard gallop against winless Toronto, is best in the standings.

Taylor's 14 pass receptions have netted 160 yards for Toronto. Tucker is second in passes caught with nine, but leads in passing yardage with 197, an average gain with 32.8 and touchdown, 33 yards.

Ottawa's Russ Jackson is the leading passer with 28 completions in 38 attempts for 340 yards, an average of 11.9 yards. Second with an 8.6-yard average is Hamilton's Frank Cosentino, who has completed 18 of 34 for 303 yards.

Larry Fairbrother of the Alouettes, who finished fourth, is tied in pass interceptions with three each while Travis Wilkerson of Ottawa is tops in kickoff returns with an average of 36.3 yards in four runbacks.

Toronto's Dave Mann, the East's punting leader for four years until he was dethroned the past two seasons by Joe Zuger of the Tiger-Cats, leads that department with a 42.5-yard average on 29 punts. Zuger is second at 42.3 also on 29 punts. Jim Copeland of Toronto is the leader in punt returns with an average of 7.9 yards on 13 carries.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — It was a question Monday whether Amber Tee, a handsome two-year-old, or jockey Hugo Ditzfach made the biggest impression at Fort Erie race track in the featured 6½th race.

Amber Tee ran away from some notable competition to win in 1:16 4-5, one second off Pierlot's 1954 track record.

And Ditzfach won three races to take over as the meeting's leading rider.

Ditzfach now has 25 winners, one more than Noel Turcotte and Avelino Gomez.

Amber Tee, owned by Jack Stafford, paid $9.50, $6.20 and $5.20 after winning easily from such outstanding competition as Bing Francis and Forest Park.

The starter of Sable S.C. and Cole Harbor was worth $74.40; the daily double of Sparkling Breeze and Bemo Miss paid $52.30.

Says Falsework Caused Collapse Of Heron Bridge

OTTAWA (CP)—A failure in falsework supporting a section of the Heron Road Bridge was blamed in a report Monday night for the section's collapse which killed eight workmen and injured more than 30 last Wednesday.

The written report to city Controller Ma works director, Frank Ayers, was the first official announcement that the falsework caused the collapse of the eastbound span section. A provincial-municipal investigation also is being held. It is expected to take several weeks and will be followed by an inquest.

"The formwork, concrete and falsework for the centre of the west and the east cantilever apparently dropped vertically," said Mr. Ayer's report.

"This resulted in the concrete bottom of the slab of the west cantilever portion being pulled away from the concrete, depositing on a pier and coming down on the westerly end of the centre span."

The sudden collapse at the site of the $2,500,000 bridge sent 76 workers hurtling into splintered wood, protruding reinforcing steel rods and dry and wet concrete.

Council observed a minute's silence in memory of the victims. It was the worst construction accident in the city's history.

All work on the bridge—that is to span the Rideau River and canal in southwest Ottawa—was ordered halted by Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, until after the inquest. The bridge was to have opened this October.

Plan Will Develop Boxing

NEW YORK (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union Monday unveiled a development program aimed at restoring United States' prestige in boxing for the 1968 Olympics.

The plan was announced by executive director Col. Donald F. Hall.

Noting that the U.S. won only one gold medal at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics compared to ten in 1952, Col. Hall said:

"The national boxing committee has developed a realistic program. They plan to prepare the U.S. boxers thoroughly."

Under the program, AAU boxers will learn to deal with international style boxing—in which more finesse is emphasized—in a series of dual meets with at least seven nations during the remainder of 1959 and 1967.

The dual meets will begin Friday night at Toronto when a U.S. team takes on a Canadian squad.

Woman Boats 727-lb Tuna

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Three blondin tuna, hooked at Cape St. Mary, 20 miles north of here, helped Mrs. Lloyd Hall of Cape St. Angelo extend in the Yarmouth International Tuna Cup match starting today in the coastal waters of south-west Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Thomas Comeau, of Clare District, N.S., caught the biggest—727 pounds—with some help from her husband. Edward Comeau and Johnu Comeau, both of nearby Meteghan, landed fish weighing 689 and 615 pounds respectively.

Wedgeport, the other main tuna angling point, 12 miles south of here, went fishless Monday for the fifth day in a row. The absence of a catch had officials and team-members in the small ward of the Cape success cases in.

Teams representing the United States, Nova Scotia, the British Caribbean Islands, and Canada are entered. The U.S. crew, headed by John W. Anderson of Detroit seeks to retain the tuna match trophy it won last year.

Wedgeport, for years the tuna capital of North America, has had a somewhat discouraging season thus far. Anglers have landed only eight bluefins up to today. The first and largest was 639-pounder on July 30 by Alfred Trask, a Yarmouth druggist and owner of the Canadian team. Cape St. Mary had reported one catch before Monday's three.

Imlach Says More To Go

Shack First Step In Purge

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Shack's demotion to Victoria of the Western Hockey League is the first step in a purge of Toronto Maple Leaf players, says Punch Imlach, Leaf coach and general manager.

Imlach, disappointed with his National Hockey League team's position in last season, Stanley Cup playoffs, blames a clique within the team for its deficiencies.

"I discovered there is a clique of three or four players who needed trouble in the team," he said in an interview Monday. "I have enough proof and now I'll have to act."

"In cases like this you have to be ruthless. I personally suspect one player doing things I shouldn't have done. There are others and I'm prepared to trade them if I can get the right man in exchange."

He refused to name the other players.

"All I'll say is that anybody on my hockey club who won't comply with club rules or will try to create trouble will either be traded or sent to the minors."

McFadden picked himself off the track, got back in the sulky and finished the race a distant last.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Jessa Farley, six-year-old bay mare from Mt. Elgin, Ont., owned by London, Ont., won the $1,000 consolation pace that went with the eighth race at Batavia Downs Monday. The time was 2:08 1-5.

Bill Harvey was in the sulky as Jessa Farley paid $9.80 for $2. Jessa's time was the fastest of the season.

OTTAWA (CP)—Rideau Carleton Raceway, reporting the heaviest fog in its history, managed to complete only five of the 10 scheduled races Monday night, including one of the season's biggest upsets.

St. James Street, a 34-1 favorite in the quinella fourth race, finished a disappointing fifth and finished up last. Defeating the four-year-old was Byrd Kildare with Len Callacott in the sulky.

Owned by C. E. Burrison of Cobourg, the mare had $2.10 and $2.40 a quinella return of $46.80 when combined with Willow's Boy C.

Sharp, Thatcher Hold Meeting At Airport

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp and Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan met Monday at Toronto International Airport to discuss the possibility of salvaging part of the $28,000,000 Saskatchewan stands to lose under a new federal equalization payment formula.

Mr. Thatcher, en route to Europe for a combined business and holiday trip, said nothing was resolved in the 45-minute meeting.

However, he said he is hopeful the federal government would reconsider its proposal and not deprive Saskatchewan of sorely needed revenue.

"Mr. Sharp had assured me he will meet with his colleagues and do his best to put our position forward," Mr. Thatcher said in an interview.

Mr. Thatcher completed at a provincial premiers conference here two weeks ago when the proposed formula was disclosed. As outlined then, the province would lose its present equalization grant of $25,000,000 which is said to be about one-eighth of its total revenues.

At the conference, Saskatchewan officials said no province should receive less in equalization payments under a new formula than it receives under the one which expires March 31, 1967.

Mr. Sharp, who drove from his cottage near Beaverton, 100 miles north of Toronto, described the meeting as a useful exchange of views.

"I told him that the federal government had not reached a final position on equalization payments," Mr. Sharp said.

Public Health Nurses Want New Contract

TORONTO (CP) — About 30 public health nurses in Hatton, Harwood, Dundas and Glengarry, Dundas and Glengarry counties were prepared to walk off their job Sept. 13 unless the counties agree to negotiate a new contract.

Letters of resignation giving the council's deadline were received Monday by the employers, Ontario - Halton County Health Unit, Milton, and United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Health Unit, Cornwall.

Lloyd R. Sharpe, director of employment relations for the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, said Monday the resignations were necessary to bring attention to the nursing profession's need for collective bargaining.

"We are having to use power to get the bargaining unit we want. This is distasteful but it is necessary, we must use it."

T. H. E. Cat, a New NBC Entry, Has Good Billing

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You loved Cary Grant in To Catch A Thief, didn't you? And Peter Lorre and Sam Jaffe? Rafael? Well then, it's a cinch that T.H.E. Cat, a new NBC entry, will enliven your Friday nights.

The half-hour show, in spite of its tongue-in-cheek title, is carefully planned to include a lot of tried-and-true romantic ingredients carefully stirred into an action story.

Blood ties between the series and the old Hitchcock movie thriller apparently are being actively emphasized. Robert Loggia, who plays the title role, has enjoyed the skilled services of the studio makeup department, resulting in a general appearance that strongly suggests Cary Grant. But when he speaks, it is with the inimitable accents of a native New Yorker.

T.H.E. Cat, is the fanciful name of our hero — Thomas Hewitt Edward Cat. The marvelous coincidence is a former circus acrobat turned private investigator and bodyguard.

The action is based, as it was in Hitchcock's movie, on bodyguard, is an unnamed city which is obviously San Francisco. And, like Peter Lorre, headquarters is a fascinating dimly-lighted nightclub.

This is called, of course, Casa Cat Gain, or, in formal translation from the Spanish, House of the Cat, a name which the NBC censors presumably have interpreted and okayed.

Loggia, another of the growing group of Actors' Studio graduates who have made happily into television, has been a successful character actor in all three theatrical mediums but a romantic lead is a new adventure.

He is a man of medium height, compactly built who seems quite at home as dancer or trained athlete—obviously one of the reasons he was picked for the assignment.

Mock Nuclear Blast Will Be Staged

By LARRY MacDONALD

HINTON, Alta. (CP)—Scientists from Canada, the United States and Great Britain hope to stage a mock nuclear explosion here on Sept. 15 at 6 a.m. MST (8 p.m. EDT) near this community 180 miles west of Edmonton.

Fifty tons of TNT are to be detonated in a heavily-decorated area to simulate the effect from a small nuclear weapon. Test officials will then study the devastation to determine the degree of damage to a forest and associated the effect on future troop movements in this area.

Today's experiment, nicknamed Operation Woodpecker, is a joint effort of U. S. and British defence teams. Personnel from the Suffield Experimental Station near Medicine Hat, Alta., will supervise Canada's role in the exercise, providing logistical and experimental data.

TNT will absolve to be used in the explosion have been put into place and a 30-acre plot of surrounding area spotted with strategic scientific equipment.

Wind velocity gauges and pressure sensitive instruments, scientists hope to assess the movement and strength of the shock waves at various points around O—the point of the explosion.

Plastic and metal dummies have been placed throughout the area and will be studied afterward to determine the hazard to fighting men subjected to the blast. Similar film studies will be conducted on light military equipment and carrier vehicles in the forest setting.

Immediately after the explosion, Defence Minister Paul Pratt-ross Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry from Edmonton will attack the area to establish its role in test the feasibility of military movement in such an environment.

During the exercise an RCAF Canberra reconnaissance patrol plane will fly over the area with an high-precision cameras rolling to capture the sequence of events.

Weather is a key factor in today's exercise and officials are looking for a clear, calm day so they can obtain maximum results.

150 Freight Handlers Stage A Walkout

QUEBEC (CP) — Some 150 freight handlers staged a walkout at the port here Monday accusing truckers of taking their work away from them.

After walking off their jobs, the freight handlers blocked entrances to warehouse sheds so that truckers could not enter to pick up or unload goods.

Armand Bourgeois, business agent for the Brotherhood of Railway, Steamship Clerks, Freight handlers, express and Station Employees said the men are protesting because the truckers have been doing certain jobs the handlers felt were theirs "by right."

He said the freight handlers have also had customary work hours taken away from them.

The strike by the freight handlers — who load and unload trucks and railway cars at warehouses and docks, affected movement of ships which are handled by longshoremen.

Personal Terrors Impaired Montgomery Clift's Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It was saddening to read while on a Hawaiian vacation that Montgomery Clift had died of a heart ailment at 46. It was poignant, too, since Hawaii had been the locale for one of the actor's greatest portrayals, Prulit in From Here to Eternity.

The untimely death seemed to follow the same pattern of other Hollywood figures — Marilyn Monroe, Marie Lanza, etc.—whose personal terrors impaired their professional careers.

No one, except perhaps a few close friends, knew what it was that bedevilled Clift. Whatever the cause, he suffered periods of neurotic and unpredictable behavior. He did not become an almost unemployable by fill m actor.

Yet he was also capable of immense personal charm. And his presence on the set as an actor were undeniable.

Clift was a Broadway name when he made his screen debut in first film, The Search. But it was Red River that firmly established him as a screen personality. His sensitive but masculine cowpoke was a perfect counterpoint of John Wayne's bluster.

From then he had his pick of roles and he chose with care. The Heiress, The Big Lift, A Place in the Sun. He barely made Paramount's A Eternity.

HAD CAR CRASH

A change in Clift's fortunes seemed to take place after his serious car accident in 1956. Driving home from a gay party at the home of Elizabeth Taylor and her husband Michael Wilding, he crashed his sedan into a pole. His nose was broken and his face cut.

The rebuilding is the middle of filming Raintree County, which was delayed until his face healed. He ended with as the same as before. He seemed gaunt and hurt.

Clift grew more elusive and eccentric. He became more difficult to manage on a film set.

The actor made a "comeback" vehicle early this year, The Defector. He was reported to have done enough it well and even plunged into the frigid Danube for a scene.

Clift was to star this fall in Reflections in a Golden Eye with Elizabeth Taylor, who had a reunion with Marlon Brando.

Pay $100,000 For Fake Masterpieces

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Twentieth Century-Fox has a $100,000 collection of fake masterpieces.

The studio paid young Paris artists that much to create 75 paintings and sculptures in the style of old masters for How to Steal a Million.

Each work is indelibly stamped "forgery" on its back. But Henry Hopkins, a curator of the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, says an art forger can peel off a painting and transfer it to a new canvas — or paste a new canvas on the back of the old.

Debating Good Training For Actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Want to act? Debating and oratory are good training, reports Julie Harris.

In 1956 she was a varsity debater at Central high school, Aberdeen, S.D., and won the state title — against 10 boys — in the American Legion's oratory contest.

Paradoxically soft - voiced and shy, the hazel-eyed, 5-foot-2 redhead has been described by one director as a combination Rita Hayworth and Judy Holliday, and by another as a new Jean Arthur. After numerous television and stage roles, she'll be seen soon in the movie The Pad.

Conference Likely to Give P.M. Trouble Over Rhodesia

By ALAN PATERSON

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth prime ministers' conference here next month appears likely to present Prime Minister Wilson with one of his most difficult problems since he took office in October, 1964.

Britain is thought certain to face trenchant demands at the conference from many of the 22 Commonwealth countries represented for tougher handling of the issue of Rhodesia, including the use of force to topple Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway regime in the central African colony.

Zambia and Tanzania have been joined lately in demanding the use of force against the white-minority regime which seized independence from Britain Nov. 11, 1965.

The task of preparing for the conference, opening Sept. 6, has been handed to Britain's new Commonwealth secretary, Herbert Bowden, a former Labor leader of the House of Commons. He took over the post—and its Rhodesia headache—from Arthur Bottomley last January.

A main reason behind Wilson's decision to advance his cabinet reshuffle from late in the week was to give Bowden as much time as possible to prepare for what probably will be the most critical prime ministers' conference in Commonwealth history.

Foremost among those claiming that Britain's economic sanctions against Smith regime have failed is President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, northern neighbor of Rhodesia.

Kaunda has threatened that if British fails to end the Rhodesian rebellion soon, he will take Zambia out of the Commonwealth.

Tanzania has already broken off diplomatic relations with Britain over its handling of the Rhodesia crisis and has not been even alerted his conference.

Negro-ruled African countries are getting strong support from their sister Asian Commonwealth members.

External Affairs Minister Sardar Swaran Singh of India has asked for the use of force to topple the Smith regime.

But Wilson has repeatedly assured the British Parliament his Labor government will not use force to bring down the Smith regime and risk bloodshed.

British officials contend the economic embargo is beginning to bite and working more effectively now than at any time since it was imposed at the end of last year.

Top Commonwealth officials have been meeting here regularly to prepare a full-scale report on the sanctions for Monday prime ministers' conference.

Wilson, as prime minister of the host country, will be chairman of the conference, to which as for only two other heads of government have accepted invitations.

They are Hastings Banda of Malawi and Borg Olivier of Malta. But the other replies are expected to be received by the Commonwealth secretariat by Aug. 19, deadline for acceptances.

Cardinal Steps Up Campaign Against Atheism

CZESTOCHOWA (AP) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski has stepped up his campaign against atheism promoted by the Polish government with a call to Roman Catholics to fight back with a "crusade of love."

In the first of two sermons within the last 48 hours, the cardinal indicated he expects to keep up the fight as he speaks to thousands Monday here and at nearby Opole.

The 65-year-old cleric is to take God away from our children," he said, lifting at the Shrine of the Black Madonna of Czestochowa, he suggested that economic pressure is being used to create a godless society.

Crowds of up to 75,000 gathered beneath the walls of the Jasna Gora Monastery Sunday to hear the cardinal deliver his sermons. An estimated 60,000, including many children, heard him at Czestochowa.

He urged them to take up the "crusade of love" that was planned at the end of the Second World War by the late Polish primate, August Cardinal Hlond, who died before the crusade began.

"We have seen enough of hatred. . . . In the churches, schools, in the streets, cinemas, streetcars, everywhere, we await the beginning of a new era in which will create generous relations among people everywhere, increase cooperation and brotherhood."

In one sermon, Cardinal Wyszynski confirmed that the Communist government will not allow him to go to North America to attend the Eucharistic Congress that was to have been attended his conference.

Negro-ruled African countries are getting strong support from their sister Asian Commonwealth members.

External Affairs Minister Sardar Swaran Singh of India has asked for the use of force to topple the Smith regime.

Eight Canadians Under Detention In Hungary

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Prime Minister Martin said Monday eight Canadians are in jail or under detention in Hungary.

He said in a statement some 8,000 Canadians of Hungarian origin have visited Hungary in the last 18 months. During that time 19 had been arrested and eight are still in custody Thursday.

The external affairs department decided to give the names of the eight persons after it obtained.

Mr. Martin's statement said one is serving a sentence after conviction on charges of currency smuggling and another on negligence in a fatal motor accident; three are in custody awaiting trial, one on smuggling charges, one for trying to assist a Hungarian citizen to leave illegally and one for making fictitious statements; four are prevented from leaving Budapest while matters in their cases are investigated.

Canada does not have a resident mission in Budapest but, Mr. Martin said, officials of the embassy in Prague visit Hungary regularly.

Canadian officials had investigated each of the eight cases except for the one concerning sedition, which occurred Aug. 10. A report on this incident was awaited here.

Applicants for Resident Status Fewer Than Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — The immigration department's five-week open period during which visitors to Canada who wish to remain as immigrants were allowed to apply for resident status ended Monday at midnight with far fewer applications than had been anticipated.

A spokesman for the department said Monday that latest figures available—up to Aug. 8 —showed 4,078 persons had applied under the plan which was introduced in the Commons by Immigration Minister Maxwell Cohen July 8. Final figures are expected today or Wednesday.

This was in contrast to the loose estimate by the department that 20,000 to 30,000 persons who had entered the country as visitors with the hidden intention of remaining for good were eligible to apply.

The plan to allow visitors to apply for resident status resulted from the application by more than 21,000 visitors for certain departmental's five-week open period during which visitors to Canada who wish to remain as immigrants were allowed to apply for resident status ended Monday at midnight with far fewer applications than had been anticipated.

Chandra Sharma, chief immigration officer in charge of the program, said the department's announcement, the spokesman said.

Irregular immigrants who do not meet three conditions face deportation but the department has indicated it expects a small number of deportations resulting from the special period to be held.

RULES SET

Visitors — turned-immigrants:

—Must NOT be within prohibited classes listed in the Immigration Act such as criminals, security risks and persons of immoral character.

—Must not have entered Canada "by means other than by posing as visitors.

—Must fit into one of four categories: they would be accepted as if they applied normally abroad; they have been a Canadian on or before July 8; they are established occupations, business or been steadily employed for eight months; or they have had 10 years of schooling.

The deadline originally was set for July 22 but Mr. Egan chand extended it to Monday when response to the plan was lighter than expected. The department inserted advertisements in foreign newspapers hoping to spread the word to all persons involved.

Of the 4,078 who had applied up to last Monday, 2,340 came from Ontario and 1,137 from Quebec. Only 30 were from the Atlantic provinces while the Prairie provinces contributed 348 and the Pacific Coast area 323.

The largest single group of applicants was Greek, with 631 visitors from the country applying. The West Indies contributed 719, followed by Italy with 434, Portugal with 378, Eastern Europe with 308 and Germany with 103.

MUNICIPAL PROMOTION — Deseronto businessmen Ernie Luck and Don Kimmett are seen with samples of "Made in Deseronto" products being promoted at Belleville Fair. For the first time in the history of the fair an outside municipality is promoted in a commercial exhibit.

Napanee District News

Mrs. H. C. File — Phone 354-4099

Incidents Cease at CIL Men's Homes

NAPANEE — No further incidents of damage to the homes of CIL workers have been reported since Friday night when picture windows were broken in four homes. Stones were thrown by men who afterwards made good their escape in cars. No arrests have been made, but the examination is continuing. Extra police were on guard in Napanee Saturday night.

Men from the Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are being sent to the Millhaven plant as they are available. There have been no incidents on the picket lines there for a few days. The plant is operating with two shifts, with salaried men assisting.

Around Town

NAPANEE — Two draws made Friday night at the week by dances for teenagers being sponsored by the Napanee Firefighters' Association were Richard Doyle and Paul Breault, who won the transistor radio. Richard is 13, a grade 8 student and was awarded two tickets for the Beatles show in Toronto on Wednesday with transportation and all other expenses paid. Richard argues that he would only see the Beatles, and hear them, because of screaming girls. He is trying to sell the tickets, and use the proceeds to finance a trip to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. The firefighters approve of his decision.

About 360 young folk danced Friday evening to the music of Paul and the Tarantulas, the combination which the firefighters' association is sponsoring. Next Friday the guest band will probably be the Mystics, consisting of five Napanee boys.

WINS GOLF TROPHY

Mrs. Margo Macpherson brought home the trophy for the low gross for the field competing with 107 players last Saturday in the International Ladies' Golf Tournament in Prescott. She had a shot of 89. She and Mrs. Isabel McAlister will represent Napanee over the weekend at the annual Ladies' Tournament at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. While in Prescott Mrs. Macpherson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cholditch and, formerly of Napanee when Mr. Cholditch was a member of the staff of the R.C.M.P.

HOUSE DAMAGED

Napoleon police are looking for a car which is believed to have struck a home on West St. Saturday evening. Mrs. Rose Wilson, on returning home, discovered a cabinet in her living room had been upset and the contents strewn about. She found that the outside wall of the house had been damaged, probably by a car. There was no witness to the accident, and the neighbors did not hear it.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — Mrs. Walter Wade, wife of her daughters, Marina and Madeline, of Hereford St., left Saturday for an extended visit with her parents and other relatives in England.

Guests this summer of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ramsay of Graham St. have been their daughters, Mrs. Douglas Sexsmith, with Mr. Sexsmith, and their children, Janice, Kelly, Jill and Sandy, all of Toronto, and Mrs. Gordon Clifford, with Carol, Marianne, Timmy and Hugh of Millmont.

Three of the directors of the Lennox Agricultural Society acted as judges for ladies' work at the Belleville Fair; Mrs. Jesse MacLean, canning; Mrs. Hazel McCaul, baking, and Mrs. Jack VanKoughnet, sewing and fancy work.

Guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taffs of Piety Hill were Mrs Taffs' sister, Mrs. Ralph Wheelock and Mr. Wheelstone of Fort Francis; and their son Michael of Hawkesbury.

Mrs. T. V. Anderson of the Stacey Apartments, John St., has returned from Ottawa where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. B. B. McEwen and her family, and her son H. B. Robinson and his wife and family. While there she accompanied her granddaughter Janet McEwen on an arranged weekend bus tour to Stratford, where they attended three productions at the festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Offer and Mary and Willie are visiting Mrs. Offer's mother, Mrs. Rosena Pidgeon of West St.

Mrs. Mamo Grooms has returned from a weekend in Sudbury, where she visited her son Roy and his family and other relatives. She accompanied her daughter Mrs. David Selley of Newburgh, Brian Grooms, who had spent much of the summer in Sudbury will relatives, returned home with them.

May Release Rock Collection Later in Week

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue department officials received a short course in valuable stones Monday from three of five American rock dealers whose collections have been seized by the RCMP.

The dealers and officials spent two hours finding out how rare collections and customs regulations make a bad fit.

A spokesman for the department said release of the collections is likely later in the week pending a final outcome of the case.

Two dealers' collections and vehicles were seized Friday in Bancroft, Ont. at a Gemboree—a two-day festival of collectors and dealers.

Two of the dealers paid penalties of $20 and $30 for return of their collectible. The semi-precious stones are subject to various tax classifications when brought to Canada for sale, and sales were being made at the Gemboree site in the rich collectors' country of east-central Ontario.

The official said he had a friendly meeting with the dealers and some collections remain impounded.

Deseronto Businessmen Boost Town

Deseronto businessmen, 30 miles to the east of the city are out to capture a bit of attention at Belleville Fair.

In what is believed to be a "first" for Belleville fair, businessmen from an outside community are co-operating in a joint exhibit in the commercial building taking up approximately 40 feet of wall space.

The display, representing four Deseronto manufacturing plants and 18 businessmen, is sponsored by the Deseronto Business and Professional Men's Association and will be manned continually throughout the four days of the fair.

Manufacturing plants represented in the display are Ideal Vendors, manufacturers of automatic vending machines, Hawley Brothers Woodworking, Metcalfe Tools, and Canada Optical, manufacturers of eye glass frames.

Deseronto Personals

RAISE $250 FOR PARK

DESERONTO — The Deseronto White Elephant Store, operated by ladies representing all the churches of the town, hoped to raise a couple of hundred dollars to contribute to the Centennial Park fund. Last week they passed the $600 mark, mostly from the sale of small articles. They have a steady demand for furniture, but cannot fill their orders.

TO HOST BAND

Michael Paul and the Endless was second place in the Battle of the Bands in Picton Arena Friday night. Monday they appeared on CKWS-TV on the Peterborough show. The band, organized this summer, consisted of two Napanee boys, Mike Paul Powell, vocalist, and Kenny Clarke, lead guitar, and William Brant, drums; Jim Dobbin, bass guitar; Gordon Brant, organ, and manager Bernard Dobbin, all of Deseronto.

ACCOMPANIES PIPE BAND

Mrs. Kay Hood of Mill Street, is a pipe band enthusiast everywhere Saturday. While the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Barnes in Kingston, she accompanied a bus trip which carried the Rob Roy Pipe Band to Turpentville and another community near Lake Placid in New York State, where they had been engaged to provide entertainment, including Scottish dances by girl members. Peter Barnes, who is 15, is a member of the band this year for the first time. Not only the band members, but also their friends who accompanied them, were treated with great hospitality, and given refreshments wherever they went.

CROSS CANADA BY MOTORCYCLE

Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Brant and Mrs. Brant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hill, who live on Highway 2, just out of Deseronto, have returned from a unique, but tiring holiday. Although they own a car, they travelled nearly across Canada on their motorcycles, visiting the Calgary Stampede as part of their holidays, and visiting relatives there.

BIG MOUTHFUL

"Aequoscaulosaltaticoscetaceoamphibianinfernoparvicolis" — an 18th century description of British spa waters—is probably the longest word ever coined in English.

Yugoslavian Critic Freed

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Ljubiza Stefanic, friend of anti-Communist Mihajlo Mihajlov, has been released after three days of detention in Zadar on the Adriatic Coast, it was announced Monday.

Announcing the release, the president of the Zadar district court said accusations that Stefanic was spreading false informa-sion are still being investigated.

Stefanic, 28, a literature professor from Zagreb, is an ex-Communist and co-editor designate of the critical non-Communist magazine the Mihajlov group is planning to publish.

He was arrested last week, two days after Mihajlov.

The rest of the group then decided to call off a much-publicized meeting to found the magazine and mailed application to publish the magazine to the authorities.

Three Dead Babies Found in Freezer, Woman Arrested

TOFIELD, Alta. (CP)—Discovery of the bodies of three babies wrapped in brown paper and placed in a seldom-used freezer here has led to the arrest of a 23-year-old woman in Edmonton and shocked sleepy second local residents.

Patricia Florence Brown was arrested in Edmonton Tuesday and charged with disposing of a child's body in order to conceal having given birth to a baby. Maximum penalty under section 215 is two years' imprisonment. In a brief court appearance she was remanded one week in custody.

But her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Brown, her teen - age brother and sister, residents of this country village 70 miles east of Edmonton and local RCMP were tight-lipped about the gruesome discovery by Mrs. Brown when she started cleaning the freezer.

In answering a reporter's knock at the door of his farm home in the community of 1,025, Mr. Brown said only:

"If you're a reporter, you can leave—politely."

The local RCMP detachment was about as communicative, as far as getting facts was concerned, said one of the bodies may have been placed in the freezer in 1962, another a year later and the third in 1965.

The freezer is accessible from outside the house through a trapdoor and down a steep flight of stairs. The family usually used another freezer in the garage back of the grey-and-cream bungalow.

Dr. M. M. Castor, Alberta's chief coroner, said an autopsy should determine how long the babies lived after birth—if they were not stillborn—and they much time elapsed before they were put in the freezer.

The frozen condition of the bodies was slowing the autopsy at University of Alberta Hospital in Edmonton but results may be known Friday.

Another coroner said each of the bodies was still attached to the umbilical cord. Two bodies have been identified as males but decomposition left doubt about the sex of the third. However, it too was believed male.

Miss Brown was described by a Tofield businessman as a quiet young brunette about five-foot-three. She worked in Edmonton but often visited her parents at weekends.

Sukarno Implores U.S. to End War

JAKARTA (Reuters) — President Sukarno, in an impassioned address at a big rally here today, condemned the "American war" in Viet Nam and implored the U.S. to get out of that beleaguered country.

In a speech marking Indonesia's 21st anniversary of independence from the Dutch, Sukarno said his country is willing to mediate in Viet Nam on the basis that Asian problems should be solved by Asians.

Frequently shouting, gripping his fists, he told an estimated 1,000,000 persons massed in Freedom Square and spilling into the side streets that Indonesia is executing a global strategy in its struggle against imperialism.

Sukarno said Indonesian troops had burned, bombed and spread poison gas in Viet Nam. He warned that if the peace-loving nations do not unite to oppose the crimes in Viet Nam, the world will suffer a yet more extensive and catastrophic calamity.

The president, perspiring in the dazzling morning sun, spoke for two hours. His audience is still prime minister and has not transferred power to Gen. Suharto.

Sukarno also said Indonesia would recognize Malaysia only after general elections in the Malaysian Borneo territories of Sarawak and Sabah.

Justifying his recent policies before executive power effectively passed into the hands of Gen. Suharto, the president said inflation was not caused by his projects but by military expenditures in the fight to liberate Indonesian New Guinea from the Dutch.

The president said he agreed to the new Indonesian - Malaysian agreement on normalization between the two countries only after it was changed to indicate that Indonesia would recognize Malaysia after general elections in Sabah and Sarawak, but with the signing of the peace accord.

Retired Officers Unite to Demand Integration Halt

TORONTO (CP) — A group of veterans led by a former air marshal Tuesday night laid battle plans for a cross-Canada fight against Defence Minister Hellyer's plan for integration of the armed forces.

Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, former chief of air staff, was honorary chairman at the gathering of 18 ex-servicemen who claim a support from other groups of veterans in Canadian cities.

(One of the directors of the group, Air Vice-Marshal Larry S. Wray, is a native of Belleville. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wray and a brother of Harley Wray, proprietor of Wray's Home Furnishings here.)

A statement of objectives read at the meeting said the group would be called the Tri-Service Identities Organization.

The statement said TRIO aimed to "preserve the combat efficiencies of the navy, the army and the air force by demanding an immediate halt to any further steps toward the creation of a single military force."

Robert H. Hilborn of Toronto, a former Royal Canadian Air Force commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, was elected ex TRIO's first president.

TELEPHONES FOR SUPPORT

After the meeting Mr. Hilborn began telephoning former servicemen in other cities who had earlier been told of what was planned.

The statement also said TRIO would call for a royal commission into the integration plan. It said the group would co-operate with organizations and citizens who are "protesting the arbitrary decision to abolish" the three separate services into one.

Attending the meeting was R. C. G. Wilson, president of the Navy League of Canada, who said he represented 30,000 navy veterans.

R. G. Bundy, national president, General Motors, Chrysler and Ford, plus the Detroit Tooling Association, promised to send a wire later with the union on its "yes or no" demand for reopening.

Wheat Slow To Ripen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A bumper grain crop is ripening in many parts of Western Canada but agricultural officials agree the weather is the key factor in determining the quality and quantity. Heavy moisture in some parts has delayed ripening and frost would cut both yield and grade if it strikes before the grain is ready.

A Canadian Press survey Tuesday showed, however, general optimism about the harvest, already under way in some southern parts of the provinces.

"Prospects are excellent for a bumper crop," said L. J. Hutchison, agricultural representative branch director in Regina. "We've had ideal weather so far. Hot days, warm nights and a number of timely showers during the filling stage."

R. E. English, officialist with the Alberta department of agriculture said: "We think prospects at the moment for above average crops in Alberta."

In Manitoba, however, Herb Andresen, president of the Man-Robs Farmers' Union, says over-all yields in the province are not promising, partly because of heavy moisture conditions and slow ripening in many areas.

The Red River Valley was hard-hit by spring floods.

"Crops are one to two weeks late in Alberta," Mr. English said, "and frost is the question mark on results of a good crop, particularly from Red Deer north."

Only in southern Alberta were any reports of swathing being done, Mr. Hutchison said, and these came from widely scattered areas. However swathing in early crops should be general in about ten days.

Swathing was general in the southern part of Saskatchewan. Swathing of coarse grains should extend through the rest of the province by the end of the week.

Jack Riddell, superintendent of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool technical services section, said swathing was expected to be in full swing next week.

Damage from insects posed no problem and only several reports of rust were received.

Hail insurance officials expected claims amounting to more than $2,000,000, up $1,000,000 from last year, but total damage in relation to seeded acreage was not extensive.

Arrest 17 At 'Peace' Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — More members of anti-war groups that brand the United States as an aggressor in Viet Nam face questioning today by the committee on un-American activities of the U.S. House of Representatives after a tumultuous opening day punctuated by repeated crowd outbursts and 17 arrests.

Minutes before the committee plunged into its hearings on Communist aid to dissenters who help the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, a three-judge federal court lifted an order by U.S. District Judge Howard F. Corcoran forbidding the session. But it directed a further hearing today on a constitutional challenge to the committee's authority.

Scores of police and federal officers patrolled the caucus room in the old House office building and surrounding marble corridors.

Nine persons were dragged or carried out by police after leaping to their feet to shout challenges to the committee. Another eight were arrested as several hundred supporters of the anti-war witnesses milled and jostled in corridors hoping to get seats.

LAYS GROUNDWORK

But the committee devoted its morning session and part of the afternoon to laying the groundwork for an allegation that some anti-war groups as the May 2nd Movement are controlled by Communist organizations such as the Progressive Labor Movement and the Progressive Labor party.

Philip A. Luce, an author and former member of the Progressive Labor Movement, testified that the anti-war groups represented only a small minority of American youth.

His testimony prompted Jeffery Gordon, a Progressive Labor party leader from New York, to leap to his feet and shout:

"Let's stop this fink testimony. U.S. get out of Viet Nam."

Gordon was hustled out of the chamber and taken to a police station.

All 17 who were arrested were charged with disorderly conduct.

Along with many of the others, Gordon was in the front afternoon session at which he was called to testify. He announced the way he will vote and extolled the May 2nd Movement and progressive thought.

Several times he called President Johnson a murderer.

"The blood is on Johnson's hands," he shouted. "My interest is that no more Americans die in Viet Nam. Your interest, and Johnson's interest, is to send more Americans there."

UAW Asks Contracts Reopened

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers have demanded that the automakers give them an answer by next Monday on their union's request for reopening current contracts to write in higher wages for skilled tradesmen.

The three-year contracts, negotiated in 1964, do not expire for more than a year, said Chairman Henry Ford II of Ford Motor Co. ie on record as saying reopening at this time would be "inadvisable."

The demand comes, however, just as the automakers are beginning to roll out 1967 models.

The union says its only weapon is "the power of persuasion." But a strong demand always raises the spectre of work stoppages, and all the manufacturers like to begin a new model year with a rush.

Skilled tradesmen within the UAW contend they are underpaid when compared with others, particularly within the building trades.

POINT TO SCALE

They point to a Detroit straight - time scale of $4.68 hourly for carpenters and $5.30 for electricians. In the Big Three auto plants they say tool and die makers average $3.87, and in job shops of the Detroit Tooling Association, $4.26. Other skilled trades are millwrights and machinists.

UAW spokesmen said Tuesday the union would ask a "substantial increase" in event of reopening. The figure of 25 per cent, or about $1 an hour, has been tossed about by some within the skilled ranks.

Only Ford has replied publicly to contract reopening, a subject which UAW President Walter P. Reuther broached some weeks back.

In a secret meeting Monday however, General Motors, Chrysler and Ford, plus the Detroit Tooling Association, promised to send a wire later with the union on its "yes or no" demand for reopening.

Two Men Held in Killings

LONDON (CP)—John Duddy, 37-year-old Scotsman wanted in the killings of three London detectives, was arrested today.

With the capture of Duddy, only one of the three wanted in connection with the slayings is still at large.

The slain detectives, members of an undercover squad, were shot outside the walls of London's Wormwood Scrubs prison last Friday.

Duddy was arrested following an intensive manhunt in both London and Glasgow.

APPEAL TO PUBLIC

Harry Roberts, 30, is the other man sought. Police appealed for help from the public Tuesday and the air force got in the act.

Police sources said Duddy would stay in Glasgow until an escort arrived from Scotland Yard.

Duddy was seized in a police raid on a house in Glasgow.

A spokesman for Glasgow police said Duddy offered no resistance.

The hunt for Roberts went on without letup.

Bury squad cars and dog patrols raced in check each train disembarking former servicemen in other cities who had earlier been told of what was planned.

The statement also said TRIO would call for a royal commission into the integration plan. It said the group would co-operate with organizations and citizens who are "protesting the arbitrary decision to abolish" the three separate services into one.

Think Rail Heads To Meet Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson took personal charge of the government's railway strike crisis today, calling a special cabinet committee to map plans for the impending emergency.

President Donald Gordon of the CNR and President Ian Sinclair of the CPR were called to the capital with Montreal but did not attend the cabinet committee session that began at 10 a.m.

Informants said the railway presidents were asked to stand by for cabinet - level consultations later in the day, probably until Mr. Pearson returns.

A full meeting of the cabinet was scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

The committee meeting was attended by Labor Minister Nicholson, Transport Minister Pickersgill, Health Minister MacEachen and Immigration Minister Marchand among others.

Reports that, some non-operating railway workers have threatened to stage an unauthorized walkout one minute after midnight tonight gave an air of urgency to the cabinet discussions.

A nation - wide walkout by almost 200,000 railway workers is expected sometime in the next three weeks.

But an unauthorized walkout can be averted, the unions plan to set a common strike date and the guessing is that it will be either Aug. 28/Sept. 6, or sometime between these two dates.

No Sanctuary for Civilians Thousands Die in Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP)—There are no sanctuaries in South Viet Nam for unarmed civilians and, almost daily, guerrilla warfare takes its toll.

There are no statistics on such civilian deaths, but they run into the thousands.

Incidents last week, including the bombing of a Mekong delta village by U.S. Air Force jets that killed 56 and injured 40, lagoons and injury to another 194, emphasize the plight of the innocent civilian caught between the Viet Cong and forces backing the government.

Sukarno also said Indonesia would recognize Malaysia only after general elections in the Malaysian Borneo territories of Sarawak and Sabah.

Justifying his recent policies before executive power effectively passed into the hands of Gen. Suharto, the president said inflation was not caused by his projects but by military expenditures in the fight to liberate Indonesian New Guinea from the Dutch.

The president said he agreed to the new Indonesian - Malaysian agreement on normalization between the two countries only after it was changed to indicate that Indonesia would recognize Malaysia after general elections in Sabah and Sarawak, but with the signing of the peace accord.

26 Villagers Die as U.S. Jet Crashes

SAIGON (AP) — A U.S. Air Force jet fighter-bomber, heavily-laden with bombs and fuel, crashed into a Vietnamese village shortly after takeoff from Da Nang Airport today. At least 26 villagers were killed.

The pilot, identified as Lieut. Philip Gilbert Hill, Ore., miraculously escaped serious injury. His parachute failed to open after he ejected, but the fall of his ejection seat was broken by a tree.

Hill's plane was one of two U.S. Air Force planes jettisoned their unused explosives.

A Viet Cong attack often will precipitate a counter attack with civilians caught in the crossfire.

A Viet Cong set off a claymore mine in Saigon May 10, American and military police opened up with machine-guns. Four civilians were killed and 36 wounded.

Believe Sub Hoaxer Travelled To France by Plane Says RCMP

MONTREAL (CP) — A man tentatively identified as Joseph Papp travelled to Europe by plane from Montreal Aug. 30 and that name was in the flight's passenger list, the RCMP said Tuesday night.

A 33 - year - old Montrealer named Joseph Papp, now in France, says he went there across the Atlantic in a submarine of his own making. French police are sceptical of the claim.

Mr. Papp was scheduled to be issued a new passport at the Canadian Embassy in Paris today and a flight back to Montreal was expected to be arranged for him within a day or two.

The RCMP statement said an airline employee had tentatively identified Papp from a photograph as a passenger on the Aug. 30 flight of a Dutch KLM airliner from Montreal to Amsterdam. An RCMP spokesman said Mr. Papp's name was on the passenger list of Flight 676 Aug. 30.

That was the day Mr. Papp was reported by relatives to have left his home here. He was quoted as telling them he planned to go to Sorel, Que., where a small, high-speed submarine of his own making was said to be moored.

It was on this craft that he planned to make the trip, the relatives said.

Mr. Papp was found by French police last Friday night floating on a raft in the harbor of Brest, France. On his person police said they found a railway ticket for the trip from Paris to Brest.

The RCMP said they presume Mr. Papp stopped at Paris after reaching Amsterdam.

Nicholas Bolog, a Hungarian-born friend of Mr. Papp, also living in Montreal, said: "I don't care where you got that information, it is false."

French police released Mr. Papp Tuesday after satisfying themselves of his identity and assurances that the Canadian embassy would arrange his passage back home.

Mr. Bolog said in an interview he had seen the 36-foot craft several times and that Papp, a former Hungarian air force jet pilot, had been developing and working on it for 18 years.

Bolog said the machine's first test run was in the St. Lawrence River Aug. 8 and that within a few seconds of one of its six "reactors" being started it attained a speed of 36 m.p.h.

Retired Officers Unite to Demand Integration Halt

TORONTO (CP) — A group of veterans led by a former air marshal Tuesday night laid battle plans for a cross-Canada fight against Defence Minister Hellyer's plan for integration of the armed forces.

Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, former chief of air staff, was honorary chairman at the gathering of 18 ex-servicemen who claim a support from other groups of veterans in Canadian cities.

(One of the directors of the group, Air Vice-Marshal Larry S. Wray, is a native of Belleville. He is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wray and a brother of Harley Wray, proprietor of Wray's Home Furnishings here.)

A statement of objectives read at the meeting said the group would be called the Tri-Service Identities Organization.

The statement said TRIO aimed to "preserve the combat efficiencies of the navy, the army and the air force by demanding an immediate halt to any further steps toward the creation of a single military force."

Robert H. Hilborn of Toronto, a former Royal Canadian Air Force commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, was elected ex TRIO's first president.

TELEPHONES FOR SUPPORT

After the meeting Mr. Hilborn began telephoning former servicemen in other cities who had earlier been told of what was planned.

The statement also said TRIO would call for a royal commission into the integration plan. It said the group would co-operate with organizations and citizens who are "protesting the arbitrary decision to abolish" the three separate services into one.

Attending the meeting was R. C. G. Wilson, president of the Navy League of Canada, who said he represented 30,000 navy veterans.

R. G. Bundy, national president, General Motors, Chrysler and Ford, plus the Detroit Tooling Association, promised to send a wire later with the union on its "yes or no" demand for reopening.

Two Men Held in Killings

LONDON (CP)—John Duddy, 37-year-old Scotsman wanted in the killings of three London detectives, was arrested today.

With the capture of Duddy, only one of the three wanted in connection with the slayings is still at large.

The slain detectives, members of an undercover squad, were shot outside the walls of London's Wormwood Scrubs prison last Friday.

Duddy was arrested following an intensive manhunt in both London and Glasgow.

APPEAL TO PUBLIC

Harry Roberts, 30, is the other man sought. Police appealed for help from the public Tuesday and the air force got in the act.

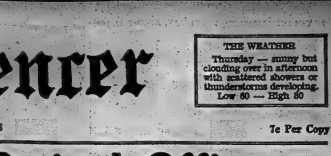
Police sources said Duddy would stay in Glasgow until an escort arrived from Scotland Yard.

Duddy was seized in a police raid on a house in Glasgow.

A spokesman for Glasgow police said Duddy offered no resistance.

The hunt for Roberts went on without letup.

Bury squad cars and dog patrols raced in check each train disembarking former servicemen in other cities who had earlier been told of what was planned.



The statement also said TRIO would call for a royal commission into the integration plan. It said the group would co-operate with organizations and citizens who are "protesting the arbitrary decision to abolish" the three separate services into one.

Belleville Local 126 of BRT Rejects Conciliation Report

Members of Local 126 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Transport and General Workers have voted to reject the Cameron conciliation report on which offered workers a 40 cents increase in wages over a two year period.

The Belleville Local, which has a membership of approximately 230 workers, met last night at Club Canara and according to President Henry Hall voted unanimously to reject the conciliation report offer.

At the same time Mr. Hall said local units members were warned against going out on a wildcat strike, noting that would be received from union headquarters if a strike was to be called. If there is a strike of workers it is not expected to be before Labor Day.

"Our hands are tied until union heads meet," Mr. Hall said.

Local 126 takes in railway office workers and stores employees.

Russia Really Angered By Viet Nam Conflict

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — An important matter not generally appreciated in the West is the extent to which the Soviet government has become worked up over Viet Nam.

There is a widespread impression in the West that the Kremlin is merely going through the motions in opposing American bombing of North Viet Nam and intervention in South Viet Nam.

Moscow has to talk the way it does to save face because a Communist country is under attack, the thinking goes. But it is all sound and bluff for the record. In reality Russia doesn't care.

This seems to be the prevailing view in some Western countries and it's incorrect.

For one thing, it ignores the fact the Soviet Union has poured hundreds of millions of dollars worth of arms and equipment into North Viet Nam to help it carry on the war. More than once Russia has threatened to send "volunteers" to help the North Vietnamese.

It is obvious to observers here that there are forces within the Kremlin hierarchy who want the government to get even more deeply involved in Viet Nam or possibly to relieve the pressure there with some bold move in Europe.

Among the hard - liners, it would appear, is Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky who rarely makes a speech without rattling rockets and bitterly reviling the Americans.

It seems equally obvious that Premier Alexei Kosygin, an industrial technocrat more interested in putting the Soviet economy on its feet than demonstrating Russia's military power, still espouses the more moderate approach.

HAWKS GAINING

Until now Kosygin has managed to carry Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev with him, which accounts for the fact that, generally, Russia's response in the Viet Nam crisis has been a moderate one.

However, in recent months, especially since the bombings near Haiphong and Hanoi began, there has been a change.

Russia's aid commitments to North Viet Nam have increased. Kosygin himself was moved to attack the U.S. action as "reactionism and barbarism." Soviet officials talk openly of the war having entered a new phase.

The "hawks" have clearly gained ground, forcing even "doves" into a tougher line.

It's perhaps not generally understood abroad what an uncomfortable position men like Kosygin—firm believers in peaceful coexistence—have been thrown into as a result of Viet Nam.

It would be impossible for a country that calls itself the leader of world communism to stand aside while another Communist country is involved in a fight with a Western power.

With China always ready to cry "sellout," it's unthinkable that the Soviet Union would fail to take a strong stand. On the contrary, the pressure is precisely in the direction of even stronger action.

Lost Tribe Said Living In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — A lost tribe descended from the ancient Mayan civilization is believed living somewhere in the rain forests of southern Mexico.

The leader of a five - man scientific expedition returned from three months in the Yucatan Peninsula reports finding definite evidence of its existence.

The group's leader, a 31-year-old Londoner, Michael Blake, said they did not meet any members of the lost tribe but saw banana and maize plantations which could have been planted by Indians and deserted some 20 years ago. He thought it possible the tribesmen were Lacandon Indians.

Only 108 Lacandon Indians are known to exist. The Lacandons, in two main groups in Chiapas province bordering Guatemala, are dying out because of inbreeding and diseases, such as yellow fever, endemic in the area.

One big question still to be answered is where the Indians went when they deserted their villages 20 years ago. One theory is that they were wiped out by disease or scattered.

The expedition found two women with their children living on a river bank. Their husbands had died and their maize crop had failed. These Indians and others met along the river banks told of a tribe living deep in the forest who knew the other two known Lacandon Indian tribes.

ONE HELD

A third man, Londoner John Edward Witney, 36, Tuesday was ordered held in custody for a week on charges of murdering—with others—the three detectives gunned down Friday when they tried to question occupants of a car on a quiet West London street.

In his two-minute court appearance Tuesday, Witney was accompanied in by two detectives and handcuffed to one of them.

He spoke only four words—"no" three times and "yes" once—in reply to the magistrate's questions.

Near the end of the hearing, a woman in the public gallery blessed and shouted, but was silenced by the court clerk.

Meanwhile, spontaneous public donations for the families of the slain police today totalled more than $70,000 ($21,000) hoisted by £200 ($600) from movie star David Niven.

Cabinet Will Hold Meet on Strike Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal cabinet meets today to decide what to do about a railway strike expected within the next three weeks. It would be the first such walkout since 1950.

Sources close to several key ministers say the main issue is whether Parliament should be called into emergency session before or after the strike date, which still has not been set by the unions.

The guessing is that the strike will be called in the Sept. 1-6 period. There also has been speculation that Monday, Aug. 29, will be selected. A decision will be made at a conference of unions in Montreal Monday.

Labor Min. Hugh Nicholson spent most of Sunday conferring with his department officials on the railway situation.

A Raw Deal

United States rockhounds whose displays and vehicles were impounded by the RCMP for contravention of the Customs and Excise Act seem to have been handled a raw deal.

So they broke the law did they? They brought in rocks, semi-precious stones and jewelry and attempted to sell the material. Surely the circumstances were innocent enough as to permit some leniency on the part of investigators. The occasion was the Gemboree in Bancroft. It was widely-publicized and this was the third year it had been held.

Four Americans had their cars seized and two were saddled with fines and duties totalling $806. It would not be surprising if the visitors never set foot in Canada again. Even the promise of full investigations of their individual cases in Ottawa, and possible intervention by the External Affairs Department, "are unlikely to compensate for their cavalier treatment by Canada. The visitors said they had crossed various border points without incident and complied with all customs regulations.

This is not a question of contempt for the law, but rather one of misunderstanding of it. Where the visitors ran foul of the regulations lay in their belief that they could sell their collections. The border was the place they should have been informed otherwise, but apparently this was not done. Had they been properly appraised of the regulations in advance there would have been no need for this cloak-and-dagger operation by the Mounties at Bancroft.

U.S. Unrest

The United States is passing through one of the worst periods of civil unrest in its history.

Scarcely a day passes without rioting connected with the Civil Rights movement, in some city or other from Los Angeles to Cleveland. In its early days the Civil Rights movement was a legitimate attempt to obtain justice and equality for Negroes — in the spheres of education and housing, and in public places like restaurants.

Now, however, one gets the impression it has taken on more sinister connotations, that the movement is being fanned by professional agitators who use such bogeys as "police brutality" to keep certain American cities in a permanent state of ferment.

Murder and assault also stalk the land. Dr. Billy Graham quotes one editor as saying so many crimes are reported daily that only the most serious are given more than passing notice. The terrible affair in Austin, Texas, for instance, is merely a symbol of a general malaise that grips American society. The Montreal Star points out that each year there are 17,000 fatal shootings in the United States and that since 1900 guns have killed no fewer than 750,000 people.

But bleak as this underlying violence is to the outsider, the overall panorama of life in the United States is one of progress and prosperity, a land inhabited by law-abiding and hospitable people. However, the tension that takes hold of individuals and groups, and leads to violent deeds, cannot be ignored. Indeed it must be tackled afresh. The ease with which weapons may be obtained is only one aspect of the problem which law-enforcement authorities must try to remedy.

As for the racial situation, there are some bright aspects in this perplexing problem. A Los Angeles report says the first anniversary of the Watts riots in the city was marked by a summer festival as gay as a Mardi Gras. In an area where disorders a year ago claimed 34 lives and caused more than 1,000 others a carnival atmosphere prevailed, with floats, jazz bands and discotheque.

Replacing the "Burn Baby, Burn" of last August's destruction and looting was a new slogan, "Learn Baby, Learn." And what better watchword could there be than that. Three short words, yet it sums up the whole point of existence — to absorb knowledge, to grow in wisdom and understanding, and pass on those qualities to those who come after.

South Seas (B.C. Style)

"There was a lulu of a luau Tuesday night as the South Seas hit Kitsilano Beach", the Vancouver Sun reports.

The luau, or feast — the Polynesian's ancient version of the modern beach party — was a moving and swinging success. There was food — prepared by Tia Happi, a Maori from New Zealand now working as a counsellor for the Vancouver Park Board, and dancing led by nine Polynesian girls resident in the city.

Organized by Interiac, an agency operated by the community services in Vancouver, assisted by Kitsilano businessmen who donated the food, and by the police youth squad, the affair had a truly Pacific flavor, and was an example of what community imagination can do for the enjoyment of the public.

It captured something of the aura of the South Seas that many yearn to see, and of the exciting rhythms and dances of Polynesia — Hawaiian, Tahitian, Maori and Samoan — as depicted in the Elvis Presley movie, Paradise — Hawaiian Style, now showing in Belleville.

The discovery that led to the Klondike gold rush was made 70 years ago today—in 1896—on Bonanza Creek, a tributary of the Klondike River. George W. Carmack and two Indian companions, Skookum Jim add Tagish Charlie, acting on information supplied by Robert Henderson who had spent the preceding two years prospecting creeks in the area, found a rich new strike. When news of it reached the outside world, a rush for the area began. In two years, Dawson grew from a few houses to a community of 25,000 people; within three years, all important creeks in the Klondike valley had been staked and by the gold-seekers. In the eight years after the Carmack find, total value of gold - production exceeded $100,000,000.

Do Not Remove Tonsils Without Good Reason

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes enlarged tonsils and why should they be removed? There is no infection.

Do enlarged tonsils cause infection later if left in? — Mrs. R. K.

You know how the mountain climber explained why he climbed the mountain — "because it was there." But the same logic does not necessarily apply to tonsils, although there was a time when all tonsils were removed "just because they were there."

There has been a good deal of revaluation of this attitude. About 2,000,000 tonsillectomies are done each year in the United States The goal is to try to make sure that the operation is never performed without good reason.

There are good reasons for removal, of course.

Tonsils are part of the lymphatic system, which combats infection, but these gland-like structures with deep crevices, can themselves become chronically infected.

Acute, frequent attacks of tonsilitis, or recurring sore infections, are good reasons for removing infected tonsils. The latter — so-called "sore throat" — is the most frequent chronic medical disease.

In my experience many recurring ear infections have been eliminated by tonsillectomy and I regard it as the most important indication for surgery.

There is variation in the size of tonsils. They may be as small as beans or as large as walnuts even touching each other. Tonsils also vary, and can interfere with breathing, mouth-breathing, caused by such enlargement, is valid reason for removal.

We should remember, however, that tonsils tend to become smaller with age. At times they can be quite prominent at age two or three, remain large for several years and then subside, unless chronic infection causes them to remain large.

Advent of the antibiotics has been an important factor. These drugs rapidly subdue acute infections and diminish the frequency of recurrence. In this regard some tonsils are safely and properly allowed to remain lonfer, whereas a generation ago they would have been infected as to make removal the only wise course.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please give the cause and cure of walking pneumonia. — Mrs. A. L.

Walking pneumonia is merely a term for pneumonia which is not severe enough to prevent the patient from being active. Pneumococci, which is inflammation of the lungs, can be traced by a variety of germs, some bacterial, some viral. Antibiotics quickly suppress bacterial infections. We have a number of drugs which will suppress the viruses, so treatment is very rest and capable nursing.

Walking pneumonia may cure itself much as a cold runs its course. It's much safer, though, for the person to go to bed until the infection is thrown off. Walking pneumonia can become more severe, especially if the patient doesn't get enough rest.

Ban on Fat Bus Drivers

Winnipeg Tribune

News reports from Glasgow say that the pride of Scotland's cities has passed a regulation banning fat bus drivers.

Authorities claim that the prohibition is in the interests of safety. They say that there is a greater risk of a fat man having a heart attack and endangering his passengers. The Greater Winnipeg Safety Council will no doubt be interested in this viewpoint.

But the main hazard on Winnipeg streets is not bus drivers with weight problems. The real menace continues to be the motorist whose driving habits give heart seizures to others.

Strictly Personal

Property Value Anomalies

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When I put some expensive improvements on my house, my real property tax goes up. If I let my property run down, my tax would be lower. I can't imagine a more inefficient and illogical way to run a community or a government.

Much of what we currently deplore as "urban blight" is the result of this topsy-turvy state of affairs. It encourages speculators, slum owners, and absentee landlords. It discourages owners who want to improve their homes or their property.

The real property tax is based on the market quality of the property. If I buy raw land and do nothing with it, my tax for the privilege of owning (as it inevitably must in our expanding population), I pay comparatively little in taxes. But the more I put into it, the more I must pay.

Under such an Alice-in-Wonderland system, it is hardly surprising that the nation's urban complexes are filled with blight, sprawl and greedy speculation; and that any program for urban rehabilitation, construction and development is hamstrung from the beginning.

But what if we took the tax off the improvements and put it on the land? Then nobody would be penalized for improving his property and adding to the value of the community; contrariwise, the incentive to speculate in land would be removed, and both the urban slums and the suburban sprawl would no longer pay rich dividends.

Every year, our living, working and playing space gets more cramped and more expensive. The population explosion is driving us more and more people from little towns into big cities; and from the heart of the cities to the peripheries, where suburban slums are now springing up.

The whole theory and practice of our real property taxes cut across the grain of American history and political economics. We grew strong and prosperous by encouraging people to own and cultivate their property, to make improvements, to add to the wealth of the community.

If we took the tax off the improvements — as we take the tax off other activities we want to encourage, such as charitable contributions — then the slum-breeder would no longer get rich by slicing on his property until the need for space is so great that potential buyer are willing to pay almost any price. And the speculator would no longer profit by squeezing the most housing into the smallest space, as so many of those shoddy suburban development firms have been doing.

Today, the man or landlord lets a building deteriorate, the less he pays in real estate taxes, even though he may be making unconscionable profits by comparting three apartments into 12. And the owner who wants to rehabilitate such a building pays a high premium for continuing to live with blight.

Boost for the Caribou

Montreal Gazette

There is something about the caribou which makes it an animal apart.

In the last decade it appeared that this country was in danger of losing this handsome and historic animal. Herds that once roamed the barren land between the Mackenzie River and Hudson Bay seemed doomed to extinction.

But this weak a federal government biologist reported the caribou population in the far north had increased sharply in recent years and it now may total between 400,000and 800,000, although it is difficult to estimate accurately.

By comparison, the estimated population in 1893 was 2,000,000 and in 1956-57 it was only 300,000.

The increase, then, in the past few years is a sharp reversal and a heartening one. It means that at least one wild animal is being saved from extinction, and it gives hope that government controls can prevent others from disappearing.

Police Action in Bancroft

Peterborough Examiner

From time to time, Commissioners of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, both present and past, have asked for more respect for the force from the general public. The pleas are pretty routinely ignored, particularly by members of parties met who seem to be impervious to them. The reason for this disregard, and why the pleas are ignored, unquestionably arises from the kind of behavior displayed by the R.C.M.P. in Bancroft.

Four plain-clothes members of the force seized displays and impounded the cars of five American rock dealers for presumably committing "a breach of the Customs and Excise Act. The R.C.M.P. neither at Bancroft nor Toronto would make any public comment on its action which, on the face of it, seems to be a foolish piece of bureaucratic bungling. Since no explanations were given, and since no charges were laid, no one, not even civic officials and those who organized the Bancroft Gemboree, has much idea of what lay behind the R.C.M.P.'s seizure.

Presumably that the raid was arbitrary and very poorly reasoned is given by the fact that no actions were brought when the dealer produced an itemized list of rocks that had been purchased and displayed by the Customs inspectors at the Windsor border crossing. If anything other than duty irregularities lay behind the seizure, the R.C.M.P. should have laid charges that they did not is good enough indication that the infractions, if any, were not sufficient reason to close down displays, kill the enthusiasm for the Gemboree for this year, and lay a question in countless minds.

Farmers Need United Body

Windsor Star

Although the tractor march was proclaimed as a protest against milk prices, it was in reality a symptom of the price squeeze which has affected all farm commodities. In recent years, while the cost of everything that the farmer buys has risen in keeping with the general price increase, the farmer's return for his products has not kept pace. The farmer's purchasing power, and with justification, that the middleman, not the farmer, is getting the benefit of the increase in prices for food products.

Not all the troubles of farmer, however, can be attributed to governments or to the laws of economics. A great deal of the responsibility is with the farmer himself, his traditional independence, and the consequent lack of a unified voice for farmers.

Canada's Canadian farmers need, far more than tractor marches or sit-down strikes in the day or two, is more unified representation which could work out a price agreement with the farmers, and urge it on the governments concerned. If the farmers have a case — and there is little doubt that they do — it deserves to be presented with something behind it—a single method.

Varsity Growth In B.C.

Vancouver Sun

When an idea catches Premier W. A. C. Bennett he is wont to play it to the end of the line. Perhaps he is tempted in this way with his bold announcement that B.C. will have two additional universities within seven years.

It will be fine to be a free-enterprising province — as long as there are sufficient students to fill the halls of learning. We think we detect a slight decline in signs of decline in the birth rate, down 7.2 percent in Canalization from 1960 to 1965. The education department has experienced concern at the shortage in the immediate future of the danger of mediocrity prevailing over the excellence that should add lustre to our prize goal in higher education.

Now Mr. Bennett goes on to the question about the existing institutions? They, too, cry for money. How about extra incentive for abandoned courses, scholarships, bursaries, travel grants?

Let Mr. Bennett is serious and if he really has a seven-year plan with all the answers, he should tell us more.

Storm Clouds Spell Danger

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Lightning is extremely destructive. Insurance companies during a year 1,000 persons are killed or injured by lightning, with property damage totalling $100,000,000 mark. Lightning frequently is the cause of forest fires, destroying valuable timber and causing millions of dollars annually.

Lightning is a spark leaping between the electrified earth and the electrified storm cloud. Just as ordinary sparks, as gold fingers sometimes about 51.50 worth of energy, all of it instant. In that instant the air in its path is heated to about 27,000 degrees and the superheated air explodes.

Safety authorities say it is a myth that a tall tree in a storm is a sign to move to safety, particularly if you're golfing, fishing, swimming or engaged in an open area. In its attempt to make the shortest possible contact between cloud and earth, lightning seeks out the highest object in the immediate vicinity. If you are out in the open, the safest thing to do is sit down or get low. Avoid standing in a ditch. Sitting in an swimmobile is a safe place during an electric storm.

If lightning hits a car, it dispersed all over the metal, travels through the framework and bearings to the wheels and then jumps past the rubber tires to the ground. But if you are in a car recommended for home protection. But they must have proper ground connections.

Here are a few precautions to take during an electric storm:

Stay indoors and keep away from windows, doors and outside doors; don't touch electric light circuits, radio and television sets, telephones and plumbing. If outdoors, avoid isolated trees, wire fences, hilltops, or large open spaces such as golf fairways. Seek shelter in a cave (if there is one handy), or in the foot of a cliff. Never stand under or near a tall tree or other high object which is the highest point in the area. Keep away from beaches and out of water during a thunderstorm.

Jarring Note

Brantford Expositor

The jarring notes struck by a couple of Beatles who stopped singing in Jacksonville, Florida, drove have twanged some hyper-sensitive nerves.

It would be absurd to accuse John Lennon of having a Messianic complex because he told a newspaper that the Beatles are more popular than Jesus. Among millions of teen-agers and others they are undeniably more popular.

Those who cannot stomach this hard fact are not going to reverse the situation by indignantly starting a Beatle-burning movement and boycotting their records. Lennon was not intending an affront to others with different idols. To take jukeboxes in Beatle performances is not necessarily to reject other values. Lots of people both like the Beatles and go to church.

Hurricane Season Here Again So Maritimers Brace Selves

By SABRINA SIMCOCK

HALIFAX (CP)—The hurricane season began again and residents of the eastern seaboard of North America are bracing themselves for the obstacles of the August-to-October period.

Unlike their southern neighbors, however, Maritimers do not fear massive devastation from the seasonal storms, usually in a weakened state by the time they reach more northerly latitudes.

But records show that "weekend" hurricanes have something left when they hit Canada's eastern provinces—enough to cause property damage and sometimes loss of life, especially when ships are caught in their path.

Although the winds of the tornado blow with greater strength, the hurricane earns its reputation as the most violent manifestation of nature's force because it covers a wider area. A tornado is usually confined to a swath of less than a quarter mile in width while the hurricane's path may cover thousands of square miles.

At sea, where most hurricanes spend their force, they are accompanied by towering waves which become sea surges or high tides that can break on the shore in a wall of water strong enough to wipe out a town.

Meteorologists describe hurricanes as tropical cyclones when winds reach 74 miles an hour. When the highest winds are between 39 and 73 m.p.h. they are called tropical storms, and when winds are less than 39 m.p.h. they are called tropical depressions.

USE FEMININE NAMES

In the Pacific a hurricane is called a typhoon and in the Indian Ocean it's a cyclone. Still more exotic nomenclature comes from the Philippines where the same storm becomes a bagyio, and Australia where it's a willy-willy.

North America also gives the storms girls' names. This year Alma, Becky, Celia, Dorothy and Ella have already left their calling cards. Their sisters, if they follow, will be Faith, Greta, Hallie, Inez, Judith, Kendra, Lois, Marsha, Noreen, Orpha, Patty, Rena, Sherry, Thora, Vicky and Wilma.

This group of names is one of four sets weather men have prepared, with a different set used yearly up a four-year rotation. The only exception is that a name given to an especially violent or disastrous storm is immediately retired. Such was the case with Hazel which in October, 1954, killed more than 200 persons, including 82 in the Toronto area.

Since the hurricanes are hardly lady-like, many people wonder why they're given girls' names. Officials considered other ideas such as numbers, letters of the alphabet, Greek letters and the Able - Baker-Charlie phonetic alphabet. They settled on girls' names as short and less likely to cause confusion.

Besides, like a woman, they say, hurricanes are unpredictable.

Not that authorities don't do their best to maintain a close watch on the storms from their birthplace in the South Atlantic.

Hurricane forecasting owes much to modern science, although the oldest method of charting a storm—reports from ships at sea—is still one of the most important.

In the air the U.S. Air Force's hurricane squadron scrds out radar - equipped reconnaissance planes to fly around and above the storm. In outer space, orbiting Tiros weather satellites give daily fixes. And when the hurricane finally moved toward shore, land-based radar takes in.

This merely provides necessary warning, however, and nothing has been done yet to prevent the hurricanes from turning into killers.

Americans scientists are trying to change this situation with an attempt to catch and modify hurricanes in their early stages by seeding. This attempt to tame hurricanes — Operation Stormfly—is a joint project of the U.S. weather bureau and the navy.

The procedure involves seeding clouds surrounding the centre of the hurricane with silver iodide crystals in the hope of triggering a chain of events leading to basic changes in the circulation and structure of the storm.

Some weather experts are not convinced that seeding hurricanes is wise. R. A. Hornstein, chief meteorologist for Atlantic Weather Central in Hallock, Minn., says hurricanes bring such needs as rain and may be an essential cog in the earth's air circulation, maintaining a best balance between the tropics and the poles.

If seeding should become effective enough to modify hurricanes, thus altering this natural balance, there could be dangerous results, Mr. Hornstein says.

Fishing Party Spends Night On Small Rock

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (CP) — A man and three children who spent the night on a small rock in Georgian Bay during a storm were rescued today.

Peter Ferguson of Willowdale, his 11-year-old daughter and seven-year-old son, and a 12-year - old neighbor's daughter, were found perched on the rock six miles offshore by Gus Rennie of Gisk, a cottager who joined the search for them.

They set out on a fishing trip from Toronto in a seven-foot, home - made flat-bottom boat with three - horsepower motor.

Strong winds and eight - foot waves during the night had led to a temporary abandonment of the search, which began Tuesday morning.

When the four were found, the small boat had been turned over as a shelter for the children.

Teeners Get Quick Look At Beatles

TORONTO (CP) — Some 200 screaming, sobbing teen-agers got a 10-second look at the Beatles when the mop-haired group arrived on a charter flight from Philadelphia this morning.

Ringo Starr led the procession from the plane and the cheering fans' eyes only got a glimpse of their idols as the group was escorted to a hangar where they entered a waiting car.

Other Beatle fans gathered at the King Edward Sheraton Hotel where police did their best to be sure there was room for the Beatles would enter.

Among the group at the hotel were three visitors from Ashburnie, Ohio, who had been driven to Toronto by their mother.

"Mom doesn't mind," one of the girls said, "She's as crazy as the rest of us."

The Beatles perform tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Cold Wind of Indifference Buffets Venetian Art Show

By CAROL KENNEDY

VENICE, Italy (CP)—A cold wind of indifference from critics and public alike is blowing on this year's Venice Biennale, the prestige-laden, exhibition which every second year attempts the cream of international modern art in an incomparable setting by the edge of the Venetian lagoon.

In some British and American art circles, experts are wondering whether the Biennale and its national divisions and elaborate system of awards can last another 66 years.

British critics, despite the fact a Briton won a prize for painting for the fourth time, followed the head of the U.S. pavilion in deploring the whole idea of prize-giving by a seven-man international jury. One objection is that painters and sculptors are chosen for their national individuality cannot logically be judged in order of precedence on some shared criterion of values that the judges have imposed on them.

Critic Nigel Gosling of the London Observer says promiscuous hands to go to the artist who can produce something not only good but also new, with the result the atmosphere is less of international exchange-meet of ideas than a "trade show to display the latest novelties."

ARGENTINE WINS

His judgment was borne out by the Argentinian v a l i b l i which won first prize for painting. Painting played little part in Julio Le Parc's electronic contraptions that withered and jumped around as the visitor pressed a series of buttons.

The critics also commented on the unrepresentative nature of a so-called international exhibition, with Canada in but not Australia; India but not Pakistan; only 37 countries out of the 114 in the United Nations and more than one-third of the 1,500 exhibits coming from the host country, Italy.

Attendance at what is regarded as a major event in the art-lover's calendar is low. Less than a week after the splashy June opening, most of the pavilions in the elegant public gardens of Venice were deserting beneficent in the hot afternoon sun while tourists sought the pleasures of the lagoon or the canal-side cafes.

Mid-way through its four-month run, it is reported the show is still attracting only a handful of visitors, and this at the height of the Venetian season.

Three artists represent Canada in the 33rd Biennale—Jacques Alex Guelph, sculptor, Sorel Etrog and graphic artist Yves Gaucher.

FORMER WAR ARTIST

Colville, 48 - year - old Torontonian who lives in Sackville, N.B., shows some of the most striking and immediately communicative works in the exhibition. A former official war artist, his painting is boldly realistic, almost three-dimensional, with huge, colorful, dramatic scenes, seascapes and lonely buildings under the wide prairie sky.

Four of his 12 paintings at Venice come from the National Gallery of Canada, one from the Montreal Museum of Fine Art and one from New York's Metropolitan Museum.

Romanian-born sculptor Sorel Etrog, 33, who lives in Toronto and like the other two Canadian exhibitors is represented in Ottawa's National Gallery as well as many private collections in Canada, showed 19 bronzes in his characteristic convoluted style.

Yves Gaucher, 32 - year - old Montrealer who lectures in fine arts at Sir George Williams University, contributed a dozen prints, remarkable for their casdescend. color contrasts and somewhat cryptic, sparse use of tiny geometric patterns.

New 'Kente' Public School Opening May Be Delayed As Much as Six Weeks

AMELIASBURGH — Naturally it's back to school for nearly 600 township lower grade school children on September 6.

But but 311 of them the order has been changed so that instead of starting off their terms at the new "Kente" 14-roomed central public school here they will be returning to classes on premises even more outdated than the former schools they attended.

While the opening of the central school may be at least six weeks later, the delay is not the fault of the general contractor or local officials but the technical "hitch" that resulted in the disappointment for the several hundred grade 1 through to grade 8 pupils anticipating and talking about returning to school since they were told in the Spring that the new central school would be ready to receive them when classes were resumed in the fall.

"It is an unfortunate situation but one that stems from matters and associate tradesmen needed on the job are just not available in the whole district," Mike VosKamp, superintendent for the general contractor, said yesterday. He pointed out that the consulting engineer from Toronto had confirmed that the responsibility for tractor's explanation as the reason for the delay. The building commenced in a week after Easter was scheduled to be finished in four and a half months. The latest completion date has been set for September 17 and occupancy possibly by September 19.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS

However, further delays have not been counted out and there has been available classrooms in the township hall and one building to be arranged.

Each day has caused a large number of school children to be disappointed the Ameliasburgh Hall cannot be employ the newest educational aids in pleasant, comfortable surroundings is even more affected by the change in plans. It means that teachers who had hoped they had seen the last of crowded classrooms of mixed grades for ancient school equipped public school facilities will have to wait longer for their dream to come true. For example the township hall where 65 grades 2 and 3 pupils will be attending classes until they are re-located at the central school was built in 1874.

The children will be required to use the outdoor toilets in the centennial park behind the hall during the period they attend the substitute classroom. Also being a nuisance to safeguard against the hall's new sanitary facilities becoming overtaxed. The centennial committee now in control of the hall and the adjacent ; rk was assured by the school board that the board would be responsible for breakages and other expenses incurred while the premises afforded accommodations for the school children.

Although all members of the centennial committee did not favor leasing the township hal lisis a school house they approved a motion effecting the temporary transformation for a period "not exceeding six weeks unless unavoidable" suited in the disappointment for the several hundred grade 1 through to grade 8 pupils anticipating and talking about returning to school since they were told in the Spring that the new central school would be ready to receive them when classes were resumed in the fall.

SUMMER OVEN DINNER

There were to be four for dinner and the temperature was 91 deg. Fahr.

For my sake and for your sake I planned an oven dinner which could manage on its own while I sat in the garden with my guests.

OVEN DINNER MENU
Baked Chicken Legs
Baked Herbed Rice
August Vegetable Custard
Raw Cucumber and Carrot Sticks
Chilled Cantaloupe Iced Tea

BAKED CHICKEN LEGS (serves 4):

NOTE:

I started to prepare this at 5.00 p.m. for dinner at 6.45 p.m.

4 whole chicken legs cut in halves at the joints, ¼ cup flour, ¼ can undiluted cream of mushroom soup, ½ cup dairy sour cream, ½ tsp. salt, can mushroom pieces and stems, 2 tablespoons dry white wine (optional), paprika.

Dredge the 8 chicken pieces in the flour, using all of it. Arrange in one layer in buttered shallow baking dish. Mix together remaining ingredients except paprika. Pour evenly over chicken, covering all pieces. Sprinkle liberally with paprika. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes, basting once at halftime. Serve on bed of Baked Rice (see below) spooning sauce over both.

Now prepare:

BAKED HERBED RICE:

NOTE:

I started to prepare this at 5.15 p.m.

1 cup raw long grain rice, 2¼ cups boiling water, 1 chicken bouillon cube, ¼ tsp. each salt, 2 teaspoons dried green onion or chives flakes, 2 teaspoons chopped parsley or dried parsley flakes.

Dissolve the salt and bouillon cube in the boiling water. Add the herbs. Measure rice into buttered medium-casserole that has a snug-fitting cover. Pour liquid over rice and give it a real good stir. Cover and bake 1 hour at 350 deg. F. without removing cover.

Now prepare:

WEDNESDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Salisbury steaks with tomato sauce, buttered green and lima beans, summer squash, cucumber-tomato salad, warmed walnut rolls (see Monday), coffee.

AUGUST VEGETABLE CUSTARD (new and excellent):

1¾ cups milk, 2 eggs, 1½ cups fresh corn cut from cobs (or one 12-oz. can kernel corn, well drained), 2 cups lightly packed raw green cabbage shredded finely, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, shake of pepper, 1/3 cup corn flake crumbs, ¼ cup grated Parmesan or Romano or old Cheddar cheese.

Into a large bowl measure the milk, eggs, corn, cabbage, salt, mustard, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Mix well to break and blend in eggs. Pour into greased shallow medium-sized baking dish to about 1½" depth. Mix crumbs and cheese together and sprinkle evenly over top. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes.

Go out and sit in the garden for half an hour while all three items finish baking.

Be sure to file this recipe for the August Vegetable Custard for it is a dandy and was popular.

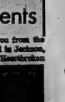
Proper Supervision Can Prevent Accidents



DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter comes to you from the director of research of the Child Safety Council in Jackson, Michigan. I write in reference to your advice to "Heartbroken Neighbor." (She was discussing a child who swallowed a fatal dose of aspirin tablets.)

You advised mothers to keep harmful products locked up and out of the reach of children. I'm sure you will agree that keep medicine will not heed such advice safely because of the inconvenience to themselves.

And what about things that cannot be locked up — for example, trees, plants and berries found in back yards and empty lots? Bloodroot leaves, for example, can be fatal when eaten.

The Safety Council would like to suggest that the best rule is to keep a watchful eye on your children at all times. Proper supervision is the only answer to the prevention of many types of child accidents — not only poisonings but drowning, burns, falls, molestation and so on.

Thank you for bringing the matter before the American Public. Millions of people read Ann Landers even though they need nothing else. — MRS. W.C.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MRS. W.C.: I agree that my advice, while correct, was more than a bit practical. I appreciate your calling the letter to my attention.

Your suggestion that mothers keep a watchful eye on their children at all times, is good — but like mine, it is also unrealistic. A busy mother just can't expect to keep her children every minute of the day, nor should she need to.

Let's take the best of my advice and the best of your advice and have a more practical suggestion, which I believe is the most practical of all. Here it is.

Mothers: From the moment they learn to talk and talk, teach your children that they must not eat or drink anything without first coming to you to ask if it is all right.

This training can be instilled in the very young and it could mean the difference between life and death.

We cannot protect our children from every kind of danger nor matter how hard we try. The real answer is to train them to take care of themselves.

ANN LANDERS: You are not dear to me. You caused me a great deal of grief and I think you owe it to me to repair the damage.

If all happened because of the letter you printed signed "ETHEL." She was the wife who was having a lot of dental work done. Her husband took her not to run up too big a bill because she was getting on in years and he didn't see any sense in having her fix up her mouth when she can't even bite with it.

If so happens that I am having a lot of dental work done and all my friends know it. When the letter came out in the paper I received so many phone calls I had to leave the receiver off the hook. I finally had to call a doctor for my nerves and he put me on tranquilizers. I figure this is all your fault.

Please print the name of the city the letter came from. And it had better not be Houston. — ANOTHER ETHEL

DEAR ETHEL: Sorry about that. The name of the city is Chicago. Any person who has the brains he was born with should know that I would never print the real initials, let alone the real signature in such a case.

I apologize if I made trouble for you. I also made a little trouble for myself. Several New York readers accused me of insulting one of their Senators.

New Guide Commissioner Would Like Some Changes

ST. MARYS, Ont. (CP)—A good word for the young and for their rehabilitation comes from Mrs. Keith Clyndale of St. Marys, a woman who knows a lot of young people.

Mrs. Clyndale is the recently-appointed chief commissioner of Canada's 36,000 - member Girl Guides of Canada.

"I may be a renegade, but I don't see a great deal of difference between the attitudes of today's youngsters and those before them," she says.

"Today's youth may not be quite as prone to take the first job somebody pays without questioning it, but they are just as alert, just as keen and just as reasonable. You can't quite say to them 'do this, do that,' but I think that's a good."

Mrs. Clyndale was appointed chief commissioner in June to succeed Henrietta Grier, of Toronto. She has worked with the guides since 1936 when the first guide company was formed in St. Mary's, near Stratford.

She has taken over at a time of change for the guides. They have updated badge requirements, dropped uniforms and allotted age groupings to apply more realistically to 6½ day's world.

TOO MIDDLE CLASS

Mrs. Clyndale says she feels there is room for more change. She is aware that critics say the guides is too much a middle - class organization. She would like to see the program reach less privileged girls who might benefit from it.

She hopes to discuss the problem with social service groups to consider the possibility of training social workers in guide work, of working with training leaders to lower income areas.

Mrs. Clyndale says she is also concerned about the shortage of good leaders which she feels is the reason for the lack of so many women work. In spite of the concern, though, she says she respects the stamina of working wives.

"I admire a woman who manages to be a good wife, good mother and a good career woman, because it must take every ounce of her energy. And a woman who loathes housework may be a better mother if she has an outlet through her job."

Mrs. Clyndale is a former high school teacher, mother of four children and spare-time gardener. She and her husband, a lawyer, live in an 84-year-old Georgian-style house furnished with what are now antiques.

Intervention Key Word Asserts Social Worker

WINNIPEG (CP)—The new come from the wrong side of the tracks."

Miss DuMoulin said the concept is a valuable one for every interest in coping with social problems.

"There's no longer the rich caring for the poor nor the goody-goody women caring for the unfortunate.

A major problem in social work is to develop services of high quality. The CASW, composed of more than 3,000 social workers holding master's degrees, wants to create new categories for social workers. It would like to see as many categories as exist in the nursing profession, from teachers down to ward aides, each with a function to perform.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Certainly babies should have some leeway in setting their own patterns in the matter of feeding and sleeping the first few months. But as baby grows toward a more settled routine, he should be gently steered toward a reasonably fixed schedule. The baby who is guided toward good habits early, is less likely to exhibit at more exacting regulations later.

High as the happy list of favourites for the little fellow on a full food schedule are combination dishes. Ingredients, more flavour). Gerber's Meat Dinners are bound to win any mealtime approval. That's because popularity combines of these flavoursome casserole dishes are savoury with extra meat. (3 times as much as our regular vegetables and meat combinations). Garden-good vegetables and subtle seasoning are added to the meat for truly spotlight flavour. Nutritious, too! Or a good source of protein, other significant amounts of vitamins and minerals. 7 strained or junior varieties.

Toy trickery. (1) If baby gets taken apart, put-together toys before he's mentally ready to use them, let him play with the individual parts, provided they're not small enough to swallow.

Carriage cues. (1) A bright balloon can be attached to the front of baby's carriage, will provide many happy looking moments. (2) A transistor radio, tuned sweet and low, will delight baby when he's awake. (3) Don't disturb him when he's asleep.

Mouth-watering menus. Fruits score high as baby favourites. Especially Dr. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits. And for good reason. Gerber Fruits are cooked in a flash to preserve Mother Nature's appealing colours and sun-kissed flavours... and to help protect precious vitamin values. Level "a" is the way to delightful. Used as topping for Gerber Cereals or Custards they're super. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Gay Exhibits Featured In Women's Building

By RETA LAWRENCE

The Women's Building at the Belleville Fair was gay with flower, vegetable and fancy work exhibits Tuesday, despite the stormy weather which had dampened spirits at outside exhibits.

The usual types of exhibits with their little red, blue and yellow tags were on display. Throughout the building were signs giving permission for removal of entries that had won a prize. Thanks to the thoughtfulness of the exhibitors most entries were left on display to be admired by the patrons of the fair.

First exhibit at the left of the entrance is the district Women's Institutes' display. Each institute has depicted the qualities, products and symbols of a foreign country and many interesting articles are presented.

NUMEROUS CRAFTS

Arts and crafts boast not only products of the artist's brush but also prize pieces in leather-craft, mosaics, weaving, fabric painting, aluminum work and even decorative Christmas door knob covers.

There are the annual fruits and vegetables grown in this area and the beautiful and skilfully executed products of the local homemaker's craft.

The best of penmanship, maps, school books, art from elementary schools bears testimony to the fact that our young people are not only creative and dextrous, but well versed in the affairs of the world.

The needlework section, though displaying numerous yearly repeats, also has many new and decorative entries.

FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS

Due to the lack of rain there are fewer cut flowers, but a display of table centres and plaques depicting song titles is most pleasing. "The Rose of Flanders," "The Old Grey Mare," "Sidney Night in Canada," "Wa Three Kings," and "There's a Bluebird on my Windowsill," are each created with skill and imagination and each is done masterly with flowers. Petunias, gladioli and pansies seem to have thrived and the entries are very lovely. Also ferns, cacti and foliage make a fine showing.

Ontario Hydro was scheduled to give demonstrations in this building—usually times during each afternoon had evening but due to the downpour of rain this was moved to the Curling Rink. Miss Marian Cormode and Miss Lila MacDonald from Ontario Hydro are presenting an appliance demonstration with the aim of making the consumer aware of the different products on the market, pointing up the different features of each brand and giving a choice to suit the needs of each user. At the conclusion of each demonstration a draw is made for a valuable appliance.

Cooper Church Marks 100th Anniversary

Cooper United Church recently celebrated the 100th anniversary of its opening in 1855, with special services and a supper for the congregation and visitors.

The anniversary church service was in charge of Rev. Pingue of White Lake, a former pastor. Rev. Sedgewick conducted the pulpit for the evening service. Mrs. C. B. McCoy and Mrs. F. Bailey provided musical numbers. Mr. Elden Hardy of Malone assisted the Bailey brothers in the quartet selections and Miss Katherine Burnside was guest soloist.

The pre-Saturday evening before the anniversary services about 200 residents and guests enjoyed a delicious supper served by the women of the church in the church yard. Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Bailey presented a short program in the church and Rev. Sedgewick, minister, was chairman. The program consisted of selections by the choir; a solo by Kenneth Bronson and readings by Rev. C. A. Armitage of Kingston, Rev. Patterson of Whitby, both former pastors of the church, Rev. Patton of Toronto, Mr. E. C. Lewis of Picton and Rev. Fletcher of Lansdowne. Mr. Armitage presented congratulatory messages.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Norris Arvin presented a guest book in which to record visitors' names, in memory of parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Irwin.

Cooper United Church was formed by Columbia Presbyterian Church. Before it was opened in 1855, services were held in the first Cooper church, a small log building situated across the laneway from the present church. William Gregg, a missionary sent to Canada from Glasgow, appears to have been the first preacher in the area. In his diary, Mr. Gregg records having stayed with "a family named Cooper," William Long Sr. and Hugh Bell Sr.

In 1804 the Presbyterians of the district laid the stone foundation for a church and Samuel Caskey Sr. mentioned as a leader in the venture. The following year the body of the church was erected and in 1806 the church was completed and temporary seats were placed, in the early 1870s Daniel S. Bird, a local preacher, gave the land, logs and built a new one. William Sills of Madoc was the painter. A Sunday School addition was added in 1880.

The first elders were Samuel Caskey Sr., William Long, and William John Rollins. Thomas Bell was treasurer. The first ordained minister was Rev. Wishart, who preached in Madoc Presbyterian Church and had charge of all Presbyterian marriages and baptisms in North Hastings. Subsequent ministers were Rev. Murray, Rev. Childerhose, Rev. Clayton, Mr. Lindsay, Rev. Leitch, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Telford, Rev. McLeod, Rev. Biddulph, and Rev. Thompson.

The first Sunday School superintendent was General Rollins' Sr. Other officials and teachers were George Rollins, Hank Rollins, W. T. Allen, George Ferguson, Miss Jessie Fuller, Miss Eva Tuller, Senior and Annie Vankleek, Annie M. and Ida Allan, James Wilson, Charles Thompson and Sandy MacLaren. Sam Rollins Jr. was librarian for a number of years.

Until the Methodists built their church in 1822, all children of both denominations attended St. Columba Sunday School. St. Columba Church, together with St. Andrew's in Queensboro and St. Paul's in Hillcrest made up the Presbyterian charge until 1925, two years before church union, when St. Columba became Cooper United Church.

Many descendants of the church's founders still live in the district and were present at the anniversary celebrations. are completed.

CMHA Volunteers Entertain Patients

Volunteers from the Hospital Visiting Committee of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association drove to the Ontario Hospital for the annual garden party held at the Mowatt Division.

Booths of all kinds were set up around the grounds and the hospital band was in attendance. The garden party is organized by the Women's Auxiliary of the Ontario Hospital with district mental health branches.

Patients were fascinated by the games played in the Belleville booth — extinguishing candle flames by shooting with a water pistol, as well as prizes awarded at the Belleville booth, were donated by local people.

The Belleville Branch of the Mental Health Association hopes to resume in the fall the regular monthly bus trips to Kingston to visit Ontario Hospital patients. Details will be published as soon as arrangements

The Experts Say Today's Furs Cheaper, Better Than Grandma's

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — Grandma paid more for her fur coat than you will, and it wasn't even as cuddly, says a man who has been in the fur since 1902.

Henry Wilson, a youthful-looking 72, says that when he started in the trade, persian lamb coats cost from $800 to $900. Now they start at $450 and you can get a top-of-the-line model for $800.

"And they're much lighter and more pliable now because dressing techniques have improved so much."

Mr. Wilson, tall, white-haired and bespectacled, says he hasn't seen much change in basic design. "It's still a coat, only look for a classic cost."

But today's women has modified the traditional to meet her way of life. "This fall, styles are generally straighter and slimmer. The modern woman is active, she drives a car a lot and she doesn't want anything that becomes to get in her way. That's why big, bulky cuffs have disappeared."

From the buyer's standpoint, it's fortunate that styles don't change quickly, because a good fur can last 15 years.

"How long it lasts depends on the owner. Some women abuse furs; they'll throw them on a chair and never bang them up properly."

Generally the flat furs such as persian lamb wear better but, Mr. Wilson says, otter, beaver, hudson seal (dyed sheared muskrat) and raccoon are also hard-wearing.

CLEAN WITH SAWDUST

Cleaning every two years makes a coat last longer, too. It costs about $6 to $10 for combing on the fur and is done with a sort of sawdust made from ground oats. Furs require genuine "dry" cleaning and so you shouldn't go dabbing at spots with a cleaning fluid.

A fur should be stored with a barrier during the hot summer months. It's protected from heat, humidity and moths. Don't hang it in the basement. Dampness is its deadly enemy.

"Don't put it in a plastic bag, either, because plastic sweats. If the coat gets damp the fur will get mouldy."

If a snow storm soaks your coat just shake it and hang it in an airy place. When it's dry, shake it again but "don't brush it or put it or stroke it." That may break the hairs.

When it's time to have a new coat go to a firm you have confidence in, ask the salesman's advice and try to take it.

"Look for a coat that suits you—not a smaller style that you like on someone else."

If you are short and rather round, the flat furs will be more slimming. Bulky, dramatic fox and raccoon are better suited to tall, slender women. The long-haired furs such as raccoon are usually warmer than the flat ones.

Anyway, don't throw away your old coat. You can go to it made into a lining for a cloth coat for $120 to $170 depending on style and the fabric you choose.

Open Pattern China Service Now Starting

TORONTO (CP)—For people who a few years ago bought an "open pattern" china service and now find the pattern has been discontinued, there is hope of finding those rare pieces through the Old China Registry.

The registry is operated by Toronto housewife Eva O'Leary who started the business last year as a service for friends.

She started looking for pieces of the discontinued patterns in antique shops, but had little luck.

"It took some time to realize that the patterns seldom, if ever, turn up in antique shops."

Then she started scanning newspaper ads and eventually to advertise for missing patterns.

Mrs. O'Leary confines herself to bringing together, by letter, the person in need with the person able to meet the need.

She looks for only Aynsley, Wedgwood, Minton, Royal Doulton, Royal Worcester, Haviland and Elite patterns, "because there were the lines most asked for."

Since March, 1963, she has had more than 1,000 letters, from across Canada and the U.S., asking for discontinued patterns. She says she has been able to fill more than 10 per cent of the requests so far.

Susanna's Family Fair

MEOW, IT'S A WOW

Dear Susanna: The trip to the cottage with the family cat each weekend became a nightmare of howling. Most of the way she also climbed up and down, across and over everything and everyone.

Finally, enough was enough. She was making the trip absolutely miserable for us and for herself.

We placed a piece of heavy plastic and then soft pad in the bottom of our old loosely woven wicker picnic basket, popped her in before she knew what was happening (this part is essential), shut the lid quickly and tied the whole thing securely with a piece of clothes line. By the way, the basket is quite large and gives her plenty of room to stand or lie down.

We gave the basket a spot by itself in the back seat near the window where there was plenty of air, and we fastened the seat belt around the basket to keep it from tipping or rocking.

What a difference! She hardly spoke all the way — in fact, I think she tried to thank us when we arrived.

One more good animal hint: If your cat is frantic in the country for the first time and makes a beeline for the low roof of the cottage as cats used to, and then cries because she can't get down, don't risk breaking your neck by going up after her.

Just lean a plank or light log against the roof and leave her to walk down by herself. — David.

How to Pick Good Corn

OTTAWA...(CP)—If you pick your corn cobs in the supermarket instead of the garden, you may need those tips from home economists at the department of agriculture.

Avoid cobs with dry or slightly yellow husks. These mean the corn is too ripe, poorly handled or not freshly picked.

Choose corn with fresh green husks and bright, plump, milky kernels. Try to use it at once, because flavor fades rapidly after picking.

If you must save it, leave the husk on and place in the refrigerator in a plastic bag or wrapped in a damp cloth.

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WI

Mrs. Arthur Long opened her home for the regular meeting of the Melrose Women's Institute. Mrs. E. Pascoe conducted the opening exercises.

Mrs. Roy McLaren was chosen as leader for the forthcoming 4-H Homemaking Club entitled "Meat in the Meal".

Mrs. A. Long mentioned that Belleville is planning a one and a half million dollar centennial show. Credit was voiced to the swimming committee who have played a big part in the Red Cross swimming course recently completed by 21 children from Tyendinaga Township.

The program convener Mrs. H. McAvoy took charge of the topic for the evening, "education". Mrs. Jack English introduced the visiting speaker, Mr. Castellano from the Family Counselling Service, which is free to people of Hastings County and the city of Belleville. This service was initiated by the Children's Aid Society and was established in Belleville in 1963 with additional support from the United Appeal and the city itself. The service deals mainly with three family problems — marital conflicts, child and parent relationships and individual adjustment. Mr. Castellano also gives budget counselling where there is a threat due to this problem. Mr. Castellano answered inquiries during the question period.

Mrs. Donald McLaren advised new interests and various hobbies when planning for retirement after which Mrs. Jack Sherman gave a humorous reading. Mrs. McAvoy conducted a contest and Mrs. Jack McLaren presented current events. Keen interest was shown in the display of school pictures and the hostess and her assistants served a tasty lunch.

TO AVOID DROWNINGS

WELLAND, Ont. (CP)—The department of transport advises testing a life jacket by wading into chest - high water and lifting your knees. The jacket should then keep you floating in a face-up position. A department - approved jacket should last six to 10 years.

Successful Living

Glad She Told Lover She Had Had Baby

DEAR DORIS — About "to tell or not to tell".

I was an unwed mother. I chose to see my baby; to hold, and even to feed him, and I regret this not at all.

Of course I shed many tears when I left him, but I realized that his adoptive parents were waiting and that they were better equipped then I to raise him in a financially and emotionally secure atmosphere.

(Sometimes it was terrifically difficult to realize that he will not remain a tiny being forever — that he will one day be a man with a heart and mind of his own. It was hard to see beyond the infant flaks and wide eyes). DORIS CLARK

I am now engaged to a wonderful man; but for a long time I was afraid of his reaction when I had to tell him of my child. Finally, one night, I blurted everything out and waited for the world to tumble about my ears. It didn't. He held me in his arms and asked why I would ever think that my past should affect his feelings for me. ("I want to marry you, and not your past," he said.)

I realize what a wonderfully wide heart he has, and now that everything between us is clear and in the open, nothing on God's green earth will be able to hold back our happiness.

I wish I could tell the other girls with a problem similar to mine, of my experience. Perhaps, through you and your column, I can. — ENGAGED.

DEAR ENGAGED — And you have. Thank you.

No need for sweethearts to confess every indiscretion — but where there has been a child — yes!

DEAR DORIS — If a relative of yours, or your parent, died, and someone came up and said "I'm sorry to hear that your so-and-so died," what should I reply? That it's all right; or just say "Thank You?" — WONDERED AND WORRIED.

DEAR W. AND W. — Put them at ease. Say something like this:

"Thank you very much. I do appreciate your sympathy. We are going to miss him a very great deal but it means a lot that our friends are sympathetic and helpful. He was a wonderful person."

But put it in your own words.

DEAR DORIS: My life is miserable with my mother. She's so mean and hateful to me. She tells me to do something and she expects it done right, but I have never done it in my life and she never showed me.

My mother threatens to send me to a girls' home if I keep talking back to her (I just can't help it) and not do the things right. We have a nice home. My father is different from her.— WANT TO BE LIKE THE REST.

DEAR WANT: I'm sorry for both of you. Mothers and daughters can have a gay old time of it if they get to be pals. If you simply have to blow off steam, why not talk to father?

It's highly unlikely you'll ever get to a girls' training school, if that's what's scaring you. Refusing good for evil by doing some nice things for mother and see if you can't change the water on the beans.

P.S.: A stamped, self-addressed envelope and ten cents will get you the exercises you asked for.

DEAR DORIS: This is to the grandmother who thinks her married children should cling to her. I have news for her from my own experience.

The sooner she picks up other interests for herself the happier she and her family will be. If they ask you for help or household hints, fine; but wait till they ask.

I had 13 children ,the oldest and youngest still at home; the rest are married. I have had many experiences in my 43 years of married life. Now,I am left with a blind husband, two boarders, and my daughter and son, making six to work for.

No grass growing under my feet at 64! I read your columns every night and thoroughly enjoy it. — GRANNY THE SECOND.

DEAR GRANNY: You sound like a busy, young Sixty-four. And the two adjectives go together!

Don't Try To Freeze Watermelon

OTTAWA (CP) — It doesn't pay to try to freeze a watermelon. You'll just disappoint your family next January when you whip it out of the freezer carolling "watermelon for dessert."

Other things not to put in your freezer are celery, lettuce, cucumbers, radishes and pears, says an agriculture department bulletin.

But some garden delights freeze like a dream, and these include strawberries, raspberries, peaches, peas, corn, broccoli, spinach and asparagus.

Vegetables should be scalded in boiling water or steam before packaging and freezing. Some fruits hold their color and flavor better with the addition of sugar or ascorbic acid.

Eat all those pears frozen goodies by spring, the department advises. There should be no carryover from season to season. For one thing, frozen foods can dry out unless they are covered by a film of fat or oil or packaged in tin or some other moisture-proof container.

Temperatures of zero or lower keep frozen foods in good condition. Storage temperatures higher than zero are risky, especially if they go up and down.

Although the food keeps beautifully frozen, after it's thawed it spoils faster than fresh food.

More Praise Than Criticism Of New Ballet

STRATFORD (CP) — The Royal Winnipeg Ballet opened its world premiere of Rose Latulippe Tuesday night to critical acclaim for both music and performance.

Praise outweighed criticism for the musical score by Harry Freedman and the performers' execution of complicated figures, reels and folk dances by choreographer Brian Macdonald.

Rose Latulippe, based on an old French-Canadian legend, is the Royal Winnipeg Ballet's contribution to Festival Canada, the performing arts' centennial celebrations.

Sydney Johnson of the Montreal Star said he is certain the first original full-length Canadian ballet will be a huge success.

Family Reunion

WELLMAN CLAN

The tenth annual reunion of the Wellman Clan was held at Greenwood Park on Stoco Lake with 76 members signing the register.

At noon everyone sat down to tables laden with a great variety of food.

Following the dinner, president Arthur Greenwood called the meeting to order and extended a warm welcome to all.

The executives for the 1967 reunion were appointed. They are: president, Roscoe Garrison of Belleville; vice-president, Ray Wellman; secretary-treasurer, Audrey Frappier; games convener, Don Wellman. The last four people are all of Ottawa.

A news letter of humorous incidents related by relatives was read by Nellie Greenwood.

In the absence of sports convener Helen Gibson of Peterborough, games for all were conducted by Marion Wellman of Omemee and Dorothy Edmondson from Peterborough.

The older ones enjoyed an afternoon of visiting with several remaining for the evening meal.

Prizes were awarded as follows: oldest married couple, Ed and Mabel Wellman; youngest married couple, Roscoe and Sheila Garrison, of Belleville.

Those from the farthest distance, Allie, Bruce and Ruth Brock, North Bay; oldest person, Allie Book; youngest person, Sherrie Wilson.

Due to the pleasant location of Greenwood Park it is probable next year's reunion will be held at the same place.

Others have specific needs... the steak must be 2¼" thick, the chops double thick and so forth.
That's no problem.

If You Want to Make Sales Make Your Calls Before Noon

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Science may not be able to cure wrinkles—but at long last it feels it knows what caused them. . . . They are believed to result from the gradual loss of a chemical called hyaluronic acid, which helps hold water in skin tissues.

If you want to sell somebody something during office hours, avoid Mondays and Fridays. . . . A survey found salesmen make most sales on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. . . . And prospects were more likely to buy in the morning than in the afternoon. (After a three-martini luncheon, the tired businessman is too tired to buy anything.)

Quotable notables: "One's religion is whatever he is most interested in."—James M. Barrie.

If you're on a long auto trip through the south, you can always pause for a break in Hot Coffee, Miss.

Why do you wake up feeling tired? . . . Well, if you weigh 150 pounds and shift positions four times an hour, that means you've had to move about 4,200 pounds during eight hours of sleep.

INVENTED SANDWICH

Life must have been pretty empty for teen-agers before 1690. . . . It wasn't until then that a doctor developed peanut butter, thus making possible the chief fodder of modern youth—the peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwich.

Other side of the problem: Listen magazine reports the experience of a researcher on juvenile delinquency who called 10 homes at 9 p.m. to check if the parents knew where their children were at that hour. . . . "My first five calls," he said, "were answered by children who had no idea where their parents were."

Folklore: Small ears are a sign of slimness. . . . People with dimples in their chins or cheeks never commit murder. . . . Wear a red string around your neck and you'll never get rheumatism. . . . Children born in summer are more intelligent than those born in winter.

(Editor's note: There may be considerable truth in this last-named superstition. Boyle himself admits he was a February baby.)

It was Finley Peter Dunne who observed, "nothing makes a man so mad as when somethin' he hooked down on as inferior turns on him."

Computerized Braille Printer Is Developed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A computerized braille printer which works 100 times faster than any other could come in Canada, if there is sufficient demand.

Built by the Honeywell Co., one of the machines has been donated to the University of Southern California.

Similar facilities may be set up in Toronto and Vancouver, depending on the response, says David A. Jordan of the company's Vancouver office.

The machine's secret is in a drum which fits any of the firm's computers, he says. Talks have been going on with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to assess the needs of blind Canadians for reading-matter.

"In all probability we would be prepared to donate the services of the computers to the CNIB."

He Finds Being Mayor of Quebec City Is Like Supervising Tower of Babel

By DONAT VALOIS

QUEBEC (CP) — This city's 33rd mayor likens his job to that of supervising the Tower of Babel, but he's keen to forge ahead.

Called dynamic, authoritarian and opportunist, Gilles Lamontagne, 46 - year - old former bomber pilot, won the office by 6,367 votes on a reform ticket in municipal elections last Nov. 14.

He promised slum clearance, in the light of a 1961 report that 60 per cent of the city's 170,000 population need new housing, and an end to corruption at city hall. A royal commission found that irregularities and traffic-ticket fixing had cost the city $100,000 a year for 12 years.

Proprietor of a gift shop and head of the local Creic Progresa Party, Mr. Lamontagne published a code of ethics for civic employees within a week of the election. He required "strict discretion" on anything done or said by himself or his executives. He prohibited moonlighting by city policemen.

WON PARTY FIGHT

Mr. Lamontagne was one of three aldermen elected in 1962, the year the CPP was founded, and later was its leadership. He survived an internal dispute over which candidates the party would endorse for the 1965 election.

As leader, he had promised selection of candidates through ordinary voting, but changed his mind at the last minute and said the executive must ratify the membership's choice of candidates.

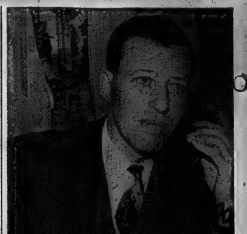
He denounced separatists for infiltrating the CPP and causing trouble.

"You have a right to your own ideas," he declaimed. "However, you've chosen the wrong field of battle. The battle for independence should be waged on the provincial level."

This did not stop observers from remarking that the result was to give Mr. Lamontagne dictatorial control of the 1,000-member CPP. But it split the party and Andre Chenier formed a rival Civic Union Party which ran Raymond Costello against Mr. Lamontagne in November.

MAYOR RETIRED

It was a three-way fight, with independent Isidore Deschenes the third candidate. Mayor Wilfrid Hamel announced just before the election that for reasons of age and health he would not seek a fourth four - year term.



In the elections, the CPP won nine of 12 aldermanic seats.

One of Mayor Lamontagne's prime objectives is the restoration of old Quebec, which he says is "the business of the whole of the province."

Tourism can make up for lack of industrial promise in the historic city. A royal commission has recommended a system of permanent subsidies for Quebec and there are unprecedented plans for provincial involvement in local rehabilitation.

No one has published the exact recommendation. Former premier Jean Lesage says the city used to get $250,000 a year and the commission endorsed this figure. Mayor Lamontagne wants $2,000,000 a year.

The city's budget for 1966-67 foresees a deficit of $1,250,000 and even then some important plans had to be postponed to keep the deficit down. The mayor expects higher taxes soon unless the provincial government steps in.

REFORM-MINDED MAYOR — Preaching slum clearance and an end to city hall corruption, Mayor Gilles Lamontagne of Quebec City swept into office on a reform ticket last fall. Within a week he published a code of ethics for civic employees. Now one of his prime objectives is the restoration of old Quebec and he is counting on substantial financial help from the province to do it. (CP Photo)

Village Has No Planning Board, No Industry--But Also No Debt

ROSSEAU, Ont. (CP)—In an age when municipal government is steadily becoming more complex, this 530-acre village in the Muskoka Lakes area has no planning board, no subdivisions and no industry.

It also has no debt, no dealings with the Ontario Municipal Board and only one municipal employee.

Its 226 assessed residents have what they consider a better solution to operating their town—do - it - yourself approach. The village employee, Charles Raymond, is clerk-treasurer, librarian and general factotum.

The retired telegrapher, who was posted to Rosseau 60 years ago when the telegraph was the only means of communication with the outside world, took the municipal job 25 years ago.

Since the village's incorporation in 1906, its council of five has voted only four times.

The village has an arrangement with the department of highways whereby one of its foremen serves as supervisor of street maintenance for Rosseau in his spare time. It has a voluntary fire department and OPP protection.

Rosseau is as old as Confederation. In the earliest days it was a lumber camp. Then it became famous for production of Muskoka lamb, a trade ruined by wolves and wild dogs. Today, Rosseau is a service centre for summer homes in the area.

B. C. Mountie Has Collected Many Badges

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Lorne Newson, an RCMP constable in this Okanagan city, is one of the 200 serious badge-collectors in Canada.

The heart of his collection is army badges, but he has police badges of Commonwealth medals and decorations too.

Through the Military Historical Society of the United Kingdom and the Military Collectors' Club of Canada, Constable Newson keeps in touch with badge-fans around the world.

One of his prizes is the Yukon Infantry Regiment's cap-badge, which displays a gold pan. Many Second World War soldiers added a real gold nugget from home.

Animals are well-known badge motifs—beavers, wolves, dragons, horses, and a rooster and a kangaroo.

Mythical creatures of one sort and another figure on badges too. The Royal Winnipeg Rifles, called the "Little Black Devils" at the time of the Riel rebellion, wore a devil with a pitchfork, and the Scots Fusiliers of Kitchener, Ont., wore a "pyramid and a sphinx, to recall affiliations with a British regiment in Egypt.

Const. Newson's biggest task in collecting the battalion badges of all 200 Infantry units in the Canadian Expeditionary Force of the First World War so far he has managed to acquire all but 40.

MOOSONEE, Ont. (CP)—At Confederation, every Canadian Indian signed a treaty with the federal government by which he would receive $1 a year. Last year Indians here were paid $1.25 an hour to clean up their front and back yards.

BELGIAN HORSE, the entry of Keith Hobden of Brooklin, Ontario, parades for the judge in the rain during the Fair Horse Show yesterday afternoon. This class was heavy draft, single in harness, hitched.

Horse Show Carried on Despite Rain

Despite intermittent showers the Belleville Fair Horse Show carried on yesterday. A dedicated group of spectators huddled under the protection of the grandstand while judging went on, rain or shine.

In the light horse division the morning saw 18 classes shown including Hackney, Roadster, Arabian and Saddle Horses. Hackney ponies were added to this division in the afternoon. 28 classes were judged. Both Western and English saddle horses appeared. Gymkhana enthusiasts also took place yesterday afternoon. Barrel racing, pole bending and the pick-up were the events of this competition. Light horse judge is Robert Moggett of Watertown.

One of the most popular classes with the spectators, the draft horses, plodded into the limelight yesterday morning. Heavy horse judge, W. O. Kennedy had 28 classes scheduled for showing. Youngsters especially were delighted with the big Percherons, Belgians, and Clydesdales. The heavy horses were judged both in harness and as mares with foals.

The horse show today introduces Palomino who continuing with Hackney ponies, Saddle Horses, Roadsters and Draft Horses.

Young British Doctors Angry At Pay Freeze

LONDON (AP)—Hundreds of young hospital doctors are threatening to emigrate from Britain in disgust over the Labor government's pay freeze.

Dr. Maurice Rosen, secretary of a new organization called the Doctors Action Group, estimated Monday night that 800 are ready to leave the country in search of higher salaries and better hospital conditions.

Emigration on such a scale could deal a heavy blow to Britain's state-run national health service.

Junior doctors in the hospital service have been particularly hard hit by the freeze on pay increases and price rises, a measure which the government insists is necessary to stabilize the economy.

Before the freeze came in the young doctors had been promised an increase of 13 per cent on annual salaries ranging between £770 ($2,310) and £940 ($2,820).

Now they must wait at least until the end of the year before getting the promised raise.

A spokesman for the British Medical Association commented: "The mood of the doctors is causing considerable alarm."

YOUTHS SENTENCED

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Thomas Stanley Harding, 17, of Port Hope, Ont., was fined $25 Tuesday for the theft of a toothbrush from a store Friday. Grant Rexford Craft, 16, also of Port Hope, was placed on probation for six months for stealing a package of cooked ham.

Eskimos Shy Of Water In Winter

WINNIPEG (CP) — It's drought in a deep freeze.

In winter, some of Baffin Island's Eskimos haven't enough drinking water.

The water-shy Eskimos are at Pond Inlet, 3,600 miles northeast of Winnipeg, and at the more southerly Baffin Island outpost of Pangnirtung.

The situation was studied in July by Winnipeg engineer Lloyd McGinnis who said in an interview Tuesday a winter water shortage is a fact of life for the Pond Inlet Eskimos.

"If an iceberg doesn't break off from one of the mountain glaciers and float down to the settlement, they're stranded."

The icebergs don't come as far as Pangnirtung. There, the Eskimos chip bits out of the river and melt it.

During the summer the Eskimos use water from glacial streams but this supply is cut off as soon as winter freeze-up starts. Neither settlement has a natural basin to catch the summer flow.

The horse show today introduces Palomino who continuing with Hackney ponies, Saddle Horses, Roadsters and Draft Horses.

"Surprised enough," Mrs. McGinnis said, "they get less snow up there than we in Winnipeg do, so they can't depend on that."

INCREASE AID

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation voted Tuesday to increase its contribution to a teacher training program in Africa by $1,000 to $4,500. The program supplies Canadian teachers for the staffs of in-service teacher training courses in African countries each summer.

French Culture Protection For Canada

REGINA (CP) — Some 450 delegates attending the opening of the 39th congress of the Canadian Association of French-language Educators here Monday were welcomed by the first editorial in French The Regina Leader-Post has ever published.

The theme of this year's congress is "French Culture—Safeguard of Canadian Identity."

The French-language editorial in The Leader-Post said:

"For from fearing the spread of this culture as a kind of invasion, every Canadian citizen showed in the future, consider its presence and its spread as one of the surest pillars of the survival of the nation.

"Not only the support, but indeed the expansion of French culture, are essential conditions the identity of Canada."

Among those who will address the conference are: Francois Leduc, French ambassador to Ottawa; Jean-Charles Bonenfant, librarian to the Quebec legislative assembly; Dr. Eric Murray Ballantyne, Louis-Fred Peltier, medical professor at Sherbrooke University, and Paul Dumont-Frenclin, public relations delegate from the French network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

BACKS THANT

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Johnson has sent a letter to Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations urging him to accept a second five-year term of office, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg said Tuesday. Thant is finishing a normal five-year term.

Almost Invisible Enemy Threatens Balsam in B.C.

VICTORIA (CP)—An almost invisible enemy is threatening to wipe out balsam fir stands throughout British Columbia.

The adversary of lumbermen, foresters and scientists is the balsam woolly aphid which could cost the province millions in timber losses and uncontrolled flooding where forests are destroyed.

This is the forecast of Miss Zachary of the British Columbia forest service, one of several men digging in to combat the little bug which burrows into trees with a needle-like feeding device and kills them with its digestive enzymes.

Already the aphid has infected trees in 31 per cent of the province's forest and has attacked an estimated 280,000,000 board feet of balsam.

The problem facing forestry experts is not an easy one.

"It is not realistic to say we hope to control it right now," Mr. Zachary said.

But there is still time.

"It takes about 25 years to completely destroy some trees and those in higher elevations where cold winters working in their favor."

FOE IS TINY

The bug is chlorobrown but the damage it can do over a long period of time won't be, he warned.

The aphid measures only 1/8 inch long and 1-20th of an inch in length.

Meanwhile, the federal and provincial governments are mustering forces and money to combat the spread of infection.

The federal forestry laboratory in Victoria announced a joint, federal - provincial campaign against the pest which will cost up to $200,000 for the next year.

"And that doesn't include the money which will be spent for research in the labs," Mr. Zachary said.

The province is to survey the damage done so far. We don't know the value of balsam destroyed yet, it will have to by the end of September. We do know the figure is mounting," Mr. Zachary said. He is himself in command of an army of 39 university students who are scouring the province for new aphid outbreaks.

MAP BATTLEGROUND

The federal and provincial governments have offered purveyors who have infested stock full compensation for any trees which have to be confiscated.

The university students — young men and women—are playing a stop-gap role or delaying action in the province's timber industry with advance warning that infected trees may be salvaged.

Their battlefield consists of northern Vancouver Island, parts of the lower mainland and parts of the interior as far north as Prince George.

"We hope to find the limits of the infestation so we can estimate that damage," the forester said.

"This may also help organize some sort of a campaign. The aphid is slow to spread but it is persistent.

"It can be killed with any commercial spray but we can't get at it."

Transfer of balsam trees within the provinces is forbidden but it is still going on, thus increasing infestation, Mr. Zachary said. Wind and birds are also blamed for spread of the pest.

The insect is believed imported from Europe and was discovered in B.C. balsam stands in 1958. It multiplies several generations a summer and its environment is more favorable than that of its predators.

There is no hope of sterilizing the males by chemical and radiological methods, Mr. Zachary said, because the aphids are all females with the ability to fertilize their own eggs.

Sprays aren't practical because entire forests would have to be drenched before the pesticide reached the tree bark-habitat of the insect.

Iraqi Pilot Defects To Israel

TEL AVIV (CP)—An Iraqi pilot who defected to Israel Tuesday with a Russian-built MIG-21 jet said that as a Christian he suffered discrimination in Iraq and was passed up for promotion.

The pilot, whose name was not given, appeared before a press briefing Tuesday night in the blue flying suit of the Israeli air force with the rank of captain.

In fairing English, he readily answered questions and said he defected to Israel because it was the only country within range which he was certain would not hand him back to Iraq.

He said he was fatigued by his bombing missions against rebel Kurdish tribesmen in northern Iraq. For five years he operated from a base from which he flew bombing sorties against the Kurds, the 30-year-old pilot said.

A Western military attache at the press conference said he believed the MIG-21 the pilot brought over was the first of the type to be found intact in the Western world.

Swindler Will Be Shot

MOSCOW (AP) — A clothing factory employee has been sentenced to death and several others imprisoned on charges of swindling the Soviet state out of more than $400,000.

The labor union newspaper Trud (Labor) says A. M. Rudovich 43, was caught after been a fugitive for 12 months. He was sentenced to be shot.

The case was similar in many details to earlier clothing theft reported here, including the fact that leading figures in the case had been Jewish names.

Jewish groups abroad have charged that Soviet Jews are being made the scapegoats for widespread economic crimes Soviet authorities deny anti-semitism.

The government began imposing death penalties several years ago in a drive to check thefts from the state, which owns virtually all forms of production and commerce. Most of the cases reported have involved persons with Jewish names.

Weapons Principal Display Of Hasty Pees at Fair

If you're anywhere within 800 yards of the Curling Club this week you could be in danger.

Could that is if the Hasty Pees loaded the 75 m.m. recoilless anti-tank weapon they have there, loaded it and fired it at you.

But they won't. It's for display purposes only, along with a number of other weapons and equipment, as part of the third annual Industrial Exhibition sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

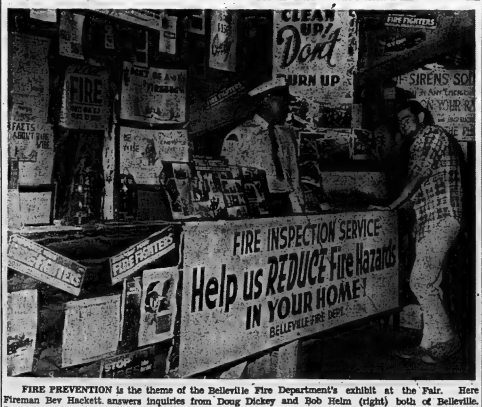
The anti-tank weapon weighs 168 pounds, has a muzzle velocity of 1,000 feet per second, requires a five-man crew and was used primarily in the Korean War.

A 3.5 inch rocket launcher in the display can penetrate 11 inches of steel anywhere within a range of 150 yards. It weighs 12 pounds and fires an eight and one-half pound shell.

Also being shown is the FN-C1, 7.62 mil. semi-automatic rifle now used by Canada's regular forces. The weapon, introduced to regular use in 1957, has a 20-round capacity and can be equipped with a grenade launcher and bayonet.

Another weapon on display is the LMG Bren .303, an extremely accurate weapon used extensively in World War II. The Bren has a range of 1,500 yards, has a muzzle velocity of 2,440 feet per second and can be fully and semi-automatic, firing up to 850 rounds a minute.

There are a number of radio sets in the Hasty Pees' display. One is a 26 set, a war pack set, with a range of approximately three miles. It is compact, water tight and can be parachute dropped.



There is also a 510 set crystal calibrated with a range of 10 to 15 miles and a field phone set.

The Hasty Pees' display and other displays in the Industrial Exhibition is located in the Curling Club. Persons wishing to see the displays enter through the west end of the club.

Can Inherit $15,000 When Cat Dies

CHICAGO (AP) — William J. Fields stands to inherit $15,000 when Fiat Nose, an 18-year-old cat, dies. Fiat Nose is the last survivor of five cats to whom Mrs. Margaret Montgomery of Chicago left her estate at her death six years ago.

Under the terms of her will, Fields, 77, a former hotel waiter and friend of Mrs. Montgomery, is to care for the cats with income from the estate. He gets the $18,000 if he outlives the cats. The remainder of the $24,000 estate goes to a Catholic charity.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1966

Scholarships Of $400 Won by 1,950 Students

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario scholarships were won by 1,950 of this year's 21,325 students of 48,200 who wrote papers won the 1400 scholarships.

The scholarships go to Grade 13 students who achieve an average of 80 per cent in at least eight papers.

The top student in the province is Tom Vari, an 18-year-old at Toronto's Vaughan Road collegiate. Vari, an immigrant from Hungary who spoke no English nine years ago, scored an average of 95.77 on nine papers, or 96.12 on his best eight papers. Close behind him was David Bierstone, 17, of North York collegiate, who had 95.4 on nine papers or 96 on his best eight.

ABOLISH EXAMS

Ontario's Grade 13 examinations are being abolished. They counted this year for only 60 per cent of a student's grade, the remainder coming from the school's judgment of the year's performance.

Not all teachers agree that the departmental examinations should be abolished. Dr. Gerald Maher, principal of Toronto's Don Mills collegiate, said in an interview that he is opposed to a sudden end to matriculation examinations.

Dr. Maher was one of the authors of an Ontario Teachers' Federation brief that opposed the department's plan to scrap the exams in 1968.

He said the "achievement tests" that will replace the exams will be short-answer multiple-choice questions to be marked by machines. He objects to them being the sole criteria of a student's worth.

ACCEPT STUDENTS

Several Ontario universities began accepting students this year without waiting for results of the Grade 13 examinations. The early admissions were based on standard "college board" tests taken last winter, on Grade 12 records, on Grade 13 marks at Christmas, or on the high school principal's recommendation.

Next June, only seven matriculation papers will be required. All Grade 13 students will write, in the spring, a new set of achievement tests.

No announcement has been made about what happens to the money used on scholarships and prizes when there were examinations to write.

The department now is rechecking the work of students who got 638 marks on eight papers—one less than the total needed for a scholarship.

Alfred Dibb, a department registrar, estimated there are 15 such papers in the province.

Despite Inclement Weather Full Program Given Fairgoers; Chuck Wagon Races Thrilling

Despite the fact that Tuesday attendance at Belleville Fair was cut by inclement weather a good crowd forged into the grounds for the evening performance and with the weatherman co-operating today, fair board officials are optimistic that attendance records might be set this year.

Yesterday 3,577 adults paid admission to the grounds with another 2,184 students and car admissions sold. The grandstand paid attendance for last night's chuck wagon races totalled 981.

And another winner for the daily pot of gold cash prize was selected, the lucky fair goer being Roy Holland, R. R.1, Frankford, who took home $105.50.

Five percent of the daily adult cash admissions are set aside for the pot of gold prize, half going toward the daily prize and the other half accumulating for the fair end pot of gold which could amount to at least $1,000.

THRILLING RACES

Last night chuck wagon races were thrillers with three heats each being run by three wagons and the bigger thoroughbreds.

Adding "excitement to the thrills of chuck wagon racing, thick racing and rooting was spoil in the first heat of the pony class as one team took the wrong turn onto the track and slammed into a hydro pole.

The lead team broke free and raced around the track the wrong way, but no one was hurt and only the chuck wagon came a cropper.

The chuck wagon races will be continued tonight and Thursday evening with performances by the Fort Henry Guards being the added attraction for Thursday evening.

The popular barrel races run between chuck wagon heats saw Joanne McNevin of Belleville emerge the winner in 16.3 seconds.

Elimination heats for the barrel racing were held during the afternoon.

Woman Shot Several Times Says Witness

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP)—Yvon Roy, 35, of Montreal Tuesday night was held criminally responsible and his brother, Claude Roy, 37, was held "in complicity" by a coroner's jury in the 1965 death of Mrs. Jean-Pierre Lauziere.

A five-man jury returned the verdict after an inquest.

The jury heard 30 witnesses, including Claude Roy and a laborer, Andre Bonsaul.

Bonsaul testified that Mrs. Lauziere was dragged out of the back seat of a car on a deserted road in the Lacenteines and shot several times by Yvon Roy.

"All of a sudden 'Coco' (Claude) stopped the car on a deserted dirt road," Bonsaul said, and told his brother 'Momon' to get a revolver from under the front seat."

HEARS SHOTS

Bonsaul continued:

"Then 'Momon' pulled Mrs. Lauziere out of the back seat of the car and dragged her several feet away. I heard one shot and then five more. 'Momon' came back to the car and said Mrs. Lauziere was dead."

The body of Mrs. Lauziere was found Aug. 4 in a lime-covered grave near St. Gabriel.

She vanished two years ago when police were hoping to question her in connection with several cases of truck hijacking and robbery which had occurred in the Montreal area.

Bonsaul told the inquest that the Roy brothers had been "talking about it (the killing of Mrs. Lauziere) for a month."

"They said that Mrs. Lauziere had seemed a lot of trouble in underworld circles," said the witness.

English Working Language Says Depot Sergeant

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—Sgdn. Ldr. Don Dumont, administration officer for the RCAF Station here, said Tuesday night an order-memo saying that English is the working language in the Canadian forces was posted Aug. 30 by a supply sergeant in a station hangar.

But he added that this does not mean there is no use of French on the Bagotville station, located 100 miles north of Quebec City and has a 1,200-strong staff.

The memo, written by Sgt. Yvon Landry of Cowansville, Que., was posted without the authority of the sergeant's superior, said Sqdn. Ldr. Dumont. The order said, in part:

". . . The working language throughout the Canadian forces is English. The use of the French Language on vouchers, memos, letters, etc., shall and will not be permitted during working hours on MSG 6 Hangar.

FRENCH 'TAKE NOTE'

"French - speaking personnel are to take note that no deviations of the above-mentioned instructions will be tolerated."

Sgt. Landry, in charge of a seven - man sub - supply section, quoted general CFR Xtt, Vol. 3, article 204, which, Sqdn. Ldr. Dumont said in an interview "establishes that the working language with regard to aircraft operation and maintenance is English."

The administration office said the sergeant used "poor judgment" in issuing the memo, "intended only for his seven men and only with regard to ordering supplies."

The memo was ordered taken down by Group Capt. Ronald Herbert, the station commander, when it was brought to his attention.

In East Africa, Africans See East Indians as Main Competitor in Business

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Kenya, once the land of the well-white Man Man, has put its finger on what is Africa is called the Asian problem.

The simple fact is that in East Africa the black man sees the East Indian general—more than the white man—as his competitor these days. This applies to Tanzania and Uganda as well as Kenya. The Asian is more often a direct competitor of the African in work and business.

Want a taxi in cosmopolitan Nairobi? Call an Asian.

Want a dinner that's a treat? Then go to an Asian restaurant.

Now there is anxiety among more than 300 Britons and several thousand Asians who have taken out Kenya citizenship. Many Asians have been deported.

CONSIDERED A THREAT

Many fear that they'ron the side of becoming second-class sons. The two stateless men carry among six who were said to be a threat to the national security.

This is potentially a situation of vast significance in East Africa, where African leaders look forward to the day when the country has an African rather than an Indian tone.

Population of Asians, a term that mainly includes Indians and Pakistanis, is Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda is estimated at nearly 400,000. They hold a powerful grip on the retail trade in the East African area of 25,000,000 population.

The number compares with a total European or white population of only about 80,000—and the whites do not generally compete with the Africans, in small stores and artisan trades, on the same basis as the Asians.

The result is that, with yesterday's political conflict over white rule put aside, racial friction today is far more acute between the Asian and African than between white and African.

PLAYS POLITICS

President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya enjoys an unrivaled reputation as a statesman among African leaders but as between Asians and Europeans he is sometimes accused of making a politician's choice.

There have been indications of racial discrimination in Kenya's drive against subversion. Last week eight Africans were detained under the Preservation of Public Security Act, whereas two Asians alleged to have been engaged in similar activities were deported.

The Asian-African debate will probably go on forever. The Asians are generally regarded as the clever ones but perhaps that's not the whole story. They played their part in the independence story and now perform an important—perhaps indispensable—role in the economy of East Africa.

Union Hopes Workers Will Accept Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking machinists deliberated today whether to approve a hefty new contract and end the airlines strike to let the United Auto or risk tough legislation that would be an historic first.

Top officials of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) held high hopes that a wage escalation clause plus a 36-cent wage increase and other benefits would persuade the 35,000 strikers to approve the proposed three-year contract in voting Friday.

The strikers rejected a White House - sponsored agreement July 31 that left out the escalator clause, which would provide up to an extra six cents an hour if living costs continued their sharp upswing.

The U.S. Congress, reluctant to act on the machinists-airline-service issue, held up action on a resolution to order the strikers back to work for up to 80 months pending outcome of Friday's vote.

Officials of United, Eastern, National, Northwest and Trans World Airlines said they could get some of their planes back in the air within hours if the strikers approve the proposed contract and end the strike, now in its 41st day.

Cattle Show This Year Biggest in Fair History

SCHOOLTEACHER SHOWMAN — Mrs. Pat Jeans, Richmond Hill school teacher, gives a hand in helping exhibit her father's herd at Belleville Fair. The W. S. Ramer herd of Stouffville travelled possibly the greatest distance to the fair.

The biggest and best cattle show in the history of the Fair is this year's record at Belleville Fair.

Numbers speak for themselves in the first instance and the quality of the cattle exhibits is being borne out by remarks of the judges.

More than 230 cattle of all ages and breeds are entered in the various cattle classes at the fair, with officials running out of shed space shortly after the fair began, as entries kept pouring in.

There are 90 head of Holsteins at the fair with a five-year-old dry cow owned by Allan B. McComb of R.R. 5, Belleville, winning the grand championship at the Black and White Day Show held Monday. The McCombs also took the reserve championship in the same class. Two Holstein breeders exhibited.

Ayrshires are also being shown in large numbers, with no less than 68 head being shown by nine exhibitors, one of them coming all the way from Richmond Hill, north of Toronto.

Six exhibitors are showing 68 head of Jersey cattle, while, also in the dairy classes, there are 16 Guernseys and 18 head of dual purpose cattle being shown.

BEEF CLASSES

In the beef classes there are more than 50 heads of Herefords with famed hockey player Robert Hall of Big Island back again with his Hialvoe Farm cattle.

There are 18 head of Aberdeen Angus cattle and 20 head of Scotch Shorthorns being shown by three exhibitors.

This year's show has the most cattle ever seen at Belleville Fair," states cattle committee chairman Don Spencer, "and the quality is getting better each year, both in the dairy and beef classes."

Tuesday was "Red and White Day" at the fair with Ayrshires, Jerseys and Guernseys being shown.

The dairy cattle show continues Wednesday, while on Thursday, the last day of the fair, the beef cattle show will be held.

Many Railway Unions Vote to Reject Report

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

One local of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers union voted Tuesday night to go on strike against Canadian National Railways while five others rejected a conciliation board's wage recommendation.

The 300 members of Windsor, Ont., Local 195, mostly ticket sellers and freight handlers, voted to go on strike at one minute after midnight Thursday.

Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Ontario Supreme Court recommended a 40-cent hourly increase over two years in the dispute between the nation's railways and their non - operating employees.

The CBRT's 21,000 members across Canada represent one-fifth of the workers involved in the dispute.

REJECT HIS PROPOSAL

The union's Local 126 in Belleville, Ont., Local 8 in Saint John, N.B., and Locals 6, 298 and 282 in Moncton voted to reject Mr. Justice Cameron's proposal.

Andrew Simko, publicity director of the Windsor local's strike committee, said the differences in union demands of 80 cents an hour over present basic wage scales and, the amount proposed by the conciliation report brought about the decision to strike.

He anticipated that other locals across Canada would be involved in a strike by early Thursday.

Local 5 in Moncton and Local 298 in Saint John voted Monday against the conciliation report.

DISPLAY OF HORSEPOWER — The excitment of chuck wagon races was featured at last night's Belleville Fair grandstand performance. The show, which sported a western flavor, included cowboy rope twirling, horseback barrel racing, country and western singer Johnny Roberts, and the races between four-horsepower chuckwagons.

GRAND CHAMPION FEMALE of the Black and White Day show at Belleville Fair this week was owned by Allan B. McComb, R.R. 5, Belleville. Larry McComb is holding the five-year-old dry cow.

Changes in Magnetic Field Have Altered Life Forms

MOSCOW (AP) — Changes in the direction of the earth's magnetic field have indirectly caused some tiny forms of life to disappear and others to take new forms, a U.S. scientist reported here.

The last such change occurred about 700,000 years ago and another one might be coming in about 2,000 years, said Dr. Bruce C. Heezen of Columbia University's Lamont geological observatory.

He spoke to reporters at the second International Oceanographic Congress, meeting at Moscow University.

Scientists long have recognized that the direction of the earth's magnetic field has reversed itself many times in the earth's history. The process is not fully understood.

Heezen said studies of ocean bottom samples showed that in the last 2,000,000 years a number of magnetic field reversals had occurred. Magnetic strength dropped to zero and then returned with an opposite orientation.

STUDY ROCK PARTICLES

This was determined from the direction in which particles have aligned into sedimentary rock.

The earth's magnetism creates an electrical field that encircles the earth in space. This acts as a shield halting some of the cosmic radiation constantly bombarding the earth from space.

At periods of zero magnetism during a reversal, Heezen said, there would not have been a shield. The level of cosmic radiation striking the earth would have increased perhaps two or three times.

Heezen said the ocean bottom samples showed striking changes in the nature of small moving life at the same time as zero magnetism.

Heezen said one single-celled animal had no spine before the magnetic reversal 700,000 years ago, then suddenly developed a spine. He attributed this to mutation, or biological changes, in the animal caused by cosmic rays.

"The result of the increased cosmic radiation reaching the earth apparently was the complete killing of some species and the mutation of others," Heezen said.

WATCH THOSE LABELS

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Farmers are most read the directions carefully before using insecticides such as aldrin, heptachlor, dieldrin and chlordane, says H. L. Hossbaugh of the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, warned. He said the provincial health department has established limits for insecticides in foodstuffs and farmers should follow the label instructions "to the letter."

Secretary to Prime Minister Is Also Head of Bilingual Push

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—A man virtually unknown to the Canadian public is one of the most influential people in the government service.

John S. Hodgson, 48, is a career civil servant with two pivotal jobs. Best in the highest traditions of the public service he is self-effacing and rarely speaks in public or allows himself to be interviewed.

His supervises the prime minister's office and also the bilingual program in the public service.

As principal secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, he gives advice, acts as a troubleshooter in day-to-day government affairs and heads a staff of 35.

"It's not a large office but it's well placed," he said with a grin in an interview.

As director of the new secretariat on bilingualism, he coordinates efforts to increase the use of both official languages in 20 federal departments, Crown corporations and agencies.

A fluently bilingual Montreal native, Mr. Hodgson was named by Mr. Pearson as his principal secretary Jan. 4 and the bilingual appointment followed soon after.

FOLLOWED TOM KENT

In the prime minister's office, he replaced Tom Kent, who had been policy secretary since the summer of 1963.

Mr. Kent, former editor of the Winnipeg Free Press and a defeated Liberal candidate for Parliament, now is deputy minister in the new department of immigration and manpower.

But unlike his predecessor, Mr. Hodgson does not act as an adviser on politics or as the "general" of the war-on-poverty programs. He is an influential adviser on the mechanics of government, federal - provincial relations and international relations.

ADVISES ON POLICY, BUT POLITICS ARE OUT — John S. Hodgson, a career civil servant, is one of the most influential people in government service but he rarely speaks in public or allows interviews. As principal secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, he gives advice on the mechanics of government, federal-provincial relations and international relations. He does not act as an adviser on politics. And as director of the new secretariat on bilingualism, he is also responsible for co-ordinating efforts to increase the use of both official languages. (CP Photo)

Mr. Pearson begins every day at the office by calling in Mr. Hodgson and cabinet secretary Gordon Robertson for a conference lasting 30 to 45 minutes. They review the top issues facing the government and discuss possible approaches.

The prime minister gives his aides some instructions or asks them to investigate certain problems and report the next morning with their conclusions and recommendations.

These instant investigations bring Mr. Hodgson in touch with cabinet ministers, senior civil servants, embassies and provincial governments. He finds this variety "very interesting."

WAS CMHC EXECUTIVE

A tall, lean man with grey temples and the steely bearing of a naval veteran, he served as a senior administrator with Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., the federal housing agency, from 1946 to 1959.

He was assistant secretary to the cabinet for the next four years under both Conservative and Liberal governments, and this broad experience comes in handy now. In September, 1963, he became assistant deputy minister of defence, concentrating on finance and administration.

A McGill University graduate and Rhodes Scholar, Mr. Hodgson attended St. John's College, Oxford, for three years, obtaining a doctorate in economic history in 1940.

In 1940-41 he served in the labor department, helping to draft the Unemployment Insurance Act. He entered the navy, became assistant director of plans, and retired in 1945 with the rank of commander.

WORKS FOR UNITY

He and his wife are sold on the merits of bilingualism. Their son Michael, 16, spent a year at a French - language school operated by Canadians at Neuchatel, Switzerland. Their daughter Susan, 21, will attend the same school later.

As director of the bilingual secretariat, he advises the cabinet on projects and co-ordinates language training and bicultural programs for government officials.

The main project this summer is a two-week seeding up to 30 volunteer English-speaking civil servants to Laval University, Quebec, in September. Up to 10 French - speaking officials will attend the University of Toronto for a year of language and literature studies.

"Our small secretariat can do something for national unity in the long run," Mr. Hodgson said.

Another project will be to encourage bilingual services in the national capital area.

Mr. Hodgson and his deputy, Robert Ellis, 32, now comprise the entire bilingualism secretariat in the privy council office. They hope to add five or six officials later.

FIGURES ALMOST LIED

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — When Hong Kong war veteran Leo Pitre cashed a government cheque covering retroactive war pension payments, both he and the cashier thought the numerals on the cheque indicated $37.40 — the amount of cash she gave him. After he was gone, the cashier took a second look. A telephone call brought the grateful Pitre back on the run for the rest of $3,167.60.

Front-End Loader Daintily Picks Apart Elaborate Decorations in Old Bank

By HEATHER MITCHELL

TORONTO (CP)—There's a front-end loader on the mezzanine of the 53-year-old Toronto-Dominion Bank head office at King and Bay Streets in downtown Toronto.

It is daintily taking apart the ornate building so that as many as possible of the elaborate fireplaces, oak panels and gargoyles can be sold to a public which hates to see the landmark go.

Although an elegant building, it is impractical from the cubic-inch view of office space. In its place will be a new bank, part of the $125,000,000 Toronto-Dominion Centre whose dominating feature is a 56-storey skyscraper.

The nine Grecian columns of the old bank are being taken down, two-foot kith by two-foot slab. Several people have bought parts of them, said William Greenspoon of Greenspoon Bros. Ltd., a wrecking firm.

"About two - thirds of the things salvaged have been sold."

The rest have been taken to three company yards.

There are three chandeliers left, each weighing more than 1,000 pounds and each ceiling $1,200.

Gargoyles range from $35 to $350 depending on their size and the man-hours it takes to salvage them.

FLEW TROPHY HOME

The bronze front of a teller's cage, with vertical bars, was sold to a Vancouver man for $125. It cost him a second fare to take it home by air.

Two kinds of marble were used in the building, designed by Eustace Bird of New York. They were Botticino and the rarer Vardello which is no longer mined.

"It's being bought up by people who know they won't see the same thing anywhere else," a spokesman for the bank said. It sells at from 35 cents to $1 a square foot.

The bank hasn't kept anything for use in its new building. It wanted to use the carved crest over the old front entrance but Henry Gooderham, grandson of William Gooderham, one of the Bank of Toronto's founders, said: "I don't think it could be salvaged."

The Bank of Toronto, which has occupied the building since 1913, merged with the Dominion Bank in 1955.

Although two of the three giant sculptured stone doorways have been bought—Greenspoon Bros. won't say what the price was—nobody has bid on the 14-layer steel vaults which are supposed to be indestructible.

Mr., Mrs. W. G. Poste Mark 60 Wedded Years

NAPANEE — Two natives of Hastings County who have been residents of the Napanee area since 1920, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Poste celebrated 60 years of marriage Saturday, at their home on the Deseronto Road.

The highlight of the day was a message from Buckingham Palace, reading: "The Queen sends her congratulations and good wishes on your Diamond Wedding Anniversary which you are celebrating today."

Strictly speaking, the anniversary was August 15, but the "At Home" was Saturday in order that relatives could be there who could not be present Monday.

Telegrams echoing the message from Her Majesty arrived, also, from Prime Minister L. B. Pearson; John P. Robarts, Premier of Ontario; from A. Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward - Lennox, who with Mrs. Alkenbrack also called in person; and from distant friends unable to attend. Many messages came by mail, among them one from Staff and employees of the Belleville Hydro office.

Although the "bride" and "bridegroom" of 60 years had requested that no gifts be sent, the house was filled with flowers and other gifts which relatives and friends could not resist sending. To Mrs. Poste the most treasured gift was the red roses which her husband had sent to her to mark the day.

Sixty years ago, August 15, 1906, Augusta Victoria Elliott and William Gardiner Poste exchanged marriage vows in West Bolleville Methodist Church before the Rev. W. H. Leitch. It is now Hillcrest United Church. Parents of the bride were Frank Elliott and his wife, formerly Sarah Ann McConnell, farmers of the second concession of Thurlow. Parents of the bridegroom were Mr. and Mrs. William Poste of West Huntingdon, near Madoc.

Mrs. Poste remembers that she wore a pale blue dress, floor - length and with the long sleeves and the high boned collar of the day. Her matching hat was caught up in the back with flowers. After the ceremony they went by train to Madoc where a reception was held for them at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Reuben Howard and her husband, and the honeymoon was spent there.

Mr. Poste secured employment in Corbyville for a few years, but in 1918 entered the employment of the Ontario Hydro Commission in Trenton, and left that employment only after 33 years and three months, when he retired in 1952 after having been in charge of the sub-station in Napanee from 1920. Proof that he was a valued and trusted employee was the presence of four members of the Belleville Hydro office and their wives among those who called Saturday to extend their felicitations.

Mr. and Mrs. Poste, although both in their 80th year are remarkably alert mentally, and active physically.

They have three children, eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild, who was present on that memorable day. Their son Oscar Gardiner and his wife live near Shannonville. Gladys Lillian is now Mrs. Ed Sills and she and her husband live in Oshawa. Eileen Augusta now Mrs. Arnold Hudson and her husband reside in the Marysville district.

After his retirement, Mr. and Mrs. Poste bought a home on the Deseronto Road, selling it a year ago to purchase a smaller one nearby. Although they have never been residents of the town itself, they are well known and highly respected there, as well as in the two neighborhoods where they have lived. One of the floral arrangements which arrived with its accompaniment of good wishes, was from the Maple Ridge branch of the Women's Institute of which Mrs. Poste was a member.

Preparations for the day and all duties on the day itself were in the hands of the two daughters, with Mrs. Harold Dupra, at the door and in charge of the guest book.

BIG EARNINGS SPLIT MANY WAYS—Two farmers lead their coffee-laden donkeys to market through the Colombian countryside from their small mountainside farms. Coffee accounts for 60 per cent of Colombia's export earnings, but the money is divided among 300,000 farmers, 95.6 per cent of whom farm less than 25 acres. Of each dollar the Canadian housewife spends on coffee, these cafeteres get about 26 cents. — (CP Photo).

All Colombia's Export Eggs Are Packed Into Coffee Pot

By CP Correspondent

BOGOTA (CP) — A one-cent drop in the world price of Colombian coffee would cost this country the sum total of its 1965 exports to Canada.

In other terms, such a fall would more than offset either the export earnings of Colombia's burgeoning sugar industry or those of its historic tobacco industry, established here long before the long-ago coffee boom.

Coffee prices were 10 cents lower three years ago than they are now and present stockpiles total a full year's supply for the whole world, so Bogota coffee wholesalers and economists are not deluding themselves that today's priceline is sacrosanct.

The new president of Colombia, economist Carlos Lleras Restrepo, 58, has promised to diversify the economy of this fifth-largest country in the western hemisphere. More than 60 per cent of its export earnings last year came from one massive crop, coffee.

Although the total figures are big, coffee is still a small-farmer's crop. There are 300,000 cafeteros in Colombia and 95.6 per cent of them farm less than 25 acres.

COFFEE RULES BEKS

There are all sorts of possibilities for diversification, in agriculture — for example, bags manufactured from fibre are little used — but they are all threatened by weaknesses in the world coffee market.

In fact, optimistic plans for diversification are measured in two ways: how many millions of dollars each might earn and how many cents fall in coffee prices would wipe out the whole entry in Colombia's balance sheet.

For the cattle industry, now eyeing a rich southern European market, it's $60,000,000 and seven cents. Two cents would delete banana profits, Colombia's third-largest export, and only one cent decrease in coffee would cancel the earnings of textiles, the country's best-organized industry.

This magic world price for coffee is supposed to be fixed by the International Coffee Organization Agreement, negotiated by 35 exporting and 22 importing countries. But 25 more producing countries are outside the International Coffee Organization and are not bound by its agreements.

Furthermore, the increasing stockpile of surplus coffee may reach two years' supply by 1970, says ICO director Joao Oliveira Santos of Brazil and this puts tremendous pressure on the price line.

CIRCUMVENT QUOTA

Colombia's own stockpile is half a year's production, about 4,000,000 sacks of 132 pounds each, but it is able to unload coffee in excess of its quota through two chanels: barter arrangements with Iron Curtain countries and smuggling across the border to Venetuela or the Dutch West Indies, from where it can reach the world market.

About 300,000 sacks will probably be exported surreptitiously this year. The National Coffeeman's Federation, a close-mouthed body of dealers, recently altered its estimate of Colombia's stockpile to 3,750,000 sacks from 5,000,000—used somewhat as a measure of how much illegal truckloads this year.

Foreign organizations view with sympathy President Lleras' efforts to get off the coffee hook. The World Bank and the Interamerican Development Bank have loan applications ready for signing, and the International Monetary Fund is putting up $36,000,000 to tide Lleras over a period of financial reorganization.

The United States faces the problem of being generous to the new president without making enemies for him in this proud Andean land.

BRIDAL SHOWER

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Percy Reid entertained on Saturday afternoon and evening at a tronsseau tea at her home in honor of her only daughter, Kathleen Anne, a bride-to-be in August.

Anne, her mother, and Mrs. Ray Pettey of Campbellford received the guests at the door, where they signed the guest book. In the living room many of the wedding gifts were on display, flower girls and trousseau items were displayed upstairs.

Anne's two grandmothers, Mrs. Essie Reid and Mrs. Ray Moran of Frankford presided at the tea table. It was laid with a lace cloth and centred with a bouquet of pink and white carnations, flanked with pink candles in silver candlesticks. A pink wedding bell and streamers was fastened above the table.

Miss Joyce Cooney and Miss Cathy Sine, friends of the bride-to-be, served refreshments. Miss Janice Reid and Miss Maureen Sloan and Karen Sine were in charge of the guest book.

RYLSTONE PEE WEES WIN

Disposing of Marmora Steelworkers in back-to-back games, Rylstone Peewees gained a berth in the Major Fraser Cup playoffs last weekend.

Rylstone nipped Marmora 3-2 in the opener at the Springbrook field Friday night. Jimmie Finch slammed a seventh-inning homer to earn his club the victory. Alan Morton, Craig Finch and Jimmy Finch all played well for the winners. David Welkman was the winning pitcher, in relief of Ron Mackay.

The second game was played in Marmora Saturday night and the home club took a 3-0 lead before bowing out 8-5. David Welkman's home run put Rylstone ahead to stay in the fifth inning and Jimmy Finch added to the total.

Junior "B" hockey which has been on the upsurge after a few trying years will again be in operation in the Eastern Ontario district during the 1966-67 season.

Indirect word from the various fronts such as Kingston, Peterborough and other centres has it that the circuit is readying for a season that will better the best 1965-66 in years.

Senior hockey is making a comeback in the district particularly in this city after an absence of a half dozen years.

Since the activities of the new senior Belleville entry has been publicized, a number of inquiries have reached this desk as to whether the junior "B" club which has carried the hockey banner here since the demise of the senior brand will operate this season.

And rumors, as rumors will, have been circulated to the effect that the youngster club will pass out of existence to make room, arena and otherwise for the senior crew.

That is so much hogwash.

I contacted Jim "Snipe" Mathews, long one of the guiding lights of the junior team, and a staunch supporter of hockey in any form in this city for many years and penned the "rumor" about.

"Snipe" said in a mild-mannered guy who doesn't get hot under the collar until the horse he backs finishes with the milk-wagon nag the following dawning, bristled.

"People who are spreading these stories do not know what they're talking about," he said. "At the present time president of the Junior B Hockey Club of Belleville I am stating officially that the junior B club representing this city will definitely be playing in the Eastern Ontario circuit."

"Snipe" waggled a leager finger under my nose and emphasized "We have met with Belleville Arena Commission officials and have been assured by them that we will have equal and alternate playing nights shared with the new senior entry on Friday and Tuesday nights."

"Furthermore," he added, "our hockey bond and entry fee has been posted with the Ontario Hockey Association."

Mathews went on to say that due to present commitments in the arena commission, ice time in the arena here will not be available until the last week in October.

"With this in mind," he said, "we have made arrangements to hold our training camp in the Picton Community Centre starting the first week in October."

Mathews said he with secretary treasurer Tom "Sad" Mawby went in for the cheapest team possible and have arranged for transportation from here to Picton by bus for the boys wishing to try out.

"Plans," he said, "are already under way to strengthen the club. A complete announcement of all our plans will be made public after the August 30 meeting of the OHA junior clubs in this district."

Well, that should quieten the rumor-mongers and give the fluttering referees food for argument as to whether the city can support two official hockey teams.

I believe it can. There are plenty of top-flight fans here that still like hockey.

The only bugbear in the whole setup is that anticipated hotch on the Market Square.

At one bitter taxpayer told me — and he's a red hot hockey fan, "Wouldn't it be a great idea for someone to leave a note for the taxpayers of 2967 that a hell of a good idea for their bicentennial project would be a new community centre for Belleville!"

Mays Ties Second-Place Homer Mark

★★★★★ Perry Wins 19th

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays, on the threshhold of becoming the greatest right-handed home run hitter in baseball history, says the long ones don't come so easy as they once did.

Mays tied Jimmy Foxx for second - place on the all - time list with his 534th round-tripper last night, helping Gaylord Perry win his 19th game as San Francisco topped St. Louis 3-1.

"I think it's getting harder to hit home runs because of my age," Mays said. "I'm 35, you know. Sometimes I'm not strong enough to swing the ball good."

Mays' home run output has earned him the National League title to each of the last two years. In fact, the 32 he blasted last year marked his best one-season production ever.

Mays' 534th came in the eighth inning of the third inning against left-hander Al Kaline. It was Willie's first game since last June 26 when four behind Hank Aaron, the National League leader.

Campaneris Had Field Day For A's

Four Runs, Four Hits

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bert Campaneris realized what he would have been a fine job of pitching Tuesday night and accounted for Kansas City Athletics' 4-2 victory over Chicago White Sox.

Campy scored all the Kansas City runs and had four of the team's hits.Scratched three Chisox five given up by losing pitcher Tommy John in the seven innings he worked.

Campaneris began the game by beating out a single to start and moving to second on a sacrifice. Then Danny Cater walked, and the routine played ended. Campaneris and Cater pulled a double steal and when Sox third baseman Ken Boyer muffed the throw trying to nail Campaneris, he scored.

In the third, Campy tripled and John, perhaps worried more about him than the batter, walked a wild pitch and Campaneris was home again.

He singled in the fifth off John, who did everything but ignore him, attempted to pick him off. The ball bounced off the wire over the right field line and by the time the Sox caught up with it, Campaneris was home again.

CAMPY SCORES AGAIN

By the eighth, John was gone and Hoyt Wilhelm was facing Campy. The little speedster singled, stole second, went to third on one passed ball and then scored on another one.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles beat Boston Red Sox 6-4, Detroit Tigers took New York Yankees 6-3, Minnesota Twins bombed California Angels 8-2 and Washington Senators split a two-game twinbill 6-5 in 10 innings.

Campaneris' two stolen bases increased his league - leading total to 35.

Baltimore won its usual victory with its usual weapon, home runs. Boog Powell's 33rd of the season, a three-run shot in the ninth, tied the score and, after Curt Blefary reached base on an error, Bob Johnson hit his first of the year. Earlier, Frank Robinson hit is 37th and number 38 Orioles, tying him with Joe DiMaggio at 15th on the all-time list.

TWIRLY HITS HOMER

Ray Oyler's two - run triple sparked a three-run eighth inning that helped the Detroit past the Yankees. Don Wert hit a two-run homer for the Tigers and Mickey Mantle connected for New York.

Ramon Hiebeyre, Tony Oliva, Don Mincher and Andy Kosco all hit home runs for Minnesota. Jim Perry allowed the Angelks but three hits and one unearned run.

Ken Harrelson smacked a two-run homer with two outs in the 10th, accounting for Washington's victory. The Indians had tied the game twice, once on Rocky Colavito's 35th homer.

If weather and schedules permit, officials hope to make a start also on the boys' and girls' doubles. A total of 13 matches are to be decided in the Canadian open tournament by the weekend.

More than 250 players are entered from eight countries: Argentina, Peru, Mexico, Japan, U.S., Canada, Puerto Rico and Venezuela, who had been listed among U.S. entrants and one from Nigeria.

Knudson Favored To Win PGA Title

By BILL KOROLUK

CALGARY (CP)—All the top names in Canadian golf go to the tee Thursday in the opening round of the 54-hole Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship.

George Knudson of Winnipeg, now playing out of Toronto, is favored to win the event he took at Halifax in 1964. He will receive stiff competition from defending champion Will Homeniuk of Winnipeg.

Homeniuk won last year at Montreal when Knudson was unable to defend his title.

Among the challengers given a good chance to win the 1966 title is Moe Norman of Barrie, Ont., who won a $12,000 pro - amateur tournament earlier this year at the Lake of the Park Golf Club, site of the CPGA. Norman also won the Canadian and Manitoba Opens and finished second in the British Columbia Open and the Miller Trophy event, a match play tournament for Canadian professionals.

Also among the favorites is Leo Ciccarelli of Vancouver, an eight - time winner of the event. Leonard has not played well the last two years, but he has revamped his swing and feels he is on the verge of playing well again.

A late highly rated are Alvie Thompson and Al Balding, both of Toronto. Both have won the title before.

Thompson is a young Toronto professional, whose experience has been gained mostly in Canada. He won the CPGA title in 1962, a year before Balding won its first.

The tournament has drawn 152 golfers. It is the largest entry for a CPGA tournament in the West. Three years ago, 121 competed in Edmonton.

The tournament carries a purse of $15,000 with $2,000 going to the winner. And a new trophy has been added this year.

The CPGA announced Tuesday that the winner will represent Canada in the Mexican, Jarlacca, and Puerto Rico Opens in 1967.

The winner of the CPGA will thus have the opportunity to shoot for $50,000 in total prize money. The Mexican Open will be played at Monterey, Nov. 3-6, the Caracas Open in Venezuela Nov. 10-13, and the Puerto Rico Open in Dorado Nov. 17-20.

The CPGA seniors event will be played over 36 holes Thursday and Friday. The defending seniors champion is Gordon Brydson of Toronto.

About 40 players entered a pro - amateur tournament today. The remainder entered a bonus tournament. Prize money in both was $2,000 with top money of $150.

The course par is 35-36—71 over 6,900 yards.

The tournament record is an eight - under - par 202 posted by Balding in Edmonton in 1964 over the Mayfair course, a par 70 layout.

Knudson has the record low score—a 199-posted in his 1964 win. But that was scored over Halifax Ashburn course which is a par 68.

Meet Saskys Tonight

Outlook Dismal For Stamps

CALGARY (CP)—Faced with injuries and a 0-3 won-lost record, the Stampeders have little chance of defeating Saskatchewan Roughriders in their Western Football Conference encounter here tonight, says Calgary coach Jerry Williams.

Though three new players will be trying for spots with the Stampeders, Williams is unhappy with his injuries list.

Lovek Colemen is slotted for the season with a knee ailment, end Jim Furlong is out with a broken ankle suffered last Wednesday at Ottawa.

But Roughrider coach Eagle Keys isn't banking on Calgary's injuries to give him a win game.

"Certainly Calgary would be hurting if . . . Coleman is out along with their previous injuries, but Stampeders have others come up big because they know they have to play better," he said.

As for the Roughies, they'll go into the game "as an away club."

Williams is keeping mum about who will start at quarterback but he said Lu Bain will replace Woods at offensive half. He says he feels Bain can handle the ball as well as Woods will start at quarterback but he said Lu Bain will replace Woods at offensive half. Pete Lake has only one brief action this season.

Willie Ross is expected to practice tonight after coming up from Buffalo Bills of the American League for a crack at a fullback slot with Calgary. Bob Miranda, a newcomer from Minnesota Vikings of the National League, hopes to succeed Coleman and Mel Bochland, also up from Minnesota, apparently has overcome slight injuries suffered Saturday and will see action as defensive end and tackle.

Game time is 8 p.m. MST and the action will be seen on CTV television in the West.

No Panty-Waist This Guy!

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP)—John Brandlet lives in a violent world.

As a teen-ager, Brandlet was banned for life from the Golden Gloves boxing tournaments.

As a minor league baseball player in the Louis Cardinal chain, Brandlet found that his spikes—his slides and baseball collisions weren't appreciated.

And in only one year as linebacker with the Denver Broncos of the American Football League, Brandlet has only had been accused of being rough but also dirty—allegedly going so far as to bite one player.

The 230 - pound product 'of Memphis State admits he's rough but denies he's dirty.

Brandlet's first headline-making trouble came when he entered the Golden Gloves tournament.

"In one fight I knocked a guy down but he got up and I hit him again.

"This time he fell against the ropes and bounced off and we both toppled to the canvas. He tried a little dirty stuff, I escaped away and I was thrown out of the fight game."

Brandlet was amateur. DIDN'T GO FOR IT

"The guys there didn't go for contact. They didn't much like the way I broke up double plays and they didn't go for the way I came home standing up instead of sliding and trying to run right over guys."

So he built himself up from 175 pounds to 220, joined the Broncos and last year was runner-up to quarterback Joe Namath of New York Jets as Rookie of the Year.

As for the change he hit fullback Jack Spikes of Houston Oilers, Brandlet said:

"They got their backwards. He knew I grabbed him with a bear hug and he clamped his forearm to my arm. But the ref threw the flag on me."

Brandlet feels he proved his case beyond a reasonable doubt.

"I have false teeth," said Brandlet "so I took my mouth piece out, smiled and asked him how I could do it. He took one look and said he was sorry. "But he still stepped off the 15 yards."

Snooty Tuna High-Hat Bait

By DAL WARRINGTON

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Some of the world's best salt water anglers will try their wits against Nova Scotia bluefin tuna again today.

They hope to break the jinx that denied them a single fish Tuesday, the first day of the year's International tuna cup match.

The bluefins were there all right, both at cape St. Mary, north of here, and off Wedgeport, to the south. Some anglers said the tuna made the water "boil" as they broke the surface not far from the boats.

But apparently the tuna were not interested in the anglers' herring bait. As a result, the Canadian, United States, Great Britain and British Caribbean teams ended the day exactly where they started with the score at zero.

LOSES A FISH

John Anderson of Detroit, U.S. team captain, hooked what seemed to be a big one off Cape St. Mary. He fought the fish for a short time but lost it when his line broke while his boat was attempting to catch up with the speeding tuna.

In a season when few fish are being caught, a tuna last could mean the difference between victory and defeat for the U.S. team, 1965 champions. Each crew scores a point for every pound of fish caught. In addition there are 200-point match bonuses for teams catching the most fish and for the largest.

Chuvalo K.O.'s Turnbow

MONTREAL (CP) — George Chuvalo, veteran Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, unleashed a powerful right - leg combination to knock out Mel Turnbow of Paterson, N.J., in the seventh round of a scheduled 10 - round non - title fight here Tuesday.

Chuvalo, 220, showing more speed than in previous fights, had Turnbow, 240, counted out at 2:35 of the seventh.

Irving Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, said:

"George showed a little more killer instinct. We're teaching him to attack and we're making him think that every opponent is just a punching bag and that he should attack them in the way he would a bag."

The victory gives Chuvalo a record of 26 wins, 13 losses and two draws over a 10-year career. Turnbow, who once had world champion Cassius Clay on the canvas in a workout, suffered his fifth loss in 16 starts. It was the last outing. Chuvalo was defeated in 10 rounds by Oscar Bonavena of Argentina in New York last June.

CHEER CHAMPION

An estimated 3,100 spectators at Paul Sauve Arena in eastend Montreal cheered Chuvalo as he freely punched at Turnbow before decking him for the count of nine mid-way through the seventh.

Turnbow got up but slumped against the ropes as Chuvalo moved in and swung his big right, then the left, and Turnbow went down for the full count.

URGES NEW PLAN

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A pharmacist Tuesday advocated a pharmaceutical service "without taint of commercialism but where the main job is to dispense prescriptions." John E. Hogan of Saint John said that except for a few places, the concept hasn't been fashionable in North America. He spoke at the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association's annual convention.

Referee Attacked By Fans

TORONTO (CP)—More than 20 policemen were called to midtown Stanley Park Tuesday night to quell a disturbance at a National Soccer League game between Toronto Hellas and Toronto Hungaria.

Referee Hugh Morow was attacked by some of the 2,000 fans in attendance after he ordered the game with a minute remaining in the first half when the players got out of hand. Hellas were leading 1-0.

Morrow sent off George Kotlis while Hellas late in the first half and that triggered the trouble.

Morrow said he sent Kotlis off, but the latter wouldn't go and it took about three minutes before his team - mates could persuade him to leave.

"As soon as play started another Hellas player kicked a Hungaria player in the ankle and I blew up and called the game," said the referee.

Police had to escort Morrow to the dressing room and stayed until the crowd dispersed. They then escorted Morrow home.

COACHES TIED

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jack Ramsay, whose basketball teams at St. Joseph's College have went to 19 big post-season tournaments in his 25 years as head coach, quit Tuesday to become general manager of Philadelphia 76ers. He will take over direction of Saint John's Basketball Association club from owner Irv Kosloff, who has been running it alone since the death last December of his partner, Ike Richman.

RESTORED, BUT IT DOESN'T FLY—This Second World War Swordfish biplane (top) appears to be in mint condition after a six-month restoration job at Shearwater naval air station at Dartmouth, N.S., but an unserviceable engine and corrosion-weakened superstructure make it unsafe in the air. The plane was delivered to Ottawa's Canadian War Museum by an RCAF Hercules transport plane. In the bottom picture, the biplane stands beside a Navy Tracker aircraft. Wings on both planes are folded back as they would be when stored aboard an aircraft carrier. (CF Photo from National Defence).

'Swordfish' Found in Junkyard Restored and Sent to Museum

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—A Second World War Swordfish biplane which was "a pile of junk" 18 months ago has been delivered to Ottawa's Canadian War Museum after being restored at nearby Shearwater naval air station.

Six months of intensive restoration work renovated the plane's appearance. But an unserviceable engine and corrosion - weakened superstructure made it unsafe for flight. So it was taken to Ottawa in an RCAF Hercules transport.

Lt.-Cmdr. Guy Laramee, production officer of the air maintenance depot, who supervised the restoration, described the wartime aircraft as "a pile of junk" when it arrived at Shearwater in September, 1965. The plane was found in a junkyard near Tilsonburg, Ont.

The Swordfish planes were known as "stringbags" by the men who flew them during the war, said Lt.-Cdr. Laramee. They were biplanes carrying an 18-foot torpedo under the fuselage and were used mainly as torpedo - spotter reconnaissance aircraft.

A torpedo from a Swordfish scored a hit that crippled the German battleship Bismarck before she was sunk in the Atlantic in 1941. Canadians flew Swordfish on fleet protection duties during aircraft attacks on the German battleship Tirpitz.

When the old Swordfish arrived at Shearwater, there was no fabric left on it and the plane was badly corroded from lying in the open for several years.

But all the pieces of the plane were available from the bank dealer. These, plus the aid of Fairey Canada Ltd., whose parent company, Fairey Aviation, designed and built the Swordfish, enabled the air maintenance depot to take on the reconstruction job.

The Fairey Canada plant in Nova Scotia supplied the fabric, paint and information for the restoration, and the parent company supplied a complete set of plans for the original Swordfish.

Every part of the aircraft which could be removed was sand-blasted, cleaned and repainted before being put back into place. The engine was also stripped down and cleaned.

Workmen's Compensation Act Said Too Stingy by Unions, Too Generous by Management

TORONTO (CP) — The first full inquiry into the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Act Tuesday heard union complaints it was too stingy and management complaints it was too generous.

Mr. Justice G. A. McGillivary's one-man royal commission into the act heard arguments from both workers and management before adjourning to September.

The Ontario Mining Association, representing 65 companies, said big compensation awards destroyed incentive for an injured workman to return to his job.

The Canadian Manufacturer's Association said the plan paid for minor-in-the accidents to workers.

The Ontario Medical Association, representing 7,500 doctors, said the wording of the act was too loose and workers can be compensated for a pain they feel when reaching for a six-ounce paper weight.

ACT CHANGES

The OMA also said doctors should be free to bill their workmen's compensation patients directly, like any others.

Another objection of the OMA was that the act gives the board the right to decide what fees the doctor should be paid.

The OMA brief urged the board to start a vocational counselling and training unit where workers with loss severe injuries could be conditioned for full employment and, if necessary, retrained.

The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) said benefits paid to widows of men killed on the job are inadequate."

CITE WIDOWS

Widows of workers killed receive a $200 payment at the time of the death, another $300 for burial expenses and $75 monthly with $40 a month for each child attending school.

Workers injured receive 75 per cent of their salary to a maximum of $99.54 a week.

The Mine Mill brief urged that full compensation be paid when a worker with a heart condition dies on the job. These benefits now are paid only in cases where the worker is subjected to exceptionally heavy work.

The cost of compensation is paid by employers. Last year's payments made by the scheme totalled $20,000,000 compared with $17,000,000 in 1964.

Ontario chiropractors quoted Dr. Wilfrid Jones Medical Association Journal to back up their request that chiropractic treatment be included in the program at the board's rehabilitation centre at suburban Downsview.

Lord Thomson Says Expo Cost Not Justified

By DAVE MACDONALD

MONTREAL (CP) — Lord Thomson of Fleet said Tuesday preparations for the 1967 world's fair, to be held in Montreal, look "very impressive" but the cost is "just not justified."

He said:

"If I were spending $80,000,000, I'd build something that was still going to be there the following year."

Lord Thomson spoke at a press conference following a meeting with directors of the Royal Book of Canada.

Lord Thomson, who owns newspapers in Canada, Britain and elsewhere, praised Montreal's subway system, under construction and due for opening in October.

"I have seen the Toronto subway system and it is a good system, utilitarian and satisfactory. But the Montreal system is absolute luxury."

"The only question I have is: is it economical?"

WANTS FEATURE

Lord Thomson said he had been so impressed by his conducted tour of the subway that he had asked Scottish Television Ltd., a company in which he owns an interest, to do a film feature on it.

A six-zone television crew arrived in Montreal from Scotland to make four half-hour documentaries and other films in a coast-to-coast tour of Canada.

Lord Thomson said the British and European reaction to advance Expo publicity is so favorable as what he called the normal attitude there to all Canadian news.

"The Expo 67 publicity department has done a good job but, let's face it, British and continental interest in Canada is practically nil."

Lord Thomson was asked whether he expected plans to acquire any French-language newspapers published in Quebec.

He said he "still might" consider such a move but he added that the necessary management personnel are not available in Canada.

He blamed the shortage of such personnel in Quebec on what he called the fact that French - Canadians have not taken advantage of opportunities.

Grizzly Bear Flushed From Brush Country

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP) — Mounted hunters and a light aircraft Monday flushed a grizzly bear from brush country near here and searchers said they are "nine tenths sure" it is the one that mauled a boy Sunday.

However, the bear almost certainly escaped into Waterton Lakes National Park, where hunting is forbidden. Park officials refused to let the man enter the park to continue the hunt.

The boy, seven - year - old Monty Helgason of Del Bonita, Alta., was bitten three times by the animal and suffered two cracked ribs. He was in good condition in hospital.

New Agreement With Stelco Workers Ready

TORONTO (CP)—Judge Walter Little, mediator in contract negotiations between the Steel Co. of Canada and 12,500 of its employees, said early today a new agreement likely will be ready for presentation to the workers tonight.

The workers, members of Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America at the company's Hamilton plant, staged a wildcat walkout two weeks ago in protest at the slow pace of negotiations.

They went back to work nine days ago after several violent incidents and the arrest of 33 strikers.

Negotiators for both sides were expected to wrap up final details of the new contract early today after 12 days of bargaining in a downtown hotel.

Details of the new agreement will not be made public until after being read to the union membership.

Fish Story Seventy Million Years Old In Cold Storage at Yale University

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A fish story 70,000,000 years old is waiting to be told by a creature — in cold storage—at Yale University.

It's a coelacanth, an ugly ocean beast with a purple-pink hue, and fine that may have a relationship to animals' legs.

A fisherman hooked the coelacanth—pronounced see — hahcanth—at a depth of about 1,000 feet off the Comoro Islands, a French possession near the coast of Africa.

Native fishermen have hauled in other coelacanths, but Yale's new acquisition was popped in a freezer shortly after it was caught in March. The other specimens examined by scientists had been preserved in formalin or other chemicals.

Keith S. Thomson, assistant curator of ichthyology at Yale's Peabody Museum, didn't hesitate at the chance to buy the best - preserved coelacanth in scientific history.

Since it is in virtually the same condition as when it was caught, Thomson said the scientists will be able to examine the fish to a degree never before possible.

The coelacanth was purchased for $4,000, plus shipping costs. That would make the 60-pound fish worth about $67 a pound, which Thomson calls "incredibly cheap." He considers his purchase the equivalent of picking up Rembrandt at Woolworth prices.

The coelacanth species was in the sea during the same period as the pterodactyls and the dinosaurs, but those museum pieces died out.

Scientists had thought the coelacanth also was no more, until an east African fisherman hauled one in 38 years ago.

The death of the coelacanth that have been found differ "very, very little indeed" from the coelacanth now at Yale, Thomson said.

Kingston Boy Saves Woman From Drowning

KINGSTON (CP)—A 10-year-old boy remained calm in the midst of adult hysteria Tuesday as he swam to shore to safety in a private pool until two policemen scaled a six-foot fence to come to his aid.

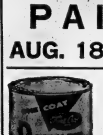
Mrs. Ronald Stubbing, wife of a Kingston doctor, was learning to swim with a friend in the pool at an apartment building when she got into difficulty.

The boy, Clifford Meeks, a resident of the building, went to the woman's aid and managed to keep her on the surface.

A friend of Mrs. Stubbing, Mrs. B. M. Adams, screamed for help after getting tangled in a life preserver she was attempting to get to the other woman. She is a non-swimmer.

Det.-Sgt. William Hackett and Detective Michael Breen, at the building to investigate a report of car damage, heard the screams. They had to scale the fence because of the self-locking gate.

"No one seemed to have the presence of mind to open the gate," Det.-Sgt. Hackett said. "It was pure hysteria."



When the policemen got to the poolside, they thought it was the boy who was in trouble. Det.-Sgt. Hackett pulled him from the water first, leaving Mrs. Stubbing gasping and sputtering in the pool. When he realized his mistake, he pulled her out.

Mrs. Stubbing was not injured.

Total-Immersion Course In French Helps Teachers

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP)—This summer 36 elementary and secondary school teachers labored not to speak a word of English for six weeks.

The English-speaking teachers of French took part in an experimental total - immersion French course at the Centre for Continuing Education in this northern Ontario community.

None of them is bilingual. But in course, ended in the second week of August, but then more used in French and with a wider knowledge of the language and the methods of it.

The course was the continuation of a pilot project developed a London, Ont., last year by David Steinhauer, assistant supervisor of the Ontario education department's teacher education branch.

The project was based on the theory that the best way to learn a language is to live it, speak and think in it and use it in work and play. The teachers spoke French outside as well as inside the classroom.

Robert Sweet, director of French for the Toronto board of education, said: "There is more stress today on the need to teach people to speak French as well as to read and write it. This has always been the aim, but we have never been able to do it. The thing is to make teachers who are at home in the language."

Rocket Firing Was Perfect Says Scientists

CHURCHILL, Man. (AP)—A Canadian rocket carrying 4 West German package designed for research into the structure and origin of comet tails was successfully fired here late Tuesday night.

The barrium vapor package, atop a Black Brant 2B rocket, exploded and dumped clouds of heights of 145 and 205 miles which elongated into two long cloud-simulating comet tails.

The barrium vapor was ionized and changed from a yellow-and-green color to the violet color scientists from the Max Planck Institute in Munich were aiming at.

Scientists said the firing was perfect and gave them all they expected.

Another firing was scheduled early today on ranges at nearby Fort Churchill, 610 miles northof Winnipeg.

2 Councillors Going to Stand For Re-election

PICTON (Staff) — Two aspirants for the position of town councillor in 1967-68 are incumbent Dr. Lionel Dockrill and retailer Charles Barber. Their intentions were made known last week when Dr. Dockrill said he will be running jointly with former councillor Charles Barber. Mr. Barber has already announced the doctor said. "Among these is a vital concern for how the tax dollar is spent and the population of revised education policies."

Whether next year's council will be elected for a three-year period rather than two is yet to be decided. A bylaw to allow three year terms, a recent change in municipal legislation, is mentioned as council but not voted upon.

Minister of Agriculture Visits Farms in County

PICTON (Staff) — Ontario Agricultural Minister William Stewart made a tour through parts of Prince Edward County Tuesday morning to observe at first hand the condition of the farmers in this county. Accompanying Mr. Stewart were Norris Whitney, M.L.A.; and Agricultural Representative Ivan Bell. They visited farms in Hillier, Wellington, Hillier and Athol Townships winding up their short tour at the farm of Lloyd Whitford of Cherry Valley.

A small group of farmers were at the farm to greet the Minister, who had come to Prince Edward after visiting farms in Hastings County.

Mr. Stewart was informally introduced to the farmers present and told them that their tour of Prince Edward had not taken them to the best farms or the worst but rather had been a cross section. "We have seen some good situations this morning and also some bad" said Mr. Bell.

Mr. Stewart inspected the tomato crop of the Whitford farm and spoke for some time to Mr. Whitford briefly regarding the operation of their farm and the crops.

Mentioning the rain making machines in use last year, Mr. Stewart said, "that became of as much criticism of the government's use of the machines last year (many farmers indicated they were of not much use) it was decided not to put them into service this year." Mr. Stewart said "that there were rains after they were used last year but who could prove he said that it was the machines that were responsible."

"I have come to the request of Mr. Whitney, Mr. Stewart told farmers, to see the crop situation. There is no doubt I have seen crops that are write-offs, there is no question the sunlight has a great deal of damage." Asked by one of the farmers if he thought the province would provide disaster assistance Mr. Stewart replied that he hadn't gone into it yet. That he was here to investigate the situation only and that when he returned to Toronto it would be discussed with department officials.

Asked why the province does not see all the farmers income milk prices he stated that the Federal Government have indicated that they are not in favor of provincial subsidies.

Mr. Stewart told farmers, some of them members of the O.F.U. that 10 million had been spent by the government last year in farm assistance.

Following his visit to the Whitford farm the Minister had lunch in the county and was then proceeding on to Northumberland county for a similar tour and then on back to Toronto.

Swedish Student Recounts Experience in Red China

Per Kronvall, 19-year-old student and leading journalist, one of the Swedish ambassador to Pekin, has just completed a month-long visit in China as a member of a Swedish student journalist group. He reports on his talks with students at Pekin University and what he learned of their thinking.

Written for The AP
By PER KRONVALL

The first evening I spent at Peking University I came into a political discussion with my new Chinese acquaintances. I didn't know here freely I could express myself, fearing I might destroy the little friendship between us. So I sat quietly and listened and became amazed at how ill-informed they were on many things—on some things completely wrong.

When they noticed how quiet I was, they began more and more to speak to (Communist leader) Mao Tse-tung's works until the "illuminated" exam by Mr. Landahl when one of the students asked me about my country. So I started to talk about Sweden — how the country looked, what kind of food we ate and so on. Students all over the world are curious and Chinese students are no exception. Then came the question I was waiting for:

"But the Swedish workers, aren't they overly poor?"

He said it more as a fact than a question. So I began to describe a working family I have back home. The family had a house of its own, a summer house, a car, a refrigerator and so on. They all eyed me suspiciously.

"It is not so rich that to have a car and everything, how many servants does he have?" one of them asked.

"He does not have any servant," I replied.

"Does one of the cleaning and the cooking?" the same one asked.

I explained to them about dishwashers, washing machines and other modern conveniences. I explained how the housewife worked—one takes out a frozen bread loaf, lets it defrost and then it is fresh. They all burst out laughing. I asked them whether they believed me or not.

"No, of course not," one of them said politely. "But we have ice-boxes in China, too!"

DISCUSS SPORT

The conversation then switched to other subjects such as a table tennis tournament between Sweden and China. I had heard that the Chinese were the world's champions because the players study Mao Tse-tung's works in the evenings. So I asked whether I could become a world champion if I studied (Communist party) Chairman Mao. They both began to talk very enthusiastically about him. We talked about sports and looked at different objects portraying how bad it was before the Communist takeover in 1949. Said the students:

"Thanks to Mao Tse-tung, we don't have that any more!"

In the old exit hall there was an exhibition of political drawings. In addition to the usual anti-American drawings, the cartoons were mostly against the Christian churches.

Outside we walked through Peking's "Red Square" and my friends showed me the place where Mao stands during May Day parades. I asked whether Mao was still in power, and they both answered yes.

"Of course, he is; who else would it be?" they replied.

Later, on a bus back to the university, we passed a Roman Catholic church. I asked whether it still was open. One said it was but that no one ever went there.

"If you want there would you be critised by other students during political meetings?" I asked.

"Yes, of course. If anyone goes to the church he is so mixed up that other people must help him."

UPSET BY NEWS

During my stay in Peking I met some students regularly. One evening they were upset about a report that the Americans had bombed a hospital in Hanoi in North Viet Nam. Logic perhaps it had been a mistake by the bombers to hit the place, but they were convinced that the Americans had done it on purpose.

"Do you really think that all Americans are bad people?" I asked.

"No," one of them replied. "As Mao Tse-tung says, 95 per cent of the Americans are good, it is only (President) Johnson and his regime we hate."

But the people have chosen him to rule their country," I said.

"Well, the American people think he is good because he gave them a lot of money," one Chinese answered.

"Think of it," another said. "five per cent of the world's people should control 50 per cent of the world's raw material."

What do you think can be done about it?" I asked.

"Before the world can live in peace American imperialism must be crushed," a student said.

"Your country has nuclear weapons; why don't you use them?" I asked.

"China does not want war, and we will never be the first to use the atom bomb."

ASKED ABOUT WAR

"Do you think there will be another war?" I asked.

"Yes, America will attack China but we will beat them. Americans are bad soldiers, worse than the Viet Nam. Some soldiers don't want to do Johnson's dirty work. It is the same thing everywhere. American imperialism is infiltrating all over the world. Look here in Indonesia. They are killing people of Chinese descent."

"But," I said, "there are always two views on everything, and you don't read or hear about the American point of view on different world problems."

"Yes, sometimes our newspapers write what Johnson has said," one of them said.

"Do you think it is good that you only get to read Chinese newspapers?" I asked.

"It is always interesting to read what others have to say even if it is wrong."

I was surprised by his frankness and then he added: "American and other newspapers from the West are filled with lies about what they say them in China there must be a good reason for it."

The fear of occasion we started talking about girls. I wished one student what girls he considered pretty.

"A Chinese student does not think about girls," he said.

"Be a little realistic," I said, "all men like girls."

"Anyway it's forbidden to marry when you are attending the university," he said.

It only means students for Chinese students if they "so steady," he explained. They will be sent expelled but they would be criticised at meetings.

If you compare students in Communist China with students of other Communist countries the Chinese seem to have narrower views. They never drink beer or go out and have fun on the town, drink beer or sing in the streets.

Leigh Taylor-Young Takes New Role in Peyton Place

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Leigh Taylor-Young, television's Cinderella girl of the 1966-67 season, has only been a member of ABC's Peyton Place cast for 10 days — and already they have put her in a hospital gown and got her practicing how to operate a wheel chair.

That's the way things are in Peyton Place, where life is a twice-a-week cycle of illness, emotional crisis, birth and occasional murder.

Miss Taylor - Young, 21, of Birmingham, Mich., is a tall blondie beauty with long, blonde hair who has been chosen to fill the spot—but not the character—vacated by Mia Farrow.

There is a theory widely advanced by television's educated second-guessers that the reason for Peyton Place's popularity has been curiosity about the identity of the man who would sweep Allison MacKenzie off her feet.

Confusion between the ideality of Mia Farrow and Allison MacKenzie assisted this hypothesis some time ago, but Miss Farrow, now Mrs. Frank Sinatra, left to be written out in a couple of weeks. And Miss Taylor-Young will then pique viewers' curiosity.

She will be introduced into the series sometime in late September or early October. All Peyton Place story lines are guarded like military invasion plans, but she will start out with only a first name—"Rachel."

BIRDS LOSE FIGHT

HAMILTON (CP) — Angry pigeons finally strutted away from their nests as a jewelry store which had been trying to get rid of them for four years. The birds roosted in the store's grillwork when it opened, and tape-recorded distress signals didn't scare them off. When the grill was covered with mesh, the birds found nesting places in the letters of a neon sign. Now the sign is flush with the store front.

Farley Granger Returns To Make Hollywood Home

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I left Hollywood because I didn't know my craft," says Farley Granger, "I was a failure, I know nothing of the techniques of acting. I figured I'd better learn, so I left the trouble with the star aspect of my career were off."

Granger has returned to a Hollywood career after a 13-year absence. He admits to being 41, but it's hard to believe. He still has the lean, boyish look ("tennis and calisthenics baby") that did trifle of female hearts before the Second World War.

His last movie here was The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing in 1955. He has returned for television shows and is reportedly with Eva Legallienne's company but his home remained in New York.

"Now I'm ready to settle down here again," he said. "I've been on Broadway three shows in the wind, and a couple of movies, too. I think I can handle whatever comes."

He wasn't always so confident. As a North Hollywood high school student in 1942, he had all the notion he wanted to be an actor and got a job with a Little Theatre on Hollywood Ave. nue. That was the extent of his dramatic training. Samuel Goldwyn's scouts spotted him and he was signed to a contract, which began with North Star. BECAME IDOL

After a service in the navy, Granger returned to find himself a bobbysoxer idol. He made a number of routine films of which as a few be enjoyed, notably They Live by Night and two with Alfred Hitchcock, Rope and Strangers on a Train.

In 1955, he decided it was time to call the breaks, and though picture offers were still coming.

He realized I was sliding by on my previous reputation and the tricks I had learned in pictures," he told me at the time. "I want to be an actor as long as I can. I know that I can't succeed if I'm not challenged following."

The actor's return to the Hollywood scene will be signaled by his co-starring with Judi Harris in the opening Drama of NBC's Bob Hope Chrysler Theatre Sept. 14.

URGES NEW MINISTRIES

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A. Philip Randolph, president of the Negro American Labor Council, has urged organized labor to write a history text containing the "proper picture of the Negro American." Randolph said "most of the histories in our schools carry no sound or reliable picture of the role of the Negro in United States culture."

The French expect they will be out of French Somaliland in five or six years. Then either Somaliland or Ethiopia will take over. Meanwhile the capital, Djibouti, thrives on prosperity derived from its busy harbor. The French atmosphere in this sun-scorched city is described by a Canadian Press reporter.

By JARL MOLLINS

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland (CP) — Djibouti is an oasis of persistent Frenchness in the hottest place on earth. A gift of Gallic industry and flair on the sun-beaten African shore of the Gold of Aden.

It is also a repository of unsentimental French logic, which calculates semi - officially that this remnant of empire will remain perhaps five or six years more. Then it will succumb, at the age of 200 or 120, to the grasp of covetous neighbors.

The calculation fails to coincide whether it will be Ethiopia or Somalia that gains at war over a nearby stretch of wasteland — that inherits French Somaliland's 8,900 square miles of desert and dead volcanoes along with this promising airport and railway terminus.

The Ethiopians conduct more than half their trade through the port, Ethiopia's only outlet to the sea before it joined the Eritrean coast of the Red Sea from the Italians in the Second World War.

Ethiopia is part owner of the railway, a contribution of turn - of - the - century French engineers that runs 486 miles southwest and 8,000 feet uphill to Addis Ababa.

One of Djibouti's primary streets is Rue d'Ethiopie and its main square is named for Menelik II, an imperial predecessor of Haile Selassie.

But it is nearly too hot to try to assess just how these points in Christian Ethiopia's favor stack up against the strident claim of Moslem Somalis, which points to racial and religious compatibility and the geographical neatness of completing its possession of the Horn of Africa.

Sit quite still instead under a ceiling fan in the hotel that looks like a set from a Humphrey Bogart movie and you can reduce the perspiration rate to merely damp from dripping. The Alsatian lager is cold, or there is chilled rose wine from Anjou.

After sundown, get up and go away the Somali shoeshine boys, hand another franc to the blind Arab beggar around the Italian cafes, then break away from the circling sidewalk merchants hawking duty - free Swiss watches and American cigars, Dandiki daggers and Bedouin headdresses.

Make your way past the row of indian money-changers and across the square, crowded with lithe Somali men and haughty women, stout Greeks and Frenchmen, Foreign Legionnaires in short shorts and fezes, police-men glistening black starched uniforms.

RENDEZ-VOUS DELMAR

At the Restaurant Palmier so Zinc, savor a meal such as you cannot buy for 1,000 miles in any direction — asparagus vinaigrette, rare tournedos of beef, Europe's cheeses. Everything imported and prepared in the French manner.

Between courses you can examine the artificial palm tree made of zinc that gives the restaurant its name. It is said to have been made by Frenchmen who came here a last century to establish a coaling station for ships using the new Suez Canal and found the coral shore of Djibouti completely treeless.

Now trees in pots open with trees. Gardens and lawns flank the tidy bungalows and the new subsidized apartments occupied by 7,200 foreign residents — French, Greeks, Italians, Indians. The municipal population of 40,000, half the total for the whole territory.

The greenery is created by irrigation. But almost everything else except sand must be brought in through the harbor formed of three coral reefs and a quay constructed on top of a sunken ship.

The port, once a poor neighbor of Aden across the gulf, has almost quadrupled its fueling and provisioning business in 10 years, servicing 2,000,000 tons of shipping last year compared with 600,000 tons in 1956.

Some of the ships that call — an average of 10 a day—are freighters and passenger liners frightened away from Aden by political unrest or attracted to this port's docking facilities. Aden harbor depends entirely on lighter service, but it still gets twice as many ships as Djibouti.

The French persist in making improvements to the harbor even while acknowledging that their days here are numbered.

The violent nationalism driving the British out of Aden has not yet erupted among the generally-docile Somalis here, who voted in 1958 to remain a French territory while their neighbors in Italian and Italian Somaliland prepared for the birth of independent Somalia in 1960.

But there have been outbursts of political agitation here. After dark, a people of armed French soldiers on patrol occasionally causes a mild chill of tension.

As the young French government official said with a Gallic shrug, "peut-etre cinq, six ans."

POWER STRUGGLE — An uneasy atmosphere prevails in the Aden Protectorate as Britain prepares to withdraw and leave Aden an independent state within two years. Tribal leaders suspect each other and fear and dislike city politicians. Some radicals are turning to Nasser's Egypt in promoting their aim for an Arab socialist state and eventual union with republican Yemen. Anxious shiks and sultans now in the federal government are looking for support from Saudi Arabia, a traditionalist state concerned about Nasser's penetration of the Arabian peninsula. (CP Newsmap).

2,000 CN Workers Out On Strike

Name Lin Piao, Defence Head Second to Mao

TOKYO (AP) — China today officially today that Defence Minister Marshal Lin Piao now is the country's No. 2 man. It gave signs last night even be on a par with Mao Tse-tung himself.

The New China news agency said Lin, 59, standing "shoulder to shoulder" with Mao, addressed 1,000,000 people in Peking on behalf of Mao and the central committee of the Chinese Communist party.

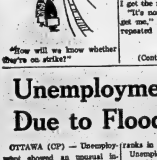
It described Lin as Mao's "dearest comrade."

The official accounts mentioned here did not say why Mao works.

'Cultural Revolution' Changing Today's China

Per Kronvall, 19, student and budding Swedish journalist, has been spending a month in China with a Swedish educational mission and in the following story, he reports some of his observations.

Written For The AP
By PER KRONVALL



Changes are taking place in China. Popular Peking operas are being replaced by spectacles in which actors and actresses read from the works of Mao Tse-tung, and sing the Chinese people do hate "American imperialism."

It is all part of China's cultural revolution, with the motto: "Learn from the peasants, workers and soldiers."

The campaign aimed at wiping out the past and crushing desire to own land and other property.

Things that were accepted before now are condemned. For example, leading author Kuo Mo-jo was forced to make a public statement saying he was deeply ashamed of everything he had written. He said every-

'Out to Get Me' Says PC Chief

By DON McLEOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood is having his native Bonavista North legislature district as the target of a vicious assault in the Sept. 6 provincial election he announced Wednesday, and Opposition Leader Dr. Noel Murphy claims the premier is "out to get me."

Mr. Smallwood in his said one aim of this election, he sixth since coming to power with Confederation in 1949, is to bring "western Newfoundland solidly back into the ranks of Liberalism." Three Conservatives were elected outside the eastern shield Peninsula in the last election Nov. 18, 1962.

Besides 34 Liberals, that vote-getting machine got 20 MPs, four of them from the traditional PC stronghold of St. John's. An independent was elected in Labrador West.

Mr. Smallwood will run in Humber West, a Liberal riding since 1949, which shares part of the city of Corner Brook with Humber East, Dr. Murphy's riding.

WAGE JOINT CAMPAIGN

Clyde Wells, who was appointed labor minister Monday, will oppose Dr. Murphy in Humber East. Premier Smallwood says he will wage a joint campaign with his youngest minister "if I get the nomination."

"It's not Wells who's out to get me," Dr. Murphy said. He repeated earlier charges the

Stelco Votes on Contract

HAMILTON (CP)—A contract that would make 14,000 employees of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. giant the highest-paid steel workers in the world was submitted to a mass union meeting Wednesday night.

The members of Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America will begin voting at 6 a.m. Monday on whether to accept the three - year contract which includes basic wage provisions of con - cent - an - hour higher than those in the United States steel industry.

The voting ends at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The contract also provides for a pension plan which John Morgan, Local 1005 president, described as the best in North America.

Agreement was reached after company and union negotiators spent 32 days bargaining under the guidance of Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound, Ont., chairman of the conciliation board.

WALKOUT WAS VIOLENT

The board was set up after the workers staged a violence-ridden five-day walkout to protest the slow pace of earlier negotiations.

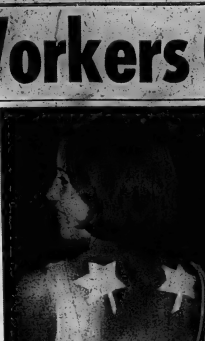
The previous contract expired July 31. Talks for a new contract began before the expiry date.

Some of the 4,000 union members who attended Wednesday night's meeting booted and jeered as Mr. Morgan outlined the agreement. Employees working eight shifts will be told of the contract provisions at a meeting today. Full details will be published in the union magazine Fridays.

Mr. Morgan urged members to accept the contract. He said targets of the union's negotiating committee has been reached.

Basic wage increases of 28 cents-an-hour are spread over the life of the contract. The first 10-cent increase is retroactive to Aug. 1, eight cents next Aug. 1 and 10 cents Aug. 1, 1968.

HIGHER THAN U.S.



Mr. Morgan said this will bring wages to one-cent-an-hour higher than equivalent jobs in the U.S. steel industry by August, 2967. The present U.S. contract expires at the end of 1967.

He compared the Canadians' August, 1967, job Class 2 rate of $2.453 with the U.S. rate in the same period of $2.445.

Company officials estimated the contract will cost Stelco about $22,000,000, or 98.7 cents-an-hour for each man.

The pension plan, effective Sept. 1, will pay $310 monthly to a 65-year-old employee with 35 years' service. After Dec. 1,

Viet Cong Bomb Kills 26 in Cafe

SAIGON (Reuters)—A plastic bomb ripped through a crowded restaurant in the northern city of Hue Wednesday night, killing 26 South Vietnamese in the blast and during the panic-stricken rush for a single exit.

Reports said 225 persons were wounded.

It was the second most serious terrorist attack so far this year.

In February, a series of three Viet Cong land mines on a country road in the central coastal lowlands killed 34 rice farmers.

The latest explosion occurred about 10 p.m. Wednesday night in a restaurant beside a fair ground on the banks of the Perfumed River which runs through the former imperial capital of Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon.

A fair was being held there to raise funds for an orphanage and many of the fairgoers were still eating at the restaurant.

A U.S. mission spokesman said people ran for the only way out after the blast and several persons apparently were crushed to death in the stampede.

In the air war over North Viet Nam, U.S. fighters were challenged by Communist jets during 109 missions Wednesday.

Two Russian-designed MIG-17s swooped on air force F-105 Thunderchiefs raiding an oil depot 10 miles from Hanoi but turned back without firing.

Day-Shift Men Refuse to Enter Montreal Yards

MONTREAL (CP) — The ranks of the 90 striking freight-yard employees at the CNR's Point St. Charles yards were swelled early today as many of the 2,000 workers reporting for the 8 a.m. shift refused to enter the yards. About 3,000 men are employed at the yards.

A count of the strikers was not immediately available but picketers jeered the few employees who entered the wards with the intention of working. No incidents were reported.

The strikers are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

All trains in and out of Montreal were reported on time but a spokesman said he did not know "how long this will last".

Some 300 other CNR non - operating employees in southwestern Ontario, also CBRT members, went on strike today in Windsor, Chatham and Walkerton over wages scales.

The Montreal men walked off the job about noon Wednesday, protesting alleged stowdowns in negotiations for an agreement on a new contract with the CNR and voicing impatience with

5 Union Heads Brief P.M. on Rail Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Five railway unions leaders presented the union viewpoint to Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night as he and his cabinet began planning to meet a threatened national railway strike.

Mr. Pearson spent two hours with the cabinet at his Sussex Drive home following a full day of cabinet conferences on the impending crisis, expected to break within the next three weeks.

A joint strike date will be announced next Monday or Tuesday by 15 unions representing almost 120,000 railway workers. Demanding wage increases averaging about 30 cents an hour, they have rejected conciliation board reports recommending a 40 - cent increase spread over two years.

About 100,000 of the workers involved are in nine-operating categories with a present day average of $2.23 an hour. The rest are conductors and trainmen paid between $2,500 and $8,000 a year.

Mr. Pearson, Labor Minister Nicholson and the five union leaders met in the prime minister's residence just before 11 p.m. EDT.

Say Strike Unlikely To Spread

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canadian National Railways officials said a strike early today by 200 non-operating personnel at three southwestern Ontario centres was "unlikely to spread" across Canada.

CNR officials, conferring in the wake of the 12:01 a.m. EDT walkout by members of Local 195 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, said the strike was "localized" to Windsor, Wallaceburg and Chatham.

The walkout occurred at the precise moment it was legally permissible, one week after the CNR's non-operative rail unions rejected a conciliation report.

A CNR spokesman in London, Ont., area head office, said passenger and all other services in and out of the strike-bound terminals would be maintained by corporate personnel. "We can keep everything moving."

Union spokesman, however, said they doubted supervisory personnel could handle the volume of freight moving out of Windsor.

The strikers, 140 in Windsor and 40 each at the other centres, are employed as clerks, switchmen, freight, baggage, yard office and motive power staff.

The local members said they had gone on strike to bring action on their wage demands which have been stalled for 19 months." With expiry of their last contract Dec. 31, 1965, the union has been seeking a 90-cents hourly increase over a two-year contract.

A conciliation report, prepared by Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron, recommended 40 cents hourly over the same period.

Unemployment Jumps in July Due to Flood of Teen-Agers

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment showed an unusual increase in July, climbing to 364,000 from 300,000 in June as a record number of teen-agers flooded the job market. The July total matched the jobless level of July, 1965.

A joint report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the immigration department's manpower division said the unemployment rate in July stood at 3.1 per cent, unchanged from June and up below the 2.5 per-cent rate in July of last year.

However, after adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the rate was 4.1 per cent compared to 3.7 per cent in June and 4.3 per cent a year earlier.

Teen-agers in the labor market reached a record 1,009,000 by a 5-July with an estimated 294,000 students joining the ranks in the month.

Unemployment among teenagers hit 82,000, an increase of 49,000 from June but unchanged from the year-earlier figure.

The estimates are based on a sample survey of the labor force taken in the week ended July 23.

The job picture in brief (estimates in thousands):

	July June July
	1966	1966	1965
Labor force	9,787	9,733	7,495
Employed	9,543	9,503	7,201
Unemployed	364	230	294

Employment showed an above-average increase of 240,000 between June and July but the labor force increased by a larger amount, 254,000, to cause the rise in unemployment of 36,000.

In four of the last five years unemployment has registered declines of 11,000 to 37,000 during the same period.

The employment picture was brightest for women, although it was colored by the substantial number of married women who withdrew from the job market for the summer, a normal trend.

There were 2,242,000 girls and women at work, an increase of 69,000 from June. Another 60,000 were jobless, but this was 1,000 below June and 2,000 lower than the July, 1965, level.

The brunt of increased unemployment fell most heavily on married men, up 10,000 in the month at 74,000. Unemployment among single men was 5,000 higher at 142,000.

Among the total jobless, 332,000 had been out of work for less than a month and 85,000 for one or three months. Another 18,000 had been seeking work for up to six months and 38,000, the hard core of unemployment, for seven months or more.

Lawyers Withdraw as Colleague Ousted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. congressional committee investigating anti - Viet Nam war groups faces a major decision involving witnesses today following the walkout of seven lawyers in another stormy session.

The lawyers, representing a dozen subpoenaed witnesses, marched from Wednesday's hearing of the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities in protest to the forced expulsion of another lawyer.

The committee must decide whether to dismiss the witnesses if they fail to get new lawyers by a noon EDT deadline today.

If the witnesses are dismissed, the committee could start questioning a number of people waiting to testify on the need for legislation to curb anti-war activities.

More than 36 persons have been arrested during two days of hearings—13 of them Wednesday—most of them for shouting, hissing and cheering during the tumultuous sessions in the hearing room.

THIRD SPEECH MAKING

"I've seen enough," said Representative Richard Ichord (Dem. Mo.), a committee member, after several of the subpoenaed witnesses tried to make speeches denouncing the committee and the Viet Nam war while being directed by Acting Chairman Joe R. Pool, a Texas conservative Democrat, to get new lawyers.

Ichord said the hearings had shown "a very serious need for this legislation."

promoter wants to "obliterate the opposition. "I think he's my opponent and he's using a front."

It is the second time the premier has left his home riding. But he said "no great principle is involved" this time.

In 1939, Mr. Smallwood defeated then Conservative Leader Malcolm Hollett in St. John's West when Newfoundland was batting John Diefenbaker's federal government over a Confederation term providing an annual grant of $1,000,000 to the province. Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to review the terms in 1962.

"I did it on a matter of great principle," Mr. Smallwood said Wednesday of his defeat of Mr. Hollett, now a senator. It was "one of the most urgent crises . . . that ever confronted Newfoundland."

FIGHT OTHER SEAT

The PCs also took the west-coast riding of St. Barbe South and Grand Falls in the central part of the province in the last election. Wilfred Smith, member for St. Barbe South, died Wednesday, less than a year after Smallwood said Wednesday Finance Minister Dr. Fred Rowe will leave his White Bay South riding to run in Grand Falls, now held by PC Ambrose Peddle.

The election will follow others in Quebec, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba this year and precede a general vote in British Columbia by four days. Campaigns will overlap with those for federal byelections Sept. 12 in Newfoundland's Burin-Burgeo and Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador ridings.

When machines are revoted, Mr. Smallwood is expected to campaign on a long-range plan for the province, the fourth elected this year by addition of five new ministers since July 30 and the 31 new candidates so far elected on the Liberal ticket.

Dr. Murphy expects to fight a campaign on grounds of government failure to cut the cost of living, raise wages, produce industries or keep promises.

Standings at dissolution were 33 Liberals, 7 PCs and three vacancies. The independent joined the Conservatives in April. Two by-elections and Mr. Smith's death account for the vacant seats.

FENCES GOING UP

PARIS (Reuters) — Protective fences around the 377-foot-high Eiffel Tower will be heightened following two accidents within 24 hours last weekend. Since the famed landmark was erected in 1889, a total of 350 persons have leaped to their deaths.

THOMAS S. GWYNN

Guest speaker at a school for incoming officers being conducted here by District A-3 of Lions International, will be Thomas S. Gwynn of Clinton, Maryland. The school is being held at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel, August 20-21. Mr. Gwynn is a director of Lions International.

Careless Driving Brings $50 Fine

Donald Charles Moore of Sidney Street, in Belleville was fined $50 and costs, and was penalized a three - month suspension of his driving permit in county magistrate's court this morning after pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Moore was involved in an accident on the bay bridge June 11, which sent two persons to hospital.

New Firestone Store Carries Complete Line Of Tires, Accessories

Another new business opened its doors in Belleville today.

Firestone Stores, 224 Pinnacle St., started operations at 9 a.m. today.

Store manager, Carl Lamothe, said the store carries a complete line of home and auto supplies, ranging from golf balls to freezers, and of course, tires.

The garage beside the store has facilities to service up to 10 cars simultaneously. Licensed mechanics are on duty.

"We pledge customer satisfaction guaranteed," the manager said.

"Firestone has been in the auto business since 1919 in the U.S. and since 1961 in Canada and we realize that the important thing is that a car today, next to buying a house, is a man's biggest expense. We feel obligated to insure not only safe tires are on the car, but also that the running gear of the car, meaning effecting steering or control, goes out of here in a perfectly safe condition.

"If the car isn't safe, we feel it is our duty to tell the customer what is wrong so that it safe and leave the decision up to him.

"The average driver doesn't know a great deal about the operation of his car. He depends upon the garage to tell him if things are working properly."

The new store is featuring a host of introductory offers to acquaint the people of Belleville and district with its various products.

Two Radio Personalities Will Judge at Pageant

AMELIASBURGH — Two well known radio personalities will act in official capacities at the pageant being held in the township hall on Friday evening, August 26.

On the occasion the Apple Blossom Princess to represent the township in the Centennial Queen contest at Picton Fair later this year will be decided. The event is being sponsored jointly by the township's apple growers, centennial committee and park's board.

Earlier this week the sponsors learned that CFRB radio announcer and commentator, Wally Crouter of Toronto, would be one of the five judges. CJBQ radio announcer and farm broadcaster, Phil Flagler of Belleville, is appearing to provide the comment during the evening.

The other judges who will decide on the qualifications of the winner are: Norris Whitney, MLA; Douglas Trumble, principal, Kente central public school; Mrs. Ricky Stoughton, model and hair stylist of Belleville and Mrs. Paul Grote, former model of Belleville.

In May the first annual Apple Blossom Festival at applications for the Princess contest were received. Those who enter on the night of the pageant will be judged on personal appearance, public speaking and showmanship. Probable entries include: Lorraine Adams, Donna Ray Row, Pat Higgins, Margaret Cronkhook, Eleanor Ann Staveley, Barbara Wynn Staveley, Nancy Graham and Sandra Demoyer.

Locally the interest is growing as civic minded residents offer their talents. Carl Reid of R.R. 1, Carrying Place has undertaken to arrange the stage setting in the township hall while centennial committee member Norman Post, and his two daughters, Joanne and Debra, offered entertainment along with youthful accordionist Barry Vanneren.

'SHUNS BOOZY LABEL

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — When the city did not put up a street sign for Prado Place, William McGuire erected a hand - lettered one of his own. Before that, he said he had had to endure six months of telling his friends how to reach his home by saying: "Turn at the beer store." The city has not objected to his sign, and his neighbors say it is better than nothing.

Downtown Shopping Interest Revived; Stores Renovated

A revival of customer interest in downtown shopping is indicated in Belleville by the amount of store face-lifting and renovations currently being carried out in this city.

As of this month of August twelve downtown businesses are undergoing or have completed alterations or renovations, as merchants generally exhibit a feeling of optimism about the future of the main business section of the city.

The major renovation program was carried out by Walker Stores Ltd. who some months ago purchased the T. Eaton Company store on Front Street.

The entire store was renovated with a new front installed at a cost in excess of $750,000 and will open for business August 25th.

Another major development in the downtown area is a new wholesale-retail store being set up by Firestone Tire and Rubber Company in the former Riggs' Garage building on Pinnacle Street. Firestone stores will offer a complete line of tires, auto accessories and appliances.

The new Firestone store opened for business August 18th.

NEW STORES OPEN

Two other new stores in the downtown area are a hat shop to be opened by Mrs. Lindenberg in the former Diamond's Men's Wear store, and a new book store by Upper Canada News, which is converting the former Hyde's Plumbing store and barbershop into a new retail outlet.

Booth Radio and Television have taken over the former Intelligencer office and opened a side doorway from their former store. They are completely redecorating this area which more than doubles their display space.

Other stores with renovations underway or completed include McIntosh's who have completely remodelled their store; Leslie's Shoe Store which has provided a new back entrance for the convenience of customers using the Pinnacle street municipal parking lot.

Maher's Shoe Store plans to extend store depth by 40 feet while Rachael's Ladies' Wear is also remodelling.

Artistic Ladies' Wear will also carry out major renovations, commencing this week, allowing expansion of its bridal department and the addition of a new sportswear department.

EMPLOYMENT UP

The bureau of statistics index of industrial employment, based on 1961 equalling 100, rose to 114.1 in March from 114.3 in February. This was a gain of 6.2 per cent from March last year. Higher employment in forestry and manufacturing, particularly in manufacturing non-durable goods, was mainly responsible for the increase. There was a drop in employment in transportation, communications and other utilities.

Eleven Apply For Position Of Police Chief

FRANKFORD — Village Council has received 11 applications for the position of Chief Constable in response to an advertisement placed in local newspapers and city dailies. The applications were read at last night's council meeting.

Applicants from the Quinte area and others from as far away as Toronto will be interviewed after the applications have been reviewed by the Ontario Police Commission. The interviews will be conducted by members of the commission and councillors at a special meeting. The successful applicant will replace William Hockley, who resigned last month, charging that some members of council were attempting to influence him in his handling of police work. Mr. Hockley's resignation takes effect on September 1.

Salaries requested in the applications range from $5,000 to $7,000 per year plus car allowance and expenses. Mr. Hockley's salary was $5,000 per year plus $400 allowance and 10 cents a mile for out-of-town trips. Ed McGeachy, the man Mr. Hockley replaced, received $4,000 per year with no allowance for his car and no expense money.

Only six villagers attended last night's council meeting in contrast to the group of 150 petitioners who showed up at a previous meeting when Mr. Hockley's differences with councillors were aired.

During the height of proceedings leading to Mr. Hockley's resignation, his wife returned to England to escape a barrage of abuse directed at her and other members of the family by some village residents. Mrs. Hockley arrived back in Frankford last night. Mr. Hockley has accepted a position as a security guard with a Belleville company and the Hockleys will remain in Frankford, at least for the time being.

Car Imports To U.S. Set New Record

DETROIT (AP)—Import car dealers did record - breaking business in the first six months of this year as they topped the 300,000 sales mark in the United States for the first time.

The first-half registration total of 304,275 broke the old mark of 301,772 set, in the January-June period of 1959. That year marked the current high for import sales as U.S. buyers bought 614,131 foreign made cars.

Import sales for the first half of 1960 ran 49,498 units ahead of the comparable period last year.

Dispute Over Non-Union Painters Causes Strike at New Centennial High School

About 100 tradesmen working on the construction of the new Centennial High School on Palmer Rd. are off the job today in a dispute over non - union painters.

About 40 per cent of the workers walked off the job yesterday afternoon in protest over painting contractor Walter F. MacCormack's use of non - union painters.

Only about a dozen workers, bricklayers, laborers and four painters — are on the job today. The picket line was set up at 7 a.m. this morning. The men working arrived some time before the pickets.

Carl Larocque, construction superintendent for the general contractors, Sullivan Contractors of Arnprior, said his company is doing everything possible to settle the dispute quickly.

"The workers wanted to see a company representative to order the painters of the job. I can't do it. They're not a contractor."

He said one alternative was to hire another painting contractor, a union one, but that is easier said than done. "MacCormack has a contract for the painting and until it is shown legally he is hindering the job by not living up to the contract then there's not much that can be done.

"However we're called him to do some work, he's done and he's done a good job for us. We can't complain on those grounds."

Mr. Larocque said union and company officials and lawyers will meet with Mr. MacCormack this afternoon to see if some agreement can be reached.

TRY TO AVERT STRIKE

"We're trying to get a job done here," Mr. Larocque said. "We've been rushing this job to accomodate some kids and we're trying to settle this thing fast."

Union and company officials met at noon yesterday to try to avert the strike action. "There are grounds for dispute though and now we have to go through due process in order to settle them," the superintendent said.

"We've been going all out to give them 18 or 20 classrooms by September and this thing is hurting us. I need every working man every working hour. It's a big job and we're really been moving. Technically, we're ahead of schedule, but it's going to be quite a job to have it ready for September."

He said the company has been putting pressure on the painter to come to some kind of an agreement with the unions.

Mr. MacCormack's wife said today that her husband does not want to sign a union contract. "There is no painter's local in Belleville," she said. "And Walter doesn't want to sign a union contract, when none of the others are unionized. If all the Belleville painters came forward and wanted to join the union, then it would be different. But as it is now, he does not want to sign."

Picketers are carrying signs protesting that the painting contractor has an agreement with painter's Local 114, of Kingston.

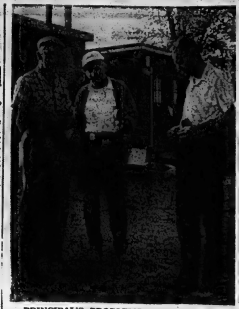
COSTING MONEY

Centennial School principal W. J. Musgrove was at the school—this morning. "You know what this will cost the province," he said. "About $1,000 a day in grants."

One foreman still on the job today said, "This trouble came just at a time when we didn't need it. We're trying hard to get this job done for September.

"Every day the men are off work means that we lose two days work, the day for being off and the next day when they're doing the work for the day missed."

The non-union painters have been working for some three weeks now. A striking workman said, "We've been complaining about it and nothing was being done, so we had no other choice.



"This is a union job and we demand union workers on it.

"I don't like staying out of work any longer than anybody else," he said, "but a thing like this has got to be settled."

Many strikers expressed the viewpoint that the company will be extremely anxious to get the problem settled because it's a government contract and school will be opening soon.

"Of course we want to get it settled quickly," Mr. Larocque said. "If it goes on, we're losing some of our important tradesmen. These men are in demand now and if the strike goes on they'll just leave for other jobs."

Strikers are complaining that MacCormack is using school-age youths on the job. About four painters are involved in the dispute.

PRINCIPAL'S PROBLEMS — W. J. Musgrove, right, principal of Centennial High School here, talks over strike problems with general superintendent Carl Larocque on the site of the new school. Workers went out yesterday in a dispute over the use of non-union painters.

Spotter Planes Called in to Hunt for Man

LONDON (AP) — More than 200 policemen, many carrying rifles, moved into London's Epping Forest at dawn today on the trail of Harry Roberts, the "white1 man" still sought in the killing of three Scotland Yard detectives.

Police said the scar - faced Roberts, 30, probably was only "half a jump ahead" of his pursuers and might be lurking in the forest disguised as a bold-day biker. Spotter planes were called in.

A massive dragnet that stretched into Scotland Wednesday led to the arrest of another suspect, John Duddy, 27.

Duddy was grabbed without a fight in a Glasgow slum lodging house just 27 hours after John Edward Witney, the first man arrested in the manhunt, was ordered held without bail on charges of murdering the three detectives "with others."

WERE GUNNED DOWN

The detectives were gunned down while trying to question three men in a parked car.

Police converged on Epping Forest after an underworld tip-off. The state-owned forest covers 6,000 acres on the eastern edge of the capital. Herds of deer roam its lonely glades and pathways.

Roberts, born at nearby Wanstead, knows the forest well from his boyhood days.

Scotland Yard said Roberts spent £10 ($30) in London Monday buying clothes suitable for hiking. In a cabbie's shop he bought a tent and a portable stove.

DECLARES STREET WAR

OTTAWA (CP) — A potholepatching fund has been started. The first 50 cents was sent in by a former resident who heard of Controller Ernie Jones' appeal for a federal grant to fix the roads. The donor offered to provide a list of specific potholes in Ottawa streets, which he described as an automobile proving ground.

Pot of Gold Has Built Up For Final Night of Fair

That pot of gold for tonight's big cash prize winner at Belleville Fair is building up fast.

With just over 7,000 paid adults admissions to the fairgrounds Wednesday, the pot for tonight's grandprize already amounts to $547 and fair officials say that the fair - end pot could be at least $800.

Last night's daily pot of gold winner was Miss Betty Borgess of Oshawa who took home a cash prize of $178.45.

For the second night in a row the chuck wagon races packed them into the grandstand last night, with paid admissions totalling more than $1,500.

The chuck wagons will roll again tonight for the last night of the fair, while as an added grandstand attraction there will be the Old Fort Henry Guards who are scheduled to stage their early Canadian military drill and tattoo. The Guards' fife and drum band will be heard as part of the performance.

Fair officials today were optimistic that a record for Thursday attendance might be set today, with the final attraction of the chuck wagon races and the Old Fort Henry Guards.

The state-owned forest covers 6,000 acres on the eastern edge of the capital. Herds of deer roam its lonely glades and pathways.

Roberts, born at nearby Wanstead, knows the forest well from his boyhood days.

Scotland Yard said Roberts spent £10 ($30) in London Monday buying clothes suitable for hiking. In a cabbie's shop he bought a tent and a portable stove.

HORSES PARADE

One of the highlights of last night's grandstand program was the colorful parade staged by members of the Quinte Western Horse Association.

Nearly 100 riders, all decked out in traditional Western garb, paraded around the track, then went into formation in front of the stands.

Miss Patricia Shorey, Hastings County Dairy Princess, took the salute as the band struck up the National Anthem and O Canada.

Also part of last night's grandstand program were barrel racing and pole jilting, riding competitions by Quinte district riders. Fair Director Harry Rollins was in good form as master of ceremonies.

Production Workers Want Benefits Too

DETROIT (AP)—Production-line members of the United Auto Workers union now are clamoring to be included if contracts with the big three automakers are reopened for any wage increases.

The UAW has requested reopening to give skilled tradesmen an immediate pay increase they had demanded in a meeting Monday from General Motors, Ford and Chrysler. Current contracts still have a year to run.

The Conferees

Conferences are many things to many people. Ideally, they should produce as many ideas as there are delegates attending the meeting.

And Canada has conferences aplenty — provincial premiers' conferences, federal-provincial parleys, regional discussion groups like last week's western conference of the Liberal party, and a host of others at the business and executive levels in industry.

The Liberal get-together in Saskatoon produced some useful ideas on the one hand, and acrimony on the other — in statements by Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Mines Minister Pepin, and by Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan respectively.

According to Mr. Davis, the federal government has left resources development "out in the cold," and he called for "more aggressive" policies in this sphere. He suggested one subject for consideration is the construction of a pipeline to carry crude oil from Alberta to Montreal.

Calling for a "continental" approach to resource development, Mr. Davis said machinery and equipment "must be made available at the lowest possible cost, distance and tariff — and taxes streamlined so as to attract more venture capital in the primary and raw material processing industries."

Mr. Davis' suggestions recall the recent exchanges visits between Canadian and Russian government representatives responsible for the development of the northern regions of both countries. Northern Affairs Minister Laing toured the Soviet north, including Siberia, and discovered that the Russians are far ahead of Canada in the development of industries, and new communities, and in the harnessing of the natural resources of the region.

From Mr. Laing's experiences in Russia, and Mr. Davis' observations it would seem that Canada still has a lot of leeway to make up before it can claim that the country's vast northern resources have been fully tapped and are making a real contribution to the material progress of the country.

Premier Thatcher's observations related not so much to material resources and their development as to British Columbia premier Ray Perrault, of which more later) as to federal-provincial relations generally.

The premier charged Liberal chiefs in Ottawa with responsibility for what he described as an almost complete breakdown in communication with western provincial associations.

"The party's provincial leaders are seldom consulted by the (federal) Government about anything," he said. To which we might say, perhaps there is no one to consult. The Liberals hold only one of 48 prairie seats in the House of Commons, and only seven of 22 in British Columbia.

It is not a problem, this lack of communication; and more so, paradoxically, in this modern era of computers, jet planes and other electronic gadgets that supposedly make for easier and swifter links between peoples and nations. And now, here's the continuing evolution between the federal party in power and the provincial representatives out west.

On the subject of material growth, Mr. Perrault of British Columbia says western Canada can grow only if it receives massive investment from all parts of the world.

At a time when foreign ownership, particularly American, is in such disfavor, Mr. Perrault may be regarded as something of a revolutionary. But Canada needs ideas like this, it needs economic revolutionaries. Either this country develops and grows forward with the times, if necessary with foreign capital, or it falls back into the pit of economic recession.

Already British Columbia is benefitting from Japanese investment, and while we are not advocating complete economic domination by the United States, or by anyone else, it is obvious the country can stand more transfusions of capital and ideas from overseas than it is absorbing now.

Ontario Scholars

The long period of waiting is over for Grade 13 students across Ontario. Results have been announced and it is on to university for some, while for others a further attempt at the final year of high school is in the cards.

In Belleville 16 students have been awarded Ontario scholarships. Five Quinte Secondary School students qualified for the $400 award. Belleville Collegiate and Quinte Secondary each have four, and Nicholson Catholic College has two.

Marks of the top students ranged from the low eighties to the 89 per cent average obtained by Moira's Lynne Neill. But school is more than just making good grades. One who knows is Toronto's Tom Vari, 18. He topped all Ontario with 96 percent.

But high marks or not, a student can only do his best. And Belleville's top 15 have shown that their best is very good indeed.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mikel have returned from a trip through the Thousand Islands, where they visited in Gananoque, Clayton, Alexandria Bay and other points. Mr. Mikel states that the sidewalks, roads and buildings generally are not back to pre-war as well as they are in Belleville. The only advantage these cities have is that the latter have city water adjacent to the cities is given more attention than it is here.

30 YEARS AGO

Miss Irene Hallam has returned to the city after spending a week at the Canadian Legion, at Moira Lake.

Bud Haines and a number of friends have left on his boat, "The Sue" for a cruise down the St. Lawrence River.

Thrush, Mott, Thompson & Thrush, barristers, etc., has returned home from Kingston, where he attended the summer school at Queen's University. While there he won two silver cups in tennis competitions.

W. E. Tummon, member for the riding of South Hastings in the last session of the House of Commons at Ottawa, was nominated without opposition at the Conservative convention in this city to be the candidate for South Hastings. George Hahn, the president of the Conservative Association, presided at the meeting.

50 YEARS AGO

J. Harry Sagar of Rochester who is summering at the Mills Cove, Prince Edward County, caught a muskinonge last week which weighed 15 pounds. Monday, he caught a lunge which measured 44 in. in length and weighed 22 pounds; the following day he caught two more lunge, one weighed 19 pounds and the other 20 pounds. Mr. Sager is a former resident of this county and resided near Belleville. He has been coming to the Bay of Quinte for the past four years to spend his vacation.

A Question Of Emphasis

Brantford Expositor

With rare exceptions, readers do not question a newspaper's judgment of what space to allocate to each news item. In estimating reader interest, the near event, unless obviously minor, will generally get the space edge over the unremarkable distant event. Sometimes simply domestic will show strikingly what most interests the reader.

One Chicago newspaper in one day's issue gave 300 column-inches to the murder of the eight nurses, an average of nearly 38 inches per victim. In the same issue an obscure one-and-a-half inches of type noted that in Viet Nam the Communists in two weeks had lost 3,474 men dead.

From this it is possible to deduce that the violent death of a Chicago nurse, admittedly in highly bizarre circumstances, interests the typical reader 2,000 times as much as the killing of a Viet Cong guerrilla.

To Your Good Health

Alcohol Not Cause But Worsens Cirrhosis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I need information on cirrhosis of the liver. My husband has been a heavy drinker for years. All at once he started to swell. His lips almost doubled. His face swelled and got red.

The doctor said it was cirrhosis, gave him a prescription and told him to eat lean meat, some sweets, very little fat, and to drink no liquor at all.

My husband stayed on the diet for two months and looked 10 years younger. Now he has started to drink again and won't remain on his diet. What is usually the length of time a person can live under such circumstances? — Mrs. E. W.

Cirrhosis means that the liver has been damaged. The damaged parts of it have been replaced by other tissue which cannot do the complicated tasks the liver must perform.

It used to be thought that alcohol was the cause of cirrhosis. This does not appear to be entirely true. Faulty nutrition plus some other factors (metabolic disorders, certain viral infections, and perhaps others) are involved.

A heavy, steady drinker, however, very often is not careful to eat properly. This drinking plays an indirect part in causing cirrhosis.

Once the cirrhosis has begun, then drinking exerts a very heavy burden on the liver, and the disease progresses rapidly.

There is but little in line of medicine that will provide much help. Cirrhosis cannot be cured! What is necessary is to make things as easy as possible for the damaged liver. This means proper diet and, just as important, avoidance of alcohol.

Your husband was frightened enough in the beginning to follow instructions and you see the result. He looked years younger. What it amounted to is that he relieved the liver of the strain of faulty diet and alcohol, and there was enough capability in the organ to carry out its main duties. (The liver stores and releases blood sugar as it is needed, produces digestive juices, filters out and destroys certain kinds of poisons in the system and does many other things.)

Just as soon as your husband began to feel better, he either decided (wrongly) that he was cured, or clearly realize that his diet and no alcohol were the reasons for his improvement.

Both patients, and there are too many of them, are the despair of doctors and are their own worst enemies. It is impossible to say how long a patient can live under such circumstances. It depends on how much damage already has been done to the liver, and how rapidly he makes it worse with drinking and poor diet.

But this you can say with considerable assurance: he is throwing away a number of years of healthy life, and it killingly fast that is certainly as if he were taking a slow poison.

Unless he goes back to his diet and quits drinking completely, he will be sick again just about as quickly as he gained — and he will get steadily worse.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there some way of whitening teeth, or are some just naturally dull? — M. P. S.

This is a dental question, so you'll have to take my answer as subject to modification by dentists. However, most certainly there is a variation in natural whiteness of teeth, and the best means for keeping them as white as Nature intended is to have a periodic cleaning by your dentist, and to use your own toothbrush between cleanings.

A thought for Mrs. D. G.: Remember that alcohol is a depressant; the amount your husband drinks could have a lot to do with is tendency to fall asleep.

The Canadian - built steamer Royal William set out from Pictou, N.S., 130 years ago today—in 1833—to cross the Atlantic. She reached Cowes, seaport on the Isle of Wight, Sept. 9, in a pioneer steam-powered crossing of the ocean. The Royal William had been launched at Quebec City in 1831, and was at first intended to sail a route between Quebec and Halifax. But that service was discontinued in a year of cholera epidemic in 1832, and she was later sent to England for sale. She was chartered for a few months by the Portuguese government, then sold to the Spanish, who converted the vessel into a warship re-christened Isabella Segunda.

1866—U.S. Gen. Stephen Kearney captured Santa Fe from the Mexicans.

1866—The South Korean provisional capital was moved from Taegu to Pusen

1900—Commonwealth Day was launched attacks on the former.

Grasslands' Many Faces

Ottawa Journal

Grass includes the important food crops of our plastic rice, corn, wheat, millet, sugarcane, barley and oats. But to most of us grass means the slender-stemmed, short plants that produce hay for animals and covering for our lawns. To those brought up on farms, grass means timothy, June grass and clovers.

Grasses are Earth's most important plants. All grasses have stems with solid joints and two-ranked leaves, one at each joint. Names of native grasses are musical and imaginative: Sand Lovegrass, Needle and Thread, Little Bluestem, Meadow Fescue, Silver Beardgrass, Weeping Lovegrass, Blue Panic, Tobosa, Mutton, Bluegrass Foxtail Dales, Crested Wheatgrass and Bromegrass.

Grass flowers are beauty in miniature. They have no petals and no sepals. One thinks of a spray tree. The two outside leaves are called glumes, above, these are the flowering glumes. Above each flowering glume is a pistil and three stamens. Grasses are wind pollinated and on the right day at the hour when the flower opens a strong wind may lift clouds of ripe pollen grains. A grass flower opens just once in its life time and then for only a brief time.

"Illness" May Be in the Mind

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Reading a report by a university out-patient clinic that 75 percent of the people who come for consultations are suffering from no organic illness, merely confirms my long - standing belief that unsatisfactory personal or family relations are the greatest single cause of "illness."

Women seem to talk more than men, not so much because they are more given to gossip, but because psychologically they need women contact. Men tend to kill in the conversation, and will rush to fill the void, no matter how irrelevant or needless their comment.

The biggest cry-babies in our society are police forces, who seem to believe that everybody should implicitly obey the law, and themselves when it is the law hampers them in twisting or trapping a confession out of a suspect.

What most parents — and almost all truefire — fail to understand is that the function of a college is to encourage dissent and disagreement, to offer choices, and let the students think out problems for themselves; and if such freedom has been offered in the past, the kind of dissent now being practiced would not be so violent and irrational.

If the public would briefly boycott those airport concessions that charge 30 to 50 percent more for food, drink, gifts and toys, because hurried travelers have nowhere else to Ottawa Protest Parades Ruffle Visitors from U.S.

By GREG CONNOLLEY
RICHARD JACKSON IS ON HOLIDAYS
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — There has been some controversy in the National Capital recently over the matter of protest parades and demonstrations of one kind and other on Parliament Hill.

The most recent incident was a so-called peace march largely by university students, professors and the like protesting the American war effort in Viet Nam.

These marchers carried the usual placards and handed out anti-American leaflets to tourists on Parliament Hill. Needless to say, many of the tourists were Americans, who had come to see the Parliament Buildings and to watch the colorful changing-of-the-guard ceremony.

A number of arguments developed between the American visitors and the demonstrators and on occasion they came close to blows. The RCMP kept an eye on things but did not have to intervene.

Some government people were rather disturbed though at these incidents and wondered just how far these and other demonstrations should be permitted to go on the grounds of Parliament Hill.

One cabinet minister I talked to thought the demonstrations should not be on Parliament Hill at all. He proposed the provision of some other downtown park where demonstrations could be made, along the lines of Hyde Park in London.

Of course the anti-American faction pointed out that many civil rights were being engendered. One of the Ottawa newspapers ran a story with a by-line kind of civil right when it degraded that demonstrators should not be allowed to march past because no one would know they were there.

PROTESTS GALORE

The newspaper added that if Parliament Hill was a splendid place for demonstrations, then it was the political heart of the country and anyway there was a police force right there to keep order.

The trouble is that there are no real guidelines on protest parades that may or may not be staged on the Hill. Even in those protesting the war in Viet Nam appear to be very sincere, conscientious souls — there seem to be very well organized leftist groups and still others who are out for a good time and bearded-and-guitar element, just out for fun.

But earlier this year there was another kind of demonstration staged on the Hill.

A group of young people, and some not so young, staged a Viet Nam protest that involved lying down on the roadway under the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill.

All traffic was stopped and the RCMP then moved in. The demonstrators were forcibly removed and later were charged in court.

But from time to time there are other kinds of demonstrations on Parliament Hill. One was the Hal Banks, that Labor tycoon who fled Canada a few steps ahead of the law, led hundreds of his seamen onto the Hill in a show of strength plainly intended to intimidate the politicians.

This union group marched around the Hill for a while, made some fiery speeches, listened the lawns with soft drink bottles and left-over sandwiches. At last Mr. Banks and his blonde girl friend climbed into a Cadillac and left, giving the signal for the "troops" to disperse.

A much more palatable protest march is staged from time to time by angry farmers. With some considerable justice the farmers get mad now and then and come to Ottawa to raise hob. Usually they get a promise of action from the politicians and then disperse peacefully back to their farms.

PROTESTS GALORE

But there are other demonstrators. Once there was a family of mother, father and four children who marched up and down with placards accusing Premier Manning of Alberta of various shortcomings.

And there was a civil servant who felt the department where he didn't like the government's fiscal policy. He was fired and for weeks after paced on Parliament Hill to tell how badly he had been treated.

Now added to the Canadian Indians parade on the Hill to protest against the white man, the Eskimos and even a small group of college students who demonstrated to show their support of the Peace Corps.

Two years ago there were forty marches by opposing factions in the great Abo affair. The two parties, one bearing the slogan and label Orange, the Maple Leaf flag, marched and counter-marched on the Hill with angry shouts and declarations.

The mounted police with drawn batons broke it up and there was no violence.

On another occasion some Quebec citizens staged a protest in front of the Parliament Hill with an effigy of CNR president Donald Gordon, demanding he be fired. The latter burned the effigy but Mr. Gordon did not lose his job.

Much of this business of demonstrating and marching is extremely annoying and on occasion quite funny. But there is too always the fear that some of these parades may get out of hand and there may be a riot with the prospect of serious injuries.

That of course would be a terrible black eye for Parliament Hill and would almost certainly mean a complete ban of all kinds of demonstrations on this federal property.

Rather than have that happen and have MPs and ministers on the Hill, the authorities and police should draw up and enforce some reasonable guidelines governing protest marches, so that no unfortunate incidents develop.

We really don't want to lose those marchers on Parliament Hill, for the sight of the citizens parading back and forth is a salutary thing indeed for MPs and Senators who grow complacent on occasion.

Drive-Ins Are Go-Go

Massena Observer

It was only about 20 years ago that the first drive-in movie in the country was built. What was an oddity then has now become a way of life.

Some motels now have drive-in registration and bicycle bellhops. As of yet you can't drive your car into a bank or a new hotel in San Francisco guest can drive right to their floors in the new building.

Drive-in supermarkets are another recent development, the American Bankers Association reports. Shoppers drive through wide lanes of merchandise and the Canadiana remove items selected and place them in a large basket attached to the car.

In Ontario, there's even a drive-in barbershop. The barber works from the inside and a change of directions are made from the front.

In Lovelady, Tex., appropriately enough, a justice of—the peace will perform a marriage ceremony in your car.

Add drive-in maternity hospitals and drive-in mortuaries and life cycle of Homo sapiens automobilus will be complete.

Lord Avon Has Plan to Bring Peace

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Avon, former prime minister Sir Anthony Eden, today put forward a 12-point plan to bring peace to Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, partly by strengthening the three-nation commission supervising the 1954 truce there.

In a book published today, Avon says the commissions in Laos, Cambodia and both North and South Viet Nam should be guaranteed by the major powers, which would be forbidden to sell arms to the Indochinese nations.

The commission a n d a l s o India, Canada and Poland—would supervise the truce.

Avon proposes that the U.S., Russia, China, France, Britain and the four Indochinese states guarantee the neutrality of Laos and Cambodia, and that in return for no North and South Viet Nam, but that, if the terms of the agreement are violated, the guarantors have the right, in certain circumstances, to act without waiting for unanimity.

The proposals by Avon, who was co-chairman of the 1954 Indochina truce conference, are included in his 71-page book Towards Peace in Viet Nam, published by the Oxford University Press.

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed

TRIO Objects To One Uniform Military Force

TORONTO (CP) — Unification will lower the standard of Canada's fighting force, Robert H. Hilborn, president of Tri-Services Identities Organization, said at a press conference Wednesday.

Mr. Hilborn, former lieutenant-colonel and commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, said his organization objected to the idea of a one-uniform military force.

"The value of the change is questionable," he said. "There is no reason to jettison something that has been working successfully for something that may not work."

WILL CO-ORDINATE

He said that TRIO was not intended to head the fight against unification, but to co-ordinate the different organizations working to that end.

"We want to see the strength through examination and study of unification," he said. "Possibly a royal commission could be set up. We think that this is a difficult request for him (Defence Minister Heliyer) to reject. We don't know of any pressures, except perhaps personal pressures, he may have for running this through.

Mr. Hilborn said the organization agreed with the integration of commands and unification of the service, but not the combat troops.

HALIFAX (CP) — Members of the Tri-Service Identities Organization will receive "every support they wish" from retired Rear - Admiral William A. Landymore.

In a statement Wednesday, Admiral Landymore said:

"As far as I can see their aims and objects are fully consistent with my own."

Admiral Landymore was dismissed from the navy because of his opposition to unification of the three armed services.

OTTAWA (CP)—William Lee, executive assistant to Defence Minister Heliyer, said Wednesday formation of a group known as Tri-Service Identities Organization is "by all means a good thing."

He told an interviewer the defence department welcomes such organizations putting forward their views on planned unification of the services.

TRIO is an anti-unification group.

Mr. Lee said the department hopes that TRIO will make its views fully known before the government and the four Indochinese considers unification legislation this coming fall or winter.

the same amount will be payable at 62.

"Compared with a maximum of $126 a month benefits payable under the old plan, Stelco workers may now receive a maximum pension of $200 a month," Mr. Morgan said.

GIVES OTHER BENEFITS

The contract provides for supplemental pension benefits of $4.50 a month multiplied by years of service in addition to the basic $5 a month times years of service under the old Canadian and current U.S. contracts.

The agreement also provides for unscheduled "x a t g r eights, now available to U.S. steelworkers only under special circumstances such as plant closure.

This means that Stelco employees would be guaranteed 4 monthly pension after only 10 years of service upon reaching 65 at the rate of $5 multiplied by the number of years.

The company also agreed to review individually the cases of 36 employees who were fired after the walkout and all who were suspended. Any case remaining unresolved will be made finally by Judge Little.

Mr. Morgan said the company broke its 10-year record of reinstatement for cases of supplemental unemployment benefit claims. It agreed to pay 3½ cents an hour into the existing group insurance fund and use the money to create a supplemental fund.

Pearson Will Meet Johnson On Sunday

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson are expected to discuss the Viet Nam war and other topics in Sunday talks at the site of the late president Roosevelt's summer home.

The leaders are to meet on Campobello Island, NB., and participate in ceremonies laying the cornerstone of the new visitors' pavilion on the island, now an international park.

The park was selected as a memorial to Mr. Roosevelt by Mr. Pearson and the late President Kennedy.

The meeting has no formal agenda but will cover many bilateral and interdational subjects, Mr. Pearson told a press conference Wednesday. He said he "suspects" the Viet Nam situation will be discussed.

The Sunday meeting was initiated by Mr. Johnson who for some time had scheduled a trip to New England, Mr. Pearson said.

The prime minister plans to fly to St. Andrews, N.B., Saturday evening, go to the island Sunday morning to meet the president and Mrs. Johnson. Mr. Pearson will return to Ottawa Sunday evening or Monday morning.

U. S. Economy Facing Some Nagging Problems

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy still faces some nagging problems—high interest rates and the threat of further inflation—despite assurances from the Johnson administration that it's strong and healthy.

Since the start of the year prices and interest rates have risen steadily. Wage - price guidelines, one of the administration's major tools against inflation, now have been left for dead by their author.

Even the administration is reassessing their value in the wake of this month's steel price increases and an airline mechanics' settlement well above that prescribed by the guidelines.

Administration leaders expect a lessening of some of the economic pressures later in the year. But one government economist said it only "temporarily described the containment of inflation as perhaps the greatest challenge facing the administration in the months ahead.

William Shaw, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, urged not only restraint but "positive action" other notch, only one day after commercial banks raised their interest rate for favored customers to six per cent.

The board raised to six per cent from five the legal ceiling that the commercial banks must hold against certificates of deposit left for a specified period.

The new requirement, which goes into effect next month at several hundred banks with time deposits exceeding $5,000,000, means that for every $100 a bank obtains through a certificate of deposit, it must set aside $6 as a reserve instead of $5. It can lend the remaining $94 to customers.

A similar boost to five per cent from four was voted by the board last June 27.

The new requirement, the board estimated, would reduce funds available for lending by banks by about $430,000,000.

The government noted, however, one beneficial effect of high interest rates in reporting a balance-of-payments deficit of only $312,000,000 for the second quarter of the year, the lowest quarterly figure in 12 months.

The consumerce department credited the relatively good showing to an increase of foreign investment in high-interest deposit certificates.

The New York stock market is feeling the effects of tight money. It hit a new low for the year Wednesday and brokers blamed it on worry of inflation and uncertainty about the war in Viet Nam.

that household carpets are lower in cost due to knives produced by Deloro Stellite in Belleville that stay sharp 3 times longer than steel, and make cutting easier on the new hard wearing fibres now used?

Among many things adding to home comfort, rugs and carpets are growing in use because they are made economical through advanced technology. Important contributions have been gained through Deloro's cobalt base alloys — Stellite produced in Belleville — to make production machines run faster and more efficiently.

By eliminating grease, contamination of food products is eliminated. Glass bottles are produced better and more economically with moulds produced in longer wearing Deloro alloys. The cost of plastic kitchenware is dropping all the time through better manufacturing techniques including cleaner cutting with these cobalt base alloys.

Woes of a Newspaper Columnist

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a newspaper columnist gets tired of hearing—or overhearing:

"I guess I'd better be careful what I say to you, or I'll wind up in a column."

"You guys must know a lot more than you actually put in the paper. Tell, me, off the record, what's really going on over there in Viet Nam."

"Where do you get all your ideas? Do you copy from someone else, or just make them up out of thin air?"

"I know you write five pieces a week, but what in the world do you do with all your spare time?"

"One of the columns you wrote last week sure hit the nail on the head — but darned if I can remember right now what it was all about."

"Wake up, Hank. It's your boss on the phone. He needs a substitute column quick. He said he had to kill the one in which you attacked poisonous snakes. It's too controversial."

"You mean you have to do it all by yourself, without a secretary or nothing? I thought all you guys had big staffs to do the real work for you."

"He must be better at the typewriter than he is on his feet. We had him make a talk last month at our Rotary meeting, and the next day half the membership threatened to resign."

"Hank, I hate to do this to you, but from now on you'll have to share a desk with the religious editor. We need your desk in the want ad department."

"All right, children, run out and play now. Your father, the genius, is working at home today. And he has to have absolute quiet — so he can hear himself think."

"Wake up, Hank. It's your boss on the phone. He needs another substitute column quick. He says no one at the office can understand the one you wrote for today—not even the new copy boy. He one with an MA in sociology from Harvard."

"All he talks about is how he'd like to retire and get out from under the pressure. Pressure from what?"

"Could you turn us out a piece for the anniversary edition of our high school paper, Mr. Bandfear? We only want about 2,000 to 3,000 words, and you can probably knock it out in 20 minutes. It doesn't have to be real deep — just real you could get by with it, and funny."

"Wake up, Hank. It's your boss on the phone. No, he didn't have any trouble understanding your column for today. He says he just doesn't understand why you thought he needs a substitute—quick."

Susanna's Family Fair

TIPS FOR TODDLERS

Dear Susanna: Our toddler was upset when we brought the new baby home so she decided she wouldn't eat.

I purchased paper plates with cartoon pictures printed on them — only for her, of course — and covered the figures with food before she had a chance to examine them. Our wee lamb of a daughter was so anxious to see the pictures that she ate her meal before she realized it.

Before I mail my letter, I just tell you about my friend's idea. They had trouble training their little girl.

My friend got a cloth to keep the bathroom door locked from the outside and placed it well above the toddlers reach and made quite a point of it in front of the family.

Since everyone else could reach it and get in, the little girl was envious. From then on, she always asked when she needed to, just to be able to be in the bathroom. Of course one must make it clear that if they ask to be admitted, there must be a reason!

One more solution that worked for us and helped our child to stop sucking her fingers: we applied bright colored nail polish and made quite a little fuss about how grown-up she was. — K.H.

POTATO CHOCOLATE CAKE

In July I sent out an S.O.S. to you for a recipe for a chocolate cake calling for hot mashed potatoes, requested by Edith K.

To date I have received nearly a dozen replies and strangely they are nearly all different. Thank you pals.

I picked out the ingredients that were common to all of the recipes and based the batter on standard cake principles. It was a fussy cake to make and large but one that all cake fanciers will enjoy trying and serving.

Dinner Menus by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Lamb stew, peas and carrots, herbed tea biscuits, blueberries and cream, ginger cookies (see Tuesday), tea.

SUNDAY

(Oven Dinner for Four)

Iced fresh orange juice, baked chicken legs (see Wed.), baked herbed rice (see Wed.), August vegetable custard (see Wed.), raw cucumber and carrot sticks, shelled cantaloupe and lime sherbet, iced tea.

POTATO CHOCOLATE CAKE:

1 cup butter (or shortening), 2 cups sugar, 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup hot unseasoned soft smooth mashed potatoes (or equivalent in reconstituted instant mashed potato), 1 cup grated unsweetened chocolate (2 squares, shredded on ¼" shredder), 2 cups sifted cake flour (or all-purpose), 2½ teaspoons single-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, 1 cup chopped walnuts.

Cook two medium-sized potatoes until soft. When they are tender mash them until you are sure there are no lumps or follow directions on package of instant mashed potato for making one cup. Meanwhile in your electric beater bowl cream the butter or shortening with the sugar until light. Add the egg yolks and vanilla and beat well again. Beat in the hot smooth mashed potatoes. Grate the chocolate and add. Sift the sifted cake flour with the baking powder, spices and salt and fold them in alternately with the milk, one-third of each at a time. Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold. Fold in chopped nuts.

There are three shapes in which this batter may be baked: 1) in greased 9 or 10-inch tube pan with solid bottom lined with buttered wax paper; 2) in three greased 8 or 9-inch layer cake pans lined on bottom with buttered wax paper, or 3) in large wax paper-lined greased loaf pan. Turn batter into pans of your choice and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. If baked in tube or loaf pan it requires 50 to 60 minutes. If baked in three layers about 25 to 30 minutes.

When baked, let stand for 5 minutes then carefully turn out on cake rack, peel off wax paper and let cool.

Frost with butter cream or boiled lemon butter icing or do as I did and make —

COFFEE FROSTING:

Cream 3 tablespoons butter and beat in 1 cup icing sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, a shake of salt and about 1 tablespoon strong coffee liquid (made by dissolving 1¼ teaspoons instant coffee powder in 1 tablespoon boiling water). Add enough more icing sugar or enough to make of soft spreading consistency. Spread on cooled cake or between layers and on top and sides of layers. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. This moist cake keeps well.

A fervent "thank you" to all of our kind readers who came to my rescue for Edith K.'s cake — as you never fail to do.

Teachers Want Special Course In English

TORONTO (CP) — Women school teachers from across Ontario passed a resolution Wednesday calling for the establishment of summer school courses in English leading to a specialists certificate.

Joan Stanton of Newmarket, who introduced the resolution on behalf of Region 3, Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario, said that teaching reading is only one aspect of the proposed courses.

About 500 delegates are registered at the federation's 40th annual meeting.

Mrs. Stanton said teachers feel "a great lack in their ability to teach literature."

She said present summer school courses are not "teaching teachers how to teach English literature and teachers cannot give something they haven't got—namely a love of and true appreciation of and feeling for English literature."

SAVE IT FAILS

The analytical method of dissecting literature has failed the teacher and the pupils, she said, adding that a subjective method must be derived.

The resolution will be referred to the Ontario Federation of Teachers.

Dorothy Martin of Toronto, executive secretary of the FWTAO, told delegates that a confidential report on the organization prepared by a Toronto management consultant firm will be presented at today's session.

It is believed that the report contains wide-ranging recommendations for a complete shakeup of the 40,000-member organization.

FLYING HOUSEWIVES — Dorothy Book (left) and Pearl Peacock, Ottawa housewives who admit to being over 40, hold the propeller of Pussycat, a single-engine Ercoupe. Pussycat, the slowest-plane flying out of Ottawa's Uplands airport, is 20 years old and called "the little one" by control tower operators. Mrs. Peacock and Mrs. Book are accomplished flyers and also have expert advice — both their husbands have served as president of the Ottawa Flying Club. (CP Photo)

2 Ottawa Housewives Share Ownership of Tiny Aircraft

By MARILYN ARGUE

OTTAWA (CP) — You don't have to be Wonder Woman or Amelia Earhart to have a plane. Two Ottawa wives who admit to being over 40 have one, which they call Pussycat.

The plane's cute—a funny little single-engined Ercoupe—and so are its blonde, blue-eyed owners, Mrs. Doug Peacock and Mrs. Grover Book. They found the 20-year-old plane in a place called Buttonville, Ont., near Toronto, and had to wait to get it because mice were living in it.

"As my husband put it, 'Your Pussycat has mice in its wings,'" says Dorothy Book. On their first flight, about 100 miles to Burlington, Vt., they had to hitchhike home by air when their nose-wheel cracked.

They'll admit it's the slowest plane flying out of Uplands Airport. "The tower calls us 'the little one'," Pearl Peacock says. "Once we held up a DC-8 jet because we were scheduled to land first. And if you've never been only 100 feet under a DC-8, it wouldn't think it on you."

Flying isn't any more expensive than sailing, they say. The plane cost $3,000 and insurance is $70, decreasing in cost as private pilots pass more air time. The girls get about 20 miles out of a 44-cent gallon of gas.

Pussycat has ultra - simple controls for climbing and turning but lacks the conventional rudder pedals.

"That makes well-known pilots rigid," says Mrs. Peacock. "It's sort of like automatic transmission on a car. If they've learned to fly with three controls, they can't believe you can get along with two."

Most of the pair's flying since they bought their plane in January has been short-hop rallying around Ottawa. Actually, they're accomplished flyers.

Mrs. Peacock recently placed first in a spot-landing competition that included commercial pilots. Mrs. Book shared the controls with her husband when they flew the little red plane to Florida last Easter.

Both women have grown-up children and both work. Mrs. Book as a full-time teacher and Mrs. Peacock as a part-time secretary. Each of their husbands has served as president of the Ottawa Flying Club so they have expert advice close at hand.

They admit women are a minority in the air and sometimes unwanted.

"Some men don't like women around airports at all," said Mrs. Book.

"To heck with them," say the two Pussycat pilots.

5 Brothers Hope to Find Their Sister

STRATFORD (CP) — Five Stratford brothers are hoping a reunion of six force women to be held in Toronto this fall will help them find their sister.

The Oliver brothers, Lloyd, Raymond, Douglas, Arthur and Russell, have not heard from their sister, Muriel, since she got out of the RCAF 21 years ago.

They think she may have married a U. S. serviceman. The brothers have appealed to the air force reunion committee for help in locating her.

WOMEN LEAD LIBRARIES

More than 80 per cent of Canada's librarians are female.

Ann Landers
Worrying About World Sign of Inner Stress

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Something in your column got me. It was your reply to the woman who was born when her mother was 45. You said, "stop complaining. Wouldn't you rather have been born late than never?"

I am the father of five children. Live in the suburbs. Good job. No debts. Union. Plenty of security. Fine wife. Nice kids. Yet I'm having trouble hanging on to my sanity. My associates point to me as the perfect example of a man in complete control of myself. The outward appearance of serenity is a fraud. I'm actually fighting to keep out of the booby hatch.

ANN LANDERS

I would rather that I hadn't been born. Why? Because our foreign policy is insane and I'm afraid we are going to blow ourselves off the face of the earth. Moreover, I'm sorry I gave life to five children who will be unwitting victims of something they cannot control.

If I'm wrong tell me. It will be further evidence that I am sick and mal-adjusted — as my wife once suggested. — E.B.S.

DEAR E.B.S.: I'm not going to say you are wrong. But I am going to suggest that you spend some money on a psychiatrist. When a person's private face is so different from the face he presents to the world he's in serious trouble.

D. H. Lawrence wrote, "Poor Richard Lovatt worried himself to death struggling with the problem of himself and calling it Australia." You are calling it "our insane foreign policy," not Australia, but you and Poor Richard have much in common.

I agree the state of the world is something less than peachy-keen, but this is not what is making you miserable. You are attempting to mask your personal anxieties by substituting an impersonal cause for worry. It is easier for an individual to blame the bomb than to admit that he is at war with himself.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 13-year-old boy who has a 10-year-old sister. She has a friend I'll call Mary.

This afternoon Mary was here playing with Sis. They did a lot of talking and laughing. After Mary left mom asked Sis what they were talking and laughing about. Sis then repeated some jokes Mary had told her. Well, Ann Landers, I wanted to crawl under the table. They were heard such dirty jokes in my life.

I am positive Sis did not understand what she was saying and Mary couldn't have known what she was talking about. The words Sis used were so terrible I can't even write them.

My parents said, "The jokes aren't funny," and let it go at that. Don't you think they should have told her not to repeat those jokes to anybody and not to use those words? After dinner I went to mom and asked her why she didn't correct Sis and she said, "I don't want to have any trouble with Mary's mother." Do you think my folks handled this right? — BIG BROTHER.

DEAR BROTHER: Some children — and some adults, too, unfortunately — use filthy words to shock people into paying attention to them. For this reason, parents should not become visibly unhinged when a child uses bad language.

Children need to be told, however, that certain words are ugly and decent people don't use them. Once the point is made it should be dropped.

DEFICIT DROPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit in the U.S. balance of payments dropped to $1.3 billion in a year during the April-June quarter, thanks in large part to high U.S. interest rates which attracted foreign investors, the commerce department reported Wednesday.

JORDAN — BARRICK

Diane May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Barrick, R.R. 1, Carrying Place and Paul Alexander Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. A. Jordan of Cooksville, were united in marriage by Rev. George Amsbury in Asbury Church on Saturday, August 13, 1966, at 2.30 p.m. Mr. Clifford Tempter played the wedding music and the soloist was Mrs. H. Carfield.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length sheath gown of pure silk organza with an Empire waist, the bodice and long lily-point sleeves made of re-embroidered Chantilly lace. Her Watteau train of scalloped lace and silk organza fastened on the shoulders with self bows and her four-tier shoulder-length veil of silk organza fell from a cluster of roses and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Miss Ruth Nelson of Toronto was maid of honor. She wore a coral colored floor-length silk linen sheath dress trimmed at the Empire waist with matching velvet ribbon. Her headpiece was a matching bow and she carried a nosegay of white mums with a trailing cascade.

Miss Judith Muir of Toronto and Miss Heather Jordan of Cooksville, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids, were dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried nosegays of white 'mums.

Mr. William S. Turker of Toronto was the bridegroom's attendant and the ushers were Mr. John Bosgard of Toronto and Mr. Raymond Barrick, brother of the bride.

At the reception on the lawn of the bride's parents' home, Mr. Norman Harvie of Willowdale was master of ceremonies. To receive the guests Mrs. Barrick wore a sheath dress of ice blue pure silk worried and Guipure lace, blue and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Jordan wore a pink silk organza over brocaded taffeta dress with matching pink and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For her wedding trip to eastern points the bride chose a white boucle suit, matching accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

On their return, the couple will live at 50 Alhambra Avenue, Toronto.

MISS CHRISTINE STEWART

B.A., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stewart of Orillia, has been awarded a French Government scholarship to study at the University of Caen for the next two years. The rate had previously been climbing steadily since a low of 16.3 in the mid-1950s.

LONDON (CP) — Lady Tweedsmuir, first woman to be appointed to the board of Ocean Steamships since the company was founded 126 years ago, said today she was asked to join because of her special knowledge of Canada and New York.

Married to Baron Tweedsmuir, eldest son of Canada's pre-war governor-general, Lady Tweedsmuir, 51, was Conservative member of Parliament for Aberdeen South from 1946 until her defeat in the March 31 general election. She was United Kingdom delegate to the United Nations 1950-51 and joint parliamentary undersecretary at the Scottish office 1962-64.

"I'm very excited about the appointment," Lady Tweedsmuir said in a telephone interview from her remote Aberdeenshire home.

PROVIDES WOMAN'S VIEW

A Cunard spokesman earlier said Lady Tweedsmuir's wide North American experience would make her a "major acquisition" to the 13 - member board, which meets mostly in Liverpool.

It is understood Lady Tweedsmuir also will be playing a big role in approving design and decoration of the 58,000-ton Q4 liner now being built in the Clyde and due to be launched in September, 1967.

Lady Tweedsmuir joins at a critical time for Cunard, now seeking ways to boost its passenger business after a year of heavy losses including 3,000,000 ($8,000,000) due to the 67-day seamen's strike in May and June.

24 Lands Offer India Half Billion To Save Its Millions From Famine

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Twenty-four countries have offered aid worth some 2,725,000,000 rupees (about $375,000,000) to save India from famine in one of the biggest international relief operations yet known.

The aid represents nearly 5½ rupees for every man, woman and child in the country and is equivalent to nearly 12 per cent of the central government's budget for this year.

The total may grow still further with contributions from 13 other countries which have promised to consider India's appeal for emergency assistance, launched when the depths of the food crisis became apparent last December.

Meantime, ships are already unloading at India's harbors with commodities to feed the people and fertilizers to boost future production. Grants and loans are being channelled into agricultural development.

The government is confident it can beat the famine threat.

NEED OTHER AID

But India's foreign aid requirements do not end with food and agricultural assistance. Loans for economic development and imports of much-needed raw materials will have to be added if Indian industry is to keep on its feet.

A prominent British industrialist, Sir Norman Kipping, who visited India recently, concluded that no amount of Rs-9,900 pounds.

SATELLITE WAS ROOMY

The first manned satellite, Yuri Gagarin's Vostok, weighed 10,300 pounds.

India's chronic shortage of foreign exchange, which limits its imports to all but the barest essentials, can largely be traced back to the unprecedented drought which caused the crops to fail.

Cotton and jute suffered alongside rice and wheat crops and this hit India's textile industry, a major source of export earnings.

The drying-up of rivers cut hydroelectric power resources, which in turn effected production.

Louis Fourteenth's Palace Becomes State Guest House

PARIS (Reuters) — The 70-room Grand Trianon Palace, favorite home of luxury-loving Louis XIV, has become an official country home of President de Gaulle and a residence for visiting heads of state.

Ten years of research and two years of restoration have transformed the crumbling museum close to Versailles Palace into a magnificent, air - conditioned building.

Louis XIV, known as le Roi Soleil, built the Grand Trianon in 1687 after he tired of the much larger Palace of Versailles, which had been built 28 years earlier. It became the envy of all the other kings of Europe.

Its pink marble exterior again glitters in the sun. The chandeliers sparkle in the state rooms and the silk - covered walls again bear the gold-framed pictures which hung there originally.

The Trianon - sous-Bois wing of the palace, projecting into the trees of Versailles Park, has been turned into a residence for Gen. and Madame de Gaulle, with the modern touch of a kitchenette. It is modestly decorated in the simpler style of Napoleon, compared with the magnificence of the other restored sections with their marble-floored galleries.

The palace was completely emptied of its original pictures and furniture during the French Revolution. Later Napoleon moved in with his own furniture.

It took the present restorers 10 years of research to track down the original furniture and pictures of le Roi Soleil. Much of the furniture was found and 85 per cent of the original pictures are back on the walls...

But many of the silk wall and furniture coverings and carpets had to be copied by French craftsmen.

Motorists In Sweden Face Ordeal

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sweden's planned change from left - hand to right-hand driving on all roads during the weekend of Sept. 2-3, 1967, will cost an estimated 850,000,000 crowns (about $154,000,000).

Officials in Stockholm, anxious that the switch from the left-hand system used in Britain to the right- hand system used in most European countries should take place without accident, have announced that all traffic in the capital, except buses, taxis, and emergency transport, will be banned between 10 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 2, and 3 p.m. the following day.

About 30,000 road signs, 180 sets of traffic signal lights, and more than 2,000 bus and tram stops will be changed.

Most streets in the city centre will go over to one - way traffic and existing parking areas will be banned.

About 60,000 new parking meters will be installed.

HELP THOSE CONFUSED

Before and after the changeover, 15,000 road guides will direct traffic and help pedestrians who are confused.

Traffic lanes and clover-leaf highways...will be even more confusing.

If a Stockholm driver gets into the wrong lane, he may find himself suddenly in the suburbs instead of the city centre.

To help eliminate mistakes, the government-appointed traffic commission will distribute posters and brochures throughout the country during the switch.

The commission also will launch a massive propaganda campaign through movies, television and radio several months before 11-Day, as the day of the changeover is known.

This fire broke out about 10 p.m. Wednesday night in a barn at the rear of the property of Fred Vancott, Picton. Flames were visible for a great distance as the huge frame structure burned to the ground. One man had been arrested this week prior to this fire and charged with arson.

She is shown being congratulated by Barbara Doxsee, 18, of R.R. 8, Picton, who is 1966 Prince Edward Dairy Princess. The new Miss Athol is Catharine Dulmage, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Dulmage of Cherry Valley. Elks Hall at Yellowknife Transformed Into Hospital

By JANE BECKER

YELLOWKNIFE, N. W. T. (CP)—If there's anything to the supposition that circumstances surrounding birth affect a person's life, the Scotch babies born at the Stanton Hospital this summer should be dandy pool players.

A combination of fate and northern ingenuity this year transformed the Elks Hall, once a notable drinking and partying spot, into an emergency hospital. Babies are delivered in the former pool room, surrounded by about the loudest wallpaper ever devised—a scene of all outdoors featuring giant bisons.

The hall became a hospital after the 18-pea-old frame hospital two blocks away burned to the ground in May. Volunteers, including miners in town for the Sunday opening movie, saved everything portable.

"The fire started at 7:45 p.m. By 10 p.m. we had admitted our first maternity patient to the Elks Hall," says Milton Barrow, hospital administrator.

A disaster plan had previously been arranged with the Elks Lodge, which owned the only suitable building in town, to transofer the hospital if anything happened to the old building before a new fireproof one was constructed. The $1,000,000 building will be ready in September.

The Elks' main hall has been partitioned into men's and women's wards, an isolation and outpatient department and staff quarters. The stage is a medical room, lighted by dance colored bulbs, the legacy of entertainment parties.

The shuffle board room, brightly wallpapered, has become the operating room, with a hastily - installed scrubbing sink. One of the N.W.T.'s two certified surgeons, Dr. Pearse off with the arrest of Latone.

The charges against Allen arose following two fires in the here last week. Destroyed in the figes were a furniture warehouse owned by Hamilton Hicks and a large garage belonging to Picton Dairy. Total damage in the two fires was estimated at $40,000.

Responding quickly to last night's alarm, Picton firemen found the blaze well advanced when they arrived on the scene. Flames from the huge wooden structure could be seen for miles around the countryside. No estimate of the damage resulting from the fire has been made as yet.

Sudbury-born Union Leader Is Organizer in Deep South

By ROSEMARY SPEIRS

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Swaity is the rarity of a Canadian who holds down a big union job in the United States—and one of the toughest, at that.

Since 1964 he has been southern director of the Textile Workers Union of America, responsible for an all-out organizing drive against the traditionally anti-union and low-paying textile industry of the Deep South.

"Sure it's a rough job," said the mild-mannered organizer while attending a convention of his union here. "But right now it's also a very exciting job. After 20 years of organizing in the area, our union is finally beginning to make progress. Give us a little time and we'll break the South open."

Not all his colleagues share his optimism.

"It's an impossible job in many ways and I don't know how he sticks it,"said one fellow unionist.

Born in Sudbury, Ont., in 1921, he went to Winnipeg with his family as a child and graduated in economics from the University of Manitoba. He spent some time as an organizer with the United Steelworkers of America in the West and joined the staff of the TWUA in 1949.

ORGANIZERS BEATEN

"I was in the South in the '50s when organizers were beaten up and run out of town," Mr. Swaity said. "Workers who joined a union were discharged and blacklisted from finding employment anywhere. It haven't forgotten the lessons of those years."

When he talks about souther mill owners, his Canadian loses some of his grave, almost diffident manner for a compelling intensity.

"They are making fantastic profits, and yet the employer philosophy is to keep wages low by keeping unions weak. The mill owners are a tightly-knit group ready to ostracize any employer who dares to bargain with a union.

"Under these conditions, just maintaining a union can be a tremendous feat, let alone trying to organize a new one."

The mill-manned organizer, while attending a convention of his union here. "But right now it's also a very exciting job. After 20 years of organizing in the area, our union is finally beginning to make progress. Give us a little time and we'll break the South open."

"We are fighting the remnants of a feudal system in the South. There are mills where work loads are still unbelievably heavy, and 'stretch-outs'—giving two men the work of three—are a common method of cutting costs."

However, he said, "the sheer hard facts of economics are beginning to tell on us." Other industries were opening up and offering higher wages, so that the mill-owners no longer had a captive work force.

This year the TWUA convention here tossed in an extra $306,000 for its organizing budget.

"Now we'll be able to do even harder next year," Swaity said, "and I hope to get better results. Some day textile workers are going to be first-class industrial citizens."

Deny Deer Antler Velvet Exported as Aphrodisiac

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand exporters of deer antler velvet have indignantly denied a charge that they ship it to the Orient for use in aphrodisiacs.

The accusation was leveled by the national executive of the New Zealand Deerstalkers' Association in a report denouncing the sale of the material as "one of the most unethical trade practices indulged in by New Zealand."

The deerstalkers presented the argument that export of the velvet — the furry covering of the growing antler of a deer—was unethical whether or not the material was really a sex stimulant.

"New Zealand law goes to great lengths to prevent undesirable drugs entering the country, but countenances the export of the raw materials for manufacturing aphrodisiacs," the report said.

"There is no safety in the argument that this is an old wives' tale. If it is claimed that the material is not in fact a sex stimulant, then New Zealand is perpetrating a fraud."

The trade in antler velvet can hardly be called massive. It has seldom exceeded $100,000 a year, and is only a small byproduct of the much bigger trade in venison and deer skins. Exports go mostly to Hong Kong, with smaller amounts to such places as Singapore and Thailand.

However, the exporters emphatically deny the use mentioned by the deerstalkers. One exporter said the story of use in aphrodisiacs was complete nonsense. It was used for medicinal purposes to prepare tonics valued by the Chinese.

Only two companies in the world, he claimed, knew the secret of extracting deer byproducts to make tonics. His company was partner with one of these firms, which operated in Hong Kong.

Another exporter maintained that antlers, together with other parts of the deer, such as tails and leg sinews, were used to treat stomach ailments. The velvet, he said, was dried in an oven, powdered, and mixed with other ingredients.

There the matter rests for the moment, until some authoritative Chinese makes a pronouncement on the competing claims.

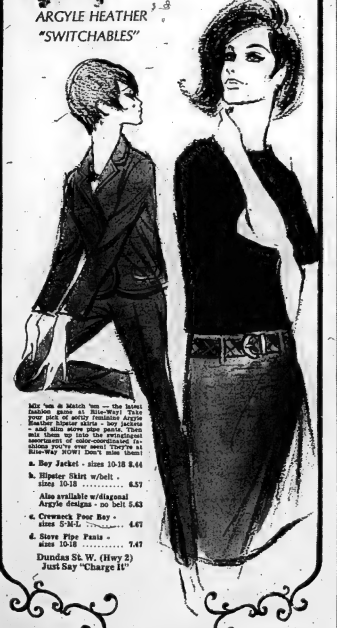
body should regard his works as rubbish.

For the average Chinese the cultural revolution has resulted in drastic changes. In factory production has slowed down because workers have to attend political meetings usually lasting several hours.



Each meeting usually is attended by 35 to 50 workers. They often criticize a fellow worker for not spending his private time properly or not studying the works of Mao Tse-tung thoroughly.

This so-called cultural revolution appeared to me to be an inner political struggle between the military and political circles.

Capabilities Damaged, Boy, 16, Is Neglected

DEAR DORIS — I am concerned over my friend's 15-year-old son who has passed only in grade four. As a baby, this boy had a disease which affected his mental capabilities. His parents don't know whom to approach to help their son and have let the years slip away doing nothing.

Is there a school this boy can be sent to that would give him more attention than the public school he now goes to? — DEEPLY CONCERNED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DEEPLY CONCERNED — What puzzles me is why the public school system would continue to carry a boy with such limitations, rather than getting him to the special training which he doubtless needs. Our facilities to help retarded children are becoming quite extensive.

I'd suggest a contact with your local association, or a letter to the Canadian Association for Retarded Children, 97 Bedford Road, Toronto, Ontario. Your local group is the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children (Belleville School for Retarded Children) 281 John Street.

DEAR DORIS — My parents are aged, and have silly ideas.

My father forbade me to go walking in the afternoon or night. If it means walking more than half a mile. He believes young guys come up in their cars and ask us if we wanted rides — like pick-ups. And he is right. He thinks I have had no experience in this matter. And he is wrong.

My father said "You don't know what life is." He is right, I don't, but I'd like to learn, even if it must be the hard way. I am 16.

They have a fixed idea that the aged come first. "You have your whole life ahead of you, you have time." But I always answer back, "What if I die tomorrow?"

We (the younger generation) have been driven through the mud, tramped on, beaten and slashed to bits. We've been lowered and degraded.

When can I live like a human being? When can I walk alone in the street without looking over my shoulder to find my parents' stern faces glaring me to death? When will they learn I'm not such a teen-ager as they believe me to be? — M.Y.G. (Member of the Younger Generation).

DEAR M.Y.G. — The statistics are against your dying tomorrow. And learning "the hard way" is not as all-fired desirable as you might think? Ever read my column?

Any other members of the Younger Generation care to agree — or disagree — with M.Y.G.?

DEAR DORIS — You mention in your column that black is a dress or in accessories is not suitable for a wedding.

I would like to refer you to Vogue's Book of Etiquette in which it says that a wedding guest may wear black "if need be, but gay enough not to be confused with mourning". Gloves may be of any color, also.

I like bright colors too, but don't you think that a blonde can look stunning, and gay, in a stylish black dress? — ANON.

DEAR ANON — Yes I do. But said blonde has many opportunities to look ravishing in black.

Did you note those words "if need be"? To me it means that if a person's best dress is a gay black one and she can't afford another, she needn't stay away from the wedding. At best, black is a substitute.

DEAR DORIS — We can sympathize with the person suffering from a barking dog. We had it for over ten years and no matter how we approached the owner we got nowhere.

We had the health department, police and humane society in on the deal; no success till a dog lover apparently informed the owner that the dog was a house dog and was a [illegible] dog. It disappeared overnight.

It is all right for people to own dogs if the dog does not bother others. But to see men and women pushing a dog, wailing at every tree or port, to me is almost indescribable. — DOG GONE.

DEAR D.G. — Excellent dog psychology. Why didn't I think of that?

DEAR DORIS: I always like poetry and I really liked the one you sent ("My Mother's Apron").

I can remember how nice my mother and Granny looked sitting in the rocking chairs when we had visitors, with nice white aprons down to their feet and deep homemade lace on the bottom and big ties at the back.

Our Granny lived with us until she passed away 26 years old. I can remember how many times we went to her when we got into trouble, and she always seemed to find a way to help us out. — EIGHTY-ONE.

DEAR EIGHTY-ONE: What a picture- From the rest of your letter (not included here) I'd guess that your own modern version of that white apron is busy with the doings of your own "boys and girls".

This research vessel is being designed and built by Blue Star Marine of Toronto from specifications provided by Trent University. It is 42 feet long, 14 feet wide, and is supported on two pontoons with a loading capacity of 10 tons. It will be used in biology research in the Kawartha Lakes and Trent Canal system.

Trent University Plans Floating Research Lab

PETERBOROUGH — Trent University's program of research in the field of freshwater studies will be considerably extended this summer when the University takes delivery of a 42-foot, mobile floating research laboratory, it was announced today by the President and Vice-Chancellor, T. H. B. Symons. This research vessel will enable the University's freshwater biologists, under the direction of Professor R. L. Edwards, to undertake more extensive studies of various aspects of the biology of the Kawartha Lakes and of the Trent Waterway System. Special emphasis will be placed upon studies of the growth and distribution of algae, fungal diseases of algae, and planktonic organisms that may feed on algae.

Construction of the laboratory was financed by a special grant of $10,000 received last year from the National Research Council of Canada. Further grants amounting to $20,000 have been received by Trent's biology faculty this year from the National Research Council of Canada and the Ontario Department of University Affairs. These will be used to meet the cost of running the laboratory during the summer, purchase scientific equipment, and to support both graduate and undergraduate students working on the freshwater program.

and helpful discussion," the prime minister told reporters. "No, we weren't talking about a settlement. It was just an informal exchange."

DECLINE COMMENT

The union leaders, who requested the meeting, declined to enlarge on Mr. Pearson's remarks.

On hand were Frank Hall, executive assistant with the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; William J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers; W. P. Kelly, Canadian head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; R. C. Smith, chief negotiator for one of the three non - operating union groups; and T. W. Read, negotiator for the shop craft unions.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, meanwhile, held a dinner meeting in the Chateau Laurier with President Donald Gordon of the CNR, CPR Chairman N. R. Crump, CPR President Ian Sinclair and Norman MacMillan, CNR executive vice-president.

None of the men would comment on the subject of the meeting.

Following the cabinet meetings Mr. Pearson told a press conference no effort would be made at this time to bring union and management sides together. But the cabinet was making preparations for "various contingencies."

Asked whether Parliament would be called to deal with the situation, he replied: "I hope not. But if it is necessary, that will be done."

Cabinet mediation could not begin until the union involved had completed their strike votes and set a deadline for the walkout.

IMPROVE CHINATOWN

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Saulnier, Montreal administrative committee chairman, told representatives of the Chinatown area the city is prepared to co-operate in an "operation face-lift" of the area. He said it would include giving houses in the midtown section an Oriental facade and turning the Chinatown area of Lagauchetiere Street into a pedestrian mall.

other committee members would slap maximum $20,000 fines and 20-year prison sentences on Americans who block shipment of U.S. men and materials to Viet Nam, or who help the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

The central figure in Wednesday's tumult, which completely overshadowed testimony taken by the committee, was Arthur Kinoy, Rutgers University law professor.

Kinoy has been the chief counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union which is representing two of the witnesses in a suit challenging the constitutional authority for the committee's hearings.

DELAYED A HEARING

That suit is currently before a three-judge federal court. However, the court delayed indefinitely a hearing scheduled on it Wednesday to give the judges more time to study legal briefs.

Philip McCombs, 23, a recent Yale University graduate from Ogdensburg, N.Y., was testifying about his undercover work in anti-war groups on assignment from William F. Buckley's conservative magazine, National Review, when a committee counsel asked him about the activities of Walter D. Teague III.

Lawyer William Kunstler sprang to his feet and demanded that the testimony be taken in secret or that he, as Teague's lawyer, be permitted to cross - examine McCombs.

When Pool rejected the request, Kinoy leaped up to join the legal objection.

"Now, sit down," Pool shouted. "You're not going to run over these hearings. We ruled on this yesterday."

Kinoy continued to argue, and Pool again told him to sit down as three federal marshals moved in.

"Take your hands off this man, sir, member of the bar," cried Kinoy as the marshals seized Kinoy and started to drag him toward the door.

Still shouting and attempting to keep his place, Kinoy was hauled off. One of the marshals held him around the neck, the others held his arms.

One by one, the other seven lawyers came forward to make statements, and withdraw.

Kinoy was released later and returned to the hearing. His faces trial today on a disorderly conduct charge.

much of Wednesday at the yards trying to get the men back to work. The CBRT hopes to oust a joint strike date with the other non-operating union groups, the shop crafts and the "rankand" group.

However, the 90 men refused to call off the walkout.

A union spokesman said Wednesday night the walkout had not been authorized as "this union does not condone wildcat strikes."

CBRT officers and the CBRT's 16-man joint protective board plan to meet with negotiators from the other two non - op groups Monday to seek agreement on a 24-hr strike date.

They will be joined in the meeting by representatives of the 30,000-member Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen who, like the non-ops, have rejected conciliation board report.

Bloomfield Juniors Are Top Judges

Two Prince Edward County Juniors, Donald Smith and Anne Springings, both of R.R. 2 Bloomfield, won top honors Wednesday in the Belleville Fair 4-H club junior judging competition which drew over 300 competitors from four counties.

And a Hastings county boy, Bob Jarrell of R.R. 5 Belleville, proved himself to be the best livestock judge.

For their efforts the two Bloomfield juniors received silver trophies, compliments of the Northern Electric Company of Belleville, while the Jarrell boy was given a silver tray from the Bank of Montreal.

The junior judging competition, which attracted entrants from Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland counties, had the highest entry list in years, with 308 juniors turning out.

The Juniors judged hay, grain, potatoes and apples and then measured their livestock judging abilities against that of the senior judges as they placed cattle, sheep and swine classes.

To top the competition off, the Juniors were called on to complete a quiz on agriculture.

It was an all - day program for the Juniors, who were provided with sandwiches, pie and drinks during the noon luncheon break.

Don Smith, as the top boy in the competition, rolled up a total of 671 points, out of 700, while the top girl, Miss Springings, scored 618. Bob Jarrell as the top livestock judge scored 308 points out of a possible 325.

The winners received their trophies during a brief presentation ceremony in front of the grandstand to get the evening fair program underway.

Many Inco Workers Now Back on Jobs

SUDBURY (CP)—More than two - thirds of International Nickel Co.'s 18,000 employees were back at work Wednesday as activity continued to pick up following a 36-day walkout July 15-Aug. 7.

A company spokesman said 10,500 men were working at several mining sites and reduction facilities. More were to be called back today.

He said all workers would likely be back on the job by week's end.

The most not yet back at work, members of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America, were receiving financial assistance from the union.

In Toronto, Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville said negotiators for the company and union were unlikely to reach an agreement on a new contract before early next week.

Judge Anderson, chairman of a conciliation board, said he had earlier hoped for a settlement by Friday.

The talks also involve 2,000 Inco employees at Port Colborne, Ont.

Jumping Thrills Crowd

Sunny skies brought out the largest attendance to date at the Belleville Fair Horse Show yesterday. A wide variety of classes were exhibited ranging from Hackney Ponies, Roadsters, Palominos and Saddle Horses to the Heavy Draft classes.

Parade horses were shown before a packed grandstand last night before the chuckwagon races as well as the spectacular manoeuvring displays of the quarter horses.

Hunters appeared in the show for the first time and the grandstand was treated to a display of hedge-jumping. Some of the riders in this class were quite young but they took their jumps undaunted.

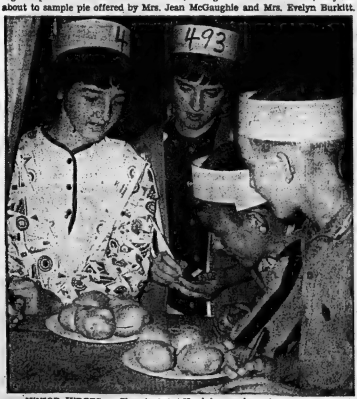
Perhaps the biggest event in the horse show, judging by weight anyway, was the six-horse hitch of draft horses.

Roadster pairs in harness impressed spectators with their speed. This class is capable of doing a quarter mile in 30 seconds.

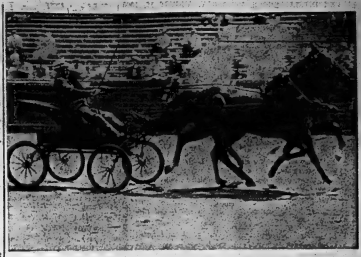
Today, the show's last, will feature road races as well as some Roadsters, Hackneys and Palominos.

WILL VOTE

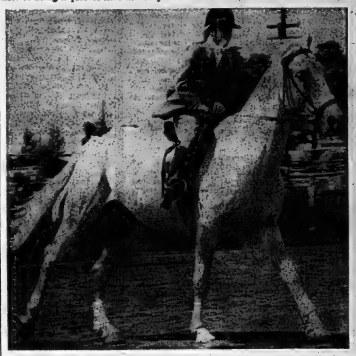
SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Residents of this town 30 miles southwest of Ottawa will vote Dec. 5 on whether to introduce fluoridation of the municipal water supply, Council Wednesday approved holding the vote in conjunction with the regular municipal elections.



TOP JUNIOR JUDGES at Belleville Fair, Don Smith and Anne Springings, both of R.R. 2, Bloomfield, receive trophies from Mrs. T. N. Davidson, wife of Northern Electric works manager. Northerns donated the trophies for the junior competition.



BEST IN LIVESTOCK — Bob Jarrell, R.R. 5, Belleville, receives silver tray from Bank of Montreal manager A. D. Cameron, as top livestock judge in Belleville Fair 4-H judging competition. Looking on is Patricia Shorey, Hastings county dairy princess.



PIE SAMPLERS — 4-H clubbers Steve and Marty White of Detior, spent all morning Wednesday judging livestock, grain and vegetables in junior judging competition at Belleville Fair. Here, during noon luncheon break, they are about to sample pie offered by Mrs. Jean McGaughie and Mrs. Evelyn Burkitt.

JUNIOR JUDGES — Close to 300 4-H club members from four counties competed in the Belleville Fair junior judging competition Wednesday. Here four of them, Marjorie Hunt and Marjorie McCrae of Tweed, Ralph Bailey of Cooper and Ronald Howes of Corbyville, judge plates of potatoes.

ROADSTER PAIR IN HARNESS passes in front of the grandstand during the Horse Show yesterday. These pairs were hitting a spanking pace being capable of doing a quarter mile in thirty seconds.

ERMINE COAT, the entry of Janis Dawson in the Hunter Hack Class of the Fair Horse Show, was ridden by this young lady to fourth place in the class yesterday afternoon.

COLOR PARTY heading up last night's parade by members of the Quinte Western Horse Association is seen as it approached the Belleville Fair grandstand. Close to 100 riders took part in the parade.

BEST SIX HORSE TEAM — Exhibited by Keith Hobden of Brooklin and Cecil Woods, R.R. 3, Madoc, receives ribbons from judge W. O. Kennedy at last night's evening fair program. The six horse team of Belgians placed ahead of two other entries.

SPORTSLICES

Whenever the Toronto Maple Leafs gaggle of pachyderms went into a protracted slump, from the reds, blues, greys, and plaids, the bistros, yoks and lounges came the plaintive yowl of the faithful, "What's wrong with the Leafs?"

Now the Queen City sports buffs are taking time out from figuring by how many points the Argos will lose by, to chortle a new query.

"What's wrong with Punch Imlach — if anything?"

The smooth-domed mentor of the Leafs tossed a giant fire-cracker into the midst of the August heat doldrums by announcing he had demoted the one and only-Eddie Shack to the Victoria B.C. farm club.

"PUNCH" IMLACH

The jolt was still rippling the spines of the faithful when Imlach put the icing on the thunderbolt cake by charging the players as well as assistants or Leafs clique and the necks of other players would feel the bite of the official guillotine.

Is Imlach merely passing the onus back to the players for not coming through with the Stanley Cup last year; was he just firing the first barrage of the annual salary negotiations war by intimating certain players are expendable, or does a clique really exist?

The thing that bolsted the fans' eyebrow was why should Imlach send a 27-goal, 17-assist player like Shack down to the salt mines? He rranked 9th in the NHL scoring and only two of his team-mates, Mahovlich 23-34; Bob Pulford 23-28 outscored him during the season.

This perhaps indicates that Imlach believes there is a team "clique" operating within the ranks.

A story out of Toronto said that whatever the reasons for Imlach's remarks — that three or four players might be traded for being in a clique which ruined the club last year, the players themselves say "nuts" to their leader's charges.

Captain George Armstrong said "I think Punch is mistaken." Bob Pulford stated the charge was "ridiculous."

Frank Mahovlich stated bluntly, "I have never heard of or seen such a thing."

Last year's prize holdout Bobby Baun who sent Imlach reeling with a $10,000 salary increase demand said he didn't know of any clique in the club.

Pulford qualified his statement with "Sure, I've had differences of opinion with Imlach. I don't think any player who is a keen competitor can go through a 70-game schedule without getting off a beef or two."

"But if there is a clique in the club," he added, "I wasn't aware of it. And I think it would have been noticeable in the dressing room at one time or another."

"To me, it's so much unadulterated baloney."

Imlach stated when he tumbled down Shack he could be only the first of last year's players to go.

But the "Schnoz" took it in stride.

"I think a player should have the right to speak for himself. That certainly doesn't mean there is a clique within the club," he said.

"Punch is a good guy but he must realize we are men with family responsibilities and cannot be treated like boys."

Shack said he will report to Victoria providing the salary is right. He says he has two jobs in Toronto which pay more than his hockey salary.

NAMED BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen-year-old Janice Tisdle of Vancouver was named Wednesday as the outstanding junior tennis player in Canada. She received the Pepsi Trophy at an awards presentation for winners of the Canadian closed junior tennis championships which ended Monday.

WILLIAMS TO SPEAK

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Williams, perhaps the last of baseball's .400 hitters, will be guest speaker at the Canadian National Exhibition's Little Big Men Players, coaches and officials of the 24 teams competing in the tournament will be guests at the dinner.

Willie Mays felt great; Sandy Koufax felt pain.

Mays' feeling came in the fourth inning Wednesday when he hit a home run that friggered San Francisco Giants to a 4-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Koufax' cause in the second inning of Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-1 loss to Cincinnati Reds when he hurt his artistic left elbow.

The home run was the 333D of Mays' career and made him the second greatest homer hitter and the greatest right-handed homer hitter of all time.

The blast, on a 3-2 pitch from Ray Washburn, sailed over the right field fence at Candlestick Park and vaulted Mays ahead of Jimmy Fox on the all-time list.

RUTH WAS TOPS

The Giant centre fielder, who tied Foxx the night before, now trails only Babe Ruth and his 714 homers. Ruth batted left-handed.

"I feel real great about it," Mays said afterward. "This is the first time anyone has achieved this in so short a time. The rest of those guys had 20 years, and I've had only 12."

Koufax was seeking his 20th victory Wednesday night but instead wound up with a sore elbow. He hurt it in the second inning when he struck out the side but didn't leave until the fifth.

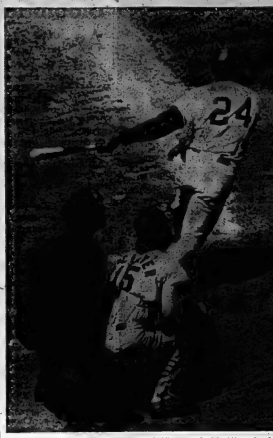
"It's nothing different from what has happened to him before," said Dr. Robert Kerlan, Dodger team physician. "The elbow has been ill season, but usually the pain is between pitching assignments.

"Koufax probably is at Sandy will be able to warm up on the sidelines two days from now and then take his usual starting turn if the elbow is not swelled less."

GETS AN INJECTION

Koufax, whose next scheduled turn would be Sunday, received a cortisone injection in the elbow, then placed it in a bucket of ice—the usual treatment he gets after a game.

In other National League games, New York Mets edged Pittsburgh, cutting the Pirates' lead to one-half game over San Francisco Giants, Chicago Cubs trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 in 10 innings and Atlanta Braves whipped Houston Astros 6-1.



Mays' homer, his 30th of the season, put the Cardinals' lead to 3-1. The Giants then tied it in the eighth on run - scoring singles by Felipe Pantos and Willie McCovey and won it in the ninth on Jesus Alou's run-scoring single.

Koufax' elbow apparently hurt in the fourth inning as he walked the bases on walks. Leo Cardenas then rapped a double, scoring as all three runners. That was enough to hand the southpaw his seventh defeat against 12 victories.

METS STRIKE BACK

Pittsburgh took a 7-1 lead on homers by Willie Stargell, Bill Mazeroski and Don Clendenon, but the Mets struck back for five runs in the fourth inning. Bob Taylor accounted for the last four runs with the first pinch-hit grand-slam homer in Mets' history.

Ron Hunt then won it for New York with a two-out, two-run single in the sixth.

CRUNCH, AND AWAY IT GOES—The bat settles slowly and San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays, St. Louis Cardinal catcher Tim McCarver and umpire Chris Pelekoudas watch No. 535 mail toward the right field fence to establish Mays as greatest right hand home run hitter of baseball. Filly Brought $310,000

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Admiring, a four-year-old filly, topped the Saratoga sales Wednesday night at $310,-000—a world-record price for a thoroughbred sold at public sales.

The previous high for an individual horse was $235,000, a figure shared jointly by the brood mare Serie, sold in February, and Solario, the great English stallion sold in England some decades ago.

Admiring, a brown daughter of Hail To Reason, out of Searching by War Admiral, is a stakes winner of seven major events, with winnings of $183,-224.

She was purchased by the partnership of Charles Engelhard, owner of the Cragwood Stable, with racing interests in England, South Africa and the United States, and Paul Mellon of Upperville, Va., a breeder and campaigner of the Rokeby stable.

Stampeders Upset Unbeaten Saskys

Score Was 26-1

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders finally scored their first touchdown of the Western Football Conference season Wednesday. Developments showed they could have won without it.

Stampeders posted a 26-1 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders. Calgary had played 215 minutes and 36 seconds by the time Sandro Deyglio Evanshen scampered into the end zone for the club's first touchdown of the season.

Calgary was held to 12 points, all on field goals by Larry Robinson, in three earlier defeats.

Evanshen later added another touchdown on a four-yard toss from quarterback Pete Liske. Jerry Keeling picked off a pass by Ron Lancaster for the other Calgary touchdown.

Robinson completed Calgary's scoring with three converts, a field goal and two singles. He had given Calgary a 4-1 lead before Evanshen broke the touchdown famine.

Calgary led 4-1 at halftime and 18-1 after three quarters. The first quarter was scoreless.

Liske, obtained in the offseason from Toronto Argonauts, made his first start as a Stampeder quarterback a raging success. He completed half of 22 passes for 175 yards and directed a ground attack that totalled 102 yards.

Despite Liske's excellence, this victory was designed by defenders who intercepted four Lancaster serials and held the potent Roughrider offensive to first downs. Lancaster netted 114 yards on eight completions in 17 attempts and the rushing game was held to 85 yards, more than half of it by Ed Buchanan.

The victory propelled Calgary into a tie with Edmonton Eskimos for fourth place in the five - team WFC. Saskatchewan, which had won its first three starts, retained sole possession of first place.

A big play by Bill Gaskins started Calgary toward its first touchdown. He intercepted a pass in the end zone to give the cowboys possession on their 10. Liske generated an attack that ended with his touchdown pass to Evanshen.

The ninth flanker stepped over for a tackle about the Saskatchewan 30 and romped into the end zone. A few plays later, Keeling intercepted Lancaster's pass and was unchallenged in a race to the goal.

Liske's pass for Evanshen's second touchdown late in the fourth quarter was set up by linebacker Jerry Campbell. The 208-pound refugee from University of Idaho blocked a punt attempt by Jimmy McKean and recovered at the eight. Two plays later, Evanshen nursed in front of Gene Wlasiuk to take Liske's perfect pass.

Chalk Up 15-3 Win

Riders Spoil Al's' Home Opener

MONTREAL (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders came up with their biggest offensive output of the season Wednesday night as they downed Montreal Alouettes 15-3 in an Eastern Football Conference game here.

In two previous victories this season, the Riders had managed to score a total of 33 points —defeating Montreal 16-8 by the season opener Aug. 3 and beating Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference 17-6 a week later.

The Ottawa defence has allowed only one touchdown to be scored on it — a pair of field goals. That touchdown came in the season opener against Montreal.

Wednesday's victory moved Ottawa into sole possession of first place in the EFC with a 3-0 record for six points, two more than Hamilton Tiger Cats. Montreal is tied with two points.

The Rough Riders scored a converted touchdown in the second and third quarters after picking up a first - quarter single to spoil Montreal's home opener of the season.

End Ted Watkins and fullback Jim Dillard teamed the Ottawa touchdowns while tackle Moe Racine converted both major scores and added a single on a wide field goal attempt in the first frame.

Flanker Peter Kempf accounted for Montreal's three points with a field goal in the third quarter.

A shirt - sleeved crowd of 22,364 watched as Ottawa rolled up 274 yards total offence compared with 256 for Montreal.

Ottawa took a 1-0 lead midway through the first quarter on Racine's single after he missed on a 32-yard field goal attempt.

The Rough Riders went ahead 7-0 late in the second quarter when quarterback Russ Jackson rolled out and completed a perfect pass to Watkins for a 40-yard pass-and-run touchdown. Racine's convert was good to give the Riders an 8-0 lead.

Ottawa went ahead 15-0 midway through the third frame when Dillard romped over from the three - yard mark for a touchdown and Moe Racine was good on his convert attempt.

Kempf closed the scoring with his 16-yard field goal at 12:20 of the third quarter.

Jackson completed nine of 18 pass attempts and had no interceptions, while Faloney and Bork combined to complete 10 of 20 passes. Faloney completed two of five passes and had one intercepted while Bork was good on eight of 15 and had two intercepted.

Watkins caught four of Jackson's passes for 103 yards and one touchdown.

Dillard was Ottawa's leading ground - gainer with 67 yards on 14 carries and one touchdown and Bo Scott had 65 yards on 11 tries.

Bob Paremore, Montreal's fourth fullback who joined the club last week from Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League, picked up one gain of 24 yards in 14 carries.

End Don Davis was Montreal's top receiver with 38 yards on three receptions.

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method
by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER
SHOULDER TURN MUCH FULLER THAN HIP TURN
You will note in No. 1 that my shoulders have turned much more completely than my hips during my backswing. In poor years golf professionals have advocated a large hip turn, but this thinking is a bit old-fashioned now.
We have learned that a very full shoulder turn, coupled with a minimal turning of the hips, creates a vast build-up of potential power in the downswing. It creates a very full coiling of the basic muscles (No. 2).
If you look a coiled spring and forward look of its ends the same way, you would get no additional tightening in the spring. But if you bend one and still coil toward the other end, you would get more tightening and a powerful response when you let go of the spring. This same principle applies more or less, in the golf swing.

Having had enough of winning with the more mundane weapons, hitting, pitching, homers, things like that, Baltimore Orioles won the game across a method that puts a little fan back in baseball.

Wednesday night's second game—the second straight running, Baltimore scored five runs in the ninth inning, overcoming a nine sweep from Boston Red Sox.

By the time the blitz had ended, Baltimore had an 8-4 victory. Tuesday, the Orioles came from behind with five in the ninth to win 6-4 and on Monday they tied it in the ninth and went on to win 4-3 in 11.

Wednesday's attack started with consecutive singles by Russ Snyder and Brooks and Frank Robinson, filling the bases. A walk to Doug Powell (the safest way to pitch to him these days) forced in one run and a single by Paul Blair accounted for another.

Bob Johnson squeezed Brooks home and Sku Martin, a relief pitcher, knocked in the last two with a single.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit Tigers beat New York Yankees 4-2, Minnesota Twins clipped California Angels 5-3, Cleveland Indians bumped Kansas City Athletics 5-3, and Chicago White Sox took a pair from Kansas City Athletics 4-2 and 5-1.

How They're Biting

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bass were biting better in Ontario lakes last week.

Among the best bass catches were a seven-pound smallmouth taken from Stargeon Lake in the Lindsay area and a six-pound largemouth caught in Lake Simcoe.

In its weekly report on fishing, the department of lands and forests indicated that cooler weather, accompanied in most areas by rain, improved angling for all species.

There was plenty of good pickerel, northern pike and muskellunge fishing, especially in northern regions, while lake trout fishing was mostly fair.

So far this season Lady Escar has won eight races and earned $12,892.

Avelino Gomez was four of six races to move into a tie with Hugo Dittfach for leading rider honors. Both have 29 winners.

Wrestling Postponed Until Sept. 2

Belleville wrestling fans will have a bit of a wait for the next show here, according to Ernie Vigneault, manager of Bobby Burrows, but it may be worth it.

The next card here is scheduled for Friday, September 2, not this Friday as was first announced.

Such name stars as Lord Athol Layton and Bulldog Brower will headline the September 2 card. A wrestling bear is also expected, along with a host of others, one Bobby Johnson and Whipper Watson Jr., son of the famous wrestler of the same name.

Canadian Junior Tennis

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian open junior tennis championships moved into the home-stretch today by deciding finalists in most singles events and completing the bulk of doubles elimination play.

All Canadians were eliminated from the boys 18-and-under title race Wednesday when Robin Ekins, 16, of Vancouver, the reigning Canadian closed champion, and Stephane Vertina, 18, of Montreal, lost quarter-final matches.

But the girls 18-and-under title will stay in Canada, with four Canadians squaring off today for the two finals berths. The four are Janice Tiedje, 16, Vancouver; Jane O'Hara, 14, Toronto, Nancy Green, 18, Toronto, and Susan Yager, 16, Vancouver.

Miss Tiedje, named Wednesday as Canada's most outstanding junior tennis player, scored an upset victory Wednesday by defeating Mary Bechard of Hewbey, N.Y., the first-seeded foreign player in girls 18-and-under, 4-6, 6-0.

Elliot was eliminated 9-7, 6-4, by Carles Devanetz, 17, Argentina's three-ranked junior player and fifth-seeded in the Canadian open. Vertina was defeated by Richard Stoffman, 16, Garden City, N.Y., 8-6, 6-2.

Bombers, Lions Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP)— Rookie Chick Gensing, who won over-fasm as a quarterback, will try to improve British Columbia Lions as a defensive halfback tonight.

Gensing, 28, will make his professional debut for the Lions when they play host to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference game.

Coach Dave Skrien decided to dress Gensing tonight because he said B.C. "couldn't wait any longer" for Bud Spicer, another rookie, to live up to his potential.

Spicer, 25, cut from the team Tuesday, was part of a defensive backfield that proved vulnerable to the long pass as Lions lost two of their first three games this season.

Gensing's big moment came in the Lions' intra - squad game before 18,458 fans July 16.

He called a gambling game and made it pay as the rookie secured a 37-30 upset over the veterans, led by regular quarterback Tom Karp. Gensing passed for one touchdown and scored another himself.

Bobby Ayre, a rookie flanker, will also move into the regular lineup.

Ayre, son of Syl Apps, the Toronto Maple Leafs' Hall of Fame centre, will be a replacement for flanker Sonny Homer. The veteran is in hospital under

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Baby Trotter Garma Alert, with veteran Allan Walker in the sulky, staged a stirring rally in the final furlong to win the 27th renewal of the $11,188 Canadian Standardbred Horse Society Futurity at Greenwood Raceway Wednesday night.

Walker, who won last year's edition with Lt. - Gov. Kerr Rowe's Simcoe, was headed past the quarter pole when Dr. John Findley, driving his Kismet Lodge, took command.

Kismet Lodge then gave way to Garma Alert, which won the $5,584 in purse money.

Garma Alert trotted the mile in 2:13 and rewarded her backers with a $22.90 win payoff.

Kismet Lodge finished second in the one heat and Frosty Homestead took third spot for Owner Burrison of Cobourg.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Sarg Patterson, owned by John R. Reid of Alta Crag, Ont., and William A. Squires of London, Ont., won the featured conditioned pace for $1,200 at Batavia Downs Wednesday night.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Cap Hanover, driven by Lucien Footaine, beat the 2-to-1 favorite, Cape Horn, in the stretch in win Wednesday night's feature $7,000 Pelham Pace by a length and a quarter at Yonkers Raceway.

OTTAWA (CP) — Rhee Filion scored her first victory of the history Wednesday night, this time driving veteran trotter Chub Hanover at Rideau Carleton Raceway.

Chub Hanover trotted to the wire in 2:06 3-5 and gave Filion his eleventh win of the season.

In the featured $600 ninth race, Bert's Boy took the early lead for Maurice Bergeron and paced to a close 2:06 4-5 finish. The winner, owned by Pastime Stables of Smiths Falls, Ont., returned $18.30, $7.30 and $4.60.

AUTO CAME LATE

Automobiles have been legal for general use in Bermuda only since 1946.

CALGARY (CP)—Three men ripped apart the Willow Park course Wednesday to set a competitive course record in preparations for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship which opens today.

Lyle Crawford of Vancouver, Bob Panasiuk of Tecumseh, Ont., and Bob Charles of Vancouver each fired a five-under par 66 to win special events. Panasiuk and Crawford were low gross in a pro-amateur preliminary and Edwards topped all rivals in a special tournament for players not entered in the pro-am.

The former record of 67 was posted last year by Bud Loftus, a Calgary pro.

A field of 132 is entered in the 54-hole competition, largest for any CPGA championship held in Western Canada.

Before Wednesday's performances none of the record-setters were afforded much change to match favoritism George Knudson of Winnipeg, Moe Norman of Toronto and defending champion Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg.

Knudson has been a star on the rugged American professional tour for several years and Norman has proved his talent for the tight Willow Park layout in previous tournaments. Homenuik was CPGA honor winner last year and was successful this spring on the Caribbean Tour.

Despite predictions that several low scores would be posted, terms of entrants was that 285, eight under par for the distance, should be enough to win.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who has won the CPGA eight times, received several sentimental nominations for victory this year. He said he has sharpened his game lately after a troublesome slump.

Al Balding and Alvie Thompson of Toronto both know how to win in big tournaments. Recovering from his shoulder operation a year ago, Balding has won the championship three times. His last victory came in Edmonton in 1965.

Nicklaus, Palmer U.S. Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, the Masters and British Open title holder, and Arnold Palmer, the season's second - leading money winner, were named Wednesday to represent the United States in the international Canada Cup golf matches at Tokyo Nov. 19.

In picking the team's two muscle men, the special committee passed over the year's No. 1 golfer, Bill Casper, winner of the U.S. Open and three other tournaments, the money winning leader.

The selection is left entirely to the host country. A list of U.S. players is submitted by the Professional Golfers Association and from this list is picked the two American players the host would most prefer to see. Canada's team has not yet been named.

Robinson, defending WFC champion, was good for eight points as the Stampeders upset the league - leading Saskatchewan Roughriders 30-5 for their first victory of the season.

Flip Fins At Fishermen

Tuna "Charlies" Having Fun

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Five teams of exasperated tuna anglers are hoping today for a change in the luck that has dogged them on the Wedgeport and Cape St. Mary fishing grounds the last two days.

The four-day 1966 international tuna cup match was half over Wednesday and for the fishermen from Canada, the Caribbean, Greece, Mexico and the United States, the score was dismal—no fish caught, two fish hooked and lost.

Tuna match officials met after Wednesday's unproductive effort and decided to make no change in boat or fishing arrangements. So again today each team has two boats fishing on Wedgeport grounds and one off Cape St. Mary—15 boats in all.

Several anglers said the bluefins appeared even more numerous Wednesday than on opening day. They played around the fishing fleet as if they dared the fishermen to come and get them.

John Anderson of Detroit, the U.S. team captain, could qualify as one of the two most frustrated men in the tournament. The other was Alexander Marchesini, the Greek captain. Anderson hooked a fish and lost it with a broken line Tuesday. The same thing happened to Marchesini Wednesday.

Trainer Ordered From Track

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit race course barred from thoroughbred racing Wednesday all horses trained by Sherman Armstrong, who has been subpoenaed to testify before a federal grand jury investigating an alleged gambling conspiracy case.

Dale Shaffer, president of the track, also ordered Armstrong to remove five horses now stabled at the track.

Armstrong, 37, a former jockey, was ordered to appear before the grand jury today. Also called to testify are jockeys Tommy Barrow, William Cox and R. J. Bright, all racing horses, and jockey Al Coy, last reported riding at Montreal.

The federal grand jury hearing arose from a series of July 1 gambling raids in Detroit.

Chad Has Almost No Assets Except Abundant Wildlife

FORT LAMY, Chad (AP) — If you're lucky, you can see wild elephants, monkeys and hippos without leaving the city limits of Chad's capital.

The former French colony has an inexhaustible supply of wildlife—and little else.

President Francois Tombalbaye, a former teacher, is struggling against monumental odds.

Independent since 1960, Chad has never been economically viable. It has no significant resources and is gripped by tribal and religious conflicts.

Tombalbaye hopes many years will pass before France decides to withdraw some 600 French troops based in Chad. Although Chad's small military force is believed to be firmly loyal to Tombalbaye and the president's political seems secure, the presence of French troops is an added guarantee of stability.

Chad's mutual defence treaty with France allows Tombalbaye to call in French military aid against internal troubles in case of need. Despite several bloody clashes between Moslems from the Sahara in the north and Christians and animists from the south, Tombalbaye thus far has refrained from using the French. But their presence is reassuring to the thousands of Europeans who still live in Fort Lamy and isolated towns.

KEEP UNEASY TRUCE

Several hundred persons were reported killed in racial and religious rioting in Fort Lamy in 1963. A year later, dissident Moslem tribesmen took over the town of Am Timan and again there were hundreds of casualties when government forces arrived to restore order. Since then, there has been an uneasy truce between the hostile groups except for occasional clashes in the Sudan border region.

Tombalbaye, a Christian southerner, recently made a gesture of conciliation toward the Moslem north by inviting into his cabinet two northerners now accused of plotting against his government.

France and other Western nations have given Tombalbaye's conciliatory policies. Tombalbaye is regarded as a model African statesman, though far from a democratic leader — democracy is almost meaningless in the more backward parts of Africa. He is popular, has no quarrels with his neighbors and treats his domestic enemies leniently.

His aides hard to put down corruption and inefficiency, suppress tribalism and religious prejudice, develop the economy of the arid, isolated country and guide its 3,000,000 inhabitants from their medieval social structure into the 20th century.

In its 800,000 square miles, Chad lacks a single mile of railroad. Nearly all highways are impassable three months a year.

The trade balance is chronically lopsided. More than 80 per cent of exports is raw cotton. Meat and livestock comprise most of the remainder. Imports are almost double the total exports year after year and the trade gap is filled by French economic aid.

North of Fort Lamy, the River Chari spreads out into huge marshes leading to Lake Chad. Along its eastern shore African workers are reclaiming land from the shallow water, using a variation of methods perfected by the Dutch on the Zuider Zee.

Thousands of Africans work through the day in desert heat —the average temperature is 110 — carrying boxes of sand on their heads to build the dams.

When a dam is completed, the water is drained away and wheat, rice or millet is sown on the newly-won soil. The climate may permit two or three harvests a year.

Nothing Astonishes Anymore In Way of Centennial Projects

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—During the capital pantomime debate, an MP suggested as a centennial project a moratorium on murder in 1967.

If he had gone as far as to write the federal centennial commission with the idea, a feasibility study might now be under way.

The suggestion fits right into the spirit of things as the centennial approaches. Nothing astonishes any more. It wouldn't be surprising to find someone painting the Rockies in 1967.

To make the 100th anniversary of Confederation memorable, the commission already has five authors working on one play, and a dozen men of varied faith collaborating on a common prayer.

Individually and collectively, a celebratory madness seems to be in the air.

COW OF MOUNTIES

In the Northwest Territories, there is a great debate about what should be sent down Mackenzie River on a barge: a cow or two RCMP marksmen.

Proponents of the cow, a novelty north of the 60th parallel, seem to have the upper hoof.

A New Brunswick woman has informed the commission she has produced a centennial perfume. In Alberta, a druggist is issuing centennial animal repellent.

One company is spreading the good word through 1,000,000,000 centennial tea bags. Something like 18,000,000 centennial trees will be planted.

In Ottawa, a suggestion that the city's kidney-shaking potholes be beautified with geraniums or goldfish has been turned down.

Instead, the national capital is handing out 80,000 to 100,000 crabapple trees.

Next summer, when the bureau of Parliament isn't being re-enacted through a process known as sog at Sunnybrook, Sir Tyrone Guthrie will be directing a spectacular on Parliament Hill.

COMPUTER HELPS

The centennial commission has used a computer to compile a 175-page calendar of events and projects, but the list hardly scratches the surface.

In one capital grants program alone, more than $90,000,000 will be spent on 2,350 municipal projects, mostly community centres and parks, from Dawson, Y.T., to Labrador City, Newfoundland.

The federal contribution will be about $20,000,000, matched by provincial and municipal contributions.

Ottawa also is paying more than $20,000,000 for memorials in the provincial and territorial capitals.

Getting to know Canada figures in a national prosperous action.

In the commission's youth travel program alone, 160 groups of 24 teen-agers are being given a close-up this summer of the other Canadian river.

The commission also has granted $363,000 to about 40 private groups for seminar exchange programs.

British Columbia has its own internal youth travel program, designed to give city kids a look at the mountainous interior and vice versa.

In an Ottawa electronics farm that has many highly-skilled and foreign - born employees, there are plans to bring relatives to Canada for the Centennial.

When the centennial commission was set up in 1961, one of its objects was to reach out to people who wouldn't be able to get to Expo 67, the world's fair in Montreal.

Blatant participation for children is promised through two projects. In one, their physical special exhibition care, sed eight Confederation caravans, each with eight 75-foot trailers.

The train will make 80 major stops and the caravans will visit 700 off-track communities.

TEENAGERS GETS AROUND

Through subsidies, Festival Canada will allow top musical and theatre companies to perform all over at low ticket prices.

In addition to the caravans and entertainers, many communities will be visited by a Centennial train that will include more than 40 international events.

Hitting the most stops will be a 9,500-mile canoe pageant from Rocky Mountain House, Alta., to Montreal.

There will also be the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg, an international balloon race across the Prairies, water-skiing in Sherbrooke, Que., and a full-fledged 36-mile, 2026-yard marathon run in Ottawa on Thanksgiving weekend, 1967.

The commission is expected to subsidize an assault on unclimbed Yukon mountains, and an exploration of untred Brazilian highlands.

The armed forces military tattoo, with a cast of 1,700 will make 40 stops and give 150 performances.

On the coasts, foreign navies will show off their finest in courtesy visits.

TALK IT UP, TOO

To generate enthusiasm, conciliation officials are speaking everywhere. Senior public relations man Clyde Batten even has launched a centennial talk to, of all people, international agencies like enforcement officers in Montreal.

Commissioner John Fisher this year has shot rapids, dogsled a live bear, worn a beard around his neck, and led a 6,000-mile canoe trek start to encharge the enthusiasm of the Canadian Centennial Conference, a committee dedicated to brainstrust from all over the country.

The commission itself began life in the Imperial building, moved up to the new Canadian building and now has spilled over into the Empire building.

Its centennial telephone number, 237-1867, got so busy it had to be changed to the maymobile 237-3160.

For an agency with an ever-looming deadline to get things done, bureaucracy is a constant frustration.

The commission can hire employees instantly, but it often takes three months for the civil service to deliver a new man's first pay cheque.

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh ordered "silence" on centennial symbols, but the defence production department, through which the order had to go, came through with thousands

LOTS OF CHANNELS

Ideas must win approval from an executive committee, a management committee, a board of directors, at times the state secretary and the provinces, and finally the treasury board.

Yet one employee who found no sign of the Centennial at an Ontario tourist bureau in Cornwall made a 180-mile round trip to Ottawa and back to supply a load of flags, pins and pamphlets.

And the commission has been a boon to manufacturers of Canadiana. When an employee isn't saying something like "with the centennial in mind, marvelicous" he is coming out with:

"Newfoundland will have 6,000 cairns to mark every city that's thus the rest of Canada."

There are moments of high drama. One enthusiast threatened to hit a dubious commission employee with a belty sample of Bartlett's Familiar Quotations. And there are moments of gloom.

But when the wild bells ring out 100 years of Confederation at midnight, Dec. 31, and the centennial dance ends its lit for a week or so, it's almost certain every Canadian will feel the impact.

Soviet Union's 'Blue Belt' Of Defence Is Naval Power, Has Largest Fleet of Subs

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's vaunted "blue belt" of defence is being traced to its naval power which, by the best available yardsticks, includes the world's largest fleet of submarines with an increasing number of them powered by nuclear energy.

The subs, presumably can launch missiles under water, multiplying the West's defence problems in the same way that American Polaris subs complicate Soviet defences.

Information is now available on the mysterious "blue belt" indicates that it includes other elements besides submarines. One is possibly the expanding Soviet naval air force for long-range defence against Western navies.

Defence Minister Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky started the "blue belt" mystery in a speech April 1. "The creation of the blue belt for defence of our state has been completed," he said without explanation.

Soviet admirals said privately later that nuclear submarines are part of the belt.

MEMYTONS SUBS

Then on May 25 Gen. Heinz Hoffmann, East German defence minister, described the striking power of Soviet land-based missiles and said: "And this are added the atomic submarines of the blue defence belt, which can operate in every sea in the world."

This is the clearest statement on public record that the "blue belt" involves submarines. It indicates that Malinovsky was using the word "defence" in a general sense that includes offensive power.

The worldwide, offensive capability was demonstrated by a six - week submerged cruise around the world in February and March by two or three Soviet nuclear submarines.

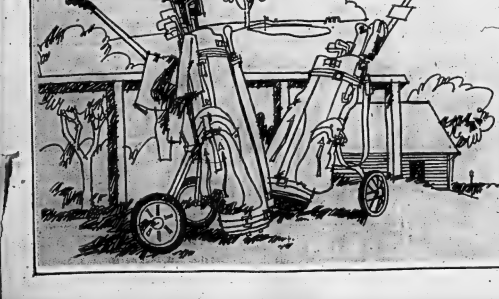
He noted that some $2,000,000,000 is being spent by the Kremlin every year on submarine warfare. The underwater fleet then numbered around 400, Martell said.

Other sources estimate the number of nuclear subs in the fleet at from 35 to 60, with perhaps as many as 10 being built every year. With the launching of the Will Rogers last month the United States has a fleet of 41 nuclear - powered ballistic missile submarines.

The authoritative book Jane's Fighting Ships, which estimates the Soviet Union had 35 nuclear subs at the end of 1965, says some of them are designed to attack shipping and some to launch missiles at land targets.

The estimated number of Soviet missiles deployed beneath the waves is about 130, Jane's says. Their range is believed to be less than the 2,500-mile range of the latest Polaris missiles.

The commander-in-chief of the Soviet navy, Fleet Admiral Sergei G. Gorshkov, wrote in January, 1965, that his sailors knew the location of every U.S. Polaris sub and could destroy them at will.



"Bahhah," the Americans said.

About 100 Soviet submarines are reported to be operating in the Pacific Ocean, the American sea-supply route to Viet Nam.

The Pacific submarine fleet is believed to be based at Petropavlovsk on the Kamchatka Peninsula just west of the Aleutian Islands.

This ice-free port faces directly on the open Pacific. It eliminates the old Russian problem of naval bases in narrow waters such as the Black, Baltic and Japanese seas that can be guarded at their entrances.

Canadian Opera Company's Rules Stricter Than Met's

By DONALD PHILLIPSON

TORONTO (CP) — Herman Geiger-Torel sets the rules for the Canadian Opera Company, and his slogan is "integrated productions."

This means firstly that outside stars are engaged for their acting and singing in specific operas, not just as well-known names to bring in box office receipts.

Secondly—and more important, says the company's artistic director — the stars must attend three weeks of rehearsals in Toronto. By contrast, many American companies engage a visiting star and go through only two rehearsals before the public performance.

He put forward this insistence on proper rehearsal as one of the reasons the Canadian Opera Company needs subsidies from public funds.

Unlike the Metropolitan Opera of New York, the Canadian opera company has no organized program to scour the country for new singers.

"There is no need," says Geiger-Torel.

"If we look everyone who applied, we'd have a company of 1,000."

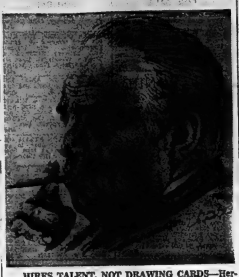
However he visits Montreal and New York regularly each year for auditions and aspirants arrange to sing to him in Toronto throughout the year.

Geiger-Torel has 36 opera students at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto. Probably five or six of these will enter opera's big league," he said in an interview, one will become a competent director, and the rest will become part-time singers or just plain housewives.

LACK FULL EDUCATION

In all his 18 years in Toronto, Geiger-Torel has had only two pupils in his own specialty, opera production and direction.

The main reason, he says, is that Canadian opera hopefuls haven't the dedication or the opportunities he had as a student in Frankfurt, Germany, in the 1930s.



"There is so much to learn —theatre history, staging, English, philosophy, history of fashion—the list is endless. I had to learn all these things . . . there simply weren't enough hours in the day."

Now 58, Geiger-Torel was trained as a conductor as well as a director, although he has not taken the podium for several years.

He attended opera school in Frankfurt and became assistant to the stage director of the city's opera house, Lothar Wallerstein, who was later stage director of the Vienna State Opera, Milan's La Scala and the Metropolitan Opera of New York.

SUCCESS CAME EARLY

Geiger-Torel's first professional success came long before he graduated from the school, when he was 16.

HIRES TALENT, NOT DRAWING CARDS—Herman Geiger-Torel, the man responsible for the Canadian Opera Company, hires his stars for their acting and singing ability in specific operas, not just as names to swell the box office receipts. And his stars must put in three weeks of rehearsals before the public performance. Geiger-Toral, a German, is a conductor as well as a director, but he hasn't taken the podium in several years. (CP Photo).

At a hospital benefit concert, the stage director failed to arrive. The young student had to present the finale of Wagner's Die Meistersinger and at the same time conduct a mixed orchestra of high school students and professionals from the Frankfurt municipal opera.

He later went to South America and became stage director of opera houses in Buenos, Uruguay and Brazil during the Second World War, after which he migrated again, this time to Canada.

In 1956 he refused an offer to become the Metropolitan Opera's permanent stage director for fear that working constantly with established international stars would cramp his style.

In Toronto, however, he can insist on such rules as that for three weeks' rehearsals for the stars and no one can guess his final authority in artistic matters.

A HEAVYWEIGHT IMP

Herman Geiger-Torel looks like a caricature German, rather than a dedicated artist. Massively sized, he speaks English like the Kaiserjaum-mer Kids and always has a huge cigar in the corner of his mouth.

Above all, he is a mobile force — a kind of perfect. Whether it's joking backstage to keep away stage fright, or pressuring a Mozart opera so that critics called it "a marriage of Mozart and the Marx Brothers," he integrates artistic aims with the admission: "I loff to make people laff."

He has not hesitated to upset long-established operatic conventions in order to make stark Wagnerian operas more convincing and lively. Above all, his rule is credible casting — no fleshy-armed romantic heroines—and proper acting— no mere concerts in fancy dress.

WROTE OWN PARODY

Long before the English musical spoofs of Gerard Hoffnung (a pseudo-Lon-don's "interplanetary concert") Herman Geiger-Torel composed his own. Opera Backstage, which was produced live in Toronto and later presented on television.

In fact it was the first operatic production of Toronto's CBC television station. It made a two-week tour of Western Canada and took in more money than could have been expected from "straight opera."

In a production of La Boheme some years ago, an actor fell ill and Geiger-Torel took his role as the non-singing waiter in a tavern episode.

Throughout the vocal rollering, a grotesque tubby figure at the back of the stage stole the scene—and the show ers had expected something like this would happen.

At the end, when he sidled up to the actor supposed to take the tavern bill, he was pushed away. A few days later and the next, and so on round the circle. Only after he was roaring with laughter did each of them grab the bill and let him make his exit.

The following night Jan Rubes, instigator of the plot, was to pick up a hand mirror during an aria to admire himself.

There, glaring out at him, was a photograph of Herman Geiger-Torel, pasted to the glass.

Oshawa Woman Claims Son Was Punched

OSHAWA (CP)—An Oshawa woman said Wednesday her 10-year-old normally disturbed son was "punched and nearly kicked to death" in an attack at the Ontario Hospital school at Smiths Falls, 30 miles north of Brockville.

She was demanding a full investigation into this attack," said Mrs. Adrian Van Lint, who returned from seeing her son, Paul, in a Smiths Falls hospital.

"Paul was beaten up by other children at the school last Thursday," she said. "On Sunday he collapsed and was rushed to the hospital with a ruptured spleen. He was so critically ill they gave him the last rites."

She said Paul knew he was not after the fight, "but he was no frightened in his school activities because he was frightened what the other children might do to him."

A hospital spokesman said Wednesday Paul's condition was satisfactory.

Bruce Affleck, president of the Ontario County Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, said Wednesday he also wants an investigation.

Dr. C. C. Corbett, medical director of the school at Smiths Falls, said in a telephone interview: "I do not wish to say anything about this at the moment."

New CBS Show May Take Swipe at Big Business

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — NBC's Get Smart turned into such a giant hit last season because it kidded one of television's most popular set forms, the secret-agent shows.

CBS' Run, Buddy, Run now will be aimed in the same comic direction, except that the spoof is based on TV's man-on-the-run shows such as The Fugitive.

In the forthcoming Monday night series, Buddy is a timid fellow who overhears, in the steam room of a turkish bath, some crime overlords plotting the demise of the competition. Buddy is discovered and for the next 26 shows, at least, will be on the lam.

But the way the story is developing, the series also may be taking some swipes at a more sensitive subject: Big business. And with a lot of big businesses sponsoring television shows this could be as dangerous as making inside jokes about motherhood.

The show has the crime syndicate chief acting like a corporation president, deeply concerned with his written affairs, its executive plans and fringe benefits for his goons and dedicated to educating his son, junior, to step into his shoes.

TRUMPETER PLAYS BUDDY

Buddy is played by a hip-talking trumpet player named Jack Sheldon, who attracted favorable notice a couple of seasons back when he played a hip-talking trumpet player in the late, unlamented Cara Williams show.

This week Jack is involved in filming an episode in which he is hiding out as an executive in a racing stable, disguised in outsize hockey skits.

In recent weeks he has been a gas station grease monkey, a chess hop on an expensive health farm, a performing waiter (trumpet) in a night club. In the course of one adventure he fractured an elbow and wrist when a stunt misfired.

"That hung up production for a week," he said. "It would have been longer but we hunted around until we found a doc who would put me in splints. I'm tired of cats and hockey I knit fast."

Sheldon, 35, played trumpet in Stan Kenton's band nine years ago. Later he discovered he could sing and, still later, learned he could get laughs

Helen Hayes at 64 Takes On Year of Hard Work

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—I thought perhaps that theatre had changed and I was passed. How nice it is to have one's faith restored."

Helen Hayes was explaining why at age 64 she has put aside thoughts of retirement to sign on for a year with the APA Repertory Company. She has been appearing in two plays, School For Scandal and Right You Are at the Huntington Hartford Theatre and will add a Walt Whitman adaptation as she travels to Ann Arbor, Mich., Toronto and back to the company's home base in New York.

Why, after years of triumphs in the i-he-i-ro, would Miss Hayes take on such an exacting assignment?

Her main reason is altruistic: to help the APA, "which offers the best hope for the success of repertory in America."

But the experience already has reaped personal awards for her. She admitted a sense of defeatism about the American theatre and her place in it.

COULDN'T UNDERSTAND

"The whole concept of the new theatre is something I could neither understand nor enjoy," she said.

"I began to feel that I was out of step. Perhaps in the process of aging I was unable to adjust to new ways. So I decided I had better try the new system myself. In doing so I managed to mesh up a number of performances."

The vehicle was The Glass Menagerie, which Miss Hayes had performed to acclaim in London and New York, when she was engaged for a state department tour of Europe in the play, the director was a member of the new subscription school. She recalled:

"He took me, 'it doesn't matter how you do something, it's what you do.' That went against all my training. I had always been taught that how you did something was of utmost importance; there are different ways of saying yes, each with a different meaning.

"But I was stuck along with him. And I was miserable. I was confused and helpless; I had no idea of what I was doing . . ."

The experience helped push Miss Hayes toward her long-cherished notion of retiring.

Miss Hayes harbored retirement thoughts until she was approached by APA after the rehearsed from a government - sponsored tour of the Orient.

"How glad I am to discover there are still dedicated actors schooled in the classic tradition," she enthused. "It restores my faith."

Five Mohawk Youths Train As Junior Forest Rangers

STENDINAGA RESERVE—Kenneth Brant and his brother Timmy, Donald Green, Murray Maracle and Terry Brant are pioneers of a unit, all Mohawk teenage members of the band of the Tyendinaga Mohawks, and are among the 16 Indian boys selected by the Department of Lands and Forests of Ontario to be employed as Junior Forest Rangers for the two summer months. Until now only white boys have had the opportunity.

The 18 Indian boys joined with white boys to report at the new Bruce Peninsula Junior Forest Ranger camp on July 4, and their training and employment will end August 26. Meanwhile they are learning a great deal, listening to talks on conservation and the activities of the Department, and have free use of a sauna. They are earning $4 a day, with free housing and food. In other years a number boys have gained as much as ten pounds in weight in the eight weeks.

They are taught how to build clear camp sites, clear debris from bathing beaches and brush from roadsides, and to pick up litter, help with setting out tree seedlings and fight forest fires.

As part of the program they are visiting lumber, pulp and paper and forest industries in the vicinity.

The program was begun officially by the Department 62 years ago and has expanded rapidly. This year 1,000 Ontario youths are working, learning and playing in the 17 Junior Forest Ranger camps operated in the districts. The number was increased by 249 this year. Most of these camps run 24 youths, although the number varies, according to a news release of the Department.

Man Charged With Blocking Road Traffic

NAPANEE — Magistrate G. R. Runciman of Gananoque presided over the court in Napanee Tuesday, in the absence of Magistrate R. C. Jackson, who is on vacation. County Crown Attorney J. S. Stewart of Belleville was acted for County Crown Attorney K. S. Ham, who has not yet taken up his full duties since his severe illness.

James Moore of R. R. 3, Collins Bay, was charged with unlawfully blocking traffic on Highway 33, and was remanded for trial until August 30. The incident occurred in connection with his actions while on the picket line near the C.I.L. plant in Millhaven.

There were a number of cases in court with breaking the Highway Traffic Act. Kenneth Mahaffy of R. R. 3, Bath, was fined $50 and costs for careless driving. Gerald Alfred Harrow of Newmarket pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving, must pay $50 and costs, and lost his right to drive for six months. Fireman Arthur Enterprise did not appear to answer a charge of careless driving, but the case was heard in absentia, and he was fined $50 and costs. Ira McFarland of R. R. 3, Napanee, denied having assaulted Jack Brett, also of Napanee. The case was found guilty and was placed on suspended sentence for three months.

Leak in Main Reduces Water Pressure

NAPANEE — Water pressure in the west end of Napanee was reduced to a mere trickle Tuesday when a broken water main and leak in an old service line leading under Dundas St. and into the Napanee Hardware Store, near Eaton's Order Office.

The leak was reported to the Waterworks Department Tuesday morning when water seeped through paved road and began running down the street. Trouble was encountered when the main service stop, by which the water could be shut off to the store, only, was found to be faulty, and the water had to be shut off completely for an hour or so until this was repaired.

Mr. Gerald Day, with Mrs. Day, Janice and Billy will be moving to an apartment on Robinson St.

32,000 Attend Two Concerts By Beatles

TORONTO (CP) — Britain's mop-haired Beatles fly to Boston today after two performances here Wednesday in a supersonic but less - than - capacity crowds.

The quartet drew 15,000 to a matinee performance and another 17,000 to an evening show. Total attendance fell about 4,000 short of capacity at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Police said Wednesday's matinee performance on daily and treated my teen-age girls. Fifteen were sent to hospital with severe cases of hysteria. Officials said casualties were less than in previous visits by the group.

EXPLAINS HAIRDOS

The Beatles also held a press conference, and once again, their long hairdos were the controversial remark about the Beatles being more popular than Jesus.

Lennon said he likes the "basic idea" of Christianity and recommends it to anyone.

But George Harrison may have started another turmoil with comments which could lead moral support to draft-dodgers.

Harrison, asked about the war in Viet Nam, replied:

"Thou shalt not kill means that—not annul section A. We all just don't agree with — any reason whatsoever. People have a right not to go into — army."

Hard to Understand Fantastic Enthusiasm for Works of Mao Tse-Tung Says Student

In the following story, Per Kronvall, 19, a Swedish student journalist, reports some of his observations and experiences during a recent month-long stay in China with a Swedish educational project.

By PER KRONVALL
Written for The AP

It is hard to understand the fantastic enthusiasm in Communist China for the works of Mao Tse - tung. Newspapers there are filled with stories about people all over the world reading the writings of Mao.

The Paris correspondent for the Peking People's Daily reported that a group of Chinese students in the French capital was asked by a French youngster for a picture of Mao and inquired in his story whether this was not going to be used. It was only a question of time before the French would begin to study (Communist party) chairman Mao's works.

In Pakag I met a New Zealander, Revi Allery, who took part in the revolution and has been in China since 1926. I asked him what Mao's works had done for the Chinese people.

"Very much good," said the lad done for the Chinese people.

Zealander.

It is hard in writing he gives examples of how you should look at your work, he explained. Mao has said something about how people get certain working spirit that they need, he added.

Mao's words about how people get certain working spirit that they need, he added.

He gave an example: The wife of a brigade leader in Shensi complained that her husband was never at home to play with the kids and that his salary was just as high as everybody else's. She refused to mend his clothes and he always got cold feet when he came home late. Then she got a copy of Mao's works, started to read them, and realized that she had been unjust to her husband. So she went and mended all the holes for him, repaired some of his old working clothes.

Later, on a train to Shanghai I talked with a passenger, an old man. He told me, through a Chinese engineer who acted as an interpreter, that before the liberation he was a rickshaw driver, but then the day came when he was told that he should study books in night school.

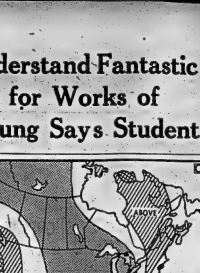
"You can't imagine how it is to burn the torture instrument that you have used for years," the old man said. "Now I am going on a train and I have been allowed to spend some time with my son. He is one of the harbor captains in Dalian. As a rickshaw driver, he would have been a rickshaw driver, a coolie, and have very little good. Thanks to Chairman Mao, he has a good job and a good life in the world."

LIVE DIFFERENTLY

Chinese youths also live a different life from ours. They inherited a big brick house, once belonging to an English bishop, which had been turned into a "children's palace" where members of the Communist Youth League, KSU, assemble after school. I was met by applauding children, ages 7 to 18. Inside the house the first things that met my eyes were slogans and political inscriptions, anti-American and anti-imperialist, and of course, Mao sayings. I entered a modest room on the ground floor was a device training the children to shoot down American planes. I tried myself and found it difficult.

Upstairs I was taken into a room where little girls about 16 or 12 danced and sang songs about Mao. We'd like to Grandpa You, L. B. Johnson and Thank Chairman Mao, for the Electric Light.

"The children are so keen on reading Mao Tse-tung's works," my guide told me?



"Be serious, children at that age read books on historical analysis," I said. "I've read it in translation, and it can scare you. But it's no reading for a kid of 11 or 12 years old."

"Do you want to ask one of the children?" my guide asked me.

Even though I knew what the answer would be I asked a girl, through my translator:

"Well, how do you like chairman Mao's works?"

She said, she thought they were very interesting and enlightening and she had read them for three years.

Government Deflationary Measures Seem to Be Biting

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government's massive deflationary measures announced last month seem to be biting. Fear of the cost of jobs, particularly to the export-winning automobile industry.

Thousands of workers have been warned their jobs are in jeopardy while hundreds have already been laid off.

Government hopes that the measures would bring to restore overseas confidence in the pound sterling also appeared to be justified.

The pound was officially quoted in New Wednesday at $2.7894 (U.S.) compared with $2.7872 before the July 20 crisis.

The markets for cars, radio and television—now subject to higher down - payments and shorter repayment periods were the first to be hit.

In nearly all cases, management laying off workers have given as one of the reasons reduced demand following restrictions on credit.

Wednesday, the giant Vauxhall Motors, the English subsidiary of General Motors, posted notices warning 20,000 workers at one factory and 2,000 at another that redundancies and short-time working are possible.

"The government's economic measures, in conjunction with previous measures, present a more formidable load of restriction than could have been forecast," the management said.

Ford, which already has cutback and eliminated overtime, hoped to avoid a short-time working week by stockpiling cars in anticipation of the traditional spring demand.

The biggest British groups —Rootes and British Motor Corporation—were not at present contemplating redundancies or short-time working.

A company which manufactures bodies for the prestige Jaguar Mark-X car plans to halt production for a month "in anticipation of the possible effect of the credit squeeze." But other than the factory have been found for the staff affected.

Two hundred workers at the radio and TV assembly factory of the Rank Bush Murphy group in Chiswick, northwest England, were warned to seek other work before the factory closes a planned dismissal.

Although an internal reorganization is partly responsible for the closure, it was admitted the credit squeeze had reduced the level of demand.

More than 200 workers at the Belfast, Northern Ireland, aircraft factory of Short Brothers and Harland were being paid off following a run-down of orders for aircraft.

Ontario County MOH Fired By Committee

OSHAWA (CP) — Dr. Margaret Braund, medical officer of health for Ontario County has been dismissed by the county health unit committee.

W. H. Gould, warden of the committee, told a meeting of Ontario County council that Dr. Braund's doctors' qualifications cannot be questioned but it was the opinion of the health unit committee that Dr. Braund did not have the co - operation of her staff.

"It had been proven to us and reconfirmed that the staff had a lack of confidence in the MOH. This is why we are asking the provincial minister of health to dismiss her."

Dr. Braund, dismissed Monday, her $16,000 a year job by a letter, said in an interview Wednesday: "I am staying at my desk until the dismissal is ratified by the health minister. The health unit committee does not have the authority to fire me."

She said she had the co-operation of her staff except for two employees.

"My impression is that I haven't is completely false."

8th Tyendinaga

8th TYENDINAGA — Mr. Earl Wannamaker, a former minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Roslin, now at Stonewall, Manitoba, conducted the service in Roslin Presbyterian Church Sunday evening.

Miss Donna Cross and Duane Bolderick returned home from Belleville General Hospital on Saturday.

Difficult Days Lying Ahead For Erhard

By LIONEL WALSH

BONN (Reuters) — Difficult days lie ahead for West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, target of a new wave of criticism of his leadership, as he snatches an uneasy vacation in Bavaria.

West Germany faces serious economic problems unless the chancellor's package of stabilization laws gets a rapid passage through parliament.

The first Bundestag (lower house) reading of the austerity legislation, the main provisions of which limit borrowing by the federal states and local authorities, is set for Sept. 26.

The government hopes the package can be enacted by the beginning of next year at the latest, since the success of the current British economic plight is being dangled before the country as a warning of what could happen unless firm measures are implemented quickly.

Erhard's popularity and his clear are the very symbol of West Germany's post-war rise to material well-being, and he prepares to ram through economies and fight for the stabilization laws, his own prestige is at stake.

SUFFERS REVERSE

His political strength already has been shown by the major electoral reverse at the hands of the Social Democrats in state elections in Rhine Palatinate-Hesphalia. New tests at the polls in elections in Hesse and Bavaria will come in the fall.

Constitutional changes, requiring a two-thirds Bundestag majority, are also linked to the stabilization laws, and support from the opposition Social Democrats is therefore essential.

While they are unlikely to want to obstruct legislation in the national interest, the political opportunism, Social Democratic leaders have their own plans about how to get effective remedies and have promised to press them.

The chancellor's current difficulties are being increased by a new wave of criticism of his leadership from within the ranks of his own supporters in the Christian Democratic party and the minority coalition partners, the Free Democrats.

Rainer Barzel, Christian Democrat floor leader and deputy chairman of the party, this week joined Mr. Strauss's open publication of a letter to Erhard complaining the government is drifting without direction.

NOTES PESSIMISM

Barzel—named by many as a future chancellor — noted increasing political pessimism and said the mood would continue as long as the government demanded sacrifices without explaining what they involved.

Backing Barzel's assessment of the mood of mood were reports this week of a drop in general support for the government's party coalition from 44 next an increase in dissatisfaction to 36 per cent from 26.

Hold Canada's Most-Wanted Man

All Trains Run Despite Walkouts

Massive Manhunt Continues

LONDON (AP)—Fears grew at Scotland Yard today that sacked Harry Roberts may have laid a series of false trails to elude hundreds of armed police seeking him in the brutal murder of three London policemen.

As dawn broke on the seventh day of the massive manhunt, lines of policemen with dogs reserved their search of Epping Forest for any trace of Britain's most wanted man.

Roberts, a onetime army sniper in the jungles of Malaya, was known to be carrying two revolvers, a rifle and a bag of ammunition. The public was warned he might shoot it out if cornered.

Tips that the 30-year-old fugitive was hiding somewhere in the 4,000-acre forest on London's eastern fringe came to Scotland Yard from underworld sources and a mystery woman in police custody.

The woman told detectives Roberts disappeared into the forest Monday after going there by bus with Mrs. Rose Gooch, a hotel.

But Scotland Yard now was tormented by these doubts:

Did Roberts just want police to believe that story while he took off elsewhere? And how many of 100 other reports on his supposed whereabouts were inspired by him or his friends?

In the last 24 hours Roberts has been reported in dozens of different places throughout the country.

Former Bell Man Held for Wiretapping

MONTREAL (CP) — Harry Lake, 36, of Cabano, Que., a former wa sent Thursday for voluntary statement Aug. 23 on charges of tapping the telephone's business telephone and intercepting six messages of Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.

Lake, who left a job with Bell Telephone two years ago, was arrested Aug. 10 while apparently working for a private detective agency.

MONTREAL (CP) — Union and company spokesmen were in disagreement today as to how many men have actually joined the wildcat walkout of non-operating railway employees at three Montreal yards. One Outremont depot is also affected.

Picketers set up their lines early today and union officials said some 2,200 men were involved. Spokesmen for the CNR and CPR said only "a few" men were staying off work and that rail service has not been affected thus far.

CN spokesmen admitted, however, that the number of local freight deliveries was reduced Thursday. The freight involved, however, was in small quantities.

Some 150 electricians and mechanics at the CPR's Angus shops joined the 1,200 men the union said were already striking at the CNR's Pointe St. Charles yards and 300 men at the Bonaventure yards on Pointe St. Charles yard employs 3,000 men.

The 1,500 men at the Pointe St. Charles yard are mainly warehousemen, truckers, repairmen, laborers and clerks. A CNR spokesman said the remaining men could keep trains running indefinitely.

SPREADS TO ONTARIO

At Windsor Ont., about 140 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Rail, Transport and General Workers walked off the job Thursday. At Toronto the CNR said about 30 day-shift employees walked off and 20 night-shift employees did not report for work.

Strikers at the Montreal yards belong to either the CBRT or the seven unions affiliated with the shop craft bargaining unit of Canada Labor Congress — operating railway employees.

They jumped the gun on union leaders who will meet in Montreal today to set a date for a country-wide railway strike following tabulation of results of a mailed strike vote of the membership. Speculation is that the strike date will be either Aug. 29 or Sept. 4.

COMMITTEE MEET

Meanwhile, a special cabinet committee met in Ottawa Thursday for three hours to discuss the labor dispute. It was a follow-up to informal talks held between Prime Minister Pearson-railway union leaders, Transport Minister Pickerrgill and Labor Minister Nicholson.

Labor Minister Nicholson was scheduled to fly to Vancouver for a labor management this weekend and his office said he did not expect to return to the capital until Monday.

France to Bar Foreign Troops From Its Soil in Peacetime

WASHINGTON (AP)—The de Gaulle government has told U.S. diplomats it will not, after low American military forces back on French soil in peacetime.

This is part of what Washington sources described today as a tough position taken by the French government in negotiations following its eviction notice against North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces on French territory.

The United States is in the process of moving out its troops and equipment in line with the de Gaulle order of divorcing France from NATO's integrated military system. Canada also is moving its NATO bases out of France.

Still pending are final arrangements on such items as the NATO installations in France, including the pipeline which carries oil from the British channel to U.S. forces in Germany, overflight rights and radar warning systems.

The general U.S. position is that some of the NATO facilities in France should be kept up for emergency use so that if war does occur, they will be ready immediately.

U.S. Ambassador Charles Bohlen was reported to have met with Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville twice to discuss the French position. They have another meeting scheduled for next month.

The only circumstance under which the Americans could return would be in the event of alliance of it including disagreement with the small number of U.S. technicians who supervise the quality of the oil entering the line.

The U.S. sources said no dispatches have been held yet about the French radar warning system which remains integrated into the general NATO network.

On overflight rights, Paris was reported continuing to grant, on a month-by-month basis, permission for Allied planes to use French air space.

Camera Trouble May Delay Choice of Moon Landing Site

PASADENA, CalM. (AP) — Space Agency officials say the lunar surface has even been a more troubles which could delay the U.S. program to find safe surround landing sites on the moon.

The problem showed up Thursday in pictures taken by a high resolution lens as the 850-pound spacecraft swept over a broad plain on the far right edge of the lunar disc.

Clifford Nelson, Lunar Orbiter project manager, said: "If the problem is permanent, it could have a serious impact on the mission. We might have to re-fly the mission"— wait until another Lunar Orbiter can be launched—before we can get the close-ups we need of the sites selected as possible landing areas for Apollo astronauts."

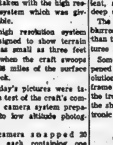
Nelson earlier had said the trouble appeared to be in ground equipment which converts spacecraft pictures into television images. He had denied a report the trouble was in the spacecraft, saying technicians had told him pictures received were only trending station were excellent.

Later, Nelson said the technicians apparently had been looking at medium resolution instead of high resolution pictures.

The Space Agency early today released a medium resolution picture from the third frame snapped by the spacecraft at a height of 135 miles over the Mare Smythii (Smyth's Sea).

The picture showed a part of the flat maze and some of the highlands rimming it. Both the sea and the highlands were pocked with craters and appeared much like terrain features photographed by earlier Ranger spacecraft.

The pictures came in strips which were pasted up to assemble a complete photograph.



A spokesman said craters and promontories as small as 100 feet across could be detected in the picture. One of the craters was about 2½ miles in diameter with a large peak in its centre.

The Space Agency did not immediately release a pulled-up picture taken with the high resolution system which was giving trouble.

The high resolution system also designed to show terrain details as small as three feet across when the craft swoops within 36 miles of the surface next week.

Thursday's pictures were taken as a test of the craft's complicated camera system preparatory to low altitude photography.

The camera snapped 20 frames, each containing one high resolution and one medium resolution picture.

Nab Lemay For Bank Burglary

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Federal agents rearrested Georges Lemay, sought internationally in connection with a spectacular Montreal bank burglary, as he emerged from the men's room of a downtown gambling casino today.

The Montrealer had been the object of an international manhunt since his daring escape from a supposedly escape-proof jail in Miami, Fla., last year.

Three agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation walked into the Golden Nugget Casino at 1.30 a.m. to make the arrest while eight or 10 other agents were deployed in the area outside.

Lemay, 41, offered no resistance and was not armed, agents under the Las Vegas FBI chief, Dean Rieco, reported.

The agents identified themselves to Lemay and he said he was Robert Palmer, the FBI said. He then was taken into custody and hustled to Clark County jail.

Lemay and his wife, arrested later at their motel home here, were held in the maximum-security section of the jail, a federal holding cell guarded by special garde, said sheriff's Lieut. Bill Wittz.

Reporters were told the two would be arraigned later in the booking office, without being taken out of the jail.

Wittz said the FBI got word that Lemay was in town and tipped a number of persons, including security agents at the Golden Nugget. The latter notified the FBI this morning that Lemay and even Lemay in the casino and the arrest followed.

PUBLICITY PHOTO

Lemay's photograph had been widely published by police agencies, including an international telecast of the picture in May, 1965.

When arrested he was not wearing eyeglasses but had his head shaved. He was wearing a yellow sports shirt and dark brown trousers.

He had been sought since Sept. 21, 1965, when he made a daring escape from the Dade County jail in Miami. He had been captured there in May, 1965.

Lemay told agents here where he was living and they went to a motel room and arrested his wife, Lise, 20.

Both were sought by the FBI in charges of violating the state flight to avoid prosecution for conspiracy to bribe based on several warrants issued Sept. 20 and Sept. 27, 1965, at Miami.

HAS $100 BILLS

Lemay and his wife had reportedly $12,000 in U.S. and Canadian currency, including most of it in $100 bills, the FBI said.

Lemay and his wife were confined in the Clark County jail, Las Vegas, and will be arraigned later today before U.S. Commissioner Angus G. Blad.

LACKED CLUES

Except for a vague report that a man and woman "fitting the description" of Lemay and his tiny brunette wife had been seen at Opelika, Ala., not a clue had been reported of

MiG Shot Down in Dogfight

By MICHAEL NEALE

SAIGON (Reuters) — An American F-105 Thunderchief Thursday shot down a Communist MiG-17 fighter in a short dogfight over North Viet Nam, the U.S. military command reported today.

It was the 13th MiG aircraft reported downed by U.S. planes in the month, documented in mid, and the first downed by an air force Thunderchief.

The skirmish took place about 25 miles north of Hanoi when two MiG-17s attacked a flight of four Thunderchiefs. One of the U.S. planes scored a direct hit with 20-millimetre cannon fire. The other Communist aircraft fled.

The spokesman said U.S. pilots Thursday tangled with MiGs in another encounter — the fourth in two days—in the same area north of the North Vietnamese capital. But no planes were downed.

The pilots Thursday reported destroying a railway yard near Than Hoa, about 10 miles south of Hanoi.

TWO PLANES DOWN?

The North Viet Nam news agency claimed two U.S. planes were destroyed over the north Thursday, bringing the total to 1,348. U.S. figures show 341 U.S. aircraft destroyed in raids over the north since August, 1964.

Scattered ground action was reported in South Viet Nam. Government forces Thursday reported killing 121 Viet Cong in four separate engagements and described their own casualties as light.

Australian troops fought a four-hour jungle battle with a battalion of Viet Cong — about 600 men — Thursday and reported they killed 192. The Australian battalion reported they suffered seven casualties in the battle 42 miles southeast of Saigon.

Papp Returns and Story of Sub Trip Under Official Scrutiny

MONTREAL (CP) — The RCMP is investigating the story of Joseph Papp, 30, the Hungarian - born refugee who have accused the Atlantic to an atomic - powered home-made submarine.

Appearing tired and somewhat shaky, Mr. Papp arrived in Montreal Thursday aboard an Air France jet from Paris He was whisked away to a different office for questioning by RCMP and Montreal detectives. The interview lasted 90 minutes.

Earlier, as the tall, lanky man walked down the passenger ramp from the jet, Montlona Pap broke through a line of 50 reporters for a dramatic, tearful reunion with her husband

"The truth remains to be seen," one of the RCMP officers said jovialy after the police officers.

Asked what the police wanted from Mr. Papp, the officer said: "You've a reporter. You tried to ask him the same questions as we did."

He declined to say whether Mr. Papp gave the police the same story as he did the reporters; that he had greased the Atlantic and with his wife, price "sank under the sea."

Mr. Papp had been reported missing from the Montreal home Aug. 10. The RCMP said they have tentatively identified Joseph Papp as a passenger aboard a Europe - bound commercial airliner the same day.

The RCMP said it was not on his own way" to build the 30-foot home submarine, said at the airport that "the secretary of state (Judy LaMarsh) called me with some personal advice from Ottawa today (Thursday)," declined further comment.

Sooner or later a man reaches his "B" period — baldness, bridgework, bifocals and bulge, this because sucker grows is a government affair," he said.

The Montreal detectives, who identified themselves as being from the missing persons squad, said they talked to Mr. Papp for a "routine check." They said no one had made a missing person report on the skipper.

Asked who ordered their investigation, the RCMP declined comment.

Sam di Biase, foreman of the masonry yard where Papp was employed, who helped in "mixing the cement" to build the 30-foot submarine, said at the airport that "the secretary of state (Judy LaMarsh) called me with some personal advice from Ottawa today (Thursday)," declined further comment.

Jamaican Politician Maintains Subversion Behind Crime Wave

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Police today increased their patrols in the slum sections of Kingston, where violence erupted last week. Political leaders charged gangsters with arms from abroad were behind the outbreak.

Strengthened by reinforcements from rural areas, police made six raids in the area of Western Kingston — scene of clashes between rival political gangs—searching for firearms and wanted men."

One man was arrested Thursday. Another, ambushed and shot by three men, died in hospital.

Apart from these raids, all was reported quiet in the area which during the last seven weeks has been the scene of sporadic shootings and hotings by gangs.

Neither the ruling Jamaica Labor party nor the opposition People's National Party have issued statements following a broadcast by Edward Seaga, Jamaica's minister of development and member of Parliament for Western Kingston.

In li he charged foreign guns, not of British or American origin, were being brought in and black - masked men were seen in the area.

Seaga accused the PNP of distributing pistols and said: "Each time (arms arrive in Jamaica) a well known PNP politician goes away to Cuba, amongst other places." Cuba is 90 miles south of Jamaica.

The gangsters wear black coats and masks, stick revolvers in their belts, parade the area openly with weapons day and night—and shoot liberally at any politically suspected passer-by, Seaga said.

"If Jamaicans believe that this revolver politics only, they are mistaken. There is a liberal dose of subversive content. The aim is the overthrow of the country."

Acting Prime Minister Donald Sangster also leader out in what he called "gangsters and subversives."

Three incidents have been confined to the slum areas to the west of the city.

TEACHING NEWSPAPERS — Keith MacFarlane, assistant director of the two-week newspaper-in-the-classroom workshop discusses newspaper as a teaching aid with teachers Ross Jewell, left, of Belleville, and Hayden Leaman, Moncton, N.B. 24-Hour Strike at School Construction Job Is Ended

House Votes To Cut Funds For Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives has voted to cut off funds for a multi-million dollar probe of the earth's crust after an Illinois Republican disclosed that the top contractor for the project and his family contributed $25,000 to the President's Club.

Representative Donald Rumsfeld said Thursday the funds were donated by the family of contractor George Brown between the time the House originally rejected the costly Project Mohole and the time President Johnson asked the Senate to restore it.

The Brown and Root contracting firm of Houston, Tex., holds the prime contract for Mohole—estimated by some to eventually cost as much as $365,000,000. About $95,000,000 already has been appropriated.

In his action Thursday, the House voted 208 to 39 to reject a Senate amendment that would have provided $29,700,000 to carry on the work.

FLOOR SANDING AND FINISHING

GLEN ELLIOT

120 Dufferin Ave. — 962-3660

It's back to work for the hundreds at the new Centennial High School today but others of the 24-hour strike still continue to be felt.

The strike was settled late yesterday afternoon following a meeting of union and company representatives and painter Walter MacCormack and his lawyer Robert Temple.

Workers walked off the job Wednesday afternoon protesting Mr. MacCormack's use of non-union painters on the job. Pickets paraded all day yesterday and only about a dozen of over 100 tradesmen worked on the project.

It is believed Mr. MacCormack signed a new contract yesterday with the Kingston painters' union. There is no painters' local in Belleville.

Construction superintendent Carl Larocque said today the strike hurt his chances to have 18 to 20 classrooms ready for use by September.

LOST MECHANICS

"We lost a lot of good mechanics over this," he said. "Now it's a matter of phoning around and trying to get them back."

Mr. Larocque said that good tradesmen are in great demand now and any time a strike or delay happens, many of them go to other jobs.

"I don't think we're running at over 50 per cent efficiency today. I don't imagine we'll be much better than 75 per cent efficient by Monday either."

He said there is not a single painter on the job today.

"Our idea is to go as fast as we can to get a few rooms ready for school opening, but the balance of our program will certainly be hurt badly."

Tweed Man Fined $50 for Impairment

William Nelson Crookwright, 47, of Mackie's Street in Tweed, was fined $50 and costs on a charge of impaired driving in city magistrate's court this morning and fined $10 and costs on Crookwright had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The charge arose out of an incident June 27 when city police received a complaint from a Coleman Street resident, that two persons in a parked car were creating a disturbance. The accused and another man were questioned by police at the scene of the complaint, and a bottle partially filled with an alcoholic beverage was found on the floor of the vehicle they occupied.

Three police officers who saw the accused on the night in question testified that he was in an impaired condition, although not drunk.

Crookwright told Magistrate T. Y. Wills "I've been driving for thirty years and have never had an accident. And I sure didn't have very much to drink that day."

In passing sentence, the magistrate told Crookwright "I can't ignore the evidence of three police officers."

A conviction on an impaired driving charge also carries with it an automatic driving permit suspension of three months.

ADVENTUROUS YOUTH — Five of nine girls on a 21-day, 800-mile bicycle trip, take time out to pose for photographer in Belleville today. The Y.M.C.A. members left Elmira, N.Y. August 7, and arrived in Belleville today. They will stay in Deseronto tonight.

Nine Girl Cyclists On 800-Mile Jaunt

Youth is its own medicine.

Take the case of the eight pretteen cyclists, along with their chaperone, who passed through Belleville this morning on one leg of a 21-day, 800-mile jaunt from Elmira, N.Y.

The girls, aged 15 and 16, all Y.M.C.A. members, come from all over New Jersey. They left Dingman's Ferry, Pennsylvania, by truck August 7 and went to Elmira, N.Y.

Three days after they left, in Letchworth State Park, one of their number failed to negotiate a hairpin curve and ran into a wall. She picked up 20 stitches in her leg and had to retire from the trip.

The group travelled through Niagara Falls, Toronto and plan to be in Kingston tomorrow to cross over on the ferry boat and head back towards Elmira.

They cover approximately 50 miles a day and to date, touch have had only two flat tires.

"People have been real nice to us," one of the cyclists said. "They offer us food and a place to sleep."

We slept in a Bible school at Presqu'ile Park last night. We've also slept in a barn and a fire hall. One night we slept out in a field and it rained all night. We had to sleep under a tarp and listen to the cows mooing. It was awful."

SLEEP IN PARKS

Chaperone Mickey Smith said, "We sleep mostly in parks on the ground."

When asked what happens if it rains, she said, "We get wet."

Today they stopped in a laundromat on Dundas St. E. to do their laundry and have lunch — jam and peanut butter sandwiches.

"We eat a lot of hot dogs," one said.

They're a tired but happy lot the girls. "We had it isn't so ... so," one said. "It would be a lot more fun."

Another commented, "The drivers up here are crazy. The worst I've ever seen. They double park all over the place and in order to pass you have to go out into the other lane."

They drove through Toronto, along Queen St., during rush hour. "We made better time than the rest did," one said.

All of the girls have lost some weight on the trip. One of the girls suggested it might do some good for this portly Intelligencer reporter if he takes a bicycle trip.

And so it might — if he could find a bicycle to hold him.

Travels From New Brunswick To See Bell of Wartime Ship

How many people in this city remember the HMCS Belleville which served on convoy duty during World War II?

Probably not many in Belleville remember her, but certainly crew members do and when a New Brunswicker visits Mrs. Margaret Whelpley of St. Martin's, St. Johns County, N.B., to see Belleville's bell on display expecting to have a look at the ship's bell from the HMCS Belleville on which her husband had served during the war, she made the trip because it had been the wish of her husband, who died five years ago.

Thanks to the generosity of the people of this city during the war, the corvette bearing Belleville's name carried considerable in extra comfort equipment for the crew.

Mrs. Whelpley said that because of the additional equipment which made shipboard life more bearable, her husband had expressed a desire to come to Belleville and meet some of the people who had been so generous.

Unfortunately Mr. Whelpley died before he was able to make the trip.

But Mrs. Whelpley remembered her husband's wish and when she arrived in the city to have a look at the old ship's bell.

A check at city hall failed to determine the whereabouts of the bell and Esther Mayor of Scott Street eventually located it at the Sea Cadet Barracks on South Front Street.

But the cadet corps barracks was locked up and the commanding officer was out of the city and Mrs. Whelpley never did get to see the ship's bell, as she had to leave in the late afternoon for Ottawa.

Mr. Barrett said he would arrange to have a picture taken of the bell and forward it to Mrs. Whelpley.

The HMCS Belleville was built in Kingston and was launched in 1944 during the term of office of former Mayor W. Harry Rollins.

Additional ship's equipment, along with a plaque bearing the ship's crest, was presented to the ship by Belleville citizens.

Following the ship being de-commissioned the ship's bell and plaque were returned to Belleville. The plaque now hangs in the city hall council chambers.

Texaco Will Build Station On House Sites

Two old residential landmarks on Bridge Street at the foot of West Bridge Street hill, are going under the wrecker's hammer to make way for a new Texaco service station.

The two brick houses to disappear are the former John Shaw residence and its neighbo to the west.

Texaco will build a new service station on the site to replace the existing one at the corner of Bridge and Everett Street.

Totem Pole Carved By Man in Jail

TORONTO (CP) — Albert Thertien, 45, won't be at the Canadian National Exhibition when it opens today, but his totem pole will be.

Thertien is a prisoner for 15 days in Don Jail, convicted on a charge of drunkenness.

Jail Governor Gerald Whitehead said Thertien carved the pole during surveyed short stays in the jail. He has been in and out of the jail on drunkenness for the last 20 years.

The totem pole, consisting of six individual pieces, was carved over two months.

It will highlight the department of reform institutions' display at the CNE and later will become a permanent fixture on the front lawn of the Jail.

Thertien says the pole represents his idea of the victory of good over evil.

Thertien, an accomplished writer, painter, playwright and painter as well as a wood carver, won first prize with a painting at the 1964 exhibition.

Out of jail, he once designed a Blind River church interior. Today, he has built four totem for the jail greenhouse and designed a Chinese pavilion in the governor's back yard.

Lord Thomson Will Officially Open CNE

TORONTO (CP)—It wouldn't be opening day at the Canadian National Exhibition without someone emptied at the gates to be the first customer—and the 86th edition is no exception.

This year, Alan Johnson and Lake Madden, 13-year-old Toronto boys, pitched their tent Thursday near the Princes' Gate for the overnight wait in 65-degree temperatures.

Wilson's Economic Squeeze Begins to Pinch Where It Hurts

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—Signs of a mass emigration of young doctors to North America and the threat of unemployment in the automobile industry, mainstay of British exports, show that the world economic squeeze is beginning to pinch Britain where it hurts.

But economic experts predict there will be no recession or drop in production next year as a result of the deflationary measures introduced a month ago to soften the weighty pound on world markets.

The squeeze will "put the economy on a path of very slow growth, about one per cent a year," says the National Institute of Economic and Social Research in its quarterly economic review published Thursday.

The Institute forecasts exports will rise by five per cent in 1967, there will be a balance of payments surplus of between £250,000,000 ($720,000,000 and £300,000,000 ($900,000,000, unemployment may reach only 475,000—a much lower figure than some economists have feared.

FEARS RECESSION

A tougher assessment came from economist Sir Roy Harrod, who suggested Thursday there could well be a recession this winter arising from measures taken even before the July 20 emergency budget. He says the freeze should continue for two years to put real edge on British export competitiveness.

Meanwhile, a revolt spread in Britain's understaffed hospitals among young doctors whose pay rises, announced on May 1, have been frozen for at least six months. Many work a 100-hour week for pay averaging 22 cents an hour. The 13-per-cent pay rise would have given a junior house doctor a maximum $3,900 a year instead of the $2,310.

A young doctor in Glasgow, Scotland, is going to Canada, the United States or Australia. Many had taken out mortgages and other commitments on the strength of the expected rise and could not afford to wait even six months.

ENTIRE STAFF GOES

The entire junior staff of a new hospital in a coal-country industrial town of Swindon have also decided to quit Britain.

The threatened drain of doctors comes at a level where there already is a serious shortage in British hospitals — 46 per cent of posts for non-consultant level are held by foreign and Commonwealth doctors.

In the auto industry, workers in three companies have been told working hours may be cut in the next few months. The Vauxhall company warned that some of its 23,000 employees may be laid off.

In Belfast, 5 centre of chronic unemployment, the shipbuilding and aircraft firms of Short Brothers and Harland announced 350 aircraft workers will become redundant in November.

AUTO BUYERS FEWER

Reports from auto dealers indicate domestic demand has slumped for both new and used cars as a result of the higher minimum deposit for instalment buying — now 40 per cent instead of 25 per cent.

Demand for furniture, refrigerators and television sets has slumped for the same reason. A big trade and TV manufacturer will close a recently-opened, £400,000 ($1,200,000) assembly plant in October, throwing 300 people out of work.

The property market has been hit since banks and building societies cracked down on mortgages and overdrafts. The Sunday Telegraph reports more British houses are up for sale than at any time since the Second World War.

TRAVEL IS GOOD

The travel industry, however, expected to be hard hit by the slashed foreign currency allowance, has bounced back resiliently.

The fledgling package - tour trade to North America has suffered, but British Overseas Airways Corp. hopes the International Air Transport Association, which fixes fare levels, may approve lower fares to Canada at its September meeting. This would enable travel agents to devise attractive packages holidays to coincide with Montreal's Expo 67.

A senior official at the Canadian government travel bureau, studying a chart showing how a British tourist could spend 14 days in Canada at the $150 allowance, estimated trade from Britain would only drop by 10 per cent at the most.

Air Charter Business Is Risky Claims Nordair

TORONTO (CP) — A Montreal-based regional air carrier Thursday warned Voyageair Ltd. of Toronto it would face heavy losses if it entered the international charter business.

Voyageair has filed an application with the Air Transport Board to become the first Ontario-based international charter air carrier. It would use British turbo-prop aircraft.

Nordair Ltd., which will fly 30 transatlantic charter flights from Canada this year, said the Toronto company would lose more than $365,000 in its first year of operations.

Voyageair told a board hearing earlier this week that it expects to make a first-year profit of $540,000.

Frank Henley, Nordair operations manager, said Voyageair's estimate of costs was optimistic. He said he based his assessment on the Montreal company's costs on Nordair's experience with transatlantic charters.

PROBLEMS SIMILAR

Mr. Henley said that the problems facing Voyageair are the same as those experienced by all Canadian regional carriers —the seasonal character of the charter business.

"There is no difficulty achieving a high utilization of aircraft during the busy summer travel season, but what do you do with the rest of the year?" he asked.

Voyageair has said that the booming Toronto charter market is going to forego carriers by default because there are no Canadian aircraft to serve it.

The hearings, which began on Monday, were expected to last only one day, now are expected to continue into next week.

Other intervenors in the application are Pacific Western Airlines Ltd. of Vancouver and Wardair Canada Ltd. of Edmonton. Voyageair's evidence was completed Thursday.

Govt. Must Do More to Guide Farmers

- - Greene

OTTAWA (CP) — Government must do more to guide farmers to locate the products the computer says Agriculture Minister Greene said Friday.

The forces of efficient economics will continue to press farms into larger economic units, he said at the opening of the Central Canada Exhibition.

As a result demands on farm management will eliminate be as high as those on urban business. This trend is a fact and dependent on government policy.

"The typical successful farmer will, in the next decade or two, get his major guidance with the help of computers," Mr. Greene said.

"I believe the government is going to have to do much more than is being done at the present time in providing farmers with this kind of management guidance and help they need in the age of automation."

Parliamentary Notebook

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Delegates to two international conferences scheduled to meet on Parliament Hill in September may be out in the cold if Parliament is recalled to meet a national rail strike emergency.

But Prime Minister Pearson told a press conference Wednesday that alternate arrangements are being made to accommodate the International Labor Organization and the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association conference in the event that Parliament has to be recalled.

Both conferences planned to hold a number of meetings in the House of Commons or Senate chambers.

The ILO meeting, which will bring together about 300 people to discuss international labor problems, is to be held from Sept. 12 to 22.

EXPECT NO TROUBLE

Although conference planners said they will be disappointed if the Commons chamber can't be used, they don't anticipate too great a problem finding other accommodations. Neither do officials of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association, who's conference will bring together about 200 Canadian and foreign delegates Sept. 28 to Oct. 4.

Gerard Garneau, chief of information services for the Commonwealth meeting, said Thursday:

"All our arrangements were based on use of the House of Commons. We're now looking for alternate places to meet, just in case."

He said it probably won't be too difficult to find meeting rooms in the West Block of the Parliament Buildings or in the Chateau Laurier Hotel.

Five Navy Divers Help Hunt for Consecon Bombs

TRENTON — A group of five Navy diving specialists from HMCS Granby left flown in from Halifax to aid the Central Explosives Ordnance Disposal team of 8 Repair Depot in locating nine unexploded bombs fifteen years ago. Some of these 500-pound bombs was dropped on the Consecon bombing range. A few of these which did not explode have yet to be recovered.

The local bomb disposal team has been checking out the area since the summer of 1965, but the winter some of its work was done on the ice in Weller's Bay. This spring, the area in which indicated some of the bombs may be under water. The naval divers are, current ly checking these out at a point listed on obsolete maps as Round Island. The shifting sands of the area are constantly changing the topography of the area, and making location of the missing bombs extremely difficult.

Signs will soon point out the danger of unauthorized use of the area. A similar search was made last year by another diving team from HMCS Granby.

ACQUIT POLICE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two Windsor policemen were acquitted Thursday of assault. Constables Nell Mathieson and Ron Hebert were charged after they arrested Ernest Patrick of Windsor on a charge of creating a disturbance. Patrick was convicted.

Shoe Shine Boy to Go To Harvard

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Lee Bert, 18, has been working at the Ridgeway County Club in suburban White Plains for five years. First he was a caddy and lunkey. Now he shines shoes.

This fall he's going to Harvard.

"I just can't get over it," said Bert, a Negro, Thursday as he polished shoes in the club's locker room of the club, which has no all-white membership.

He was awarded a four-year scholarship on graduating from White Plains High School last spring. Each year, $1,200 a year, the scholarship provides, Bert will receive more than $2,000 spending money donated by members of the country club.

A cheque for $500, the first instalment of the spending money —will be presented tonight at a dinner honoring Bert, one of six children of a White Plains laborer. His mother is a housemaid.

Bert, who graduated in the top 15 per cent of his class, plans to take premedical courses at Harvard, and hopes to become a surgeon.

Cree Indians Sets Up Camps For Hunters

TORONTO (CP) — Cree Indians have set up strings of camps for migratory bird hunters and fishermen on the Quebec shore of James Bay with the help of the federal government.

Aim of the project is to boost income in the depressed area, where the fur trade has been bringing the Indians an average income of $350 to $300 a year. The Cree population has increased by 50 per cent in the last 15 years to about 2,700.

The idea of the camps came from the Indian affairs branch of the government, which thinks they may be able to double the Indians' cash income in five to eight years.

The first of the camps—for ducks and geese—opened last year and had 36 guests. This year 400 are hoped for at four locations—Fort George, Paint Hills, Eastmain and Rupert's House.

SEAL UP THE SEPTIC TANK!

THIS SYSTEM IS HEALTHIER!

This system is what health authorities in all parts of Canada have been waiting for: an inexpensive and efficient replacement for risky septic tank. It uses the same aeration principle as many municipal treatment plants, occupies about the same ground area as a septic tank, but does a far better job without constant maintenance.

The unit is sold for $625, and it has been given initial acceptance by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for homes using N.H.A. loans, low-cost home improvement loans or for conventional loans. It's the end result of research initiated by CMHC.

That Time Again

It is hard to believe, but it is coming around to that back-to-school time again.

Since which cater to the young people's needs with regard to school supplies and clothing are a reminder of the fact.

The summer break is a long one, and when early September comes around students do not display too much reluctance about returning to the routine of school life.

Certainly it should be a time of anticipation, among those who are moving into new grades, and determination on the part of all, whatever their performances during the previous term, to do better.

The need to stay in school and complete their education has been emphasized to students often enough, but it bears repeating. In today's complex world the student who graduates has a head start on those who do not.

Indeed, the future of today's school dropouts is more uncertain than at any time in the past. Society more and more is being geared to the knowledge and capability of the skilled, while the field for unskilled workers is narrowing all the while.

The watchword of every student then should be to stay in school, work hard (but allow time for recreation), and ultimately take his place among the graduates of tomorrow.

Salute Manitoba

Just as the "CN" designation on the diesels of the Canadian National Railways simply and effectively proclaims the identity of that railroad, so, too, does the red lettering the province of Manitoba uses in its advertising.

But Manitoba goes one better. The lettering is shortened or elongated as the case may be, so that the name of the province comes out in the shape of a buffalo, that hardy animal which symbolizes the strength and character of the prairies and of the mid-western regions of this continent generally.

From the traditional to the contemporary, a photograph of Winnipeg shows the impressive legislative building and includes the provincial capital as the "City of Rivers."

The "Golden Boy," atop the legislative building, symbolizes Manitoba's spirit of enterprise and youth, says the advertisement, adding: "This thriving mid-west province standing astride the historic Red and Assiniboine Rivers boasts a variety of first-class restaurants, nightclubs, shopping marts and modern accommodation. And of course no reference to Winnipeg would be complete without mention of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the Manitoba Theatre Centre.

So all power to Winnipeg, and to Manitoba at large. Out west, where the buffalo roam and the wind (to quote Canadian poet Virna Sheard) "blows over the scented grasses," and the horizons stretches away to infinity, there is vacation country aplenty. No wonder Manitoba beckons the rest of the frontier, the land of the big sky and the great unknown.

Sea Fever

Recently we wrote of people with a thirst for adventure, and referred to the exploits of a number of hardy individualists, from canoeists to flyers.

Others are carrying on the tradition, although at least one seems to have been cutting some corners. The RCMP says a Montrealer who claimed he crossed the Atlantic in a home-made submarine actually made the journey by air.

An Englishman and an American are also in the news, for legitimate feats of seamanship. Liverpool-born Francis Chichester, 59, recently completed an 81-day voyage from Colombia to Chicago. He had gone to South America to purchase two primitive fishing canoes from Colombian natives for delivery to the Chicago Natural History Museum.

Instead of shipping them, Brenton lashed them together catamaran-style, and sailed them to the United States himself, via the Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico and Mississippi River.

The American on the move, slow-boat fashion, is Alaa McConagha, 34-year-old drama critic of the Minneapolis Tribune, who has completed a 600-mile canoe trip along the north shore of Lake Superior. The trip from Duluth to Sault Ste. Marie, took 70 days, and McConagha took a week off on the way to get married. He left his canoe at Grand Marais, Minnesota, and returned to Duluth by bus for the ceremony.

At the Lakehead, McConagha had some anxious moments. Taking a short cut across Thunder Bay he encountered high winds and rough water. He clung to a buoy until the winds subsided.

Newspaper people seem to have been catching "sea fever" with some regularity of late. Last year Robert Manry of The Cleveland Plain Dealer crossed the Atlantic alone in his small sailboat Tinkerbelle. And one of four Britons now paddling across the same stretch by canoe also is a journalist.

Letter to the Editor

Sea Cadets Are A Clever Lot!

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In your paper of August 12, on page 2, you showed a picture of five Cadets up the rigging of a "brigadoon".

This is a more amazing feat than at first appears, since, if I am not mistaken, Brigadoon is a mirage, a country and also a bridge in Scotland. Truly, modern youths are an accomplished lot.

The first Brigadoon, after which the musical was named was immortalized by Burns in his poem "Tam O'Shanter". It is the spot where Tam's mare lost her tail as Tam entered home after a session in the pub at Ayr one night.

I think the word your reporter wanted, to describe the St. Lawrence is "schooner" — a two-masted vessel with square-sailed fore-mast and fore and aft mainmast.

St. Lawrence II, the Sea Cadet training ship, is named for the first St. Lawrence, also built in Kingston. She was a 93-ton three-decker man-o-war, launched in September 1814.

Your Belleville readers might be interested in knowing that the antique-design sails for St. Lawrence II were, I believe, made in Belleville by sailmaker Charles Keeble.

Alice Douglas, Napanee.
(Editor's note: The word our reporter was reaching for was indeed "brigantine".)

Hypocrisy
Robert Fleman in The Daily Express, London

America has been, and is giving many great things to mankind. But it seems a nerve for Americans to hold up shocked heads at the Beatles when, week in, week out, America is exporting to us—in the form of certain books, slavering singers, and phoney charlatan art—a subculture that makes the Beatles seem like four stern old churchwardens.

To Your Good Health

Instantaneous Sleep Plagues Some People

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have never seen anything in your column about narcolepsy. It seems that little is known or revealed concerning it. I am 39 and have been troubled with it to the extent of wrecking three cars and I didn't even know about it. I was 20 when I noticed the first symptoms. — D.M. cured.

It's true that not much is known about narcolepsy. It is a disorder of a person's sleep pattern. He can fall asleep instantly while talking, driving or even walking.

It corresponds to falling into a light sleep and the patient feels refreshed — if he hasn't had an accident in the meantime.

These attacks of sleep vary from day to day, sometimes not at all. Sometimes and in some people they may occur as often as four or five times a day and more often to men than to women.

Yet the cause simply is not known. Some investigators think head injuries or brain inflammation (encephalitis) may have laid the groundwork.

Different phases of an attack are possible, sometimes just sleepiness, sometimes complete weakness and at times even hallucinations.

I've mentioned narcolepsy occasionally, but frankly I've never known how many people cared. There is even disagreement as to its prevalence. Some doctors believe it is rare; others feel that it is not, provided symptoms are properly analyzed.

However, other causes of fatigue and sleepiness should be considered. Among them are underactive thyroid; sudden lowering of blood sugar; epileptic attacks; sympathetic (brain) excessive obesity; use of drugs, the consideration of sedatives or tranquilizers with alcohol being important and dangerous.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it quite certain that all of these possibilities have been eliminated, then there is hypnotism. Treatment is by drugs of a stimulating nature, or the amphetamines or sphedrine types, for example. And in some cases attacks of narcolepsy may cease spontaneously — and we don't know, why, any more than we know why they start.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does sex activity cause after pregnancy? If so, I think Mother Nature is sadistic. I am 30 and haven't had a period in a year. Now that I don't have to worry about pregnancy, I am disappointed that my sex drive is gone. My husband is very virile. Can you help me? — E. G. S.

It is quite common for the sex drive in women to increase because of the joint you mentioned, no further fear of pregnancy. However, a very strong emotional element is involved. My suspicion is that somebody you got the idea implanted in your head that sex drive might decline. So it did. Believing that the drive does not stop then, and knowing that Mother Nature isn't sadistic, may be all that you need.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can one get diarrhea from a overdose of thyroid? — M. E. R.

Loose or frequent bowel movements can result from an overactive thyroid gland, and likewise from an excessive dosage of thyroid substance. The dose you specified is extremely small, so I would question whether it is a factor in your case. If the thyroid substance is indeed bothering you, you are unusually sensitive to it.

Dawson City's Oldsters Have Fun

Athel Retallack in The Whitehorse Star

The Gaslight Follies is playing to consistently big houses at the Palace Grand Theatre in Dawson City this summer, but this week they put on a show for the people, and never were they more aware of the significance of their respective talents in transformation processes.

Their stage was a corridor in St. Mary's hospital. Some were bedridden, some blind, others in wheel chairs. There was no loud applause or whistling, yet it was the most emotion-provoking hour any actor or entertainer ever spent.

The Follies cast donned their gayest costumes and went down the hospital corridor, stopped on the bank of the Yukon River, the unchanging stream which provided most members of the audience to the Klondike many years ago, on rafts or steamboats.

The slender girls, wearing the sweeping gowns of 1898, the high-buttoned fancy-laced boots, and 15-year-old dancer topped off a bright rhythm on the floor, the Irish tear or song songs that brought back memories to the nine men in one woman who came here more than a half-century ago.

John Kerbo, 96, and Tom Barnett, 96, were in wheel chairs, but their handsome old faces brightened and only their canes the effort it took to raise in applause frail hands that had once wrestled sled dogs, straightened shovelled gravel and mucked stores, built choice homes and were respected in every bar in Dawson.

John Kerbo, who had come down the Yukon on a raft in 1897 and landed on the beach near where the hospital is now, said at first he was too tired to leave the bed, but when singer Peter Kelly responded to a below voicer coat and emerald satin waistcoat and tie, introduced himself and said he would sing Danny Boy, Mr. Kerbo asked for a wheel chair.

John Peel Bites the Dust

BBC London Letter

Another myth exploded.

That famous English huntsman, John Peel, never wore a "coat as pink" as described in the celebrated song.

This was clear, said W. I most Rodgers in a recent BBC broadcast, from details found in the Cumbrian character now coming to light, 113 years after his death. This was the son of a long chase by a firm of tailors in Wigton, in the heart of Peel's country, who used an old sketch of the huntsman for a trade-mark, and one of these bore the only original oil painting of Peel known to exist. There were in scarlet of course, but they had been painted after his death, and some by artists who had never seen him.

It was a hide-and-seek hunt that lasted for years. But the original painting was found in and although recently auctioned at Sotheby's to another buyer, at the time of writing the Wigton tailors are said to be still in hot pursuit. The artist was John Woodcock Graves, a wool-weaver who left Wigton to live in Peel's home village and became a drinking fanatic follower on all his fox-hunting forays "with his pockets full of corn in the morning." The search had brought to light many fresh details concerning Peel's life.

"Far from being the social country huntsman of recent red coat, well-groomed horse, and comfortably furnished pack of hounds," said Rodgers, Peel was "Peel always hunted on foot. He wore a homespun coat of hodden grey, hunted a pack of tough, shaggy fell hounds, and often went out with barely a handful of followers."

When Peel died in 1854, his pack of hounds was dispersed, and only two people remembered him. His artist friend, Graves, went then living in Tasmania. He wrote the song, John Peel, but it became popular only after it was rewritten — and set to the tune known today — after the deaths of both Peel and Graves.

Strictly Personal

The Newsman's Nightmare

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The recent death of Deems Taylor, the composer and critic, recalled to me a story he told about when he first became the music critic for a New York newspaper. The story has since been repeated in every newsroom in the country, as an example of the "waste of specialists" on papers, who have had no previous news training.

This is how the assistant editor called Taylor at home after the premiere of the opera one evening, and learned that the prima donna had taken curtain call in her hotel room, and that of course the performance had been a success.

He returned home and went to bed, but was awakened at 4 a.m. by his enraged editor. "Every other paper in town has your specified in extremely small, so I would question whether it is a factor in your case. If the thyroid substance is indeed bothering you, you are unusually sensitive to it.

moned to the office of his publisher, the historic Frank Munsey. "I have had a telephone call from Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish," Munsey said coldly. "She has read your account of the Metropolitan premiere—and thought you might be interested to know that you have succeeded in opening half the graves in Woodlawn Cemetery!"

Taylor is now one young reporter learned that the name of the game is accuracy, and usually left off the door, no matter who subsequently becomes the insulted.

Artemus Ward, whose irresponsible sense of humor was as much a delight to him as sweet in his journalistic career, is the only newspaperman I have ever heard of who could claim such a situation. Once assigned to cover a political dinner, he failed to make it on time, and wrote a wholly imaginary account of the event — which he assumed would follow the same dull and predictable course of all such affairs.

But, owing fit the illness of the principal speaker, the dinner was cancelled at the last moment, and Ward quietly left his job and led town the next morning. A few months later, when he returned, he bumped into his editor on the street.

"Why did you leave town so suddenly?" the editor asked. Ward replied with a straight face: "I just felt I couldn't afford to be associated with such an unreliable sheet!"

Burden of the Taxpayer

Letter to the Globe and Mail

You are willing to discuss the means test.

For years I've thought that removing the means test would be a step in the right direction. It takes. But I do know that persons who by reason of age or infirmity, or both in certain cases, who need financial aid should get it, and amply, without bowing down and crawling for it. Unnecessary, do-gooder or busybody.

Today I think I know why the Canada Act was passed. The abolishing it for the poor we have abolished it for all. The temper tantrum at age 20 and then being rewarded with 70 percent of their pay for life; it Hazen, Argue drawing pension in his forties and then getting the same pension when he made a senator . . . and so on, far into our unborn kids' burden of debt.

But above all the abolition of the means test means that we don't and can't have any useful discussion of the taxpayer's burden of life support. To be one hand we assume that a man must be given a job or else we do what we assume that Johnny Canuck can and will pay the shot.

Excuse me — it's so frustrating. I know we are not ready for genuine debate. Even if people see the light of life around the bulky absurdity exposed in the papers they simply assume that the correct order of things.

Displaced Persons

Cities have me with a sense of placelessness and dizzie—the classical condition of fast traffic. Tired and saggy people in a complex swirl of frustration... Can't we do something more than give them air-conditioning.—Thomas Merton.

Little Mrs. Edith Holmes

Little Mrs. Edith Holmes, very white hair in place, tapped her cane on the floor and said no doubt was reminded of happy evenings when misery in Ontario gathered at the Holmes' log residence, and voices rang out in the same old tunes heard today.

Steamboat man "Cap" Hazen Hazelton, Rev. Richard Martin, retired Anglican priest, both blind, fitted their faces toward the voices and nodded and smiled.

After the show, the little audience was tired from the effort still excitement; they lay in their beds and talked quietly among themselves. It was an afternoon none present will ever forget.

Exchanges Expel Member

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange was joined Thursday by the Canadian Stock Exchange in Montreal in expelling R. A. Goodfellow as a member.

A TSE spokesman said that since Mr. Goodfellow held the seat for Barrett, Goodfellow and Co. Ltd., the brokerage firm will no longer be permitted to use TSE facilities.

The TSE's action, the second expulsion in its 84-year history, is effective immediately.

In 1955, Charles Scarr of Scarr, Tinkham and Co. was thrown out.

A spokesman for the firm said Mr. Goodfellow entered hospital Wednesday, adding he had been instructed to delegate powers.

In Montreal, George Crickshank, executive vice-president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, said his organizations agreed with the ruling. He said Mr. Goodfellow was expelled from the CSE under bylaws giving the CSE board of management the right to "bounce out persons rejected by the TSE."

CONCERNS TRADING

W. L. Somerville, executive vice-president of the TSE, said the expulsion followed a hearing concerning the firm's trading in shares of Associated Controls Inc. during 1964 and 1965.

The TSE board of governors found Mr. Goodfellow had "been a party to or assisted in creating an abnormal market condition in respect to the shares of Analogue."

A statement said "that in respect to certain information provided the exchange, the member attempted to mislead the board of governors and its staff in trading securities off the exchange floor, in contravention of regulations.

Barrett, Goodfellow was suspended from the TSE June 14, 1965, because of concern for its financial position after the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corp. Ltd. and a sharp drop in the price of shares of Commodores Business Machines (Canada) Ltd., which the firm held. Membership was reinstated six days later when auditors reported the firm's position exceeded TSE requirements.

PAID FOR TRIPS

Mr. Goodfellow, a director of Commodores, told the royal commission investigating Atlantic's collapse that his brokerage firm paid for four trips to Paris which he made with C. Powell Morgan, former Atlantic president.

He said purpose of the trips was to see Frank Kaftel, operator of a Luxembourg investment firm in Luxembourg, who conducted a vigorous campaign in Europe to promote sales of Analogue and Commodore shares.

The 36-year-old stock broker said his firm received about $300,000 in commissions from Mr. Morgan and his associated companies.

In May, 1965, Mr. Kaftel was described by the Ontario Securities commission as the promoter of Pontiac Petroleums Ltd., which was delisted from the TSE Dec. 8, 1964.

Exchanges Expel Member

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange was joined Thursday by the Canadian Stock Exchange in Montreal in expelling R. A. Goodfellow as a member.

A TSE spokesman said that since Mr. Goodfellow held the seat for Barrett, Goodfellow and Co. Ltd., the brokerage firm will no longer be permitted to use TSE facilities.

The TSE's action, the second expulsion in its 84-year history, is effective immediately.

In 1955, Charles Scarr of Scarr, Tinkham and Co. was thrown out.

A spokesman for the firm said Mr. Goodfellow entered hospital Wednesday, adding he had been instructed to delegate powers.

In Montreal, George Crickshank, executive vice-president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, said his organizations agreed with the ruling. He said Mr. Goodfellow was expelled from the CSE under bylaws giving the CSE board of management the right to "bounce out persons rejected by the TSE."

The TSE board of governors found Mr. Goodfellow had "been a party to or assisted in creating an abnormal market condition in respect to the shares of Analogue."

Negroes Seeking Open Housing In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Negroes seeking open housing in Chicago put 200 more their protests before 100 real estate firms in 10 neighborhoods—including one Mayor Richard D ley lives.

Five of the neighborhoods to be visited by Negro test groups have not been the object of recent marches, started by Dr. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The open-housing campaign has seen violence when civil rights marches were held in white neighborhoods. But no marches were planned today, only tests of real estate firms to see if they will sell to Negroes.

King told more than 1,000 workers Thursday night that some open-occupancy marches would be held in the future in white neighborhoods even if Chicago got a court order to prevent them. He added he would be "willing to go to jail and stay there" to back up his belief the law is wrong.

There has been no reported move by city officials to get such an injunction.

'Un-American' Committee Nears End of 'Peace' Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives committee on un-American activities hopes to conclude today its stormy investigation of groups opposing what they call U.S. aggression in Viet Nam.

Five more witnesses, left without counsel in Wednesday's exodus of lawyers following the expulsion of lawyer Arthur Kinoy, remain to be questioned.

The committee also has a raft of witnesses prepared to testify on the need to pass legislation aimed at curbing anti-Viet Nam war activities.

Thursday the committee's lone two witnesses, Stanley Nadel of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Acelola Bun Axton, to come back Nov. 15 with lawyers after they indicated they were hesitant to testify without counsel.

"If they have any reservations about testifying without counsel, we prefer to give them more time," Acting Chairman Joe Pool (Dem., Tex.) said after the session—the quietest since the hearings began Tuesday. There were no expulsions and no arrests Thursday.

Two other witnesses, Walter Teague III and Aileen Krebs, both from New York, were not in the caucus room when called to testify.

TAKE COURT ACTION

They had walked out Wednesday after Kinoy was forcibly expelled under a directive by Pool. Teague and Krebs are plaintiffs in a court action challenging the committee's constitutional authority.

Kinoy, on trial for disorderly conduct, said he would bring legal action against Pool.

Ann Landers

Found Asleep Together, Pair Resent Censure

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a grandmother who needs a more modern head than mine to figure out if I am right or wrong. Our grandson came to visit a few days ago. He brought along the girl he plans to marry, Robert is 21. The girl is 20.

We have a spare bedroom and put Robert on the cot.

This morning, after I started the coffee perking, I peeked into the library to see if Robert was up and wanted his coffee served to him. I was astonished to find the girl sound asleep beside Robert.

ANN LANDERS

I awakened them both and told them we didn't allow that sort of thing in our home. I asked the girl to go to her room. She became very uppity, called me evil-minded, and said they had been up talking until very late. She said she had simply fallen asleep.

Robert took the argument right up, insisted that they certainly wouldn't be so dumb as to try anything with grandpa and me in the very next room, and what kind of people did I think they were anyway? Robert made quite a noble speech defending their moral standards and ended up by demanding that I apologize to his girl.

What is this world coming to, Ann Landers, when a grandmother is expected to apologize to unmarried young people who are found sleeping together? Please tell me if I am wrong. — ANOTHER WORLD.

DEAR WORLD: You are not wrong. That girl had no business on the cot— either in the morning or the night before.

I doubt seriously that anything out of the way occurred, but nevertheless you owe her no apology. She owes you one for placing you in such an embarrassing position while a guest in your home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our neighbors have a swimming pool. They do something which my husband and I find disgusting. If we are super-patriotic scarebellis, please tell us. If our neighbors are wrong please tell them.

These people have a signal system to let their friends and neighbors know when they are welcome to come over and swim in the pool. They fly the American flag when guests are welcome. When the flag is not flying, that means "stay home."

The flag is not even on a pole. It is fixed to a stick which is poked into the wire mesh of the fence.

I get so worked about this that I went out and bought a book called "American Flag Facts." I read every word of it and can find nothing that says the flag should be used as a signal to tell people they can come and swim.

It is 6:30 p.m. as I write this letter and the flag is flying at this very moment. Answer soon please. — FRIENDS OF OLD GLORY.

DEAR FRIENDS: I doubt that these people are malicious. I suspect they are just ignorant.

Instead of getting your blood pressure up, I suggest that you hand these neighbors the book. Explain that you feel certain if they knew the facts they would behave differently. Try my way and I'll bet you will be surprised at the results.

Hold NDP Educational Workshops

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP)— The New Democratic Party's program can be implemented without tax-rate increases, an NDP women's educational workshop was told Thursday.

Mrs. Kenneth Bryden, wife of the MDP member of the Ontario legislature for Toronto Woodbine and a research associate at Canada's Tax Foundation, said full employment and economic growth would automatically increase tax revenues without higher rates.

She said social security services, if geared to rehabilitation of the disabled, emotionally disturbed, the prison population and other groups now a charge on the public, would also pay for themselves in time.

HAND-WRINGING

"It's time we stopped wringing our hands about where the money is coming from and got on with the job of increasing our productivity," Mrs. Bryden said.

"Investment in people is just as important as investment in plant and will pay us national dividends in economic growth and hence in sufficient tax revenues."

The workshop was also told that women should press for government - sponsored day nurseries to give young children group experience at an early age.

Much to Learn At Zoo Says Girl

PHILADELPHIA (AP) Pretty Ann Lewis, 20, is "a great elephant girl, good with gorillas, too," says Momma Hess, head keeper at the Philadelphia Zoo.

So good, in fact, that she gave up college to keep her job as a keeper especially assigned to care for baby animals.

"No, I've no regrets about not finishing college," she said. "There's so much to learn at the zoo—about people as well as animals."

Ann started work at the zoo in March, 1964.

NYLON NET HOSTESS APRON

. . . or, the ideal gift for the bride who has everything!

A black nylon net hostess apron sprinkled with a shower of sequin moons and stars.

Here is an exciting new use for nylon or tulle net. Its natural stiffness maintains a crisp, starry, crisp, stand-out effect through wearings and washings.

Ideal for the newlywed with her head in the clouds, or as a gift of appreciation for your hostess, or for your favorite bazaar convener looking for an attractive new idea . . . they sell briskly at $3.50 each.

The pictured style is an afternoon teatime apron. The net is folded double and instead of serging, for trim, small rosebuds of artificial or woolen flowers are tacked at random inside.

Old nylon net crinolines convert beautifully.

Use pinkies of satin ribbon for the sash and two rows of ribbon across the lower portion and a pretty dash of color.

The pattern for either style is available upon request — a hint in return from you would be great. Thank you all again, as ever.

UNIQUE BRIDAL SHOWER

Can you think of anything a bride would appreciate more than a pair of can-openers?

One electric, and one hand proof.

At a recent shower the large gift presented from all of us was an electric wall type model. A truly beautiful gift.

For wrapping paper the box was entirely covered with soup labels. Quite effective.

We also gave her an old fashioned straight-handled manual one.

To give glamor is due, the middle section was covered with mink (one spill mink tail is just right). Two little glamour eyes cemented into place add character to this fairy friend of any newlywed.

What a way to start housekeeping with two staunch pals such as these in the kitchen.

Successful Living

70 Miles Is Long Trip To Get a Blind Date

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Please advise me about the best way to contact a female I have never seen or heard from. My aunt tells me that near their farm are a few older single girls in their 30's who are living with their parents at home. My aunt says that these parents are kind of unhappy that their daughters are unmarried, and there seem to be no boys left to even take these girls to a dance.

I have been to quite a few dances around there, but I haven't met anything over 19 years old, and that is a 70-mile drive one way, with a half-ton older model truck.

My aunt has spoken to them of me, and says now, that my time they visit they ask why don't I come. Now, Doris, would you tell me how to go about this? Shall I first write, or go direct? Or get my aunt to tell them to come over to her home some Sunday, and I'll be there?

Also please tell me, if one introduces a female to me, what shall I say? I am in my early 30's, but still fairly dumb, as one would say. — CLUELESS ROMEO.

DEAR ROMEO — You'll draw a blank if you ever call one of them a female to her face! A girl would much rather be termed a "lady".

I favor the aunt's livingroom for a point of contact. Since she seems to be promoting this sally into romance, suggest the Sunday tea.

When introduced you say "How do you do?", with a smile. Then you plunge in and say how much you have looked forward to meeting the lady. If she likes the idea too, it should get easier from then on.

DEAR DORIS — If a boy takes you to a show, and he is at the paying booth, should one stay close or walk away when he is paying? — LOYAL READER.

DEAR LOYAL — Walk away. Look at the pictures. A girl is supposed to be unconscious of such mundane things as prices when her date takes her out.

Judge Marjorie Bowker Is Extraordinary Woman

By ANNE MASON

EDMONTON (CP)—Ask Marjorie Bowker how many setbacks are circling the earth, or how many members the United Nations has and she'll give you the latest count.

Not exactly the sort of information you'd expect from a judge but then, Marjorie Bowker is an extraordinary woman.

For the last 10 years she has set aside the 8:30-to-11:30 a.m. period every weekday—when other gals are buying coffee—for private study. It may be reading a book or report or the New York Times or researching social problems.

"I found it fatisfying, making use of these years," she says. "I never did it for any purpose."

A mother of three and the wife of W. F. Bowker, dean of law at the University of Alberta, Mrs. Bowker is a lawyer but hasn't been active in the profession since the Second World War when she looked after her husband's practice.

A native of Prince Edward Island, she became Alberta's first woman judge (there have been three women magistrates) when she was appointed to the Edmonton juvenile and family court June 1.

The appointment was an outgrowth, not of her law background, but her involvement with juvenile and child welfare. Mrs. Bowker began investigating juvenile problems when her children—Blair, now 17, Lorna, 15, and Keith, 14—were becoming teen-agers.

REPORT ADOPTED

Last year, as one of three members of a committee inquiring into adoption procedures in Alberta, she spent 12 hours a day for seven months researching and writing her 100 page report. It was worth it.

Almost all the committee's recommendations were embodied in the Child Welfare Act passed by the legislature this spring. One of the most important was the removal of religious barriers to adoption.

As a result of her investigations she became concerned about conditions on Indian reserves and with the problems of retarded and emotionally disturbed children.

Her brief to the provincial government on retardation, which she did on her own initiative, is before the provincial committee on preventive health services.

An executive member of the Edmonton Welfare Council, Judge Bowker is to publish a report soon as a member of a juvenile corrections committee.

She enjoys a busy social life, does considerable public speaking, is a member of the board of the YWCA and University Hospital and an executive member of the John Howard Society. For nine years she ran a Sunday school.

Despite her remarkably active public life, however, Mrs. Bowker remains a family woman. "Too often I've seen the results of children deprived of parental love," she says.

It's a matter of pride that none mealtime she puts away her work and the family never comes home to a "many house stacked with papers."

Marysville O.F.U. Head Impatient for Action

Hospital Board Is Elected

NAPANEE — At a meeting of the Lennox and Addington County Hospital Association held in the County Memorial building last Tuesday evening, eight officers were elected for the new Board of Governors which will come into being when the hospital is officially opened September 1st. At the same time the Hospital Association, which has administered affairs, including the building programme, will cease to function.

Work Poole, Col. H. L. Armstrong and Elburn Terrell of Napanee; Pete French of Ernestown; Bruce Finley of Camden; Reginald Chapman of North Fredericksburg, and Fred Creighton and Lloyd Woolsey of Richmond were elected for terms of either 1-2 or 3-6 months.

Under the Ontario Hospitals Act, certain members are appointed. Appointed by the county council are Wilbur Wagar of Camden and William Briscoe of Adolphustown. Dr. Ernest Rogerson and Dr. R. A. McLellan are the president and vice-president, respectively, of the local medical association, and Mrs. Ernest Bergstrome is the president of the Hospital Auxiliary. All reside in Napanee. It is expected that the members of the Board will elect a chairman before the official hospital opening. The chairman of the association is Dr. Rogerson.

The election was conducted from a slate of officers presented by a nominating committee with Lyon Grossman as chairman.

Eventually members of the board will serve for two years, with 50 per cent of the membership coming up for election each year, Mr. Grossman stated. "However, we get the rolling four of the elected governors will serve for 3-6 months and the four for 30 months," he said.

Napanee Personals

NAPANEE — Prov. Corp. A. J. Cockburn; Mrs. Cockburn, Jody, Jill and Gina, have returned after a holiday of two weeks spent camping on the shores of Lake Huron at The Pinery. Miss Ursula Blache of St. Clair Shores, Mich. returned with them to spend two weeks.

Lieut-Col. and Mrs. W. D. Graham of 46 Wentworth Road had their four grandnieces with them for a holiday this summer, the first being four cousins had been together for a longtime. They were Karen and Lynne, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. Williamson of Belleville; and Leslie Anne and Aileen, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong of Ottawa.

Mrs. Maurice Hopkins, with Susan and Tommy of the Deseronto Road, has returned from Lucknow where she spent two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Albert Aiton.

Mrs. Robert Thomson, with Jerry and Jill of Brampton, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rae Richmond of the Market Square. Lauren Richmond of Willowdale has been with her grandparents most of the summer also.

MARYSVILLE — The farmers of the Marysville area are riding their tractors in the fields now, and not on the highways, Harold Murphy, president of local 191 of the Ontario Farmers' Union, says. "But we are only hitting our time," he adds.

Mr. Murphy is impatient at the inaction. "Unless we keep moving, everything the tractor demonstrations did for us will disappear and we will be forgotten once more," he believes.

Asked what he thought the demonstrations had done for the farmer, Mr. Murphy said he thought more people than ever before were aware of his problems. They were asking questions, for example, wondering at the difference in price the farmers receive and the price they have to pay for the product in the store. "Why is the quart of milk in the bottle worth 25 cents and the farmer gets eight or ten cents or less?," is one of those questions, he says.

Members of the O.F.U. who have farms bordering the highway have started signs for the fields and these are attracting the attention of tourists, he says. "We're using what is there — something ourselves" he hopes repeating.

At a recent meeting of local 191 it was decided to go on strike in September, but this decision will depend on how far he withdrawn, he believes. It would not do much good for the small farmer to go on strike. At the district meeting last Thursday the majority of the members were for postponing this drastic action for six months, but Mr. Murphy thinks this is a mistake.

He has his own tractor in the fields now, brought back from the district meeting which he digs ago. It had been sitting there as a silent protest ever since the day the farmers invaded Queen's Park. Four tractors from the Marysville area went as far as Cobourg before night overtook them.

"But I have not been without a tractor, even though my own was not here," Mr. Murphy says, "I have had my choice of half a dozen any time I wanted to use one, tractors belonging to my neighbors who urged me to use them."

A meeting of the local will be held in the near future, probably next week. Arrangements are now under way for the O.F.U. provincial convention in Belleville beginning November 23.

ground - to - air missiles over North Viet Nam.

A military spokesman said the policy was instituted "because such information may be of value to the enemy."

Previously the United States has announced the number of missiles sighted each day by pilots raiding the north. However, about two months ago the spokesmen discontinued disclosing whether the missiles had hit anything. Since then, commanders have announced only that American planes were fired at ground five or in aerial combat.

At the time that policy went into effect 25 planes had been reported shot down by the missiles.

The rate of missiles fired to planes shot down was then about 26 to 1. More than 300 of the missiles now have been fired and this would mean if the ratio held, that about 60 planes have been downed.

There have been indications recently, however, that the effectiveness of the weapons has improved.

They have been coming up in record numbers — the highest was 39 fired July 28—and possibly with improved guidance systems.

LBJ Begins Three Days Of Speeches

Johnson's schedule calls for eight formal speeches, beginning in Buffalo today and ending Sunday at Campobello Island where he and Pearson take part in laying the cornerstone of a new visitors' pavilion at the Roosevelt International Park. Campobello was the summer home of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Pearson has indicated that he and Johnson will discuss international questions, possibly including Viet Nam.

Sunday School Lesson

A Dangerous Obsession

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

The world today is on a sex binge. Everywhere they look, people are encouraged to think about sex. Authors drag it in where it doesn't belong to sell their books. Advertisers exploit the universal interest in sex to get attention to the most unsexy kinds of articles. Most movies use sex as their biggest drawing card. Many people today would laugh at Sir Galahad's insistence that his strength was as the strength of ten because his heart was pure. They want a permissive atmosphere that permits them to do anything they want regardless of the scars it leaves, or the guilt it may pile up to be dealt with in later years by doctors and psychiatrists.

No one would deny that sex is an important part of Mrs. After all, God created it. Without sex, the world ceases to exist. The closest words in our language — love, marriage, family, homeare intimately connected with sex. But it is one thing to accept it in its place; it is another to magnify it out of all proportion, and indulge it to the detriction of every other value.

The Uniform Sunday School lessons for August 21: "Personal Purity," Exodus 20:14; Matthew 5:27-32; 15:1-9; Mark 7:14-23; John 8:3-11; Philippians 4:8.

This, of course is not a new problem. Jeremiah complained about those who lifted His sacrifice, who were like well-fed horses neighing for lust. (Jer. 5:8). Amos described all his nation as a basket of summer fruit. (Amos 8:1-3) When fruit is cut from the vine, one of two things will happen to it. It will be eaten or it will rot. Our country is close to great military loss to keep from being swallowed up by an outside power. But a deeper threat is that it will be dead, dumb, and blind not to notice signs of moral decay. One writer has said that the greatest sin in exploding sex have gone because they have lost the ability even to say nothing of sound morals.

WHAT IS THE ANSWER?

What is the answer to this problem? We cannot go around as if sex did not exist. We can not merely suppress it. Our people would rest to go back to the prudery of a Victorian era. To refuse to think about, or to discuss sex is not a healthy attitude.

Censorship does not seem to be the answer. The courts are constantly wrestling with the problem of defining the limits beyond which people cannot go in appealing to a prurient interest in sex. The trouble with censorship is that it has too many built-in booby-traps. Who will do the censoring? Where will it stop?

The answer is certainly not to give the green light to every form of indulgence. As some point society has to protect itself against those who think only of themselves, who leave a trail of broken standards, broken lives, and often broken homes.

The answer is not just to concern the bad, but to support the good. Let decent people give an "Oscar" of praise to every good, but wholesome movie, and stay away in droves from those that tear down decency and morality in the mind of God. (Matthew 19:3-9). Convince wreucks today with the problem of separation of church and state. There is a more serious problem, and that is the separation of religion from life. People who never think of God will hardly reverse His law, "You shall not commit adultery." (Ex. 20:14 RSV) They lose sight of marriage as a divinely - instituted union and think of it only as a human arrangement. There may be times when divorce seems the only answer to an impossible situation, but there are times when it does not break human hearts, and violate God's highest wish for every marriage.

Moreover, Jesus called attention to the sins. (Matthew 5:27-32) That's where the trouble starts. Sex becomes too important and evil starts when it is too important. He encourages his natural instincts with it mind. To control his body, he must first control his thinking, and the best way to do that is to bring his thoughts under the loving rule of God.

We all make mistakes and not cripple it's forever. For all who will accept it, there is the forgiving love of God. (John 3:16) For all who seek it, there is His ever-present help. (Philippians their whereabouts until their arrest in Las Vegas.

A warrant has been issued in Canada for Lemay on charges of breaking and entering and theft in connection with the Montreal robbery.

A total of 377 safety deposit boxes in the bank were broken into, but the exact amount never was established because of reluctance of box owners to talk. A gang apparently gained entry to the branch by tunnelling under the building.

Four persons were convicted in connection with the theft.

Roland Prinsen, 36, of Montreal, was convicted of conspiracy and sentenced Aug. 26, 1963, to 12 years in prison.

Andre, Yvon and Lise Lemieux, (now Mrs. Lemay) brothers and sister, were found guilty of conspiracy and sentenced in 1965. Andre was sentenced to six years, Yvon four and Lise to time already in jail, which amounted to several months.

None of the convicted persons joined Lemay on the flight to court, but Jan. 8, 1965, two warrants were issued for Lemay's arrest on charges of breaking and entry and theft.

When he was picked up on his packet at Fort Lauderdale Lemay said he was puzzled. "I seldom make mistakes," he told an officer. "I can't get you find them."

Told that the RCMP had dished his picture as Canada's "most wanted" man around the world by way of the Early Bird satellite, and a Fort Lauderdale boat repairman had turned him in, Lemay grinned.

"Ain't that something?" he said. "It took a satellite to catch me."

Later, asked at a hearing how he obtained a passport in the name of Peter Roy, Lemay shrugged. "When you have money," he said, "you can get anything."

In his "human fly" escape from County Jail, Lemay let his fifth-floor cell about 7 p.m., went to the unoccupied cell next door, used a cable to a plumbing fixture, broke out a window and slid down the cable. Another prisoner testified that Lemay dropped the last 30 feet to a first-floor setback, jumped to the ground and was picked up in an automobile.

READY TO DEPORT

At the time of his escape, both Lemay and his wife were under orders for deportation to Canada.

They were ordered deported to Canada July, 1965, but Lemay remained in jail pending an appeal.

He fought deportation in a series of hearings before U.S. immigration officials and told them he would be glad to be deported to any country but Canada.

It was just before one of these hearings that Lemay married Lise, whom he claimed he had married in Mexico 14 months previously.

June 1, Lemay married Miss Lemieux in a barrister-to-be ceremony in the ante-room of an immigration office just before a hearing was scheduled. Lemay said civil vows in French and it was over before officials knew what started.

ANOTHER REASON?

Despite the couple's insistence that Lemay married Miss Lemieux, officials suggested that they wanted an American marriage license so Miss Lemieux could not be called on to testify against Lemay in the event of another prisoner testified that Lemay dropped the last 30 feet!

Lemay's first wife, Hughsetta Bacsz, a blonde Canadian beauty queen, disappeared mysteriously while fishing from a bridge on the overseas highway in the Florida keys 12 years ago.

Lemay told officials she had left the fishing spot in Tonne Harbor, Ont., to return to their car, 100 yards away for warmer clothing. He never saw her again, he said.

One television station reporter said he was overheard offering $200 for an exclusive interview with the inventor. Mr. di Bliss said to the other reporters at the airport: "All right boys, let's hear about the money. Any more offers?"

Mr. Papp was picked up from a rubber dinghy in the harbor at Bruce Beach, shortly after midnight last Friday. French authorities were quoted as having said that if Mr. Morrissier he crossed the Atlantic in the four-ton vessel.

He was sent to the psychiatric ward of the Brest naval hospital for observation.

THE WINNER — Miss Joanne McNevin, accomplished horsewoman and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don McNevin, seen astride her five-year-old Quarter Mare, King's Crystal, after capturing the "Pick-Up" Event in the Gymkhana sponsored by the Belleville Fair Board. Miss McNevin also won the Barrel Race and Pole Bending Events. She also showed her mare in the Quarter Horse Class and took a third place for Horse on Halter.

More Beef Cattle Needed Says Minister

POPLAR HILL, Ont. (CP)— The big challenge facing the beef industry is to raise enough cattle to meet future demand, Agriculture Minister Greene said Thursday night.

He told a Middlesex Beef Producers barbecue "it will take a tremendous increase in the number of beef cattle" to feed the U.S. and Canada to meet expected demand in future years in the two countries.

In addition there's a constantly growing demand for beef in other areas including Europe.

It seemed evident "that we are rapidly approaching the point where it will be virtually impossible to over - produce beef."

Because of a heavy slaughter, both the U.S. and Canada were to for "several years of fewer feeder cattle, less beef per capita and higher prices" while herds increase again.

Mr. Greene said these factors do not mean a serious beef shortage. However, they mean a little less will be available than the large amounts people are accustomed to.

The period of herd rebuilding also means higher cattle prices in 1967 through 1969.

Fair Passes Into History With Program Best in Years

The 1966 Belleville Fair has again passed into history and the general consensus is that it was one of the best.

"A very successful fair," was the way which fair president Dr. Harry W. Burns today summed up the five-day fair program.

The fair got underway last Saturday evening with the running of the Black Diamond Stake race and concluded last night with a colorful performance by the Old Fort Henry Guards from Kingston. Other feature attractions at the fair were the Monday night motorcycle races and the chuck wagon races the last three nights of the fair.

Dr. Burns said most everyone agreed that the fair program was one of the best in years.

"The general livestock exhibit was outstanding," he said.

SLIGHT CUT BY RAIN

On the whole the weathermen was favorable. Heavy rain early Tuesday possibly cut attendance for that day although there was a good turnout in the late afternoon and evening.

The threat of rain last night might also have served to keep some people away for the Fort Henry Guards performances.

"It did rain shortly after 11 o'clock but the heaviness over by that time," Dr. Burns said.

This morning the fair president was unable to give final financial figures for the five day fair.

Because of higher admission prices, fair proceeds were expected to be up this year, but costs also will be higher.

The over-all attendance figures show that there were 21,434 adult paid admissions for the five days, as compared with 21,202 last year.

NO AFTERNOON SHOWS

Grandstand admissions totalled 4,563 as compared with 6,062 last year. The fewer grandstand admissions could be partly explained by the fact that this year there were no afternoon grandstand admissions sold.

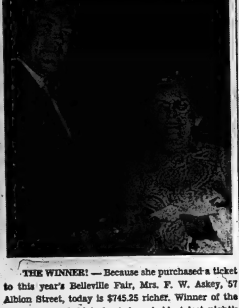
Despite the added attraction of the Old Fort Henry Guards Thursday's fair attendance fell considerably short of expectations with only 2,936 adults paying admission to the grounds — and most of these for the evening performances.

One of the happiest of the fair goers last night was Mrs. Frank Astley of Belleville who was the winner of the final day "pot of gold" amounting to $747.25. Also during the fair four other winners won daily cash attendance prizes ranging from something like $43 to $240.

MOUNTIES WILL TOUR

The RCMP will hold a cross-Canada centennial tour of the musical ride and band in 1967.

Man Bitten By Rabid Bat Found in Que.



TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—A Toledo man, sought in the United States and Canada after it was learned he had been bitten by a rabid bat, was found Thursday night in Quebec City.

John Weber, 31, was bitten by the bat in his home Aug. 10.

Toledo health officials examined the bat and found it had rabies. But Weber already had left on a camping trip to Canada with his wife and two sons.

A radio alert went out immediately and the owner of a trailer pack spotted Weber's car.

Road Races Close Show For Horses

The Belleville Fair Horse Show came to a close yesterday afternoon with several races as well as the usual show animals. The two gentleman's Road Races were popular with the grandstand and the open bike race drew a great deal of interest.

Hackney ponies hitched in tandem were on the program. The training necessary for this arrangement was obvious and the ponies, always a popular class with the spectators, drew their share of applause.

One of the last classes to be shown, Best Ladies Pony or Horse, drew ten entries. The ladies did themselves proud as they showed their horses.

Most of the competitors in the show started to leave the city yesterday after the show, some for home, and others for various fairs throughout the province. Fair officials were pleased with the number of entries in the and have high hopes for an equally successful turnout next year.

THE WINNER! — Because she purchased a ticket to this year's Belleville Fair, Mrs. F. W. Askey, 57 Albion Street, today is $745.25 richer. Winner of the grand Pot of Gold jackpot draw held at last night's finale of the 1966 Belleville Fair, Mrs. Askey is shown being presented with the winner's cheque by Fair Board President Dr. Harry Burns.

BOBBY AND THE BEEF — There seemed to be more interest in this exhibitor than his entry in the Hereford show at the Fair yesterday afternoon. Farmer Bobby Hull took the Reserve ribbon with this bull.

Disquiet Over Big Purchase Of U.S. Planes by Britain

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A certain disquiet seems to surround Britain's biggest-ever aircraft purchase from the United States.

The British purchase of the F-111 swing - wing all - purpose war plane had its birth in political wrangling and seems failed to be a topic of debate into the future.

The cost alone is so high that it is bound to cause controversy at a time when Britain is having tough going economically. The deal, estimated at approximately $.525,000,000 ($315,000,000), approaches the magnitude of Britain's housing bill for a year.

Tory critics of the Labor government cite not only the cost. They say that in making the deal Prime Minister Wilson virtually destroyed the British aircraft industry's capacity to compete on the world market.

The industry, pioneer from the earliest days of aviation, was forced to drop the TSR-2 project, although that highly sophisticated aircraft was already flying.

DOUBT EFFICIENCY

Now reports from the United States indicate doubt as to the efficiency of the F-111, a fighter-bomber designed to be the backbone of defence in the United States, Britain and Australia in the 1970s.

One U.S. publication, the National Business and Financial Weekly, says the aircraft has become such a struggle machine that it would make an easy target for Russia's late - model MiGs.

The article says there was serious concern among U.S. service chiefs over the performance of a test model secretly put through an exhaustive series of trials recently at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

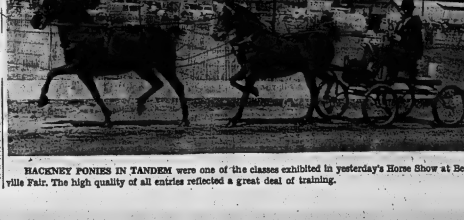
Meanwhile, there also seems doubt about whether the cost of the F-111—whose swing-wing innovation, incidentally, is the invention of a British-born scientist—might cost more to the British government than was expected.

The present deal commits the U.S. to supply 50 planes at a fixed price of $2,100,000 ($6,300,000) each, plus the cost of special modifications to suit the RAF.

But apparently the British government has not yet placed a formal order for the main batch. Only the first group of 50 has been firmly put on contract.

The U.S. government might therefore consider itself free to increase the price of the 50 planes outstanding if a Senate committee inquiring into the F-111 program decides they are being offered at too low a price to ensure an overseas sale that would silence critics.

SEEK ARSONIST

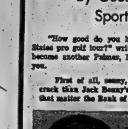


TORONTO (CP)—Police are seeking an arsonist who Thursday set six fires in a Palmerston Avenue apartment building in north-central Toronto, causing $5,500 damage. All residents of the building were absent at the time.

Small Container Of Radioactive Material Found

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)— Police were awaiting instructions Thursday from the federal health department on how to dispose of a small container of radioactive material found in a dry-cleaning store here Wednesday.

DAVID, THE MASCOT OF THE FORT HENRY GUARD, is seen here after last night's performance of the guard before the Belleville Fair grandstand. The guard put on one of its colorful drill displays, much to the delight of a grandstand packed with excited onlookers such as these seen here.



HACKNEY PONIES IN TANDEM were one of the classes exhibited in yesterday's Horse Show at Belleville Fair. The high quality of all entries reflected a great deal of training.

You should not be afraid of large crowds, aircraft travel, television announcers and cameras and be able to resist a profanity-in-

You may not know it but you are aspiring to become a member of the Greatest Show on Earth, not from a circus point of view but having some similarity with regard to gaudiness and color.

As one greying old pro commented dourly last Sunday after watching the finish of the Thunderbird Classic at the Upper Montclair New Jersey course, "This is no longer competition, this is show business."

Will Grimsley of the AP who covered the Thunderbird said in a wire story, "Gold's affluent and gaudy tour boys move on to Wethersfield, Conn., this week, the best road show in the world."

Grimsley was apparently dazzled by the grandeur of the top pros habiliments on the field of putt-and-take battle.

"There," wrote Grimsley, "was Doug Sanders in a tangerine shirt, sweater ,shoes and a left-handed glove."

Gary Player, who, it must be said, is not blessed with a taste for the gaudy, rather the funereal, was garbed in his well-known all-black duds.

Tommy Bill Martingale wore a bright cherry-red sweater. He stood out like a white freckle on a Harlem brunette.

Nicklaus has a different costume for every round — and one hundred pairs of shiny patent leather shoes to match them all.

"Whom you've on television you have to show people the fancy threads," he said.

And these top fancy Dans of the golfing world drape their clubs in sable and mink. They drive luxurious Rmcadnes. A few have their own planes — Palmer and Nicklaus in particular.

And everyone remembers the late Tony Lema and his champagne gimmick. It started with the press gang ordering beer at Tony's expense but Lema changed the soda to the bubbly — and you know the rest.

Player's gimmick is bananas. I do not know if he is a living exponent of the Darwin theory but the small South African brings bananas by the stacks to the locker dressing room and deals them out to his colleagues.

Al Geiberger who recently won the PGA tournament took peanut butter and jelly sandwiches off restaurant menus and put them in newspaper headlines.

Open champion Bill Casper who is allergic to choke, gas and other fumes put buffalo meat on the map and on other golfing menus.

The maniacs feat of the tour is Arnold Palmer, a man of many faces. Cameraman wait to catch him wrinkling his nose in pain — like a small boy. Fans go wild when he shakes his head, wipes his pants, tugs at his glove and starts waiting fast.

The tour consensus is "Arnie's still the best showman of them all. He's making money not just for himself but for all of us."

Second In Row ★★★★★ Pagan's Four Goofs Give Mets Win ★★★★★ Giants Pull Even

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Mets fans were singing: "Jose, Can't You See?"

The object of their derision was Jose Pagan, third baseman for Pittsburgh Pirates who made four errors against the Mets Thursday night.

The errors, three in one inning, led to six unearned runs and enabled New York to win the National League leading Pirates for the second straight day, 9-8.

Jose's three errors in the fourth inning tied a league record. The first came with Ron Swoboda on first, two outs and the Mets one run ahead. Pagan fumbled either Bob Gardner's grounder and Ron Hunt promptly tripled in the two runners.

Next Ed Bressoud bounced one at Pagan, but his throw to first was low, and the ball bounced up against Dunn Clarkson's unsuspecting chin as Hunt raced home. Then came a soft bouncer by Cleon Jones that Pagan grabbed, then lost. Jones was picked off first, though, ending the inning with the Mets ahead 6-5.

Pagan's first error came when Hunt, leading off the Mets' first, hit a hard grounder, which Jose had trouble handling. By the time the inning had ended, the Mets were leading 3-0.

In the only other National League game, Houston Astros edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and Los Angeles Dodgers clipped St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in twelve.

Pittsburgh's loss left the club just one percentage point ahead of the idle San Francisco Giants, in the battle for the league lead. Bill Mazeroski hit two homers for the Pirates, while Jerry May hit the first of his career and Clendenon his 20th of the season.

Errors by Tommy Helms and Pete Rose in the eighth inning opened the game for the four runs that gave Houston the victory. Johnny Edwards homered for the Reds.

IT WASN'T PAGAN'S DAY — Pirates' third sacker Jose Pagan bobbles a grounder off the bat of Mets' second baseman Ron Hunt on the leadoff play in the Pittsburgh-New York game at Shea Stadium. Hunt eventually scored. It just wasn't the Pueblo Rican's day. In the fourth inning he made three more errors and was responsible for six unearned runs through five innings. His bobbles tied a National League record. — (AP Wire photo.)

OASA Playdown

Juniors Sweep Series

BY GARRY ALEXANDER

A twenty-strikeout pitching performance by Bob Rubier and a bold dozen unearned runs propelled Belleville Ellis' to a 5-0 OASA Junior "A" playdown victory over Trenton Quinte Mohawks at Alemite Park last night.

The Belleville club swept the series in two consecutive games.

A shaky performance, both afield and with the bat, failed to help the Trenton crews, as the good pitching effort by the club's young right-hander, 15-year old Paul Wannemaker.

Wannemaker was out-fooled by the more experienced Rubier—but only in the strikeout department.

Rubier stopped Trenton on two hits, blowing third strike past 30 and walking three. His club served 11 aces.

Wannemaker gave up three hits, struck out six, walked two and hit three batters. The losers committed seven errors and several other costly mental lapses.

It was a scoreless affair until the visitors plated five in the sixth. They added a final in the seventh.

Rubier went to first base after being hit by a pitch to open the Belleville sixth. The Trenton infield elected to try for the lead runner on a fielder's choice—but the ball bounced by Wellsley and St. Denis. They tried to get an out on the player and threw the second one away, allowing the first run home. Boomhower followed and singled the second run and Jury singled across the third.

Failure to cover second forced Wannemaker into a hurried throw to first on Moon's merciless bunt. The ball ended up in right field and Moon raced around to score behind Jury.

A two-out infield error and St. Denis' triple closed the scoring.

Jurry St. Denis' triple and singles by Jack Jury and Terry Wellsley accounted for Belleville's hits.

Dale Lewis had a one-out single in the fourth and Don Morrison a lead-off double in the fifth for Trenton's only hits. Both died on third.

NHL—CAHA Sign Agreement

No Pro Sponsors For Amateurs

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League signed Thursday a new five-year agreement, effective July 1, 1967, involving sweeping changes.

The agreement eliminates professional sponsorship of amateur teams, the A, B and C forms formerly regulating tryouts for amateurs with pro teams and the various options governing their services to the clubs.

It makes possible the CAHA's handling of disbursements made when a pro team drafts a player from amateur ranks, returns the responsibility of financing and administering the amateur leagues and their teams to the CAHA and provides that an amateur can only be signed by a pro organization during the year he becomes 20 years old, the time he completes his junior eligibility.

Announcement of the agreement was made jointly by Clarence Campbell, NHL president, and CAHA president Fred Page, of Port Arthur, Ont.

"Henceforth, the only agreement between a professional team and a player will be the standard player contract," Campbell said.

Neither president would disclose precise financial arrangements.

"It is the intent of professional hockey that, in the future, professional teams will acquire amateur players only through a universal draft, except in the case of over-age players not selected in the draft procedures, in which case they can be signed directly to standard player contracts," Campbell said.

"We anticipate some unhappiness in isolated quarters but, over-all, we are convinced that the major changes in the pro amateur agreement are in the best interests of all hockey, both amateur and professional."

WOULD RETAIN RIGHTS

However if a sponsoring team had the rights to a player prior to Thursday's agreement, the team would retain these rights which it could exercise fully.

"The main purpose of the universal draft, so far as the NHL is concerned, is to place our six new member clubs on a fully competitive basis as soon as possible," added Mr. Campbell.

Under the agreement, ending another which was termed by the CAHA as unwarranted interference by pro clubs in the amateur sphere, the six new cities will be able to build to a competitive level within four years.

The new cities are Los Angeles, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco, Minneapolis and Pittsburgh.

Page said the new deal was a mutual agreement whose details "represent the greatest potential impact on the future of hockey."

City Hotel Upsets Cementmen

A seven-run explosion in the top of the seventh broke open a tight 2-1 ball game and gave City Hotel a 9-2 win over Point Anne Cementmen last night.

The victory came in the opening game of their Commercial softball league playoff series semi-final set, at Point Anne.

Second game of this series, and the first game for both Foots and Stewart Warner is the other semi-final, will be played Monday.

Murray tripled two runs across after Potter's single, and a walk to Lyons the fielder's choice but the return rally fell short.

Larry Hall pitched the victory with relief help from Dave Feeney in the final frame. They gave up nine hits, eight off Hall who fanned six and walked two.

Control problems hurt loser Ron Marsele. He gave up seven hits but handed out ten free passes while striking out seven.

Larry Potter collected three City safeties, with Doug Murray getting two. Moe Hewitt and Doug Moreau one each.

David Akey had three Oshpoint blogue and Vern Whelan had a pair. Eric Maher, Glen Marsele, Ron Marsele and Jim Horwood split the others.

Leafs Slip Down To Third Spot

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings kicked Toronto Maple Leafs a rung down the International League ladder with a 3-1 defeat Thursday night, but still couldn't move up to gain on the leading Columbus Jets, who shut out Toledo Mudhens 3-0.

The two games left Rochester in 3rd place, Columbus with Toronto another 2½ games off the pace, two games ahead of Buffalo Bisons who slipped by Syracuse Chiefs 8-6 on pinch-hitter Duke Carmel's three-run homer in the 10th inning.

Jacksonville Suns defeated Richmond Braves 4-3 in 20 innings when Phil Ehrlich came up with his first homer of the year.

Department Softball

City Hall took a 2-0 stranglehold on their Departmental Softball League semi-final series last night by tripping a listless Fire Department squad 13-2.

The winners scored early and often and pulled ahead to stay in the second inning.

Gary Reid pitched solid five-hit ball on the City Hall mound striking out eight.

Craig Bunny was the victim of a 13-hit attack on the Firemen's rubber, whiffing five.

Dick Krall slammed a long home run and two other hits to spearhead the winners' hit parade. Bradley Lee and Bill Ferguson also collected three hits each.

Rocky Davis and Bob Lloyd picked up two safeties each and Grant Parks belted a triple in a losing effort.

Homeniuk's 65 Stuns PGA Field

Norman Fires 68

By KORKY KOROLUK

CALGARY (CP)—Crisp iron play and deft putting were rewarded Thursday as defending champion Wm Homeniuk of Winnipeg grabbed the first-round lead in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship.

Homeniuk stunned his rivals with a record 65, six under par for the Willow Park golf course. Three men toured the course in 66 Wednesday to cut a stroke from the standard set last year.

Wm's brother, Stan, of Dauphin, Man., Moe Norman, Gilford, Ont., and Frank Whibley, Kitchener, Ont., each fired a 68.

Frank Fowler and Neil Green of Calgary, John Henrick, Stoffville, Ont., and Bill Wright, Jr., Edmonton, matched 69s.

Peter Glynyk, Calgary, and Jack Kay, Toronto, led one under-par 70s and five were tied at par 71.

WM Homeniuk completed the first nine holes in 33 strokes, one under par. He birdied holes No. 10, 12, 13 and 14 and took a one-over-par five on the 11th.

He used only 11 putts on the back nine and said it was "the best putting streak I've had this year."

The low scores surprised many players. The temperature never exceeded 30 and a north wind blew most of the day.

Other scores included: Al Balchin, Toronto, 71; Lyle Crawford, Vancouver, and George Knudson, Toronto, 72; Alvin Thompson, Toronto, and Stan Leonard, Vancouver, 74; Bob Panasiuk, Tecumseh, Ont., Al Wall and Bud Edwards, Windsor, 76.

The Willow Park course, 6,800 yards long, is designed to reward an accurate short game.

The CPGA is a 54-hole tournament with a purse of $15,000. The winner receives $2,000.

Being played in conjunction with the tournament is the CPGA seniors competition, a 36-hole test. Leading after 18 holes are Dan Stack, Winnipeg, and Henry Martell, Edmonton, with 75s.

One stroke back are Les Beswen, Saskatoon, Pat Fletcher, Ile Bizard, Que., and Gerry Proulx, Cite Deux Montagnes, Que.

The seniors are competing for $2,000 in prizes with $600 going to the winner.

The major periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The minor periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Women's Open Golf

Favorites Fall By The Wayside

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—Three young Canadians and an American are all that remain today in the eight battle for the Canadian women's open golf championship.

The tricky, 5,325-yard Ashburn course and three match-play rounds over the last two days eliminated a number of pre - tournament favorites, including Marlene Stewart Streit, 32, long - time powerhouse of Canadian and international competition.

Barbara Renwic, 23, of Vancouver, defeated the Fonthill, Ont., veteran 1 up in the third round Thursday.

Miss Renwick advanced to today's semi - finals against Gayle Hitchens, also of Vancouver. The two were partners on British Columbia's four-member interprovincial team which won the national championship in neighboring Dartmouth last week.

Jane Blalock of Portsmouth, N.H., plays Helene Gagnon of Arvida, Que., in the other semi-final.

Miss Blalock, 20, scored a third - round 1 up victory over junior Pamela Miller of Oshawa, Ont.

Miss Gagnon, 19, pulled off two major upsets Thursday, eliminating Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., 1968 national class champion, 3 and 2 in the second round and knocking defending open champion Jocelyne Bourassa of Trois - Rivieres, Que., out of contention in the quarter - finals.

Miss Gagnon advanced to today's play by beating Miss Bourassa 1 up on the 21st hole. Mrs. Hitchens, 32, is member of Canada's team competing in the world championships opening at Mexico City Oct. 21, defeated Vicki Larsen of St. Davids and Scarborough, Ont., 4 and 3 in the third round.

The two survivors of today's semi - final matches meet in 36 holes of match play for the Duchess of Connaught golf cup Saturday.

In the second round Thursday, Miss Renwick defeated Mrs. Greems Pyke of Montreal, 2 and 1; Miss Blalock eliminated Susan Scallyon of Dallas, Tex., 3 and 2; and Miss Hitchens downed Linda Deeton of Woodstock, Ont., 4 and 3.

Finals in each of five non-championship flights will also be played today.

Edge On Defence

Bombers Rally To Nip Lions

By WALTER HAYES

VANCOUVER (CP)—"We had the edge on defence—that's why we won," said coach Bud Grant after his Winnipeg Blue Bombers came from behind to turn back B.C. Lions 27-24 in Leatherstore Western Football Conference game before 29,697 fans Thursday night.

"Sure, we had a couple of big plays, but it was containing the Lions' offence that really won the game," said Grant after the game.

The play that won the game was a third - quarter touchdown by fullback Art Perkins on a 2-yard run from quarterback Ken Ploen. Norm Wheston's convert put the Bombers ahead 20-17 as the Lions' defence fell apart.

The win moved Winnipeg into a first - place WFC tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders with 3-1 won-lost records.

Saskatchewan has a chance to regain the lead when it meets Edmonton Eskimos in Regina Monday night. Winnipeg plays host to Calgary Stampeders the following night.

Edmonton, Calgary and the Lions are at the bottom of the standings in the five-team conference, each with 1-3 records.

DOMINATE PLAY

Winnipeg dominated play, picking up 238 yards on its aerial attack and 182 running for 24 first downs. The Lions managed 28 first downs on 95 yards rushing and 376 passing.

Ploen completed 14 of 27 pass attempts. Joe Kapp of B.C. was successful on 12 of 27. One was intercepted by Winnipeg Safety Barry Hansen, the game's only interception.

Winnipeg made all three Annies but recovered all of them. The Bombers took an early 1-0 lead when Lions' Roy Cameron was rouged on Ed Usmer's punt.

Bill Mitchell accounted for all of the Lions' scoring with two field goals and a single. He put Lions ahead 3-2 at 2:36 of the second quarter.

His other field goal—giving Lions a 6-3 lead—was set up when Ploen was tackled in the end zone as the B.C. offence was stalled about 20 yards out.

Winnipeg's marred to the win began after Mitchell's third-quarter field goal attempt went wide into the Winnipeg end zone where fullback Billy Cooper recovered the point. The ball was moved out to the Winnipeg 25 and the Bombers started to move.

Canadian Derby

Rate Empress Of India Solid Favorite

By LORNE BRUCE

EDMONTON (CP) — Empress of India, a daughter of Victoria Park, is the overwhelming favorite to win Saturday's Canadian Derby, the richest race west of Ontario.

Victoria Park, the 1960 Queen's Plate winner, was retired early.

Empress of India, owned by R. G. Gardiner of Toronto and trained by E. J. (Eddie) Johnson of Calgary, drew the No. 2 post position as 12 horses were entered Thursday for the 1¼ mm over the Italbelle Northlands Park oval.

Gardiner's horse, which didn't show much in Ontario this spring but has been winning the big stakes recently on the Prairies, finished first in the division of the Derby Trail last Saturday.

Green Pool, another horse sent to the post by Johnson, captured the other division but was 2 3-4 seconds slower for the 1¼ miles.

Green Dust is owned by MacGlen Ranches Ltd. of Calgary which is operated by Don McChaya.

Johnson thinks his mate competition will come from the three Vancouver horses, Major Presto, Red Royal and Princess Aylmer. Major Presto, out-standing this season on the Pacific Coast, finished second to Empress of India in the Trail.

Three-year-olds foaled in Canada are eligible for the race, expected to have a purses of $22,300 with $17,300 going to the winner.

Red Royal drew the No. 3 post position as destine for entries passed. Others, according to post position, were: Chopman, Empress of India, Strayed Ins, Major Presto, Solar Park; Jeanne, Why Waiter, Klondike Prince, Chained Flag, Green Dust, Prince Aylmer, Lady North.

The two fillies, Empress of India and Lady North, are carry 121 pounds and the colts 126. Scratch deadline is 3 p.m. MST today. Race time is 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Ontario horses, in addition to Empress of India, are Chopman and Solar Park.

The best of the Prairie entrants, led by Green Dust, are Klondike Prince, Lady North and Why Waiter. Why Waiter won the Trail. Frank Rymer's champion bat hasn't been going so well this year.

Canadian Opera Is Selected For O'Keefe Centre Program

By DONALD PHILLIPSON

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Opera Company will perform six first Canadian operas in 15 years this fall, Diedre by Dr. Healey Willan, retired professor of music at the University of Toronto.

First planned about 30 years ago, Diedre was broadcast after the Second World War and had its stage premiere in 1965 by students of Toronto's Royal Conservatory music school.

It is "by far my best work," says the 87-year-old scholar, master and composer.

The story of Diedre is one of the oldest Irish folk tales often retold by poets but seldom by composers. Willan and John Coulter, an Irish writer living in Toronto, have put together the libretto.

The remainder of the program for the 25th-week season of the Toronto Opera Centre will be Verdi's La Traviata, Gounod's Faust, and "Cav and Pag"—Mascagni and Pagliacci by Leoncavallo, two short operas of traditionally performed together.

Faust and La Traviata are among Canadians' favorite opera operas, Geiger-Torel found in a poll of 4,000 patrons in Regina, Vancouver and Toronto. The others are Bizet's Carmen and Verdi's Il Trovatore and Rigoletto.

CANADIANS IN CASTS

Canadian baritone Louis Quilico will sing the role of Macbeth and an American, Jon Germont in La Traviata. He has sung before with the Canadian Opera Company and since then with the Royal Opera in London, the Paris and the Salzburg Festival plus in Moscow.

Jan Rubes of Toronto will sing Mephistopheles ifr Faust and the title role will be sung by Montmorlor Jean Desmeules, now with London's Royal Opera.

The title role of Diedre in Dr. Willan's work goes to Jeanette Zarou, a recent winner of the CBC Talent Festival and co-star of last year's Turandot in Toronto. Another 25 Canadian singers fill supporting roles in the five operas.

Luigi Infantino, a distinguished Italian conductor as well as a tenor vocalist, will sing Alfredo in La Traviata, opposite fellow-Roman Maria Chiara as Violetta.

Infantino will carry Macbeth's role in Macbeth as well, while Lady Macbeth will be Margaret Tynes of the United States, a sensation as Salome in Toronto last fall.

Another visiting star is Franciscu Lazzaro, who will sing the leading roles in both Cav and Pag for four of the six performances.

Geiger-Torel, the Canadian Opera Company's general director, will direct the season's two major productions, Macbeth and Diedre. His former pupil, Irving Guttman of Vancouver, is to direct La Traviata and Cavalleria Rusticana.

Leon Major, the young Quebec-born director of Halifax's Neptune theatre, will direct Pagliacci and Faust.

Ernesto Barbini will conduct Macbeth and La Traviata, Ettore Marcolini Diedre and Nello Segurini Cavalleria Rusticana. Canadian conductors James Craig and Pierre Hetu will conduct Pagliacci and Faust respectively.

The COC had hoped to present an operatic version of The Luck Of Ginger Coffey, Brian Moore's prize-winning novel set in present-day Montreal, but it has been deferred to Centennial Year. The music is being written by Raymond Pannell with libretto by Ronald Hambleton.

The second opera commissioned by the COC to celebrate 1967 is Riel, being written by Harry Somers to words by Mavor Moore. The commissions are being paid for by grants from the Canada Council, the Centennial Commission and the Floyd S. Chalmers Foundation.

Walt Disney's "Bambi" Traces Life's Great Joy and Drama

A motion picture which tracks all of Life's most joyous and dramatic moments, Walt Disney's "Bambi", returns to the screen, bringing its timeless story of a young deer and his forest friends to enchant a new generation and rekindle memories of the old.

Representing six years of research, story development and production, the 70-minute full-length Technicolor film was one of the most difficult animated features ever attempted by the Disney studios. "Pinocchio", "The Reluctant Dragon", "Fantasia" and "Dumbo" all were completed and released throughout the world while "Bambi" was on the drawing boards.

Through the years, the film's artistic value has been prized by children. The subject of simplicity, "Bambi" shares with its audiences the joys of youth and discovery experienced by a young deer and his two companions, "Thumper", an irrestistible rabbit, and the wistful skunk, "Flower."

Based upon Felix Salten's best-selling novel the film presents the entire cycle of the animal kingdom. Highlight scenes include the springtime birth of Bambi, the new Prince of the Forest, the first year of the wooded wonderland with his quickly acquired playmates, Thumper and Flower, their early fun when the fawn and rabbit take a spin on the ice, and desperation when the inevitable search through the snow for food. Evoking every emotion, the story fills with bitterness when Bambi's mother is felled by a hunter's bullet, and with love when the three "Twitterpatted" friends meet their females match the following spring.

"Bambi", most certainly be regarded as one of the most beautiful motion pictures ever made with brush, paint and love.

U.S. Swimmers

Smash Three World Records

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Olympic stars in the women's 400-metre plus Don Schollander Thursday regained his world 400-metre mark with a 4:11.6 clocking at the outdoor swimming and diving championships of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union.

Tonight the 20-year-old Yale student, who is heading the powerful Santa Clara Swim Club, is a good bet to smash his own world 200-metre freestyle mark. He holds the latest record of 1:97.8 and broke this with a 1:97.2 at Los Angeles Pan. meet. Now his goal is 1:95.

The first 10 events in the four-day championships produced three world marks and one world record equalled. The latest mark, 17-year-old Karen Moe, of South Africa, holds a pending world mark of 2:15.7.

Karen Moir, of South Africa, broke a world mark of 2:36.4 in the women's 200-metre backstroke, turning the 100 in 1:09.4. This bettered her pending world mark of 2:37.1.

Catie Ball, 14, of Jacksonville, Fla., aged, broke the listed world mark of 1:16.5 with 1:16.3 in prelims of the 100 breaststroke, equalling her career best, and 1:16.4 in the finals. A Russian girl, Galina Prozumenshchikova, holds a pending world mark of 1:15.7.

Kathy Nolan Guest With, As Series Starts Third Year

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kathy Nolan, once of the Real McCoys clan, was a guest star on the first episode of the Bewitched makeup man.

"I'm a guest witch," she announced to a passerby, en route to a visit with Dick York, the young man who plays the merely mortal husband of the beguiling sorceress in the ABC comedy.

York, sporting a fake scar on his right cheek, was in his underbrush, waiting for a morning spent in medieval knight's armor under the hot sun.

Bewitched is about to start its third season as a hit, pretty and York, as the long-suffering Darrin, has involved in an episode that's not him back centuries in time.

"Seems to me that our witch reputation is increasing," said the actor. "In one show we finished recently, I and my boss, Larry Tate, were the only humans in the whole show."

While the flashy pyrotechnics of the witches played by Elizabeth Montgomery and Agnes Moorehead attract the attention, York's down-to-earth character as the well - worn foil which the whole magic game is played.

York said he thought that a real-life counterpart to being married to a witch is a wife who is interested in your career, like a theatrical star, and who makes more money than her husband.

"That wouldn't be a real problem as long as the career was not more important to her than the marriage," he continued. "But that's a hard combination for women to decide. Most men —and I'm one of them—can do their work here and then go home and have a different, unrelated life."

York and his wife Joan have been married 14 years and have five children—three girls and two boys with ages from three to 16.

Junior Tennis

Decide Finalists Today

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP) — Finalists were to be decided today for the two major titles at the Canadian seven junior tennis championships, in preparation for the week-long tournament's climax Saturday.

All Canadians have been eliminated from the boys' 18-and-under singles championship, but the girls title in that age group is assured with four Canadians in the semi-finals.

In this boys semi-final, the four competitors come from different countries — Argentina, Japan, Mexico and the U.S.

Heavy favorite to win the title is Shoo Tanabe, 17, of Japan, first ranked there and first seed in the tournament.

But minor upsets have shown up throughout the drive for the tournament's top crown, such as elimination of Robin Elliot, 17, of Vancouver, top-domestic seed and top Canadian closed champion.

WINS SEMI-FINAL BERTH

Carlos Desmaris of Argentina, that country's first - ranking junior but fifth seeded here, defeated Elliot, then downed Japan's second-ranked player, Ken Hirai, for the semi-final slot.

The four players who go into semi-final play today for the two playoff berths are Richard Hockton of Garden City, N.Y., Tanabe, Desmaris and Roberto Chaves, Mexico's first - ranked player, top second seed here, who was expected to give top-seed Hirai his toughest competition.

Two girls from the East will meet two from the West Coast today in semi-final play in girls 18-and-under, to decide finalists in that class.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — Frank Barrody, a 25-year-old jockey from Maple Creek, Sask., rode three horses to victory Thursday at Fort Erie race track.

Barrody came in on Jays Grey in the first race, on Fast Eddie in the third and in the seventh guided Dietix.

The daily double of Jays Grey in the first and Sultan's Treat in the second paid $154.10. The exacta of Brilliant Needle and Royal Serv in the fifth paid $14.50.

National Softball Championship

RCAF Teams Eye Title

The Trenton base team will be one of five competing in the 11th annual "Sat Series" for the all-Canada RCAF softball championship the end of this month.

The will mark the first time that a Trenton team has reached the titular series, scheduled for the Trenton base from Monday, August 26 through Wednesday, August 21.

The titular tournament gets its unique name from the trophy awarded to the eventual winner.

A giant, seven-foot long bat, weighing some 40 pounds, is presented to the champions. A handsome Dow Brewaries trophy is also up for competition.

Battling for the honors along with Trenton, will be teams from the RCAF bases at Edmonton, Moose Jaw, St. Hubert and Greenwood.

The Greenwood team of Nova Scotia will be defending the title won last year. The club has the same pitching staff, consisting of Libert and Gervais, which won the championship in 1965.

All five teams have won their area titles.

Trenton has compiled an unbroken record on the way to this area's championship and the right to enter the "Sat Series". In 13 games, Trenton eliminated Camp Borden, Clinton, Centralia, North Bay and Falconbridge, without losing a game.

Play in the titular series is of the round-robin type. Two games will be played at 2.00 p.m. on Monday, August 29. On Tuesday, two games are scheduled for 10.00 a.m. and two more for 2.00 p.m. The same schedule on Wednesday will see the championship crowned.

Cpl. Russell Roberts, of Trenton's recreation staff, reports that superb pitching and close, evenly-contested matches usually feature the tournament.

And with Trenton's crop club representing this area, interest is expected to be especially keen for the competition.

Electrical Shock Treatment For Sexual Deviates Being Tried on Milbrook Inmates

TORONTO (CP) — Electrical shock treatment in the form of behavioral therapy for sexual deviates is being tried on MILbrook Reformatory inmates at a clinic here.

The idea of the treatment is to replace unpleasant associations with the kind of sexual response experienced by the deviates.

Dr. Ronald E. Stokes, in charge of the department of reform institutions' psychiatric section, says the form of behavioral therapy is still in its infancy.

"There is a great deal more of it being done now, I believe, and it is becoming popular in Great Britain in the treatment of drug addicts, alcoholics, homosexuals and others suffering from various types of personality disorders."

Until two years ago the forensic psychodrug HRDLU I was used, chiefly on exhibitionists.

AKIN TO PAVLOV

The therapy used here is akin to the Pavlovian reflex principle pioneered by the Russian scientist Ivan Pavlov.

The deviates — a selected group of child molesters—are wired to machines and subjected to pictures which are erotic reacts when they have sexual impulses.

The deviates are hooked up to a machine, not unlike a lie detector, which measures their breathing, heart beat and skin moisture for signs of anxiety. Attending psychologists read the symptoms on the unfolding graph paper.

tographs of children or objects associated with them. If they have erotic response arousal while viewing they get an unpleasant electrical current.

The idea is to condition an individual to unlearn unacceptable attitudes and learn more appropriate ones.

Dr. Stokes said behavioral therapy shows promise for treatment of a wide variety of mental disorders, although it will be at least two years before the department is in position to consider expanding it.

He said the psychological research unit at the Lakeshore Psychiatric Hospital, where the therapy sessions are given, is also exploring the use of what they call white noise - high pitched, piercing sounds like jet engines — as an alternative to the electrical current.

The behavioral therapy is the joint project of the reform institutions department, the provincial health department and a University of Waterloo psychologist, Dr. Richard Stuffle, who is in charge.

Wildcat Strikes On Railways May 'Fizzle Out'

Will Probe Labor Law In Ontario

By DAVID DAVIDSON

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts announced Friday the appointment of a royal commission to investigate labor law in Ontario, including the use of court injunctions in labor disputes.

The one-man commission will be headed by Ivan C. Rand, retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, a recognized authority in labor legislation.

Mr. Rand is 81.

Mr. Justice Rand was the originator of the Rand formula, which requires all employees to pay union dues but makes actual membership in the union voluntary.

Mr. Roberts said in a statement he was ordering a commission on the government will be able to review procedures for dealing with labor disputes as resolved after the usual processes of negotiation, conciliation and arbitration.

EXAMINE INJUNCTIONS

"In addition, a complete examination will be made of the use of the injunction in labor disputes and of the various legal procedures employed in it."

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for the CNR said Friday night the effects of a wildcat strike by non-operating employees of the railway should "fizzle out," at least for the weekend.

Many of the estimated 3,700 men who went on strike Friday against both the CNR and the CPR would have been off the job anyway during the weekend, the CNR spokesman said.

Train services were reported continuing as usual since CNR and CPR routes.

In Montreal, Friday saw 2,400 men out at the CNR yard in Pointe St. Charles, while some truckers were persuaded not to cross picket lines at the Bonaventure express freight depot.

There were 115 electricians out at the CPR's Angus yard at Montreal and 270 repairmen and carmen off the job at the company's St. Luc diesel yard.

DRIVERS WALK OUT

In Toronto, 300 CNR express drivers were off their jobs, 50 office workers were out at the Concord freight yard and 185 in other yards.

A spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said Friday night about 90 clerical workers in Toronto have voted to join the express drivers. No date was set.

A group of 30 drivers and warehousemen were off their railway jobs at Capreol Friday and another 120 non-ops were out in Windsor.

A second strike erupted in Windsor as 100 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen went out at 12:01 a.m. today.

The BRT membership, yard crews and their foremen denied their walkout was in sympathy with that of the non ops.

Allen Lennox, chairman of the BRT's Windsor lodge, said there were no plans for any to join trains or prevent passengers boarding them.

Sydney, N.S., reported 138 CNR men out with 50-more expected to strike today.

In Ottawa's a special eight-member cabinet committee met on Thursday to study the strike broke up for the weekend. Prime Minister Pearson has

Riots Hit Poor Hard Says LBJ

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP)—President Johnson, stumping across New England in campaign style, today said achievement of full rights and opportunities for American Negroes "will avail us nothing if our society is torn by violence and discord."

The president turned to civil rights and racial rioting as he began the second day of his five-state tour with an address at a convocation at the University of Rhode Island.

In a prepared speech he said:

"The poor suffer twice at the rioter's hands: first, when his destructive fury scars their neighborhoods; second, when the atmosphere of accommodation and consent is changed to one of hostility and resentment."

In a series of stops in upstate New York Friday, Johnson talked to "take the pulse and of poverty," announced an intensified effort to end pollution in the Great Lakes and said the United States was standing up for freedom in Viet Nam. He drew large, cheering crowds along the way.

HAS BUSY DAY

His schedule today called for other speeches in Manchester, N.H., Burlington, Vt., and Lewiston, Me., before he boards the cruiser Northampton for an overnight trip to join Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson in dedicating a visitors' reception centre in Franklin D. Roosevelt International Park on Campobello Island, off the coast of New Brunswick.

Robbers Hold Nine Captive

LEBRET, Sask.—(CP) — A search continued today for two men who held nine persons captive for more than an hour Friday as they ransacked a farm home near this community 80 miles northeast of Regina.

Mrs. Joseph Redmond, 72, who lay with her head inside a pillow case as she heard the robbers searching her home, described her experience as "terrible and frightening."

"I don't know how I will ever get over it," she said. She and her 76-year-old husband were captured as they returned about 10:30 a.m. from a shopping trip to Lebret, five miles south.

Mrs. Redmond said a man came out carrying a gun.

"My husband asked what he wanted and told him if it was money . . . he could have it.

"Then he pushed my husband down on the ground."

The man ordered them into the house and made them sit down on a chesterfield, said Mrs. Redmond.

TIED US UP'

"He tied us up and put pillow cases over our heads. He pointed the gun at us and told us to do what he said."

Mrs. Redmond said she did not see the second man but could hear him moving about on the second floor.

The pair, believed to have held a woman clerk and 20 customers at gunpoint Wednesday before stealing $185 from a store at Oakdale, Sask., six miles northwest of Lebret, escaped with $150 in cash, food, credit cards, a transistor radio, a rifle and a shotgun. They left in a half-ton truck stolen from the Redmond home.

Mrs. Redmond described the capture of Mike Bourassa, his wife and five children after the family arrived from their nearby farm to draw water from the Redmonds' well.

"They locked the children in a little room and then took Mrs. Bourassa upstairs where they were tied up in different rooms," she said.

"Mr. Bourassa got home soon after they left and cut the rest of us loose," said Mrs. Redmond.

Levels Buildings In 24 Villages Of One Province

ISTANBUL (AP)—Rescue workers today counted nearly 1,000 bodies of victims from the catastrophic earthquake that ripped across eastern Turkey Friday and officials said the toll probably will go far beyond 3,000.

The number of known and estimated dead rose by the hour as army and civilian rescue teams fought through the rugged, mountainous back country of the quake-stunned area to reach destroyed villages and towns.

Officials reported many thousands were injured.

The full fury of the quake Friday afternoon hit the town of Varto, a community of 3,000 inhabitants. "It can be said that nothing remained of Varto," a Turkish army officer reported from the area.

The Turkish interior ministry earlier had expressed belief the quake, which levelled dozens of other villages, might have taken 1,200 lives.

3,000 BURIED?

Civilian officials at Varto said 856 bodies had been recovered in that area alone and they estimated that at least 3,000 persons had died in the surrounding desert of rubble left by the killer quake.

They said scores of villages around Varto had been wiped out.

A Turkish radio report said many inhabitants were buried under the wreckage, including some people at the Varto school. There would be fatality heavy eering for help.

The quake struck mountain villages in four provinces near the Iranian frontier, about 600 miles east of Istanbul.

The governor of Erzurum province reported in a radio broadcast that all dwellings were leveled in 24 villages in the province. He said about 90 per cent of all buildings in the city of Erzurum, with a population of 85,000, were destroyed, as were most of those in Hinis Township. The local hospital also was destroyed.

CASUALTIES RISE

The casualty reports from the four stricken provinces—Erzurum, Mus, Bingol and Bitlis—rose as the Turkish government with the help of the U.S. Air Force began a massive emergency aid and rescue operation.

The Turkish 3rd Army based in the city of Erzurum sent urban centre in the disaster area, sent troops and trucks out into the surrounding countryside as rescue country aide to reach residents of ruined villages.

The quake began at 2:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) Friday. The newspaper Millyet reported the tremors were "very strong" for

U.S. House Likely to Pass Curb on Anti-War Groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to curb the activities of anti-Viet Nam war groups appears headed for overwhelming approval by the House of Representatives on the heels of this week's tumultuous hearings by the committee on un-American activities.

"I think Congress is very receptive to this legislation," said Representative Joe Pool, Texas Democrat and acting committee chairman.

Other members agreed that the defiant, committee-baiting anti-war witnesses and admission by several witnesses that they are Communists will help speed the legislation to early passage.

Pool said he would seek committee approval next week of a bill he introduced to authorize maximum $20,000 fines and 20-year jail terms for persons convicted of helping the Viet Cong or North Vietnamese or of trying to block the movement of U.S. men and materials to Viet Nam.

In the Senate, leaders were forced swiling for house action before deciding on settling hearings.

The investigative phase of the hearings was concluded Friday in another turbulent session in which more than a dozen persons, including three witnesses, were tossed out. Police said seven men and five women were booked on disorderly conduct charges, bringing the number of arrests in four days of hearings to more than 50.

Meanwhile, Arthur Kinoy, the 45-year-old New York lawyer whose ejection Wednesday led to the walkout of lawyers for all subpoenaed witnesses at the hearings, was found guilty in general sessions court of disorderly conduct.

The $50 fine was suspended, but Kinoy said the case would be appealed.

Airlines Strike Is Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some planes of five major U.S. airlines began flying early today after machinists ended a six-week-long strike that profoundly shook the Johnson administration's economic policies and Congress its biggest political scare in years.

"The strike is now over," said president P. L. (Roy) Siemiller of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) after militant union members voted 17,197 to 8,235 to accept a bargain new contract and end the worst airlines walkout in U.S. history.

The five airlines are Eastern, United, Northwest, National and Trans World.

The contract approval sending 25,600 airlines back to work permits Congress to drop politically explosive legislation that would have ordered strikers back to their jobs for the first time in U.S. history. Organized labor had loudly in opposition to the legislation.

But it shatters White House hopes it designed to limit wage increases to 3.2 per cent a year and sets a precedent for other unions to cite in pressing for fatter paycheques.

Police Grapple With Wave Of Crime Sweeping Britain

LONDON (AP) — While hundreds of armed policemen renewed a massive manhunt around London for scar-faced Harry Roberts—wanted in the killing of three Scotland Yard policemen—other big investigations were under way in widely separated areas of Britain.

—A headless body was found hidden on a rocky hill in Sussex. Police said: "It's murder."

—Two young girls, aged 10 and 7, were missing in suspicious circumstances from their homes in Yorkshire and Cheshire.

—A man was charged with two sensational murders in the northern town of Stockport.

—In addition, police combed a wild moorland for two convicts who escaped Wednesday from a working party outside Dartmoor Jail.

The search for 30 - year - old Roberts, described by Scotland Yard as a "vicious" character who may be "carrying three guns, went into its second week with police convinced he is holed up in the capital.

A woman friend told Scotland Yard detectives interviewed her Friday night she was lying: "For God's sake, help."

Police put an armed guard at the woman's flat. "I'm sure she will come from the London area," she was quoted as saying. "Harry sounded desperate. He wanted money and food."

Friday night police ended a five-day search of Epping Forest, where Roberts had been reported hiding out, and concentrated on his old London haunts.

Roberts' estranged wife Margaret, a professional stripper who lives in the north of England, appealed to him to surrender in a published statement.

Two other men already have been charged with killing the three policemen.

The headless body was found near the Sussex town of Uckfield late Friday night after two boy scouts had reported finding a human skull in a rocky crevice nearby.

"Scotland Yard has been called in to direct the murder inquiry," said a local police spokesman.

A big search by detectives for 10-year-old Jane Taylor, missing from her Cheshire home since last Sunday, took a sinister turn with the discovery of a note pinned on some barbed wire.

It said: "To the police. Walk for 30 yards north of this tree and dig. You will find something 32. Both were serving six-year sentences for robbery.

Police said they found nothing at the spot indicated, but the search was intensified.

In the Yorkshire town of Darlington, house-by-house inquiries were being made in efforts to trace seven - year - old Linda Faulkes, who vanished from a wood near her home Thursday.

In Stockport, a crowd of 300 screaming women tried to attack Robert Leonard Whalley, 24, as police brought him into court Friday to face two charges of murder.

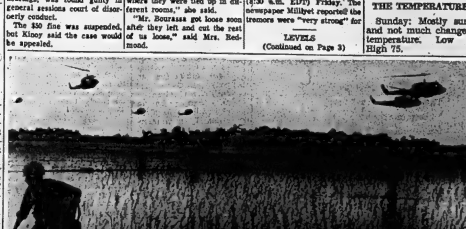
Whalley was guarded by 30 policemen, but one woman got through the cordon and hit him on the head with her handbag.

Whalley was charged with the stabbing of Alice Marjorie Hume, 42, in August last year and John Crossland, 44, last Monday. Both were found dying in woodland frequented by courting couples.

Before Whalley's arrest, a note was found on the doorstep of police headquarters confessing the two murders and saying "My next victim will be a teen-ager. Ha Ha."

In Devon County, police joined prison warders searching over the heather-covered moors for the two escapees—Clarence Wright, 30, and George Bralley, 32. Both were serving six-year sentences for robbery.

Aussies Pile on Pressure



SAIGON (Reuters) — Australian forces piled on the pressure against the Viet Cong today after killing 214 Communist troops Friday in a bloody four-hour—their fiercest on the Viet Nam war.

About 150 Australians, outnumbered eight to one, were down to their last rounds of ammunition when reinforcements reached the battle area —a rain-soaked rubber plantation 42 miles southeast of Saigon.

The operation continued today as a full-scale drive against the Viet Cong, a military spokesman said here.

The number of guerrillas killed in the battle was more than the Australians had killed during their previous 14 months in Viet Nam.

(Australian headquarters in Canberra said 17 Australians were killed and 26 wounded in the engagement in Ba Ria in Phuoc Tuy province—easily the country's biggest loss in a single day in Viet Nam.)

Conference Will Assess Canada's Role in Pacific

By RON MacDONALD

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Diplomats and politicians, businessmen and others in Canada are looking more frequently westward to the Asian nations that rim the Pacific.

At a five-day conference opening here Monday, about 30 Canadian and other authorities in a number of fields will assess this growing Pacific role.

Their meeting is the fourth annual Banff Conference on World Affairs, sponsored by the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the United Nations Association and the university of Alberta and Calgary.

Canadian involvement in the Pacific has taken many forms in recent months.

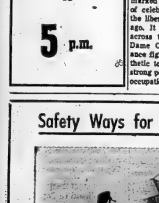
This country's former representative in China and India, Chester Ronning of Camrose, Alta., has travelled to Hanoi twice seeking a road to peace in Viet Nam.

SERVE ON COMMISSION

Canadian personnel continue their role as members of the International Control Commission supervising the 1954 Geneva agreement in Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Canadian aid is going to Thailand and Malaysia.

Wheat sales to China and growing trade with Japan have prompted trips to those countries by official, business, provincial and federal political leaders.



China's nuclear weapons tests and the political upheaval in Indonesia have turned further attention on the Pacific region.

Mr. Ronning and Blair Seaborn, former Canadian representative on the International Control Commission, are among those speaking at the conference.

Others include External Affairs Minister Paul Martin; James Barrington, former Burmese ambassador to Ottawa, Wallington and Mr. Nolan Nations; Dennis Warner, Australian correspondent who has reported from Viet Nam; John W. Holmes, director of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs; and D. M. Paley, Indonesian ambassador to Washington.

RECALL LIBERATION.

PARIS (AP)—A brief ceremony in the courtyard of the Paris police prefecture Friday marked the beginning of a week of celebrations commemorating the liberation of Paris 22 years ago. It was in the prefecture, across the square from Notre Dame Cathedral, where resistance fighters and police organized to free France set up a strong point to fight the German occupation force.

Sun is fun, but don't forget,
That human skin will burn,
To barbeque the torso
Is a painful way to burn.

Or perhaps a hunting knife,
Be every careful lest you make
A widow of your wife.

mated to average slightly more than six per cent annually.

The new contract gives 11 per cent in wage increases during a three-year period and includes a cost-of-living guarantee worth up to six cents more an hour in the final year of the agreement in 1968. This means top-rated mechanics, who have been receiving $3.32 an hour, will be paid at least $4.06 an hour within three years.

In an early indication of the effect of the hefty contract, the Communications Workers of America (AFL-CIO) said in talking a strike vote among Western Electric Company telephone installers that it was shooting for a similar agreement designed to shelter the administration's anti - inflation wage guidelines.

"The good news I have for you tonight could have been posted a month ago if Senator (Wayne) Morse (Dem. Ore.) and his associates had just kept quiet on the Senate floor and let collective bargaining work," Scheiber said in announcing ratification.

This remark touched on a major sources of ire at home — should Congress and the White House keep hands off such major labor-management clashes.

The strike appeared for a time to be waiting to see whether Congress would force the strikers back to work pending further negotiations or compulsory arbitration.

But as Congress, facing several elections, moved further away, showed increasing signs of delay and the multi-million-dollar airlines losses mounted, the settlement was hammered out in a final 20-hour negotiation at the labor department early Tuesday.

It was the second agreement — the first was an abortive White House settlement announced by President Johnson that ended in a crushing rejection vote July 31.

"Bobby Hull? Who's he?" That was the observation of British Exchange Scout Christopher Allen, 17, when questioned about the Hullvre Herefords at the Belleville Fair. Apparently the fame of Point Anne's first centerstuff, who reached the 1st Hawkhurst Prop of Scouts in the county of Kent, England, where Christopher is a patrol Second and Queen's Scout.

Scout Canadore since August 2, he has just returned from Haliburton Scout Reserve Composite Camp where he spent the week of August 19 to 17. Christopher's first week in Belleville was spent at the east of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Terry and their son James, also a Scout. Until the departure for the United Kingdom on August 24 he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Swan of the 5th Concession of Thurlow. His hosts are Rover Scouts Bruce Swan and Arthur Fort, Jr.

Christopher's most striking impression of Canada as compared to his homeland is the space here. He is favorably impressed by Belleville's harbor, he admitted difficulty in distinguishing between Canadians and Americans.

When asked about Canadian girls he replied that he finds they are much the same as their English counterparts although he has not yet taken one out."

Much of the current hit parade coming as it does from England Christopher finds that the music here is little different from that he left at home. Some Canadian entertainment doesn't impress him though. The reply to a question on his opinion of Batman was a quick and decisive "stupid."

taining injunctions from the court.

There had been attacks in the legislature on the impartiality of the Belleville labor mediator and Mr. Roberts, had told reporters it would be difficult to choose a commissioner acceptable to both labor and management.

Mr. Justice Rand's terms of reference as set by the government will be to inquire into the means of enforcement of the rights, duties, obligations and liabilities of management and trade unions with relation to each other and to the public. Also it will investigate the use of strikes, cessations of work, lockouts, picketing, demonstrations and boycotts, whether lawful or unlawful in labor disputes.

There was pressure from labor earlier in the year for an overhaul of provincial labor law and demands that the granting of ex parte (one party) injunctions in labor disputes be abolished.

The situation was spotlighted by labor rebellion at the granting of injunctions to strikers earlier this year-at both the Oshawa Times and Tilco Plastics Co., Peterborough.

The Oshawa dispute was resolved before government action was necessary to ensure compliance with a court order limiting picketing.

But in the Tilco situation, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart initialized contempt - of - court charges against those found guilty and sentenced to terms ranging up to three months. The convictions and sentences have been appealed.

Both labor and management representatives met with Mr. Roberts and expressed their views on labor law. Labor said injunctions should be abolished but senior management representatives who met with the premier wouldn't say publically what their position was.

Included in the study will be the needs of the City of Belleville, the Town of Trenton and the developed areas in the townships of Sidney, and Thurlow in Hastings County, Murray in Northumberland County and Ameliasburgh in Prince Edward County.

Two Brothers From Hastings Are Charged

Two Hastings brothers are in custody today charged with breaking, entering and theft in connection with an incident in Stirling at 3 a.m. this morning.

Arrested by Belleville O.P.P. were Melvin Smallman, 20, and Robert Smallin, 22.

Stirling police chief, Charles Hicks, was on duty when the Stirling Lumber Company when he noticed two men running from the area and getting into a car. Chief Hicks fired two shots at the car, hitting one of the rear tires.

The Smallin brothers were arrested a short time later and about three miles west of Stirling. They were fixing a flat tire on their car at the side of the road when Belleville O.P.P. arrested them.

Investigation into the incident continues.

Lord Thomson Says Diversion Will Be Asset

TORONTO (CP) — Canada must try to form a close trade relationship with the European Common Market, preparing for the day when Britain joins, Lord Thomson of Fleet told 3,000 guests attending the official opening of the Canadian National Exhibition Friday.

The Canadian-born publisher also said the eventual diversion of surplus Canadian water supplies to the United States will be an asset in future years.

Guests on the platform included Premier Robarts and Lord Thomson's son, K. R. Thomson, president of Thomson Newspapers Ltd.

Lord Thomson, honorary colonel of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, received a guard of honor from the regiment and attended a luncheon prior to the opening ceremonies.

Premier Robarts told guests that Lord Thomson had acquired his 115th newspaper that morning.

Asked which paper it was, Lord Thomson later said: "Oh, I don't remember. As a matter of fact, I think it's 120 papers we own now."

In his speech, Lord Thomson, 72, said:

"There is no possibility that Britain will be in the Common Market in the near future but the time is inevitably approaching."

EXPORTS WOULD DECLINE

Canada's exports of hard wheat, aluminum and newsprint will decline when Britain joins the ECM.

But these losses would be offset if Canada made arrangements for a preferential relationship with ECM countries.

EMPLOYMENT NEWS

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Employment Relations Officer

During the past week residents and visitors were able to observe from the various exhibits and booths at the Belleville Fair how varied are the present economic activities in the district, with special emphasis on present economic activities in phase of the economy.

The local labor demand during the week was represented by employers' orders for workers listed at the local National Employment Service Office, illustrated this fact. Two additional workers required covered a wide range of occupations in the primary ,secondary industrial fields and services enterprises. Noticeable during the week was the strong labor demand from the transportation and construction fields, with a number of industrial plants also in the market for additional plant workers. The demand for the male worker was much stronger than for female applicents seeking employment.

Harvesting of the season's tomato crop will commence during the coming week and local farmers and the canning plant operators will be hiring the necessary workers to process tomato packs. Anyone interested in this type of temporary employment, either as a tomato picker in the crop fields or as a cannery factory worker is requested to contact the local NES office as soon as possible.

It is of interest to note that elsewhere throughout Canada, there is a constant demand for the skilled and industrial workers.

The following job opportunities are now listed at the local National Employment Service Office: In the women's division locally an experienced saleslady is required on a regular basis to work in the ladies' ready department of a well-known retail store. Another position is available contacting buyers on a specialty item on a house-to-house sales campaign. The successful applicant must have transportation and interest and aptitude for this type of sales work.

There still is an attractive position open in the educational field for an experienced secretary who is proficient in typing and shorthand. It is essential that the successful applicant be a mature person who can assume supervisory responsibility. Other local job opportunities include work for experienced tomato peelers (transportation will be provided); for housekeepers able to care for experienced short order cooks; for baby sitters and for chamber maids. Factory assembly workers are still required in Trenton.

In the male division locally there is an excellent opening for an office clerk who is good at arithmetic, with some previous office experience, and possesses a Grade 12 or better education.

There are a number of career entry positions available in a national transportation firm. The requirements call for at least a Grade 12 education. The successful applicants will be employed initially in junior clerical positions.

The retail merchandising field is another that offers substantial rewards to the far-sighted young man who is willing to start as a trainee and accept a thorough training in the business. In addition to these career entry positions several banks are in urgent need of young high school graduates.

Several openings exist for female help, with some experience, as service station attendants. Also in demand are qualified cooks, janitors and pipelayers.

Any person interested in any of these positions or seeking employment whether locally or elsewhere, should contact the National Employment Service Office at 324 Church Street, or telephone 962-8681.

Holiday Is Delayed

A holiday on the east coast was delayed for a Deseronto couple yesterday afternoon when their late model car left the eastbound lane of Highway 401 about one-and one - half miles west of Belleville.

The car, owned by William John Siegner and his wife, Ann, finished up on the south side of the highway, some 70 feet from the edge of the pavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Siegner were taken to Belleville General Hospital by City Ambulance. They were treated in emergency for cuts and bruises and released.

30 seconds and were felt in Arcadia and the neighboring Soviet Union.

The Bermuda weather bureau said the tremors lasted five minutes.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, listed the intensity of the quake as 9 on the 12-point Soviet scale.

MAY TAKE WEEKS

Government and army authorities in the afflicted areas said it might take weeks to get a complete picture of the death and destruction.

Communications were "precarious" nonetheless and reports filtering in from the hundreds of villages and small communities in the predominantly agricultural region were fragmentary and confusing.

But the quake already appeared one of the worst in recent years. The last major quake in Europe practically razed the Yugoslav city of Skopje July 26, 1963, with a final death toll of 1,100.

Turkish rescue officials said many villages had been reduced to rubble with no signs of life.

They said there was no way to tell how many residents had died into the open countryside.

Interior ministry officials said the bodies of nearly 300 quake victims had been counted by morning and that thousands more were known to have been injured.

BAN RADIO MUSIC

Turkish Premier Suleiman Demirel cancelled his appointments today to make an inspection flight over the stricken area. Music was banned from the Turkish radio and newspapers appeared with black borders.

There were no reports of foreign casualties. The remote area is not popular with tourists.

It was Turkey's worst earthquake since 1949 when 4,018 persons died. The biggest in 1939 killed 32,877 persons.

Gov. Mustafa Ugur Tated of Mus province said more than 2,000,000 people in the earthquake area slept outdoors on the ground Friday night.

Turkish Army units hastily put up five field hospitals and rescue teams brought in 10,000 tents.

American C-118 cargo planes flew three field hospitals, doctors, nurses and medicine to the area.

Wildcat

said it would not be proper for the cabinet to intervene in the walkout until all pre-strike procedures have been exhausted and an official strike date set.

STRIKE NOT OFFICIAL

The workers involved in the unofficial strike as to Friday were a handful of the 98,000 non-operative labor force, belonging to 18 unions who have been disappointed in their bid for wage increases ranging from 35 cents to more than $1 an hour. Their present average wage is $2.22 an hour.

Their claims, rejected by the railway companies had been submitted to two conciliators—Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron for 21,000 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRT), and Mr. Justice Craig Munro of arbitor for 77,000 non-ops.

The two reports were very much the same. They proposed total wage increases of 18 per cent retroactive to June 1; another four per cent effective next Jan. 1; and six per cent next July 1.

Their reports were rejected by the 18 unions concerned who are now working to agree on a joint strike deadline, probably in the period Sept. 1-6.

The unofficial walkouts began Wednesday.

Union leaders tried to prevent them but J. A. Gibbons, a conciliator for the CBRT, said Friday: "I have given up. My efforts to talk to the strikers have ended in failure."

Jack Alyea Will Appeal As PUC Is Given Warrant To Enter Upon His Land

TRENTON — Trenton Public Utilities Commission yesterday won the latest round in its eight-month battle to expropriate 12.9 acres of land owned by Murray Township apple grower Jack Alyea, County Judge J. C. Carruthers granted a restraining order against Mr. Alyea, at Cobourg yesterday afternoon, Mr. Alyea said.

Mr. Alyea, representing Mr. Alyea, said the decision would be appealed immediately.

Judge Carruthers also issued a Sheriff's Warrant which permits P.U.C. construction workers to enter Mr. Alyea's land and proceed with the building of a 90,000,000 gallon water reservoir. The P.U.C. owns land east and west of the Alyea farm and requires the 12.9 acre strip to complete the reservoir project.

Officials of the P.U.C. say spring-fed Tait's Creek, which runs through Alyea's land, will give much needed storage water for the Town of Trenton when the reservoir is in use. Mr. Alyea has maintained all through the length expropriation proceedings that he would never give up any of his land.

Late yesterday afternoon, Mr. Alyea described the P.U.C. as "spineless."

He said: "They had to get the sheriff before they would attempt to come on our land. I'll be cutting grass in the orchard but I'll have the old shotgun ready. They haven't got my land yet."

Rail Strike Threat

There is an air of inevitability about strikes in Canada these days.

The possibility of a rail strike has been known for weeks. Trains are still running, but more than 2,000 men are out in Montreal, Toronto and Windsor.

This partial walkout is unofficial, a wildcat strike to use the vernacular, but it is very much in the modern tradition of the Canadian labor force.

The ineffectual posture of the Government in such situations is disturbing. Knowing that a strike was possible, nothing has been done to try and head it off. A special cabinet committee was set up only last Wednesday and a conference after its second meeting reflected Ottawa's indecision.

One of Transport Minister Pickersgill's men, he said, "They explored the spectrum of options that will be open to the government as events develop." A classic piece of jargon if ever there was one.

And the "events" he spoke of are expected to come to a head on Monday. Meanwhile, Mr. Pickersgill is off to Newfoundland, Prime Minister Pearson to New Brunswick for a meeting with President Lyndon Johnson and Labor Minister Nicholson to Vancouver, to mention jaunts by other members of the strike committee.

Oh yes, they are due back by Monday, but meanwhile the wildcat strike of workers continues, giving rise to fears it may spread and thus render further Government inaction all the more lamentable.

School Delay

An area shortage in the mechanical trades is behind the delay in completing the new 14-room Kente central public school in Ameliasburgh.

Many parents there is disappointment among area residents that their youngsters will not move immediately into the new school at the start of the fall term; and there may be a tendency in such a situation to blame the contractor or local officials.

However, as was pointed out in our Wednesday issue, plumbers, steam fitters and associate tradesmen required on the job are in short supply in the entire district.

A delay of at least six weeks is anticipated in bringing the new school into use. Meanwhile temporary accommodation has been arranged in existing schools with Ameliasburgh township hall.

Some disruption of routine is inevitable, not least in the fact that the township hall is not ideally suitable for school purposes and in any event may be needed on occasions by the centennial committee which now controls it. The committee, however, has agreed to its use for school purposes for a period "not exceeding six weeks unless negotiated."

Every effort should be made to complete construction of the school as quickly as possible, and in the meantime to make the best of the temporary accommodation when school starts.

Unrest in Jamaica

Suggestions that subversion, with its origins in another country — possibly Cuba — is behind the current unrest in Jamaica, should be taken seriously.

Masked men dressed in black are said to have been terrorizing the island for the past seven weeks. In the past week at least one person has been killed and 21 others sent to hospital.

Acting Prime Minister Donald Sangster and Edward Seaga, a member of parliament, have both made statements alluding to "subversion." Mr. Seaga says the disorders are not solely from domestic friction between the Government and the opposition National Party.

The MP said discovery of arms "of a type never before seen in Jamaica gives credence to the rumor arms from certain danger countries are arriving. . ." He did not identify the countries, but communist Cuba, for one, is only 90 miles north of Jamaica.

Jamaica and the Caribbean area generally have managed somehow to resist the revolutionary theories of Cuba which Premier Castro has been busy spreading around ever since he took power in 1959.

But what is happening in Jamaica today could be the thin edge of the wedge, the start of something which, if not put down now, could have serious consequences not only for Jamaica but the entire West Indies. Who knows but Ernesto (Che) Guevara, Castro's former Economic Minister and guerrilla expert, may be behind the unrest. Some reports say Guevara is dead, others that he is hatching revolutionary plots in South America; and Jamaica, of course ,is close at hand.

Jamaica, as a newly-independent nation, and the other islands still under British administration, are peculiarly vulnerable to this kind of pressure. Indeed, it is a wonder they have not succumbed to it before. If the region is to continue its relatively prosperous course, and resist the blandishments of Castro-style communism, it will need the further support of not only Britain but of this country. In this context, the fact that Canada recently signed a new trade pact with the West Indies is fortuitous.

U.K. Changes To Metric

Toronto Star

The Canadian tourist new to Britain fingers the strange money and stares at the number that 12 pennies equal a shilling, a half-crown is two shillings and sixpence, and that there are 20 shillings in a pound.

Yet the same Canadian tourist puts up with an even more awkward system of weights and measures: 13 inches, one foot; three feet, one yard; 5½ yards, one rod; . . . 16 ounces to a pound and four quarts to the gallon.

As long ago as 1853 the British provinces of Canada adopted decimal currency. The time is overdue to study conversion of our weights and measures to the metric system.

International business and industry make it advisable; chemistry and electronics, defence and space engineering have made metres for length, grams for weight, commonplace in much design and production here and in the States.

Effect in forty per cent of the world's population and 76 per cent of the gross world product is in countries using the metric system, a trading nation such as Canada would benefit from the switch.

Britain decided last year to convert to the metric system over a 10-year period and in 1972 inches, ounces and gallons will disappeared from the official British vocabulary. (So, likely, will pounds and pence, as they have this year in Australia.) The Computer Society of Canada has asked Ottawa to set up some sort of investigative commission to study the costs, values and problems of conversion here. This should be done.

Amplifier for X-rays Cuts Radiation Dose

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

People who have had to be X-rayed numerous times still write to me asking whether so much radiation is harmful.

My answer is that radiation without a good reason should always be avoided, but that for diagnostic X-rays film now permit shorter exposures, and in the last decade another factor has also been at work: the "image amplifier" or "image intensifier."

This summer the original one of these was donated to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

A professor at Temple University, Dr. Edward Chamberlain, started a crusade for such a device in a lecture in 1941. With a "light amplifier" X-rays would show more; when a fluoroscope was being used, doctors would not have to remain in the dark for a half hour in advance to adjust their eyes to see the very faint images.

The first image amplifier was announced in 1948 by a Westinghouse research team headed by Dr. John W. Coltman, and was first used medically in 1950.

It intensified the image 250 to 300 times which was a marvelous step forward, but today's sums units increase the brightness by several thousand times. Much smaller amounts of radiation are needed per picture, and in many large hospitals, motion pictures taken by X-ray are made when it is necessary to watch the movement of an organ rather than just taking a "still" picture. This is of vast importance in diagnosis of heart defects, studies of breathing, and other matters.

Dr. Chamberlain predicted that when such a device came along it would be "second in importance only to the discovery of X-rays themselves," which was not a bad forecast, yet it has now crept into daily use with so little fanfare that it is good many people, it seems, are not really aware of its existence.

Medically it not only reduces radiation and makes far better pictures, but is permitting us to find out some things the human body that have been impossible to ascertain before.

It has a lot of tremendous use in astronomy and other endeavors in which images are very faint, but that's aside from the point, so far as medicine is concerned.

Rights of Parents Denied

Kingston Whig-Standard

The decision of Mr. Justice Arthur R. Senyuk, of the Ontario Supreme Court, in the case of the high-school boy suspended because his parents chose to have him eat at home instead of in the school cafeteria must come as a shock to all parents. The judge simply declared that the boy and his parents had no rights in the matter.

The youth in question, John West, has been suspended from Cobourg District Collegiate Institute East since May 3. His father insisted that the boy come home (a distance, of 1½ blocks) for his noon meal, contrary to a regulation of the Cobourg District Collegiate Institute Board. When the authorities tried to force the boy to stay his father defied them and went to court.

A lot of good it did him, as it turned out. Mr. West believes in the sacred rights of parents over children. The Cobourg board believes in the exercise of paternalistic power. It makes no difference that Mr. West charged that school cafeteria was crowded and his meal incharged that the school cafeteria was crowded and his meals inadequate. The mere fact that a parent wants a child home for a meal — as long a no hardship exists for the child thereby — is enough. No public authority should have the right to interfere in such decision — not even the education authority.

Unfortunately Mr. Justice Arthur Jeuniu did not see fit to give his reasons for this reactionary decision of his. It may be one of those lords of our law establishment who think ordinary people are incapable of making ethical judgments. At any rate he flatly refused to give his reasoning, to quote from any legislation, or to suggest any principles in support of his stand.

Why are sensitive matters such as this, violations of the rights or individuals, so often left hanging in a kind of legal limbo? Surely it is the duty of the law establishment to provide leadership in the never-ending battle of the public against bad legislation. Mr. Justice McMurer spoke eloquently on this general topic just the other day. Would that all our law officials might take their cue from him.

Respect for New Flag An Affair of the Heart

By GREG CONNOLLEY
RICHARD JACKSON IS ON HOLIDAYS
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Less than 12 months ago that the House of Commons in a bitterly fought battle approved the Maple Leaf Flag as Canada's official emblem.

The debate in the House was long and furious. It went on for much of the summer and autumn of 1964, and all across the nation citizens argued with vim and vigor.

The Conservative Leader, John Diefenbaker, led the attack, condemning the Prime Minister and the government and stoutly defending the old Red Ensign.

Mr. Pearson had first promised a Canadian flag in previous election campaigns and he determined to make his pledge come true.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker waged a fierce, tenacious battle against the new flag and when it was first hoisted on Parliament Hill, he pulled a handkerchief out of his pocket and seemed to shed a tear.

Remember the demonstrations in favor of the Red Ensign? Remember how people used to place Maple Leaf flags on their cars!

Of course the Prime Minister had preferred a three-maple-leaf flag but under the stress of the great fight in the Commons, he finally agreed to send it to a committee of the House for a recommendation.

This committee discarded the three-maple-leaf plan and came up with the present version.

There was a tremendous uproar in the Commons the night the new flag was finally approved. Insults were hurled across the floor and one Conservative MP, I remember, thumbed his nose at the Prime Minister.

But now most of that fury and those inbred feelings appear to be forgotten and the maple leaf flag seems to have gained general acceptance.

However, the new flag was definitely an issue in the election of April 8. Nevertheless, Mr. Diefenbaker made pointed reference to it in certain sections of the country.

For example, in Prince Edward Island where the Conservatives won all four seats and in Nova Scotia where the Tories also did very well, the flag was a factor.

The ironic thing about the flag today though is that its most heated opposition comes from Quebec — from separatist groups.

Of course Quebec had been the province which gave the most generous support to the new emblem. But a year ago on July 1, bands of separatists stepped and burned flags and would have done so again this year but for police intervention.

It is interesting too that this very action of the separatists has helped to make the new flag more acceptable in other parts of Canada.

All this old debate over the flag has been recalled through a campaign by Warren Allmand, the Liberal member for the Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace.

Mr. Allmand wants the government to pass some legislation that would prohibit in a serious offence for anyone to mistreat the national flag.

He wants the emblem to be treated with great respect as the symbol of our nation.

Actually Ovide Laflamme, the Liberal MP for Quebec South-Shore has proposed a bill that would provide for appropriate fines or jail terms for any desecration or defacing of the flag.

But Mr. Allmand believes such an important matter should be undertaken by the government. He urges the cabinet to do this but he hasn't had a very satisfactory reply thus far.

Perhaps the government has more important matters to deal with. Perhaps the cabinet feels that you can't legislate respect for the flag, it has to be in the heart.

DISTINCTIVE EMBLEM

However, the Americans are very strict about the treatment of their flag. Anyone using the Stars and Stripes would be in serious trouble indeed.

But Canadians are always easier-going than Americans and perhaps the Prime Minister, finally bidding the new flag through Parliament, now does not want any more controversy attached to it.

The flag is there — it is quite a striking looking emblem and when you see it abroad in Europe or the U.S., there is a feeling of pride despite, perhaps, a nostalgia for the Red Ensign.

Well, one of these times, Mr. Pearson will have another thing to do along this line—making 'O Canada' the official anthem for our country.

A resolution to this effect has been on the Commons order paper since last January.

One of the big problems is how to get a set of words for 'O Canada' that will make both French and English-speaking Canadians happy.

But if the Prime Minister could get the new flag through Parliament, then 'O Canada' shouldn't be nearly as difficult.

Canada's Antiquated Laws

Hamilton Spectator

As the twenty-first century approaches rapidly, some of Canada's laws are still designed to suit Victorian Age attitudes. As a result, some of our laws must be labelled silly, out of date, outmoded, unfair, and a constant irritation.

One of Canada's best known jurists, J. C. McRuer, former Chief Justice of the Ontario Supreme Court, has put forward some of these thoughts when he spoke to the American Bar Association convention in Toronto last week. His line of thinking was particularly interesting in that it suggested strongly that if there is a decline in respect for laws, it is because judges, legislators, and lawyers have completely failed to develop just laws and just administration of justice in the social changes brought about by the scientific development of this century."

While Mr. McRuer avoided mentioning any specific laws or law, say lawyer in his audience must have had a pretty good idea what he was talking about. Laws which are manifestly unjust and which have been allowed to remain on the books for years. Laws which are ridiculous and which have been made a mockery by the public's refusal to obey them.

Liquor laws are of major concern. Canada makes it unnecessarily difficult for the civilized drinker. Only Quebec and Nfld. have a liberalize drinking on Sundays. And it continues to be illegal for a man to take a bottle of liquor to the home of his hotel room in his locked suitcase and place it in the trunk of his car for the trip home. Nor is it legal for that same man to serve his 20-year-old son a glass of beer within the so-called haven of his own home.

It follows, of course, that while many antiquated laws should be removed outright or drastically altered on the grounds of a modern world's rapidly changing values, new laws should be put on the statute books to take care of such 1966 phenomena as noise from anti - social conversation in apartment buildings, souped-up jalopies, motorbikes, and midnight swimming pool parties. Anti-noise laws with teeth would sit well with the many people who are horrified by the threats to sense that lie lurking in some of the busy activities of the men of the laws that haunt today's statutes.

Mr. McRuer says that "order, like law, to be respected must deserve "respect." Furthermore, he says that the men on the street may for a tim obey an unjust law he will disagreet it and may one day join others in legal attempts to have the law changed.

"Disrespect for any order that does not deserve-respect ought not be condemned as subversion but as healthy regeneration." Those are Mr. McRuer's thoughtful words.

Successful Living

There Are Worse Problems Than Child's Food Allergies

DEAR DORIS — I would like to pass some encouragement to the cellac's mother. I have two sons, one of whom is a healthy 10-year-old who is allergic to 30 of our common foods (all dairy products, wheat, citrus fruits, lentils, seasonings, nuts, plus house dust, feathers (duck), and the other a 11-month-old who is allergic to all that plus all animal proteins.

I happen to be a graduate home economist (thank God) and I try to keep my boys' meals as close to Canada's Food Guide as possible, but schnitzicon.

I could write at great length about the recipes I have dreamed up, and the interesting combinations these two eat — but the main point is that these children know they can't eat everything; the older one knows why and no one has ever felt sorry for them in front of them. As a result, they are as uncondemned about their food differences as one could wish.

DORIS CLARE

If the mother of your letter lives in this city, ask her to phone me. Otherwise suggest she have a talk with her hospital's dietitian or a Home Ec. teacher.

There are lots worse things than allergies! — HOME EC.

DEAR HOME EC. — Isn't it the truth! (Although unfortunately, lives hundred of miles from you) — and many another. — will read your words and take heart.

DEAR DORIS — Wouldn't you know it? I have just discovered that there is nothing I would like better than to do something for "Expo 67" in Montreal. I have just come out of hibernation after completing my grade 12 exams.

I should like working in the Canadian pavilion's restaurant, or if there were a sort of baby-sitting agency I should like to help relieve weary mammas of their youngsters while they (the mammas) "take a breather". To work there a full year would be almost too much to hope for because I shall do a lot of travelling some day and there would be so much to learn from "Expo" about the different countries.

Please answer "toute de suite". — EXPO 67 OR BUST.

DEAR OR BUST — Can you parley-voo? Being bilingual would increase your chances. To be a hostess in the Canadian Pavilion you must be 20 and a high school graduate — but there are other jobs just as challenging.

Write to the Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition, 2 Rues Ville Marie, Montreal, Quebec. Give age, education, experience; type of job you'd like, and how long you could work. The Expo runs from April 28 to October 27.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO A VERY HAPPY WOMAN — Yes, I have known of other who found a great love in such a way. You say you will not let the children down but that you two hope to be together next year. How can this be? You can't bow out on your present responsibilities without your own sweet dreams of happiness turning sour.

DEAR DORIS — I'm 20. When I was 14 I met a fellow and fell in love with him (an interne at the hospital). Since then I have been very unhappy, because I went to a boarding school for one year and haven't seen him since or heard of him.

But I still want badly to find him. I've been told that he'd gone back to China. I had many dates since and a few admirers but I've never seen in lots of other gentlemen. Should I find someone of his nationality to associate with, or go with other gentlemen of my own nationality? For I want to marry and have children. — CONFUSED AND LONELY.

DEAR LONELY — The interne you adored at 14 has become a dream and an ideal. If you were to meet him now you might find that the flesh and blood reality was quite a let-down, when seen through the eyes of Twenty. The prejudice you have been building in his favor has automatically shut out anybody else. Try taking a new look at the boys nearer in age and background — before they all get married.

Q.: What is "RC" chins?

A.: Porcelain with the mark "RC Prussia" in a wreath was made by Reinhold Schlegelmilch until 1918. It was made in Suhl, Germany.

It is a late 19th century porcelain of good quality. Collectors claim that a red star above the green wreath signifies the piece was one of the better examples.

RC as a mark was also used by the Rosenthal factory of Germany.

The Lord's Supper bread plate was mentioned in our column a few months ago. We received many letters telling us about these trays. One reader wrote, "The mould for making this bread plate was made in my father's (Christian Arduser) mould shop in Findlay, Ohio, as you stated. The wonderful work of chipping the Lord and His 12 Disciples was accomplished by Mr. Henry Coontz, a journeyman mould maker employed by my father."

Any minor complaints about such conditions are overshadowed by extravagant praise for the teachers. "We have so much," says Laverne Stewart, 18, of Winnipeg.

The musician-teachers include cellist Walter Joachim, Montreal; Fredrich Grisler, violin professor at the Royal Academy of Music in London, and Mr. Kent, who conducted rehearsals until the return of Walter Susskind from abroad.

The orchestra was formed in 1960 when Mr. Susskind, then conductor of the Toronto Symphony, got a group of private individuals interested in establishing a non-profit organization to provide professional training for young musicians.

Since then the orchestra has had annual training sessions and concert tours, drawing its membership from every province after rigorous auditions.

This year's concert tour opens at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival Sunday, Aug. 21. After a further week of rehearsals in Toronto the orchestra goes to Edinburgh for an Aug. 28 concert and flies to London the following day.

The first overseas concert will be at Croydon, England, Aug. 31 under the chairmanship of Sir Max Aitken, son of the late Lord Beaverbrook. It will conclude the Commonwealth Festival Sept. 3 and 4.

Other concerts will be at 11 Dieppe Sept. 7, Vichy Sept. 10 and 12, Lyon Sept. 12 and Berlin Sept. 14 before the group flies back to Toronto for a final concert at Massey Hall Sept. 16.

National Youth Orchestra Ready to Open 'World Tour'

By HEATHER MITCHELL

TORONTO (CP)—The piano soloist of the National Youth Orchestra hesitates on the triangle and the harp player doubles on the bass drum.

"It's not all bad for beginners with musical training," says the smash-on drummer, Rhonda Baker, 16, of Toronto.

Picked from 400 students across Canada, the 93 young men and 39 girls of the orchestra are expected to be versatile. They must also be excellent musicians.

"There is no room for mistakes," conductor Eugene Kash told them at rehearsal. "If you aren't sure, don't play. We won't miss you."

The six-year-old orchestra was in Toronto to train intensively with top concert teachers for three weeks before going on a six-city overseas tour late in August.

The group rehearses from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. with only lunch and dinner breaks. After that, says the orchestra's nurse, Barbara Barrow, "it's not uncommon to see a quartet and a trio in the lounge practising until midnight, each local the other completely; they are so dedicated."

"Everywhere else you are such a misfit because you love music," says Phyllis Wedding, 22, of Winnipeg. "Here everyone does. It's great."

The girls have an 11 p.m. curfew at their University of Toronto residence but "we are so clever we don't mind," says 19-year-old Marie Lamontagne of Montreal.

PRAISE TEACHERS

Marcelle Gagne of Montreal is the girls' chaperone and Larry Bond, head of the music department at a Toronto high school, keeps an eye on the boys.

The residence was five beds short when the girls arrived July 30 but "the girls were very cooperative; they just slept on the sofas in the lounge for two days," says Mrs. Gagne.

Berlin Sept. 14 before the group flies back to Toronto for a final concert at Massey Hall Sept. 16.

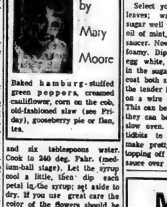
Candy Rose Petals and Mint

QUESTION:

Will you please tell me how to candy rose petals and mint leaves? We have some beautiful roses and I would like to have some petals to decorate cakes and pies in the wintertime. Madeleine C.

ANSWER:



You've was an unusual request. I have not tested these recipes.

CANDIED FLOWERS:

2 tablespoons gum arabic (buy this at drug store), ¼ cup water, ¼ cup sugar, 6 tablespoons water (second amount), 1 tablespoon corn syrup, flower petals of your choice — rose or whole violet are commonly used.

Wash dry and drain flower petals carefully, snipping off the stem ends, which will toughen. Mix the gum arabic and ¼ cup water. Heat over hot water until dissolved. Now arrange the flower petals in rows on paper towels. Paint them very carefully with the melted gum arabic. This will stiffen them. I advise using a small camel-hair brush for this process.

Combine sugar, corn syrup, and six tablespoons water. Cook to 240 deg. Fahr. (medium-ball stage). Let the syrup cool a little, then dip each petal in the syrup; set aside to dry. If you use great care the color of the flowers should be retained. They make delightful decorations.

CANDIED MINT LEAVES:

1 cup freshly picked mint leaves, ⅛ cup coarse granulated sugar, oil of mint, 1 egg white.

Select young, delicate mint leaves; wash and dry. Mix sugar well with a few drops of oil of mint, and spread out in saucer. Now beat egg white till foamy. Dip each mint leaf in egg white, then roll carefully in the sugar, taking pains to coat both sides and not bruise the tender leaf. Place each leaf on a wire rack to dry slowly. This can be done in the sun, or they can be dried in a very slow oven. These are savory delights to nibble. They also make pretty decorations for topping off a creme de menthe sauce over ice cream.

Old Fort Henry

One of the most spectacular sights to be witnessed in Ontario this summer is the red-coated Fort Henry Guard performing its 19th century foot and arms drill. Composed of Canadian university students, the Guard dazzles visitors to Old Fort Henry with its remarkable display, which has won fame both at home and abroad. Every Wednesday evening, through July and August, the Guard enacts the impressive "Retreat" ceremony. Old Fort Henry has been Kingston's most famous landmark since 1812. Restored in 1938, it retains all the paraphernalia of a 19th century fortress, including field artillery in the parade square and musket-loading cannon atop the ramparts overlooking Lake Ontario. Fort Henry, open daily from May 14 through September 18, is located at the junction of highways 2 and 15, Kingston, Ontario.

170 miles of parks

Along Ontario's shores stretches one of the most beautiful playground areas in North America. The 14 St. Lawrence Parks cater to almost every summer recreation — swimming at supervised sandy beaches, boating, fishing, picnicking, horseback riding and golf (at the new 18-hole Upper Canada golf course in Crysler Farm Battlefield Park). Parks are divided for day and overnight use. Facilities include firewood, boat launching ramps, barbecues, electricity, fresh water and modern conveniences. While you're in the area, don't miss a visit to Upper Canada Village, seven miles east of Morrisburg on Highway 2. ANN LANDERS

Boys Got in Trouble Helping Girl Hiker

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I just read that asinine letter from the man who was made at you because you told another make reader he should not have helped the little girl in the church rest-room. Please print this letter as a lesson to all kind-hearted men who may be inclined to give a helping hand to someone in need.

My two nephews (aged 19 and 17) were driving home after having visited relatives in another city. They saw a teen-age girl on the road. She seemed in distress so they picked her up. She got into the car, said she was trying to get home and had run out of gas.

The truth was that she was running away from home. The boys were stopped by the police who were on the lookout for the girl. My nephews were arrested, charged with statutory rape and spent the night and part of the next day in jail before the girl admitted that they were innocent. The boys' parents spent some mighty anxious hours before the mess was cleared up. The town, of course, is still taking bets on "the true story." So you see it does pay to mind your own business. GREENVILLE.

DEAR GREENVILLE — I agree. It does pay to mind your own business, but not to the point where we allow ourselves to ignore people in trouble.

The operative word is "judgment." I am dead opposed to picking up hitchhikers (male or female) and have said so repeatedly. To ignore a cry for help, however, as so many people have done in recent years, is inhuman and indefensible.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The man I love with works with me and I see him every day. I cannot see him much at night because he is married to a slob who is so wrapped up in her children she doesn't know she has a husband.

My sweetheart has told me that he can't leave his children now and I see his side of it. Kids do need a father — at least until they are out of high school. My question is, what shall I do in the meantime? — PATIENT.

DEAR PATIENT — In the meantime you can read a lot or play solitaire or watch T.V. or go to movies.

One day you will look in the mirror and discover to your astonishment you are older and there are no marriageable men around. You'll note that your sweetheart is still living with his wife and you are still sneaking around settling for whatever you can get.

Pretty picture? No. But it's a very real one—and so old I'm almost ashamed to repeat it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I had to laugh when I read the letter from the worried wife who found some lipstick on her husband's collar.

I work as a draftsman and I use colored pencils for graphs and charts. For several years I used my handkerchief to smooth out the colored portions.

One day my wife asked me "Who in your office uses purple lipstick?"

When I told her I didn't understand her question she confessed that she thought I was having affairs with several different women because she had found red, pink, orange (and now purple) smudges on my handkerchiefs.

When I explained she said, "What a crazy fool I have been." So you see, Ann, you are right. It's always wise to clear the air. — NOT GUILTY.

DEAR NOT Any guy who would use his handkerchief for red and pink pencil smudges must have a very clear conscience, indeed.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Girls Only Clean Glass On Inside

TORONTO (CP) — Two-bit school girls from suburban Richmond Hill became commercial window washers as a publicity gag three years ago.

Patti Higgs, 21, and Carol Shelton, 15, like the job so much they've returned to it every summer since. They say the pay is so good they don't like to discuss it for fear of making men in the business jealous.

They wear blue cotton zippered jump suits and carry water pails, chamois, sponges and squeegees as tools of the trade.

Hiring the girls was the idea of George Empson, sub - contractor for a window-cleaning firm. Most of their work is on inside windows. They leave the outside work to men.

Their principal beef, Chief Carol says some office workers use the windowsills as filing cabinets. They pile everything there and want the pile back in exactly the same disorder when the windows have been cleaned.

Will Finish Lisbon Church After Centuries of Work

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—The Church of Santa Engracia, dominating Lisbon from one of the city's seven hills, will finally be completed in October after centuries of intermittent construction.

It will outdate a popular saying for a job that never seems to get done: "It's like building Santa Engracia."

"We were determined to end the legend this year, once we had bridged the River Tagus, another apparently endless task," says Public Works Minister Arantes e Oliveira. "And now it will serve as Portugal's national pantheon, housing the greatest figures of the country."

The legend began in the late 16th century, when a church on Santa Engracia hill was burglarized and all its ecclesiastical treasures disappeared.

DEFILED CHURCH

The church was pronounced defiled and it was decided to build another and grander one. But eyewitnesses had seen a young man named Simao Pires Solis crossing the churchyard in the night.

Simao claimed he was innocent but refused to explain the reason of his presence near the church. This and the fact he was a Jew in a strongly Roman Catholic community were enough to send him to the stake.

The tale goes that Simao was having a love affair with a nun in a nearby convent, and preferred to die rather than betray his beloved. His last words were:

"As surely as I die innocent will the building of Santa Engracia never be achieved."

Years later, the nun also died and Lisbonians began to report her ghost walking along the new walls of the church, sometimes accompanied by Simao. Soon, the cupola collapsed and the walls crumbled.

Plans were drawn up for another church. But the worry about ghosts and the fear of "modern" architecture based on a daring dome sapped workers of their enthusiasm.

Then the earthquake of 1775 levelled Lisbon, killed more than 60,000 persons and destroyed Santa Engracia No. 3.

Work began anew, but the builders were less enthusiastic than ever. Rich marble columns and intricate carvings surrounded the walls. But the roof of the dome was built with crude wooden planks. No one dared finish the construction for fear it might collapse again.

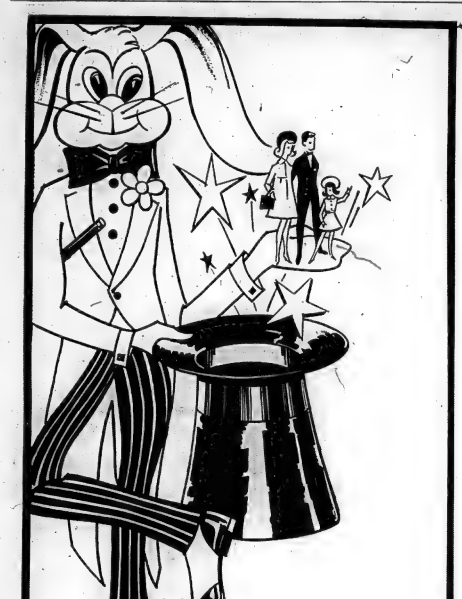
In 1835 the war ministry took over Santa Engracia and used it successively as a barracks, an ammunition depot and a boot factory.

After the monarchy fell in 1910, the unfinished church was listed as a national monument, but lack of funds prevented use of it.

Six years ago Premier Antonio Salazar's government decided it must be finished and put 150 men on the job of sealing the cupola. A crew of 30 workers has recently been added to speed up construction.

Lighting the Way

By Walter S. Crose



THERE'S ALWAYS A WAY

When the Nazis invaded Norway, Lars Ulriksen was taken off to a concentration camp. Confined to one large room with 40 other men, he endured for almost five years, all the suffering that goes with human existence under such conditions. But Lars could pray, and he did. One day, in an effort to extract information from him by means of torture, his guards broke the bones in his legs and feet. But in the act of throwing him into his bunk a penknife fell from the guard's pocket unnoticed, and Lars grasped it in his hand.

With this knife, Lars was tempted to kill himself, but instead, he decided to use it for life. From a beam he gouged a small chunk of wood and began to carve the shape of a bear. As he whittled day after day, he felt faith and hope return in him. Gradually, he gained courage to believe in the future. Continuing his carving he gained strength to sustain him until repatriation. The knife became an instrument of life.

God is with us in our suffering and trouble. If we still have faith, and "give ourselves to prayer, we will find the way to turn our "stumbling stones" into "stepping stones", to the glory of God.

THEY FOR TODAY: "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God." (Romans 8:28)

There's nothing magical about it!

A Lift For Living

Man Should Make Time To Spend in Solitude

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

We North Americans are great greeters, quick to say a friendly "Hello." Our big cities have welcome committees to hail famed newcomers and "welcome wagons" to salute new residents of the community. We buy welcome mats for our doorsteps, and we know exactly how to meet guests at the door and what to say to make them feel "at home."

But we are not so adept at saying "Goodbye." We tend to linger in a world of crowds, reluctant to withdraw into quiet seclusion, as if we were afraid to face ourselves alone. Even when we depart from the streets, factories, offices, schools, colleges, theatres, athletic events, picnics, banquets and other places where multitudes gather, and we go to our own homes, we are still not alone.

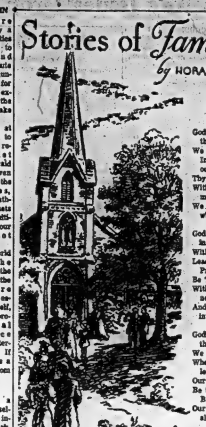
We invite the whole world home with us, turning on the radio, the television set or the record player, or dialing on the telephone, as if there were some perverse necessity to escape confronting the real self, with no ear second to protect us against this mortal enemy. William James once said, "The great source of terror in infancy is solitude." (that is so, many of us have had emotional hangover from infancy.

MADE, NOT FOUND

Even those who profess a longing for aloneness be seldom go after it with earnest intent. Busy people often remark, "If I could only find some time to be alone!" Time for solitude is seldom found, like a nickel in the gutter. Rather such time is made, cut out of the day, as window space is sawed out of a wall.

Some of the world's most kilo people have little time for solitude, and many of the most fruitfully active have regularly taken out of every day some time to be alone. The great have known that clear thinking, vivid use of the imagination, and wholesome morals are seldom experienced amidst the uproar of crowds. Therefore they have stabilished some oasis of solitude where their spirits could be briefly refreshed, readied for the world once more.

William Cullen Bryant, American poet of the 1800's, made a practice of slipping away from his busy whirl of editorship as editor of the old New York Evening Post to search for a few moments of lonely silence among the groves guarding the banks of the Hudson River. There he sought to be reminded of life's elementals, so often lost amidst haste and indecision, and it affect, the society of his fellows. There he became aware of his spiritual origins and his far destiny. Bryant knew that character has as deep a need for occasional isolation as it does for human fellowship.



Like William Cullen Bryant, the great writers, artists, musicians, statesmen and saints have found some spot to be alone, a place to meditate quietly, to try to know better themselves, their world, the higher values, and their God. For such purposes "Jesus went to the Mount Olives," apart from the world, withdrawn even from His dearest friends.

A, thoughtful prayerful solitude is a withdrawal from work that we may return to our labors refreshed. It is a farewell to friends that we may return to them inwardly refreshed and enriched, and therefore better friends. A "goodbye" to the world and its busyness that we may return to do "our Father's business" in the world, reclaiming and redeeming it.

Anker-Larsen, a Danish writer, says, "Solitude is a withdrawal from work that we may return to our labors refreshed. It is a farewell to friends that we may return to them inwardly refreshed and enriched, and therefore better friends. A "goodbye" to the world and its busyness that we may return to do "our Father's business" in the world, reclaiming and redeeming it.

GOD OF OUR LIFE THROUGH ALL THE CIRCLING YEARS

God of our life, through all the circling years,
We trust in Thee;
In all the past, through all
our hopes and fears,
Thy hand we see.
With each new day, when morning lifts the veil,
We own Thy mercies, Lord, which never fail.

God of the past, our times are in Thy hand;
Within us abide;
Lead us by faith to hope's true
Promised Land;
Be Thou our guide.
With Thee to bless, the darkness shines as light,
And faith's fair vision changes into sight.

God of the coming years,
through paths unknown,
We follow Thee;
When we are strong, Lord
leave us not alone;
Our need be.
Be thou for us in life our Daily
Bread,
Our heart's true Home when all our years have sped.

For nearly half a century this beautiful and popular hymn has been used again and again at devotions and services of worship marking religious anniversaries.

When One of America's best known Presbyterian churches—the famous Shadyside, Church of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania—celebrated its fiftieth anniversary in 1916, the hymn was written for the birthday occasion by the church's pastor, Dr. Rev. Hugh Thomson Kerr, D.D.

Madame Louise Homer, the popular American concert and opera singer whose father at one time had been pastor of the church, attended the anniversary worship service and led the congregation in the singing of Dr. Kerr's hymn. The tune "Saxony" fitted the hymn, "Lead Kindly Light" by Charles H. Purday, English composer, also is used for this hymn.

A native of Canada where he was born in 1873, Dr. Kerr was educated at the University of Toronto and at the Western Theological Seminary in Pittsburgh. He was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry in 1897 and served pastorates in Hutchinson, Kansas and in Chicago before going to Pittsburgh. In 1930 he was moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

Lines on Life

Artificial Is Useless

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Ours has been properly called a "cut-flower civilization." One looks at the pretty shape and form of nature's bounty hemmed together in the pleasant bouquet. But you look again, and alas, the rose petal has fallen, its scent is gone and somehow beautiful just yesterday, is loosed in the wastebasket today.

Nature's rapid death is a sorry spectacle, but we can, at least, look forward to the new flower to follow tomorrow, in nature's rebirth of bounty. But we are impatient, and so we falsify nature by going one better, or so we think. No longer do we look to real flowers — they die too soon, and we can't wait for tomorrow. We excel in producing "life-like" reproductions, plastic emblems of the unreal, which fool us into believing that they are true - to - life. And the more deceptive they are, the more real we come to regard the artificial.

But while we are capable of simulating truth in a hundred unusual but spurious ways, we can not effectively lie to nature. Always, what is natural is true, and what only seems to be natural remains false. True or false — you can't live with it, at the same time — choose one or the other!

Consider the artificialities of some of our homes, "Libraries" without books, livingrooms where none stay long enough to live; recreation rooms with card tables but no real room for recreation.

Where there are no books rooms we may call libraries do not exist in truth. (Indeed, not even with books — that remain untouched, or worse, unread).

Without home-life — and the appreciation for the good life — living rooms are not living rooms at all. They cannot give what we do not bring to them.

And if our sole recreation consists of games which may engage the mind but do not elevate the spirit, our "recreation room" will never be much more than a basement. Instead of rising higher, our "wreck-reation" will keep us lower.

Or think how some require rewards for goodness—rewards that die, are buried and are soon forgotten. Without public fanfare, without the paid-for publicity, some won't help their neighbors. Without fanfare and phoios it is sometimes difficult for politicians to do what they should . Lilies need no gilt, nor should decency require minor reflections leading to glittering public notice. But without pictures and applause, few have a chance at success! And the pity—there is so little true piety, only false pride.

Rewards for kindness are plastic labels, unreal badges that lose their meaning. Only love has love's sake. Decency, for goodness sake! Only these survive — because they are real.

Deseronto's Fair Display Brings Concrete Results

DESERONTO — Deseronto is so well pleased with the recognition of its display at the Belleville Fair that it has engaged even more space for the Picton Fair.

Ernest Lack is the president of the Deseronto Business and Professional Men's Club, founded only June 8, which adopted the idea of this display at its charter meeting. Over 50 per cent of the businesses in the town joined at that meeting, as well as all the manufacturing plants. The display was the joint effort of all members, with full co-operation at all times, Mr. Lack says.

The corporation was responsible for 5,000 brochures of the town, off the press only last week, for quantities of book matches advertising the town, and for the impressive 46 foot banner centering the 80 foot display space, urging everyone to "Visit Deseronto on the Beautiful Bay of Quinte."

Concrete results have already been felt. At least one firm received an order the day after the fair closed, as a direct result of the display, Bet Mr. Lack believes that the full impact will not be felt for two months. "You cannot measure the results of advertising," he declares.

ADVERTISING HAND-OUTS

Each exhibitor had his own sign. All were the same size and so two were alike. Each had some form of advertising to hand out, and several had candies or other treats for the children, through the courtesy of E. J. Gardiner of the five to $1. store. Book matches were popular items, and a few exhibitors had free draws. The Deseronto Cleaners gave away the pointed handkerchief corsage which adorn men's coat pockets, and the Canada Optical Company distributed plastic key rings of their own manufacture.

The most eye-catching display was that of the Hawley Bros., cabinet in wood, specialising in the reproduction of antique furniture. Featured was a reproduction of a high chair copied from one 200 years old. The firm cannot fill its orders, but refuses to enlarge.

The Canada Optical Company, manufacturers of plastic eyeglass frames, had several cases of frames on display. Creek Drive-In Village and Yorkdale Shopping Center.

Miss Annie Richards spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jeffrey at Shannonville.

The effort was well worthwhile and is pleased with the co-operation all concerned. "We set out to promote Deseronto, knowing that by doing this we were helping every business in the town," he says.

Birdie Tebbetts Resigns

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians defeated Chicago White Sox 3-2 Friday night, not knowing that it was the last game of the season for their manager Birdie Tebbetts.

The official announcement of Tebbetts' resignation came in the office of general-manager Gabe Paul after the 10-inning ball game.

Tebbetts is being succeeded by George Strickland, third base coach and shortstop for the 1954 pennant-winning team.

Tebbetts will be available for the remainder of the season for special assignments and will do some scouting and contact work that will be beneficial to the club," Paul said.

"I told Gabe he would be better off—that the club would be better off," the 36-year-old Tebbetts said after the press conference.

"I want to stay in baseball, Tebbetts added.

HEALTH NOW OK

Tebbetts said the heart attack he had in 1964 was not a contributing factor to his leaving the team. He said a Cleveland doctor recently gave him a clean bill of health.

Tebbetts suffered his heart attack April 3, 1964, and missed the first part of the season. Strickland handled the managerial chores until Tebbetts returned July 9.

Strickland, 43, played shortstop for Pittsburgh Pirates before coming to Cleveland in 1957. He finished his player career in 1958. He managed Reno, Cleveland and then joined Minnesota Twins' coaching staff in 1962. He returned to Cleveland the following year.

Tebbetts was manager of Cincinnati Reds and Paul was general manager in 1954 through 1958. Tebbetts went to front office job with Milwaukee saying the move is "the end of me baseball."

Tebbetts left the Braves following the 1963 season.

Birdie, who started catching for Detroit in 1937, ended his playing career with the Indians in 1952. He was named to the American League All Star team in 1941, '42, '48 and '49.

Market Decline Is Accelerated As Key Issues Drop Sharply

By GORDON GRANT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The relentless stock market decline, now in its sixth month, accelerated this week in Canada as prices of key issues were driven sharply lower.

The Toronto Stock Exchange Industrial Index, which shows investor sentiment, hit its high point of 175.00 in January, but since the second week of February has been in a steep decline. It closed the week at 150.05, close to its lowest points since April, 1964.

The most popular explanation for the decline is lack of leadership from the New York stock market which sets the pattern for action on Canadian exchanges.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which measures the Big Board's health, closed Friday at 804.82, its lowest level since June 8, 1964.

Other explanations included uncertainty about the international situation and general economic conditions, including tight money.

BANKS BATTERED

In Toronto, banks have been battered with four of the five listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange touching 1966 lows.

Toronto-Dominion was off 2¼ to 57; Royal 1¾ to 68¾, Imperial Commerce 2 to 58 and Nova Scotia 1¼ to 66. Nova Scotia traded as high as 77¾ earlier in the year and Imperial Commerce at 70¾.

Bell Telephone was off 1¾ to 48¾, down from its 1966 high of 56¾. Alcan Aluminum was down 2 at 31, off from its high of 46¾. Moore Corp., the world's largest business form maker, fell 4¼ to 76¾ and IBM, tied largely to the Moore forms, sagged 9 to 361.

In papers, Great Lakes lost 2¼ at 24¾, Price dipped 2 to 25¾, MacMillan, Bloedel 1 to 25, Consolidated 1¼ to 36 and B.C. Forest 1¼ to 21.

Panic Selling On Exchanges Not Evident

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Despite a week - long downtrend in stock prices on the Toronto, New York and Montreal stock exchanges, a random survey of Ontario brokerage offices Friday showed no evidence of panic selling.

H. W. Kellington, manager of the Guelph office of Bongard, Leslie and Co. Ltd., said: "There's no panic selling. A lot of people are just wondering if this is the day to buy or if they should wait for another day."

David Bryson of J. H. Crang and Co. Ltd., Toronto, said selling had been under way since May and had not increased as the pace of the decline quickened this week.

A broker at one of Toronto's largest investment houses said: "It's not like the 1962 break or the Kennedy assassination panic, when people were lining up to sell."

FELL 2.71 PER CENT

Prices of 122 representative Toronto stocks have fallen an average of 2.71 per cent in five successive day-to-day declines this week, closing Friday at their lowest level since June, 1964.

Share turnover has been relatively light during the last three months of declining prices with the July volume about one-third of January's on the Toronto exchange.

In New York, the widely-followed Dow Jones stock index fell 6.32 points to 804.82 Friday. Shortly before noon it had been up 2.45 points.

Toronto's industrial index, used to measure the price movements of major stocks, was off .32 of a point to 150.05, down from 168.56 at the beginning of the year.

A similar picture developed in Montreal with trading on all markets remaining light.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo: H. Carver
Sports Editor

Aside to baseball and softball players:

Did you ever get the you (if you say you didn't you win the Asanias medallion), to turn and clobber the umpire over the noggin with your bludgeon?

Here's how you can do it — and get away with. This actually happened.

It occurred in the Mid west League with Tuley Green a Dubuque outfielder at the plate. Umpire Tom Simon was calling them. In the seventh innings Green decided to step out of the box and rub a little dirt on his hands.

The umps, meanwhile, decided to dust off the plate. As he bent over, Green took a practice swing — and hit Simon squarely on the head.

Although dazed Simon stayed in the game suffering only a slight headache. It was a tough day for him. Later he was hit in the throat by a foul.

The next day the game between Dubuque and Waterloo staged a 23-innings duel in which four pitchers struck out 34 batters. The outfielders sat in sun chairs only once being called upon to make a put out.

The Tampa, Florida Stains club broke a league record when it went 50 innings without scoring a run. They topped the National League record of 45 and the American League's mark of 48.

How did they break the jinx? The manager in the last throes of desperation reversed his batting order sending the pitcher to the plate first and the regular lead-off batter last. They received two runs in the fifth.

* * *

Every player on both teams raced onto the diamond at a North Carolina League game and swung fists for ten minutes before order was restored.

What started it? A batter was angered by a close pitch. The incensed catcher blew him down. The batter merely reached over, pulled off the catcher's mask and knocked him stiffer than a month-old mackerel. When play was resumed the team at bat scored 11 runs in the inning.

Near-Ace Puts Frank Fowler On Top

By KORKY KOROLUK

CALGARY, (CP)—Frank Fowler of Calgary came within an inch of an ace Friday.

A five-iron tee shot on the 18th hole bounced off the pin and stopped an inch away. The drive left Fowler with a tap-in birdie and the second-round lead in the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship.

MOE NORMAN

Fowler finished with a 67, four under par, and a 36-hole total of 136, six under par.

In second place, just one stroke back, was Moe Norman, Gilford, Ont., with 137.

Wilf Hommenik, Winnipeg, the defending champion and first-round leader, had putting problems and ended up with a 74 for the day. He settled at 139 for 36 holes.

ALSO HAD 67s

Fowler's round was one of only two 67s Friday. The other went to Lyle Crawford, Vancouver, who tied Jack Kay, Toronto, Jack Blasegger, Beloeil, Que., and Neil Green, Calgary, for fourth place.

Of the four birdies on Fowler's card, two involved putts of inches. The other two were scored on six-footers. He used only 29 putts.

For Hommenik, the opposite was true. He used 27 putts Thursday on his way to a course record 65. Friday, he putted 41 times.

Two players tied with Norman for second place with 68 after the first round, fared poorly on the second day. Stan Hommenik, Dauphin, Man., took a 77 and Frank Whitley, Kitchener, Ont., soared to a 79.

The 54-hole tournament ends today with the winner receiving $2,000 of the $15,000 purse. The final four holes will be televised nationally by the CBC.

WHOLE FIELD QUALIFIES

The entire field qualified for the final round. Originally, the field was to be cut to the top 100 and ties. Friday night, Henry Martell, Edmonton, a two-time winner of the CPGA, won his first seniors event and left himself in a good position to pick up prize money in the main event.

Martell scored 72-71 — 143, good for a five-stroke bulge over Bill Kerr, Pointe Claire, and Gerry Pratt, Cap de Deuz Montagnes, Que.

Martell picked up $800 for his win in the 36-hole event. Kerr and Pratt each won $375.

Third place in the seniors went to Jules Huot, Laval Sur le Lac, Que., with 74-75—149. John Lowland and Fred Wood, both of Vancouver, and Danny Stack, Winnipeg, were dead-locked at 150.

Trim Orioles' Fat Lead

Tigers Aiming For A Miracle?

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Lolich is catching up fast with Denny McLain—perhaps a little too fast for Detroit Tigers.

Lolich breezed to his fifth victory in six decisions since the All-Star break as the Tigers stunned Baltimore Orioles, the American League leaders, 4-1 Friday night.

The Tiger left-hander now has a 13-8 season record, compared to 14-10 for teammate McLain, who has won six of seven since starting for the AL Stars at St. Louis July 12.

The Tigers' fourth straight victory trimmed Baltimore's fat margin to 12½ games. They hope to cut it further today and Sunday — despite the apparent loss of Al Kaline for the final game and the three-game set.

But, had Lolich and McLain not been going in opposite directions for the past month, the Tigers would be knocking at the door. On July 15 they were six games off the pace and McLain was the league's top winner at 13-4.

The young right-hander took his fifth loss the next day and still hasn't braked his tailspin. And the Tigers have never been seven or more games away since then.

KEPT STAFF AFLOAT

Lolich, however, has kept the Detroit pitching staff afloat—with help from right - hander George Wilson — during McLain's demise. Lolich's only setback since the All Star interval was a 2-1 loss to Kansas City July 30.

In other AL games Friday night, Minnesota Twins edged Boston Red Sox 3-1 for their fifth straight victory; Cleveland Indians nipped Chicago White Sox 3-2 on Leon Wagner's winning homer; Washington Senators downed California Angels 5-3 on Frank Howard's three run blast and Kansas City Athletics shaded New York 1-0 after bowing to the Yankees 7-5 in the opener of their doubleheader.

Baltimore starter Eddie Watt hit Kaline on the right hand with a pitch, forcing in one of three Tiger runs in the first inning and sending the Detroit star to a hospital for x-rays. There was no fracture but he suffered a painful bruise on the fourth finger of the hand and is expected to be out of action for several days.

The Orioles, who had won five in a row, bounced back with three runs in the second but Lolich's bunt single touched off a two-run rally in the bottom of the inning that sent the Tigers ahead to stay.

Earl Battey's two-run double in the first inning gave the Twins their winning margin and helped Jim Kaat register his 12th victory—tops in the league. Kaat needed relief help from Al Worthington in the eighth after checking the Red Sox on four hits through seven innings. Worthington got the final out.

Wagner's 21st homer, off Jim Piersall with one out in the 10th, broke a 2-2 deadlock. Fred Whitfield and Rocky Colavito also homered for the Indians.

Howard's 15th - homer, after singles by Bob Saverice and Jim King in the sixth inning, brought the Senators from behind. Bobby Knoop homered for the Angels, their only hit in a row.

The Yankees scored four runs off Jim Nash in the second inning of the opener and handed the Kansas City rookie his first major-league loss after seven straight victories.

In the second game, pitcher Lew Krausse scored a disputed run on Bert Campaneris' ground ball double in the eighth inning breaking a scoreless tie. Krausse, who had stopped at third base, argued he didn't know he would have been able to score if the ball had remained in play.

LISTON WINS

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Former world champion Sonny Liston knocked out Amos Johnson of Medina, Ohio, Friday in the third round of a scheduled 10-round boxing match. He felled Johnson with a right uppercut after two knockdowns in the second round.

Meet Zuger-Less Cats

Argos Seek First Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's been open season on vised on the 8:30 CBC network. quarterbacks in the Canadian Football League and Joe Zuger, Hamilton Tiger - Cats' signal caller, is the third in three weeks to suffer injuries.

Zuger may be around for tonight's Eastern Football Conference game in Hamilton against Toronto Argonauts—as a punter. Head coach Ralph Sazio doesn't want to risk using him at quarterback until he is fully recovered from a cracked rib suffered a week ago during a 21-3 victory over Calgary Stampeders.

Zuger joins quarterback Joe Kapp of British Columbia Lions of the Western Conference and Barnie Faloney of Montreal Alouettes, who have also been racked up by enemy defenders in the past three weeks. Kapp suffered a shoulder injury muscle and Faloney a brushed knee. Both have since returned to action.

But Zuger will relinquish quarterbacking duties to Frank Cosentino for tonight's game but planning at 8 p.m. EDT and tele-

SEEK FIRST WIN

Hamilton seeks its third victory against no losses, which would give the Ticats a share of first place in the East with Ottawa Rough Riders. The Argos will be after their first win in three outings.

It won't be easy. Hamilton's defence is rated the toughest in the CFL and the Argos are badly crippled by injuries. The latest casualty is offensive tackle Bill Frank, who suffered a broken jaw during a 17-6 loss to Montreal Alouettes a week ago. He joins centre Norm Dicks(knee), defensive tackle Bill Shipp and halfbacks Larry Ferguson and Johnny Counts, both out with injuries.

In an effort to plug the gaps, Toronto coach Bob Shaw will have John Thrasa, a place kicker and defensive lineman, starting at centre and will try Dave Thelen at fullback.

Thelen will replace Bob Swift who didn't satisfy Shaw with his play last week against Montreal and will sit this one out.

Greeks Win Tuna Title

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Premier Robert L. Stanfield of Nova Scotia officiated Friday night the international tuna cup match will probably be held again in 1967 at Wedgeport and Cape St. Mary despite this year's disappointing catch of only three fish.

Speaking at a provincial government dinner ending the 1966 tournament, Mr. Stanfield said: "I certainly hope you will all be able to come back next year, if not before."

Earlier in the day the Greek angling team received the AKon B. Sharp trophy for winning this year's match with 825 points. A British Caribbean entry came second with 621 and the United States, last year's winners, third with 274. Mexico and Canada failed to score.

The three bluefins were all boated Thursday, third day of the four - day match. The Greeks caught the biggest, a 338 - pounder, off Wedgeport. The Caribbean landed a 35-pound tuna and the U.S. a 207-pounder, both at Cape St. Mary.

Each team received one point per pound of fish caught and the Greeks a 300 - point bonus for the largest tuna. A second 200-point bonus for the team taking the most fish was split three ways among the Greeks, Caribbean and Americans.

Pirates Drop Third In Succession

Giants Also Beaten

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry Jaster St. Louis' rookie southpaw, posted his fourth shutout of the season against Los Angeles Friday night as the Cardinals defeated the Dodgers 4-0.

Actually Jaster hasn't allowed the Dodgers a run in his major league career. He made his debut against them last year and blanked them in one inning of relief.

This year he's limited them to 30 hits - all singles - including their five Friday night.

In other games Chicago College edged Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 11 innings, Atlanta Braves downed San Francisco Giants 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies slipped New York Mets 6-4 in 10 and Houston Astros topped Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

JAVIER SAVE HAND

Julian Javier gave Jaster all the support he needed, driving in two runs with a single and a double.

The Pirates lost their third straight game. They tied the game 3-3 on Roberto Clemente's two run single in the eighth but Chicago won in the 10th when Glenn Beckert singled home Randy Hundley who had reached first on Donn Clendenon's fumble.

Willie Mays' San Francisco remained a percentage point behind Pittsburgh in the NL race. Atlanta is just three games behind Pittsburgh in the National League, and Tom Hughes of Washington did it against Cleveland in 1905 in the American.

If Jaster is to tie the mark, he'll have to do it in the Cardinals' four - game series with the Dodgers Sept. 26 through Sept. 29.

THEY'RE ALL BE HAS

His four shutouts against Los Angeles are the only ones he has this year, and they also represent the only four games he's completed in 13 starts.

He's 8-3 over-all with a 3.43 earned run average. But defeats at his 26 consecutive scoreless innings against the Dodgers, and his e.r.a. soars to 5.68.

LARRY JASTER

The shutout left Jaster one away from matching the major league record of five in one season against one club. Only seven pitchers have accomplished the feat in modern times, one in each league.

Grover Cleveland Alexander did it for Philadelphia against Cincinnati in 1916 in the National League, and Tom Hughes of Washington did it against Cleveland in 1905 in the American.

If Jaster is to tie the mark, he'll have to do it in the Cardinals' four - game series with the Dodgers Sept. 26 through Sept. 29.

Hitchens, Gagnon In Women's Finals

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP) — A Vancouver lass and a girl from Quebec's Saguenay Valley wilted the opposition in the semi-finals of the Canadian women's open golf championship Friday.

Gayle Hitchens, 22, and Helene Gagnon of Arvida emerged from five days of gruelling competition as the two survivors in today's final 36-hole test for the Canadian open crown.

Miss Hitchens won the Open championship in 1963 and Miss Gagnon is looking for her first national title.

Miss Hitchens' seaway match against Barbara Kenwick, 23, of Vancouver was anybody's game Friday until the University of British Columbia graduate compiled a four-under-par 68 with a three-foot putt to win it up on the 18th.

Miss Gagnon had an easier time in vanquishing Jane Blalock, 20, of Portsmouth, N.H., 5 and 3 in their semi-final match.

Miss Gagnon was shooting so well by the time she wrapped up her win on the 13th that a spectator suggested she had a chance to break the course record of 70, set in last Tuesday's qualifying round by Gail Harvey of Moore of Scarborough, Ont.

But narrowly missed a putt on the final green to take an unofficial 71.

The lead in the Hitchens-Kenwick match changed hands four times, with Miss Kenwick drawing even on the 17th. Both women had good drives and both were on the green in two—Miss Kenwick about eight feet behind the pin and Miss Hitchens about 15 feet. Both sank only three feet from the cup.

Miss Kenwick missed her putt and the latter won over when Miss Hitchens holed out in three.

Guarded Optimism

Officials Discuss Agreement

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The new agreement between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League, bringing an end to the long-time boycott of amateur clubs and control over amateur players, was greeted with guarded optimism by hockey officials Friday.

Most felt the agreement will be good for the game but the new system is properly run.

Under the agreement, which goes into effect July 1, 1967, and runs five years:

—The NHL will end sponsorship of all amateur clubs, including junior;

—The league will acquire new talent from an annual draft pool of Canadian youngsters up to 19 in the year their junior hockey eligibility;

—Pro clubs will not be able to draft players before the year of their 20th birthday;

—Various forms, including the 14 and 15 - year - old covering options on amateur players' professional services, will be abolished;

—The CAHA will control the money a professional team will be required to pay when it drafts a player.

Bill Hendry of Toronto, secretary-manager of the Ontario Hockey Association, described the agreement as "a step forward."

MUST WAIT AND SEE

"We will have to wait two or three years to see whether it is a good thing."

Leyton (Hap) Emms, general manager of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and owner of Niagara Falls Flyers of the OHA Junior A, felt the agreement's success will be up to the CAHA.

"As I see it, the entire burden of amateur hockey is on the CAHA. If they run their business right—and by the way they have been running things up to now, it could work out beautifully well. If they don't, junior hockey will fall apart.

"In other words, the CAHA will have to assist financially the same way the pros have been doing in the past if a great many of our junior clubs are going to survive.

"The agreement has been demanded by the CAHA and various government groups. If the CAHA cannot control the destinies of junior hockey to benefit the game fairly, then I believe the pros will have to make some other arrangements."

WILL CARRY ON

Officials of several junior teams in Canada indicated they will carry on after professional sponsorship ends.

Junior hockey will be back on a local and probably more democratic basis, said Fred Mellor, president of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the OHA Junior A series. "I don't probably have to work at it a little harder now that we know any debts we accumulate won't be looked after by a professional team."

In Sudbury, Leo Gaspariol, manager of Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, said the move as a break for teams in his area going after the Memorial Cup, predominately of Canadian junior hockey supremacy.

"This will open up the Memorial Cup to any community in Canada," he said. "We've never been able to defeat the Ontario Hockey Association because the teams in the OHA were the only ones the best players in Canada, including players from Sudbury brought in by their sponsors. However, under this system, we should be able to keep all Sudbury - born players at home and be as good as the OHA teams are."

CONTINUE TO '67

Mickey Ion, NHL president Clarence Campbell said that sponsorships will continue through the January 1967, and added that if a sponsoring team had rights to a player before the agreement takes effect, the team would continue to have these rights and could exercise them.

Lawyer Alan Eagleson, Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature from Kingston and a legal adviser to several hockey players, was among those who attended the meeting.

Jockes said that in addition to the draft price for players, the agreement includes a system to receive some fee of development of hockey generally and for minor hockey.

"The agreement will partly take the place of money received from the professionals for sponsorship of amateur clubs."

Windsor Team Reaches Finals

VICTORIA (CP) — Windsor Central advanced to today's Canadian Little League baseball title by edging former champion Simcoe Colts Thursday 7-6. Friday night.

Kelowna knocked out Edmonton.

Sherbrooke, survivor of Eastern Maritimes eliminations, and Edmonton, the Prairies champions, will play a consolation game.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Wall Jr., a former Masters champion, kept the lead Friday in the second round of the $100,000 Insurance City open golf tournament with a total of 138—six under par.

Canadian Opera Co. Depends Upon Grants and Subsidies

By DONALD PHILLIPSON

TORONTO (CP)—It costs nearly $100,000 to stage an opera for five or six performances in Canada—about $20,000 to rehearse and $12,000 a night to present to an audience.

Last year the Canadian Opera Company spent $454,528 on its three-week Eaton Centennial season of major productions and sent a small touring company of Rieti's Carmen throughout the Maritimes for 100 performances for another $130,000.

Inevitably, grants and subsidies are important to the COC, but Herman Geiger-Torel, the director, proudly boasts that box office receipts account for 70 per cent of production costs.

By contrast, the best American opera companies collect only 60 per cent of their costs from ticket sales, and the range is as low as 40 per cent in Cologne to five per cent in Paris.

The director, Geiger-Torel says, is that most European opera companies work the year round, and for 10 to 12 one month is 12. He expects the COC will spend $770,000 in 1966-67 up per for 30 weeks of grand opera in Toronto and when touring companies (expected to cost $50,000 more than they bring in).

GRANTS HELP

This year the Canada Council is giving the Canadian Opera Company $130,000 and the Province of Ontario Arts Council is giving $60,000—double last year's grant and exceeded only by that of the National Ballet.

On the other side of the box office, the COC is driving hard to build up its season-ticket subscription list. About 40 per cent of its tickets were sold in advance last year and directors think that subscriptions starting in Canada the European tradition of "family seats" at the opera.

For the second year the COC in 1965 offered subscriptions and 2,300 people signed up, getting first choice of seats and a reduction in price per seat as well. By contrast, the New York City Opera sold only 7,000 subscriptions in its second year.

Old, established companies such as the New York Metropolitan and the Vienna State Opera sell nearly all their seats in advance in this way.

"Attendance at the 3,200-seat O'Keefe Centre, where the COC's big productions are staged, was 89 per cent.

AGAINST MERGER

Geiger-Torel, the vigorous German-born artistic director of the COC, is vehemently opposed to a proposal by the chairmen of the Canada Council that opera and ballet companies in Toronto and Montreal should merge to save money.

Joan Martineau, 71-year-old Montreal lawyer, said last spring such amalgamations would reduce waste and unnecessary duplication. The main problem in the performing arts, he said, is that there are too many, not too few, organizations, and local pride is one reason why they persist.

By contrast, France, British, the United States and the Soviet Union "are very well served by only two ballets each" of top quality.

Geiger-Torel poured scorn on the merger suggestion at a Toronto press conference, challenging Martineau's basic premise that costs would be less.

What is wanted instead, he said, is a reappraisal of the grants system. A performing company handling large sums of money ought to be able to know at least three and perhaps five years ahead how much money it can expect from public sources.

(This article in paper on broadcasting recommended that the CBC's financing be altered from an annual to a five-yearly basis.)

At present, Canada Council and provincial grants are almost always made on an annual basis, and the exact sums are often announced only weeks before the theatre or opera season begins.

This means that the companies cannot plan economically, Geiger-Torel said, and they even have to act dishonestly by making plans for grand productions with no money in the bank.

New Zealand Rowers Nip St. Catharines

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The four-oared shell of the New Zealand Amateur Rowing Association, led by A. J. Webster, won a spectacular, come-from-behind victory over St. Catharines Friday in the opening of the U.S. national rowing championships.

Webster stroked the New Zealand entry to victory during a driving finish in the second qualifying heat over the Henley course in the Schuylkill River.

The winning 160-pound champion Detroit Boat Club was eliminated, placing last in a three-boat trial won by St. Catharines.

Boston's Union Boat Club and the New York Athletic Club won three trials. The Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, which has two first, along with St. Catharines and Detroit, were among the leaders at the end of the day's activities.

Boston Union crews took first, in both heats of the intermediate four-oared shells, and scored a tough victory over Potomac in the trial of the senior fours without coxswain.

Vesper's 150-pound eight took a two-length win over Leander Club of Canada, and Webster's side of Buffalo in 6:16.6 for the 2,000-metre course.

Bill Maher of Detroit took his heat by only three feet over Joe Henwood of Vesper in the single sculls quarter-finals.

Scullers from the New York Athletic Club won both qualifying heats in the 135-pound category, when Ed McKenna took the first heat and Pat Feury, the second.

Penn AC was Philadelphia's first winner, when its 150-pound four took the first heat, by 3-4 Leander was second, St. Catharines, winner of the second heat, third. (By-UPI)

Visiting scullers won both heats of the association senior single sculls, as Jim Dixon of Long Beach, Calif., Rowing Association won the first heat and Jeff Kreger of Wyandotte, Mich., took the second.

In the 250 - pound singles Claude Saunders of Leander took the third heat in 8:12. Peter Keck of Oyster Bay took the first heat and Jim Dreher of Detroit the second.

Dean Martin Takes Easy Way to Produce Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "They make such a big deal about putting on a television show," says Dean Martin. "Meetings, meetings, meetings all the time. Me, I do it the easy way."

The Dean Martin method of staging a variety hour so shocked the sweat-and-strain laborers of the TV vineyards that all were glad when his easy way pointed to disaster.

But Martin won the battle of the ratings and will be bouncing back on NBC with another 30 hours in the coming season.

"Why, I don't even breathe hard," he said. "I don't know why those other stars make such a big thing of television. Yes, I do know. It's because they insist on being writer, director and producer as well as performer.

"I've got writers, director, producer. I let them do what they're supposed to do. I go to the studio at noon on Sunday, dictate and I'm out of there by nine that's all there is to it."

MAKES IT EASY

Martin makes everything seem easy. He already has six TV shows completed and now is starring in another, "Murderers' Row. He is also scheduled for a western with George Peppard at Universal and a comedy with Stella Stevens at Columbia.

He is casual about his present prosperity: "I made $3,000,000 last year and only left the house four times."

He is jesting about the latter, but the $3,000,000 figure could well be accurate. He reported that his first epic, The Silencers, grossed $12,000,000, and he owns 10 per cent. That plus his other films, the TV show, records, his appearances at The Sands in Las Vegas and elsewhere put him in the same tycoon class with his pal Frank Sinatra.

Martin's daughters, Gail and Claudia, have careers of their own. And now Dino is a teenage smash with his Dino, Desi (Arnaz) and Billy Combo. They play a number in Murderers's Row.

His entire family picture is satisfactory, said Martin, with one exception: "If I could only get my mother-in-law to work!"

THE ARNOLD Palmer Method

by GOLF'S 4-TIME MASTERS WINNER

FOLLOW CONSISTENT ROUTINE IN SETTING UP TO THE BALL

You will find that most good golfers go through the same preliminary motions on every shot. By doing the consistent pattern they encourage consistency in the ensuing swing.

I suggest that you develop a routine for preparing to swing. Make your pre-swing motions smooth and deliberate — avoid quick, jerky motions.

Most golfers follow somewhat the same pattern I am performing in the illustrations.

First grip the club and sight the target (No. 1). Next place the clubhead behind the ball, looking down the target line. Finally, move your feet into position.

These key shots are usually followed by a re-checking of the target and target line, a smooth waggle, a forward press and then the backswing. Remember, "slow and smooth" throughout the process.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

The holidays are over for another year, time to get back to the old grind.

Farewell pastures always look greener even when you want to go fishing, but as usual the fishing was much better in the Quinte area.

My wife and I took off for the Huntsville, Haliburton part of the country on our annual fishing trip and enjoyed fishing a week. We travelled as far as Dorset before we tried our luck for some fish, after fishing at just about every lake, river and stream in that part of the country we decided that more or only fishing would be done in our own neck of the woods where we know where to go and how to fish.

We talked to just about every tackle and live bait dealer in the Haliburton Highlands, the Muskoka Lake Region and along the Trent system to as far as Port Severn and did not see a fish landed while we were in any of this beautiful lake region.

Meanwhile the fishing "has been excellent at West Lake and Consecon Lake for pickerel, most any good pickerel lake working with good results. Lake trout have been slow. But specks have picked up a bit.

Bass are hitting in the bay on minnows and frogs and the muskey are still being hooked in Moira, Crowe and Stoco Lakes on large lures and sucker minnows.

Duck season opens September 24th in this section of Ontario.

Many ardent duck hunters have been preparing for weeks for the opening day hunt, painting decoys, building duck blinds, polishing and cleaning guns and checking ammunition.

Earlier in the season I mentioned the fact that ducks were in good supply. But the low water south of No. 7 Highway is forcing Mr. and Mrs. Black and Mallard north to the Beaver ponds and lakes.

This year hundreds of duck hunters will be hunting these ponds and lakes in the north. If you are thinking of doing the same you had better pack out a spot and build a blind as soon as possible, because many out of district hunters are moving in the same direction.

More about a feed of frogs legs. "Mmmm" good. This is the time of the year to catch the big bullfrog and to have a feast of these tasty legs.

One of the best ways I have found to catch these fellows is by using a boat and a bamboo pole about 15 feet long with a piece of about two feet of hook and a piece of red cloth attached to the hook. Move along a marshy or weedy shoreline very slowly and keep a sharp look for Mr. Bullfrog. When you see him dangle the red cloth near him and he will grab it like he was taking a fly.

When you catch a dozen or so of these fellows cut off the legs and skin them out, dip them in flour and fry in butter and you will have a most delicious snack.

Now is the best time of the year to do some serious fishing, the weather is cooler. The water is cooling off and the fishing is good. Many ardent fishermen do not start fishing until now and fish until late September with good results.

Leaf Ace Guns Down Top Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Not too long ago Toronto Maple Leafs' Gary Waslewski was just another International League pitcher with an 11-9 record.

But Waslewski has settled down and now has a 17-9 record after posting his sixth consecutive victory Friday night, defeating first - place Columbus Jets 4-2.

Elsewhere, Syracuse Chiefs edged Jacksonville Suns 4-3, Richmond Braves took a doubleheader from Rochester Red Wings 4-3 and 12-9, and Toledo Mud Hens split a pair with Buffalo Bisons, winning 3-2 before losing 9-3.

Tony Horton hit a two-run homer for the Leafs and Jim Beauie drove in the other two runs with a double.

Pancho Herrara's third hit of the night drove in the winning run for Syracuse in the 10th inning. Jim Roland got the victory.

A sacrifice fly by Mike Ferraro scored the winning run in opener for Toledo. Aubrey Gatewood pitched the Bisons to victory in the second game. The Bisons collected 14 singles.

Quinte Tennis Team Plays Kingston Here

Eight men were named here this morning to represent Belleville in the opening matches of the annual home-and-home tennis competition between Belleville and Kingston.

Up for grabs will be the Doug Grant Trophy and the first half of the competition will be played at the Quinte Tennis Club here this weekend.

Belleville will be represented by David Hurst, Bill Redquest, Doug Grant, Bill Moffatt, Dr. Walcott, Dr. Woodley, Donald Desaulniers and Bill Bell.

The match against Kingston affords the only competition for Belleville club players this summer, according to a club spokesman who says this has been the body's slackest season in many years.

The spokesman said that so many of the young players have dropped out of competition that it will be impossible for the city to field a fully representative team to play against the powerful Kingston squad.

Swimming Records Tumble

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Don Schollander, with two world records in two nights, shared the spotlight with Mary Wilson Friday night in the National Amateur Athletic Union Swimming and diving championships.

Miss Watson, 20, an Olympic gold medalist, smashed the world mark in the women's 200-metre freestyle with a time of 2:10.5. Martha Randall of Philadelphia's Temple Boat Club, who was third, held the pending world mark of 2:11.4.

At the midway point of the meet four world records have been broken and one equalled. Only four meet records were untouched out of 14 swimming events.

Schollander, 20, smashed his own pending world mark by four seconds in the 200-metre freestyle record to John Nelson of Pompano Beach, Fla., who regained it by whipping Nelson again was second in 2:03.9.

Schollander made it three gold medals down and three to go by anchoring the Santa Clara Swim Club 4-team to a meet mark of 3:36.4 in the 400-metre freestyle relay, just 2.2 seconds off the world mark set by Schollander's United States team in the 1968 Olympics.

The blond Yale economics major will anchor Santa Clara in the 800-metre freestyle relay tonight, then will go in the 100-metre freestyle and the 400-metre medley relay Sunday night.

Miss Watson came back to anchor Santa Clara to a meet mark of 4:04.5 in the women's 4 400 - metre freestyle relay, a scant seven - tenths second off the world mark set by Miss Watson's United States team at the 1964 Olympics.

Busy Weekend For U.S. Pros; Colts Win

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore Colts won their 19th straight pro football exhibition game Friday night emphasizing anew that they will be a strong contender for the third straight ball League title this season.

The Colts spotted the St. Louis Cardinals a 7-0 lead on the opening kickoff, then exploded for a convincing 33-7 victory before 39,204 at Busch Memorial Stadium.

The game started a busy weekend for the pros with five of NFL and four American League exhibitions scheduled. Only One Sunday NFL exhibition winds up the weekend competition.

San Francisco 49ers go against Pittsburgh Steelers at Portland, Ore., in one of the night's NFL games. In the others, Green Bay Packers are at Dallas Cowboys, Los Angeles Rams at Minnesota Vikings, Cleveland Browns at Atlanta Falcons and Chicago Bears and Washington Red Skins at Norfolk, Va.

An AFL twin bill at Anaheim pits Boston patriots against Oakland Raiders and Kansas City Chiefs against San Diego Chargers.

New York Jets play Miami Dolphins at Jacksonville Fla. while Buffalo Bills and Houston Oilers battle at Hershey, Pa.

The NFL Sunday afternoon fray pits New York Giants against Detroit Lions at New Haven, Conn.

UMPS WEAR STRIPES

NEW YORK (AP)—The four umpires for Friday night's New York Yankees-Kansas City Athletics American League doubleheader lost their luggage in a mix-up due to the U.S. airline strike and worked the games in candy-striped ushers' uniforms. Jim Odom, Al Salerno, Larry Napp and John Rice borrowed ushers' uniforms — grey trousers, and red and white jackets, permiet striped short sleeve shirts and borrowed Yankees caps.

Paddlers Prep For Centennial

MONTREAL (CP) — Sunbronzed and muscular, nearly 100 paddlers are in camp at Montreal's Lachine ready to start Monday's 450-mile canoe race to the mouth of the Ottawa River Aug. 29.

These husky, modern-day voyageurs will test for a monster 2,500-mile canoe race next year between Rocky Mountain House in Alberta to the Expo site in Montreal.

The paddlers themselves are a cross-section of Canada. There are university students, carpenters, businessmen, ordinary working fellows, a lawyer from the Yukon, a sewer inspector from Toronto and canoe enthusiasts. Their average age is around 25.

Then there is 51-year-old Watson Peck, a grandfather from Bear River, N.S., captain of the Nova Scotia crew.

The canoes, 25 feet long and of four-foot beam, are simulated birch bark, made of canvas.

Four languages are spoken in the colorful camp at Lachine—English, French, Cree and Eskimo. English is the common language when the crews are together.

The crews represent British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, the Yukon and the northwest Territories. Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland are not represented.

The canoes bear names of the early explorers, such as Roberval, Champlain, Albanel, Rasisson, Hreday, Fraser, Mackenzie.

The Northwest Territories crew is made up of Indians and Eskimos. The Manitoba crew has two Indians. The Quebec crew is French-speaking.

The Manitoba and British Columbia crews did not fly out with the others but are expected Sunday.

Koufax May Retire

"It just makes my blood boil to hear someone say that Americans are getting soft"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Meteoric baseball career of Los Angeles Dodgers' Sandy Koufax might come to a premature end at the close of this season.

The two - time Cy Young Award pitcher and current 19-game winner revealed Friday that a progressive worsening of his arthritic left elbow has caused him to think of retirement.

"It's a matter of how long I can stand the pain," he said. "It's a decision I won't make until I have to."

Koufax, 30, said he first began to fear that he might be forced into early retirement when he injured the left elbow sliding into second base in 1964.

The mishap led to a traumatic arthritic condition that wasn't diagnosed until March, 1963.

"They the doctors said it would get progressively worse—and it has," Koufax said. "I've thought about having to quit several times when the elbow was especially sore."

Koufax explained his feelings on the matter after a story published Friday in San Jose, Calif., predicted that the Dodger star would announce his retirement at the end of the season.

Koufax would not commit himself on this point.

The Trots

OTTAWA (CP)—Lusty David raced home to win the first race at Rideau Carleton raceway Friday night to the delight of the nine bettors who picked him and picked up $110.60 for their efforts.

Owned by Max Kemery of Fingal, Ont., the winner teamed up with Ida Grace, the favorite, to pay a quinella of $142.00.

Batavia, N.Y. (CP)—Niagara Byrd, owned by Harold Graham of Grand Island, N.Y., posted his third Canadian-American series win in a row, taking the event for three-year-old pacers at Batavia Downs Friday night. The race was worth $5,000.

STARTS SWIM

VICTORIA (CP)—Robert Costello, a 36-year-old distance swimmer from Chicoutimi, Que., whose right leg is partially crippled from a childhood bout with polio, will attempt to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca Sunday. He is from the English Channel in 1964.

Eskimos Hungry For Win

REGINA (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos will be Hungary for a victory when they meet Saskatchewan Roughriders here in a Western Football Conference game Monday.

Eskimos hope to use a win to climb out of a three-way tie for last place with Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions.

Edmonton has not played since July 26 when Hungarian pug Blue Bombers earned a 10-9 victory on a 40-yard field goal by Norm Winton in the last minute. A protest over events leading to the fold goal was disallowed Friday.

Roughriders took a 36-1 drubbing Wednesday from Calgary. Coach Neil Armstrong will introduce a new guard, Merv Collins, to the Edmonton Newsy. Collins, a 225-pounder who spent eight years with Ottawa Rough Riders, was picked up last week.

Middle guard Ron Atchison, hobbled by a pulled hamstring, is the only doubtful Edmonton starter.

A victory would push Saskatchewan, undefeated in its first three starts, into sole possession of first place, two points ahead of Winnipeg.

A crowd of more than 20,000 is expected for the game, to be telecast by CTV.

Lacrosse Standings

TORONTO (CP) — Oshawa Green Gaels defeated Toronto Township 13-9 Friday night to capture the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A best-of-seven semi finals 4-0.

Mimico and Oshawa will meet in a best-of-seven Ontario final series starting Monday night in Oshawa. Both finalists are unbeaten in the playoffs.

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP) — Brampton forced a seventh and deciding game in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior A semi-final series Friday night, defeating Brooklin Redmen 6-4.

Both teams now have three victories and will play the seventh game today in Port Credit with the winner meeting Peterborough for the Ontario championship.

Batawa

BATAWA — Rev. Mac Wilson was guest speaker at Glad Tidings Tabernacle in Campbellford on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Buck and daughters returned home on Saturday after spending a holiday at Lake Placid, New York.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Whenever anyone rents real state, payment is always made in advance at the beginning of he month, the year, or some other specified term. A reader with an inquiring mind asks why this should be true. The answer will probably come as a surprise to most readers.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When I go to the dentist, call in the TV repair men, engage a carpenter, or have any service performed for me, I always pay when the work is done. As a garage mechanic, I don't get paid until I have completed my work.

Yet I must pay my landlord at the beginning of each month — in advance, before I have had a chance to use the place. What is there about the law that gives that special preference to landlords? — Mr. W. E.

ANSWER: Our reader has asked a penetrating question about a very common business act. There is nothing in the law that gives special preference to the landlord.

If there is no provision in the lease (either written or oral) which stipulates when and where the rent is to be paid, then the rent is payable at the end of the term and at the location of the leased premises.

However, every lease with which I am acquainted not only stipulates that the rent will be paid at the beginning of the term but also designates where the rent will be paid (usually at the office of the managing agent.) In short, the reason that rent is always paid in advance is because the tenant always agrees by contract to do so. This has become the accepted real estate practice. It is so ingrained that almost nobody questions the propriety of the advance payment.

• • • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When we placed our home for sale, the realtor insisted that we sign a three months exclusive listing agreement. He said that this was required because of regulations of the real estate board. Were we required to sign such an agreement? — Mr. H. B.

ANSWER: It is true that many real estate boards prefer that their members obtain exclusive listings for reasonable periods of time (usually three months), but this is no way binds the public. Like other agreements, the nature of the listing contract and its duration is a matter of negotiation between the real estate broker and the homeowner. Regulations of a local realtor board can not bind a property owner who is not a member of such a board.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have just finished furnishing my new home with expensive wool pile, wall-to-wall carpeting. The carpets appear to be shedding. Every time I run the vacuum cleaner, I pick up dozens of small pieces of wool pile. Is my rug coming apart? — Mr. F. E.

ANSWER: New wool rugs, especially the expensive kind, go through a shedding period. There is no cause for alarm. It is caused by the shearing processes used in the manufacturing which allows small bits of yarn to fall back into the pile. When the rug is in use, the bite of wool work to the surface and are picked up by the vacuum cleaner.

When shedding occurs, new rugs should be vacuumed daily for as long as the shedding persists. Sometimes it takes several weeks before all shedding is eliminated.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through is column.

The Golden Years
What Do Single Women Face When Retirement Arrives?

By THOMAS COLLINS

It is suggested that all of you single women of retirement age who read this read it in the same way you used to read "Forever Amber" — out of sight.

Because what follows here is about you. And you don't want to let people catch you reading retirement advice and get any funny ideas that you're that old. Do you?

When Rosie-the-Riveter went to work in the early 40's, thousands of you went along with her, into offices and plants. Now, 25 years have passed and battalions of you are of retirement age. From here on there will be increasing numbers of you. And your problems are not quite like those of anybody else who retires.

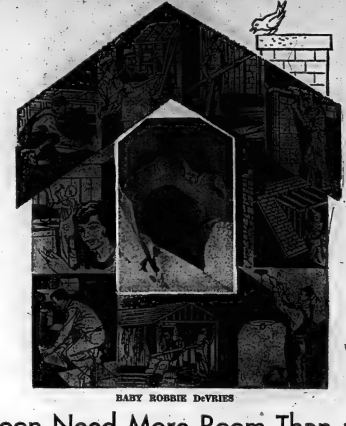
As a single woman you might tentatively place your retirement in the following "brackets, which you can expand or modify according to your particular case:

AGE: At long last you've got to tell the truth about it. You can't dodge it, unless you're going to cheat yourself. So, if retirement is still in front of you, go to your boss or your personnel officer and confess. He won't tell. And he'll tell you how to set matters straight.

RETIRE "EARLY"

Retire, if you can, at least 6 months or as before your retirement date. It will enable you for the rest of your life to say you retired early and prevent anybody from pegging your age.

HOUSING: You'll usually be a misfit in a home community of couples and kids, and foursomes at bridge. An apartment, for you, is a better bet.



COMPANIONSHIP: None is waiting for you, except among other single retired women. So make some by becoming an enthusiastic expert in some one field — art, bridge, antiques, rose culture, book collecting — but I wouldn't bother with bird-watching and hiking clubs. Pick one thing and stick by it.

Marriage would be your best companionship. If teh interests you then go where eligible men of your age (widowers always, never bachelors) are likely to go. Which is not the sewing circle, boat cruises, and often not church, but resorts where there are hunting, fishing and golf.

CAVEAT: Single women are living in retirement with dignity on as little as $150 a month, but not with Cadillacs. If you have any substantial money, keep two things in mind: (1) Single older women are regarded as soft touches by professional fund raisers, for playgrounds, church projects, welfare programs and such. So misplace your checkbook when a smooth talking man comes around. (2) Single women have more cause than any other older people to leave their money behind them. Single women should keep a sharp eye on anybody else on an available and suitable retirement home. Some day — maybe 20 years yet — when infirmities come, the single woman will have no husband, children, or grandchildren around to take temperatures.

Rail Strike Is Called For Friday

MONTREAL (CP) — Friday, Aug. 26, was announced today as the date for the beginning of a strike by 120,000 employees against the CNR, CPR, and five other Canadian railways.

The strike would begin at 12 noon on Aug. 26, R. C. Smith, chairman of the non-operating railway unions said:

"The official reports of the strike vote of the employees show an overwhelming and unprecedented majority in favor of strike action."

Mr. Smith announced the date of the projected strike at a press conference.

ON LOCAL TIME

The 12 noon would be local standard time across the country.

There would be 100,000 non operating employes involved in the strike and 20,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen who are officially classed as operating employees.

Liberals Face Heavy Pounding

OTTAWA (CP)—Even if it solves the current railway strike threat, the Liberal government is expected to take a heavy pounding in Parliament for its activities in the labor relations field.

Opposition criticism of the government on this score has been increasing recently and the momentum appears strong enough to keep the issue alive until Parliament resumes.

In the middle is Prime Minister Pearson, who stepped into the Quebec longshoremen's strike and the threatened St Lawrence Seaway strike early this summer.

In both cases large wage set-

Cabinet Meets On Rail Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet railway strike committee met at noon today to consider government action in the threatened national railway strike.

Minutes after the meeting began, the committee learned that noon, Friday Aug. 19 had been set as the starting time for a strike by 120,000 employees against the CNR, CPR and five other railways.

Prime Minister Pearson, committee chairman, said that any decision by the committee would be sent to a full cabinet meeting either later today or Tuesday morning for ratification.

Mr. Smith is chairman of the "residual" group. As he spoke, there were reports of strikes today in Toronto and Brampton, Ont., against the CNR by a total of 800 members of the CBRT and of strike action in Montreal by 25 and possibly more CNR employees.

The railways that would be hit by the strike Aug. 26 are—besides the CNR—the CPR, the Algoma Central and Hudson

Negro Parades Stoned

CHICAGO (AP)—White spectators jeered and threw rocks, bottles and firecrackers as marches in support of open housing were held in Chicago and suburbs Sunday despite a driving rain.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., whose Southern Christian Leadership Conference is sparking the protests, said, "the demonstrations will continue."

He said the heavy rain kept white hecklers away and "the hostility was not as glaring as it might have been."

However, the 500 marchers led by King were pelted as they walked in to the East Side neighborhood located at the extreme southeast of Chicago.

A similar reception was given a group of 250 marchers at Evergreen Park, a suburb southwest of Chicago. But a third march, into Chicago Heights, south of the city, drew few spectators and no demonstrations.

TWO INJURED

Two of the marchers were injured at Evergreen Park when they arrived in a car and white youths smashed the windshield with rocks.

Police said 20 hecklers were arrested at the two mikeings, including two white men who were clubbed to their knees by police after refusing to obey orders to clear the sidewalk.

Also arrested were two men representing anti - civil rights groups. Charged with attempting to speak without a permit were Evan Lewis of Akron, Ohio, who said he was a member of the national knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and Rev. Connie Lynch of Waynoka, Okla., a member of the National States Rights party.

Earlier, George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi party, spoke to a rally of about 1,500 persons.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, about 150 Negroes attacked police with rocks and bottles after a patrol car stopped a car and questioned the Negro driver about previous traffic violations.

Officers arrested five persons Sunday after two policemen were clubbed—one with his own nightstick and the other with his flashlight.

In Washington, six Negroes prominent in civil rights affairs appeared on a special 30-minute version of the NBC radio-television program Meet The Press.

Dr. King, who participated from a Chicago studio, said the Chicago marches have brought into the open "many latent hostilities already existing within certain white groups in the north."

He acknowledged that some

Children May Have Set Fire

NEW WESTMINSTER, BC (CP)—Reports that a $10,000,000 fire here Saturday may have been set by children were being investigated today by provincial fire marshal.

The holocaust, it raged out of control for more than four hours and then burned on for another 12, destroyed a sprawling lumber complex operated by Reynolds of Canada (B.C.) Ltd. It also damaged warehouses and storage areas of the adjacent Scott Paper Co. Ltd.

There has been no official estimate of damage, but Fire Chief J. L. Pearson said $10,000,000 would be a conservative minimum.

The fire started in tinder-dry grass along a street separating warehouses of the two companies. Within minutes, flames were licking up the outside of the Scott warehouse which was bulging with thousands of tons of export paper.

Within an hour, the fire was raging over more than 10 acres of sawmills, warehouses and lumber and paper storage yards.

Fire Marshal Basil Nixon said in effect in investigation reports that children were chased from the warehouse area by a Pinkerton guard shortly before the fire was noticed. He said a report on the fire is expected within a few days and an inquiry likely will follow.

Investigators are also checking reports that water pressure failed just as firemen believed they had the fire contained.

CALLED FOR HELP

Mayor Stuart Gifford sent out a call for help to surrounding municipalities and response was immediate. One unit travelled 30 miles from Chilliwack to help out.

But the intense heat, coupled with low water pressure, kept firemen from getting close enough and Reynolds officials

LBJ Asks Pearson to Back U.S. Wage and Price Curbs

By DENNIS ORCHARD

WELSHPOOL, Campobello Island, N.B. (CP) — President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson lined up economics problems for an intensive look Sunday during a short but "useful" meeting on the eastern seaboard.

They also dealt with foreign policy, but inflation at home drew special attention. Aides said Mr. Johnson made a pitch for Canada's support for his guidelines on wage and price increases.

Mr. Pearson said the two leaders "used every minute" of their 2½ hours in conference, mostly with advisers on hand, and partly over a lamb-chop lunch.

The Victorian comfort of a country inn on the New Brunswick mainland near St. Andrews provided the setting for the eighth meeting of the two leaders in three years.

They were flown to the inn at noon after attending church together here, and returned here after the talks to deliver one speech apiece and lay a cornerstone together. The ceremony recalled Campobello's close ties with the late president Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

COVER FIVE TOPICS

There were five topics of conversation — a broad range of economic affairs, Viet Nam, NATO, Rhodesia and the Caribbean — with no indication on either side of policy changes in the wind.

The Pearson government has been reluctant, in dealing with the Canadian economy, to follow the U.S. example with guidelines — voluntary, specific limits on wages and prices.

Both leaders face labor unrest and a broadening concern among consumers about prices. Mr. Pearson faced the crisis of a threatened rail strike on his return.

"The president said we were a bit better with guideposts—even though some of them had been fractured — than without them," said Bill Moyers, presidential press secretary.

The prime minister was reported to have followed Mr. Johnson's arguments on the point with interest.

Both men restated their positions on the Vietnamese war, which lay behind almost every talk in their later speeches.

OFFERS ASSISTANCE

The prickle minister secured Mr. Johnson of Canada's continued support of the objectives of U.S. policies in Viet Nam. He has kept open the door to assistance through diplomatic channels to bring about a basis for negotiation with North Viet Nam.

Relief Crews Fight Disease, Hunger of Quake Survivors

Erzurum, Turkey (AP)—Another series of earth shocks hit eastern Turkey today as relief crews fought to help survivors of the earthquake Friday that left thousands dead and injured.

New shocks rumbled through the eastern provinces already marked by the ruins of buildings of wrecked villages.

The new tremors hit before dawn as hundreds of thousands of persons from quake-stricken communities were sleeping outdoors.

The fresh quakes came in two waves of fear and panic but there were no reports of any serious new damage or casualties.

The fresh quakes came in two waves. One lasted three seconds. The second hit six minutes later and rumbled for seven seconds.

They struck as the government fought to ward off the threats of hunger and epidemic among the survivors of Friday's disaster.

More than 2,300 bodies left by the killer quake already are counted. Officials in this provincial capital in the heart of the quake area estimated the final toll would go beyond 3,000.

Bodies pulled from the debris of the quake that struck hundreds of villages in four provinces last Friday were being buried even before identification by ward off disease.

The health ministry ordered mass inoculation against typhoid and told authorities in the disaster zone to add chlorine to all drinking water.

At the same time airplanes dropped food to dozens of stricken villages, cut off from the outside when landslides, triggered by the gigantic quake, covered roads. Twenty-nine villages were isolated.

Having experienced two successive days of tremors following the initial quake, the peasants continued to sleep in fields, under cows — shaped tents or wrapped in thick home-made blankets.

Some survivors asked for picks and shovels to dig out their dead relatives.

Supplies being flown into the disaster region by the Turkish government included wheat, margarine and milk powder.

Tremors shook four stricken provinces in the quake zones throughout most of Sunday, but were not reported to have caused new casualties.

At least five were felt through the early afternoon Sunday in this city of 91,000 souls, which somehow survived three days of quakes with no more damage than 100 cracked buildings.

The government has already begun providing new housing for the victims. The Turkish 22nd Infantry Regiment was sent to Ariova in Bingol province to help rebuild or repair more than 2,800 dwellings.

It will take weeks or months to clear some towns of debris before any new construction work can start.

Rednersville Chick Hatchery Fire Loss $100,000

About 14,000 chickens were lost in an early morning blaze that destroyed a three-storey hatchery yesterday, at R.R. 1, Carrying Place, three miles west of Rednersville. Also destroyed in the fire which caused damage estimated at close to $100,000 was a nearby storage building. The hatchery owner is Burton Osterhout.

The chickens were to have been delivered to a packing house in Belleville today. At least one chicken escaped the inferno. The survivor was found huddled in a hole in the ground a few yards from the hatchery by a reporter-photographer.

Firemen from Belleville and Trenton Department fought the blaze for about six hours. The Belleville Fire Department responded to the alarm at 1.20 a.m. and sent two trucks to the blaze. Area farmers with orchard-spraying tanks assisted firemen who were successful in their efforts to keep nearby homes from damage.

Mr. Osterhout said a passing motorist was first to notice the fire. The motorist woke hatchery employee Lorne Tesky, who lives near the hatchery. Mr. Tesky said the fire had a good start in the upper storeys of the building by the time fire departments were notified.

Belleville firemen were called back to the scene early yesterday afternoon when it was reported that an oil tank near the burned-out hatchery was leaking.

Close-Up of Moon's Mysterious Side Shows Lumps and Craters

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—America's first bright, clear close-ups of the moon's mysterious far side show pretty much what was expected — nothing new.

Two sharply - focused pictures transmitted to earth Sunday by Lunar Orbiter show lumps and craters—a carbon copy almost of the familiar near side.

Orbiter, the 850-pound satellite in orbit around the moon, took the two shots late Friday and early Saturday, processed them and then radioed them back for scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

The pictures show much more detail than photos sent back in 1959 by Russia's Luna III, scientists said, although spokesmen for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration didn't interpret the new shots immediately.

First received was a high-resolution photo taken by the spacecraft's "filing close - up camera. The other photo was taken by the medium - resolution lens, which has worked perfectly throughout the mission.

The craft was able to take a good picture with the close-up lens, scientists said, because they didn't activate the erring motion compensation system.

The system, which wasn't needed for the picture because of the spacecraft's 1,900 - mile altitude at the time, is designed to ensure clear pictures by moving the film while the shutter is open to account for the spacecraft's speed. It apparently doesn't do it right, they said.

Man Pinned in Seat of Wrecked Plane for Six Days Rescued

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP)—For six days, John E. Emmanuel sat pinned in his seat in the wrecked plane.

Trucks sped by on Interstate Route 91, only a short distance away and search planes buzzed overhead, their pilots unable to see the wreckage under the trees.

Besides Emmanuel, 39, lay the body of his friend, Richard Lloyd Bolton, 32, who had been piloting the single - engined plane back to Hartford after a weekend holiday at Block Island, R.I.

A week ago today, the Cessna went down, bounced off the rocky face of Mount Higby and fell into the woods at the bottom of the cliff.

The Federal Aviation Agency and the coast guard abandoned the search Thursday, but a number of private pilots and Connecticut authorities continued the hunt.

There was no clue to the whereabouts of the four-seater plane and its occupants, state police said, until authorities received a report from truck driver John Faulkner, who said he had seen a flash of something at the foot of the mountain in the rear view mirror of his truck last Monday morning. Faulkner said he searched information which enabled them to pinpoint the spot where the plane might have gone down.

Sunday, a helicopter spotted the wreck beneath the heavy foliage at the foot of the cliff and searchers hiked through the wooded area to the plane, where they found Emmanuel alive.

The survivor was suffering from malnutrition, exposure, and shock. He was in serious condition, but conscious and able to speak.

Search Goes On to Recover Body of Man

Dragging operations are expected to continue today as the search goes on for the body of Lawson, in the Bay of Quinte here. Officers from the Belleville Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police and members of the Belleville Fire Department were unsuccessful in their efforts to locate the body, on the weekend.

Belleville Fire Chief T. E. Foote said operations of the tug Lac Vancouver spotted the body of a man floating in the water, near the Bay Bridge, Saturday morning. Men aboard the tug attempted to lift the body from the water but the man's jacket pulled loose and the body sank from sight.

Keith Ferguson, bridgemaster, said that three varying currents in the bay where the man was sighted, could have moved the body many miles away before recovery operations were begun.

Positive identification of the body in the water has not been made as yet, police said.

The accident occurred north of Brighton, and about a mile and a half west of Highway 30.

U.S. Planes Continue to Bomb Depots

SAIGON (AP)—For the second straight day, giant U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers from Guam struck Communist bases in South Viet Nam today.

One group reportedly bombarded a Viet Cong base 45 miles east of Saigon. Another wave struck an enemy training and resupply camp 130 miles southwest of Saigon.

A lull continued in the ground fighting. Only small, scattered patrol actions were reported today.

In the city of Gia Dinh, near Saigon, a raider threw a grenade into a military jeep, and four U.S. servicemen and an American civilian were wounded, none seriously. A Vietnamese woman passerby also was wounded. The raider escaped.

Sunday, B-52s also hit two enemy staging areas and suspected Viet Cong division headquarters near the Cambodian border 60 miles northwest of Saigon, and a North Vietnamese troop concentration area two miles south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

FLIGHT 102 MISSIONS

Other American pilots flew 102 missions over North Viet Nam Sunday, hitting 14 more missile sites around Haoai, six oil storage depots and other targets.

Flyers reported they damaged three of the four surface-to-air missile sites attacked.

Navy pilots from the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt struck a rail yard just outside the city of Nam Dinh in North Viet Nam and reported the area was engulfed in flames and a huge column of black smoke rose to 8,000 feet as they departed.

They destroyed 10 railway tank cars and damaged 20 buildings and cut rail lines in three places, a spokesman said.

Air Force officials in a supply area-at Dong Hoi on the coast about 30 miles north of the demilitarized zone. Pilots said they saw four large secondary explosions as indications that ammunition or fuel stores had been hit.

The U.S. command announced today that 114 American planes have been lost in operations over North Viet Nam from the beginning of the war through last Wednesday.

The command announced the loss of one more plane today over South Viet Nam. He said the OV-10 Bronco or Air Force Fighter was brought down by ground fire 60 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong Delta. The pilot bailed out and was rescued.

Weekend raids on the north cost one U.S. plane. An air force RF-4C Phantom photographic reconnaissance plane was shot down 30 miles northwest of Dong Hoi. One crew member was rescued but the other was listed as missing.

It was the 342nd U.S. plane reported lost over North Viet Nam since the air war over the north began two years ago.

Two Weary Mountaineers Are Rescued

CHAMONIX, France (Reuter)—Two weary West German mountaineers edged slowly through driving snow today down the icy sheer west face of the 12,500-foot Aiguille du Dru on the French Alps which had held them prisoner for more than a week.

Rescuers who freed them Sunday reported that the Germans, Heinz Mandel, 25, and Hermann Muller, 25, were in good health although fatigued.

But their progress down the slippery face was so slow that it seemed unlikely they would cover the 2,000 yards to the base before nightfall.

A four-man team extricated the Germans from a narrow, frozen snow-swept ledge near the summit of the mountain.

Low cloud and mist blanketed the base and officials said there seemed little hope of the weather improving today.

A German mountaineer was killed while taking part in Sunday's massive rescue operation.

Rail Strike

Railway, Ontario Northland Railway, the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway, the Midland Railway Co. of Manitoba and the Cumberland railway Co.'s Sydney and Louisburg division.

WILL WITHDRAW

Mr. Smith said:

"Trains on route would be allowed to reach a terminal point after which employees handling these trains will withdraw their services."

Also affected would be the railway ferries to Prince Edward Island, the crews of which are members of the CBRT.

"Strike instructions to the employees and their committees will leave Montreal and Ottawa today by mail," the non-op chairman said.

Ashad would be thought the federal government would appoint a mediator, Mr. Smith said:

"This has been the practice in disputes of this nature."

The press conference followed a meeting of 500 regional representatives of the unions.

With Mr. Smith at the press conference were W. P. Kelly vice-president of the Railroad trainmen's union; William J. Smith, president of the CBRT, and T. W. Read, president of the shop craft group.

MUST PUT TO VOTE

All except Mr. Kelly agreed that if the compulsory legislation is imposed by the government, local union groups would have to vote whether to abide by such legislation or not.

Mr. Kelly said the plans had been made regarding what would be done in such an event.

R. C. Dechene, vice-president of Ocisis are willing to meet with railway representatives any time before Friday.

Mr. Kelly said protective service agreements have been signed by the railways with the railway to safeguard railway stock in the event of a strike.

The chief executive officers are in process of working out a draft agreement to the same effect with the railways.

The Belleville detachment of the O.P.P. was notified of the accident at 2.30 this morning.

House Member Gives Support To Separatists

VICTORIAVILLE, Que. (CP)—Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste MP for Lapointe Sunday was elected president of the Ralliement National, a party that became the first known member of the House of Commons to support Quebec separatism.

His election followed a speech by Gregoire in which he called on Ottawa to give Quebec the same powers as the U.S. state of Texas.

"I have one goal—to attain the economic and monetary independence of Quebec, and I will be content with all that will get Quebec out of Confederation as soon as possible."

With Real Caouette, Mr. Gregoire is co-leader of the Creditiste party. The RN was formed before the June 5 Quebec elections as an alliance of Quebec nationalists and provincial Creditistes.

Gregoire said he would not seek re-election to Parliament in the next federal election but would devote himself to leading the RN to power in Quebec.

Sunday, after his election, Mr. Gregoire's attitudes he has become convinced during his term in the House of Commons it was "useless" trying to make English - speaking Canadians aware of the problems faced by Quebec.

lis—increases of about 50 per cent—headed off the strikes.

It's impossible to know whether the disputes could have been settled with smaller increases, or whether the government would have been in more political trouble by letting them go on.

In any event, Mr. Pearson's actions then are being cited now as the reason why Canada faces a national railway strike which, if it ran for many days or weeks, would do serious damage to the economy.".

BLAMES PEARSON

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has charged that Mr. Pearson set off a "wage explosion."

Eamon Park, president of the New Democratic Party, says the prime minister has messed up collective bargaining for the entire year.

He said union leaders now are faced with arguments from workers that if the longshoremen and the seaway workers can win 30-per-cent pay increases why not them.

Mr. Park wasn't quarrelling with the amounts of the increases as such. But he said there was no explanation, no "rationale" for them.

He argued—and the socialists are expected to make this in the Commons—that much of this year's troubles could have been avoided if legislation had been introduced to bring collective bargaining procedures up to date.

Government must take the initiative to persuade both labor and management to agree to changes so that bargaining can be carried out on a continuing basis within an industry or trade instead of on a plant-by-plant basis.

Only then, he said, will the national interest in keeping the interests of management and labor, be a factor in bargaining.

Mr. Pearson of late has made reference to the possible need for changes in legislation. The opposition parties, particularly the NDP, are likely to push him on this during the fall.

Peking's Teen-Ager Wants City Rid of "Western Ways"

By VERGIL BERGER

PEKING (Reuters) — Crowds of teen-agers virtually took control of Peking's shopping centres Sunday, ordering shopkeepers, restaurant managers and hairdressers to rid themselves of "western ways."

In the latest development in the so-called cultural revolution sweeping China, the teen-agers told shopkeepers to stop selling such items as curios and cosmetics and clothes cut in western style.

Hairdressers were told to stop immediately giving "Hong Kong trims."

Restaurants were told to serve cheaper, simpler meals suitable for workers and farmers.

In some cases, management and staff were threatened.

The teen-agers, organized as the Red Guards of the cultural revolution, were clearly acting with the approval of government authorities.

The Red Guards, who earlier during the weekend were drawn from students outside scores of Peking's large shops and renamed some of the capital's avenues, Sunday gave management time limits ranging from 48 hours to one week to rid their establishments of "bourgeois tendencies."

They made their demands public to big colored posters on walls and windows of the shops and restaurants. All Peking shops and restaurants are state-owned.

EFFECTS PUBLIC

This is the latest development in a political and cultural upheaval that has been in progress now for three months. It involves a larger part of the public have than previous outbreaks of senior Communist party officials and intellectuals.

The weekend demonstrations were apparently following literally the advice of editorials and manifestos to sweep away all traditional things.

The teen-agers read quotations from Mao Tse-tung's writings in unison at the tops of their voices as their leaders symbolized scorn or wooden signboards of shops with old-fashioned or traditional names. The shops were given new, revolutionary names such as East Wind Store and Workers-Peasants-Soldiers department store.

Most antique shops, second-hand bookstores and foreign-language bookstores were closed Sunday, but some were expected to reopen soon.

The teen-agers renamed many of the capital's best known streets, painting new names over old on street signs.

The east-west boulevard, bisecting the city and running through Heavenly Peace square, had its name changed from Long Peace to East is Red.

INSULT SOVIETS

The road leading to the imposing, White-domed Soviet Embassy, formerly called Street of Growing Prestige, was redubbed Street of Struggle Against Revisionism.

Scores of colored banners have been put up along the street bearing such slogans as "Prestige for whom? Not for Soviet revisionists."

The former Legation Street where foreign embassies were besieged during the Boxer rising in 1900 has been named Anti-Imperialist Struggle street.

In Liuliehang, a narrow, pedestrian lane in the southern part of the city, which for years has been the centre of north China's antique and curio trade, green posters proclaimed "we give a final warning to bourgeois elements in this street."

McFarland Co. Will Rebuild Coe Hill Road

The H. J. McFarland Construction Co. of Picton has been awarded the contract for the contract for the rebuilding of a section of development road No. 504 west of Coe Hill.

Mr. W. E. Sanderock, MLA for Hastings West, said the Picton firm would rebuild a .86 mile section of the Rose Inland Road commencing three miles west of Coe Hill. The contract, for grading, granular base and culverts, is for $108,504.

India Unveils Plan With Foreign Aid

NEW DELHI (AP) — India Sunday unveiled a sweeping $21,600,000,000 plan designed to boost agricultural production and industry over the next five years.

To make the plan work, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government hopes western nations will come through with about $8,500,000,00 in foreign aid. The Soviet Union and other Communist countries are being counted on for another $1,000,000,000.

Among western nations, Canada and the United States are major suppliers of aid to India, which is trying to improve its farming methods so it can feed its 485,000,000 people.

This is the fourth time since its independence in 1947 that India has come up with a five-year plan designed to haul its people out of the ox-cart era into the 20th century.

Body Flown From B.C. Not Their Son

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—A body flown from Vancouver for burial here is not their son, Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Morris of Blind River said today.

This was learned Saturday, the day set for the funeral, when the casket was opened so the parents and Lionel's brothers and sister could view him for the last time.

Inside, they said, was a man in his 50s, with reddish instead of black hair. Lionel, who had all his 6 ft. 4 in. weighed 175 pounds. The older man, weighing about 100 pounds, had no teeth.

Now the relatives are trying to find out if Lionel is indeed dead and if so, what happened.

All Lionels identifying papers, the parents said they were.

Nor friends said they were notified their son died in Vancouver General Hospital Aug. 16. They made arrangements to have the body flown to Sault Ste. Marie, 65 miles west of here, and brought here. With it was a death certificate signed by D. M. Morris, Vancouver district registrar. It said he died of a brain atrophy.

Lionel left a funeral home in Vancouver which shipped the body, said there was no possibility of an error in its handling. It said the body sent east as Lionel Blais was the same one, identified by an area tattoo, as the body received from the coroner's office.

The family checked the RCMP here but were told it was a family matter and not at present under RCMP jurisdiction. They were told to get in touch with RCMP in Vancouver.

Lionel last address was given as 327 Carroll St., Vancouver. One of his brothers, Lionel from Edson, Alta., said he saw Lionel in Calgary on July 9.

60 of 78 Fatalities Die In Road Mishaps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 78 persons died accidentally across Canada during the weekend, 60 of them in traffic accidents.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. EDT Friday to midnight Sunday, local times, also included 12 drownings, one fire death and four deaths of other mishaps.

Ontario reported 28 fatalities with traffic accidents accounting for 25 including six motorcycle deaths. Two persons were drowned and one died in a fire.

Quebec had 18 traffic deaths —six in a fiery crash near St. Pascal, Que. — three drownings and one person who suffocated.

Two persons died in traffic accidents in each of Saskatchewan and Alberta. There were three such fatalities in British Columbia, where one man also was killed when he fell from a moving train and two were overcome by fumes in a well.

Manitoba had one traffic death and one drowning.

Nova Scotia counted five drownings and three road deaths. New Brunswick had five traffic fatalities and one drowning and Newfoundland three traffic deaths and one drowning.

Prince Edward Island was fatality-free.

The survey does not include industrial or public health deaths, known suicides or slayings.

Water From Acacia Tree Is Bonanza For Texan

By JACK KEEVER

LA FERIA, Tex. (AP) — It isn't much of a tree to look at. Its branches don't give much shade and its leaves are covered by telephone wires.

But it does leak water and hundreds of people crowd into Homer Morse's backyard at 50 cents apiece because they think the drippage is a sign of magic healing.

Dozens of long distance calls and letters have asked for samples of the water.

"I hope it cures them all, but I don't think it will," said Morse who, at 66, suddenly finds his quiet life interrupted with a yard full of people waiting water from a 13-year-old Acacia tree he once almost cut down.

"I haven't drunk any of that filthy water and don't intend to," he said. And he'll tell you frankly that the tree stands on a water formation six feet below the surface.

His doubts, however, haven't stopped the flood of letters.

CROWD RUSHES IN

Like a gold rush, dozens, then hundreds, mostly Mexican Americans, poured into his yard after the word got out that a tree on his property was flowing from the 30-foot tree.

Clutching paper cups and glass jars, they pushed and shoved to get to the tree, which is a common variety here in the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Some tried to mix the water with dirt and rub it on their bodies.

Most dubbed it the "crying tree," but some called it "God's tree" and Morse's yard "the holy land."

After a week of feet scuffing his grass and trampling bushes, Morse decided to fence the yard off, and Wednesday he put up the first section of wire.

He built a gate in the fence and, after much free water at the rate of 14 to 18 gallons a day had flowed from the tree, began charging 50 cents admission. The daily take was as much as $200.

Dr. Gary Miller, a Harlingen, Tex., psychologist, asked for his interpretation of the interest in the tree, called it an example of people's ability to "think magically."

SETS RECORD

LE PUY, France (Reuters)— Jean Boiteux of Roche-Arnaud-Rochatain returned to earth Sunday night after beating his own record by spending seven days perched on a high wire over the River Loire near here. His longest previous stay on a high wire was one week.

Aged Skipper Being Rushed To Hospital

NEW YORK (AP)—A U.S. Coast Guard cutter sped today toward Bermuda Mich., to bring to hospital Capt. William Wallis, 72, who had been attempting to sail his 11-foot boat solo to England.

A doctor aboard the cutter Ingham, which reached the frail craft Sunday night far out in the foggy Atlantic, diagnosed Wallis' ailment as a strangulated hernia—as the sailor had thought when he reported to a passing freighter he was ailing.

The cutter was expected to reach Argentia at 8:30 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Wallis, who sailed the South Pacific alone, left here two months ago today in the Little One—named for his wife, Tess—bound for Plymouth, England.

Asked whether Wallis would be taken aboard the cutter and sent to a hospital, a coast guard spokesman said the doctor "will evaluate and let that guide them."

The Ingham, on a routine trip to Newfoundland from Norfolk, Va., was directed to Wallis when she left Argentia with her 95-foot pollion, 850 miles east of New York and 900 miles south of Cape Race, Mfd.

The cutter had been called by the Bermuda Rescue Committee. Gladys which spotted Wallis and was told he was ill.

With word to go aboard the freighter, which was en route to Holland, saying he preferred to wait for the coast guard, which gave him honorary master's papers just before he left on the voyage.

A doctor at Beckman Downtown Hospital said Wallis is in "good condition" if his self-diagnosis is correct. The doctor said Wallis could be in Great Thenerbelle to Plymouth.

In 1954, Wills crossed the Pacific in 113 days and Nov. 18, 1964, he arrived under tow in Sydney, Australia, on a 22-foot Age Unlimited, after a 204-day, 10,000-mile journey.

Wilis has had a life at sea ever since as a young man he shipped out of Hamburg, Germany, on a four-master which sailed around Cape Horn.

CONTROL OF SEVERE BLEEDING

Severe bleeding is one of the most urgent emergencies for the first aider. With any severe bleeding immediate action is necessary if a life is to be saved.

1. DIRECT PRESSURE
(a) It is applied directly over the wound using the clean-est material.
(b) If material is not at hand use hand pressure directly over wound.
(c) To be effective pressure must be maintained for 3 to 5 minutes without release.
(d) A pressure bandage may be necessary.
(e) 90 to 95% of all severe bleeding can be controlled by direct pressure.

2. FURTHER ASSISTANCE
The control of severe bleeding can be further assisted by:
(a) Maintaining pressure.
(b) Elevating the injured part if possible.
(c) Put the injured part at rest.
(d) Make the victim comfortable.
(e) If bleeding continues through the first pressure band-age apply a second one directly over the first. Do not remove the original pressure bandage.

3. TREAT FOR SHOCK
(a) Keep warm, but not hot.
(b) Encourage flow of blood to head by placing patient in inclined position.
(c) If breathing difficult or head injured — keep patient level.
(d) If thirsty sip water, providing no internal injuries. No alcohol.

The Quiet Canadians

It was Sir Wilfred Laurier who said in an earlier time that the "20th century belongs to Canada."

In many ways it does. Here we are, six months or so from the forthcoming Centennial celebrations and enjoying the second (or are we still third after Sweden?) highest standard of living in the world, and getting organized for the Expo '67 exhibition of man and his world viewed through the eyes of our own and many other cultures. All this. . . but just how much are potential visitors from other nations in the picture with regard to Expo?

At least five million people are expected to attend the exhibition in Montreal between April and October. But to judge from current feeling, countless others are unaware of what is taking place in Canada next year, and in Montreal in particular.

The Montreal Gazette's Bill Bantey has been surveying opinion on this theme in the United States. In New England he found considerable interest. Vermont for instance will have its own pavilion, and the United States as a whole is represented. But, the man-in-the-street tended to be vague about just what Expo is, which is scarcely surprising in view of American indifference to the Canadian scene generally.

Bantey is now in Rome where he quotes a leading Italian newsman as saying that Italians are unaware that Montreal is to host a world exhibition next year.

"The Italian public is ignorant of Expo '67 and this is regrettable," said Domenico Bartoli of the Italian Corriere Della Sera, of Milan.

However, Bantey quotes Canadian ambassador Gordon Crean as saying he anticipates that increased publicity this fall will make Expo better known among Italians. The same is probably true of publicity programs in other countries.

Canada is a big land, but it has only 20 million people. Its importance on the world scene is only relative, so we cannot afford to be complacent. A remarkable book on Quebec, The Separating Nerve, by John Mercer, suggests just that. The name of the author is actually a pseudonym for the book's two authors, and they claim "it is a recurrent Canadian conceit that we are, though a very small country, a very advanced one, and that everyone elsewhere is aware of our importance."

Canadian newspaper magnate Lord Thomson echoed this idea during a recent visit to Montreal. Thomson was reluctant to advance publicity on Expo, he said, is as neutral as what he called the "normal attitude to all Canadian news."

"The Expo publicity department has done a good job, but let's face it, British and continental interest in Canada is practically nil."

Lord Thomson may be exaggerating. After all Canada has always been a mecca for British immigrants. On the other hand, it is probably true to say the British are too wrapped up in their own affairs to take much notice of us. Even the United States provokes a rather disdainful reaction in Britain — "America," as Britons insist on saying it.

Canada's tendency to avoid beating the national drum is well symbolized by a recent Canadian Press report on the quiet life led by our representatives in Washington.

Like most Canadians here the Ritchies (ambassador Edgar Ritchie and his wife) are not inclined toward the frothier side of life of Washington society. There are 114 other missions here and Mrs. Canada-itself does not hold any lavish festivity for its July 1 birthday."

Surely this is symbolic of our national unwillingness to speak up and let the world know who we are and what we are doing. Clearly more publicity on Expo and on Canada at large is needed before next April. And given such promotion we should be able to attract many more than the five million who are expected to visit the exhibition.

Driver Illness

Here is another disturbing factor in the upward spiral of auto accidents. A California study has revealed that drivers with chronic medical conditions have twice as many accidents and commit almost twice as many traffic violations as healthy drivers.

The California findings, stemming from a study of chronic conditions ranging from heart and circulatory diseases to arthritis, have been taken up by The Traffic Injury Research Foundation of Canada. The latter body says the results of the U.S. study "indicate further research may be useful in clarifying the hazard such persons may be to themselves and others while driving."

People who are in imperfect health inevitably must be regarded as a menace to themselves and others, when driving their cars. And the question arises, how can this be tolerated in view of today's mounting road toll? If there are those who heed their doctor's advice and stay off the roads there must be many others who for one reason or another, sometimes included, find they must drive a car regardless.

One of the most significant battles of English history was fought 481 years ago today—in 1485—and Bosworth Field, 12 miles west of Leicester, Arbiter of the cruel usurper King Richard III, of the House of York, fought fore ces supporting Henry Tudor, who had come from exile in France to claim the throne in the name of the House of Lancaster. Henry's forces proved, and King Richard was killed in battle. The field of Bosworth Field ended the War of the Roses—a 30-year, intermittent civil conflict—with the fall of the Yorkist after 24 years as regal power. The crown of England was found on a bush and passed to Henry VII, first ruler of the second Tudor dynasty.

Copyright Law Broken

Financial Post

Owners of copyright material have a new 'modern-day menace to contend with. It's that innocent - looking, push-button copying machine which is becoming almost standard equipment in most offices and is proving a horrible temptation to the otherwise honest citizens.

Some people are succumbing to the fun. They copy anything for publication and run off extras with a twist of the knob. It's illegal but hard to police. And it is especially worrying to newsletter publishers. Copying machine makers often post warnings right on their machines about infringing on copyright, but in many cases the warnings are ignored.

What to do? One U.S. bulletin editor recently sent subscribers a stiff reminder that copyright laws still exist. The big Hall firm that publishes the bulletin is also doing research to develop inks and ensitive color paper that can't be copied.

Plagued by the problem, one entrepreneur publisher even tried the humorous touch while warning his readers as follows:

"A copy of (the newsletter) is inserted into any domestic photocopy machine, the later will explode in a deadly blast of atomic radiation which will render sterile all persons within 1876 ft. of the epicentre of the blast. A new patented compound is incorporated into the capillaries of the sheet of our office paper. If you need an extra copy, another subscription is so much easier."

On the other hand, he really didn't say he was kidding.

Public Must Come First

Brockville Recorder and-Times

It has been said that anyone, physician psychiatrist, judge or parole official who turns loose on society a criminal whose acts are laid to mental illness assumes an awesome responsibility. Until we know far more about the cause and cure of insanity than we know now, the rights of the individual involved must take second place to the protection of society as a whole.

In all the campaigns the do-gooders in our society, this responsibility for the protection of society appears to take second place. The rights of the individual criminal appear to take first place too often.

This newspaper has yet to support any campaign to eliminate capital punishment and we have been critical of the parole board. The fear that an insane killer may be freed in a few years is too strong in most of us to go along with the reformers' projects.

We find ourselves agreeing with Magistrate Hall when Governor John Connally, of Texas, after the mass murders committed by Charles Whitman, that killers acquitted on the grounds of insanity be locked up for the rest of their lives. Many crimes are committed in the name of insanity and these deserve less leniency than they now get.

Diabetes Has No Effect On Emotional Stability

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is a very depressed type of person and recently learned that he has diabetes. This has caused him to be worse and to think he is going to die almost any day.

Does diabetes affect mental and emotional stability? What can I do to help? He will not go to a psychiatrist. — Mrs. W. H.

No, diabetes does not affect mental or emotional stability.

However, there are people who cannot accept an illness of any kind — heart disease, tuberculosis, arthritis, etc. Other folks learn all they can about dealing with the disease, do their best, and let it go at that.

But many rail at fate and decide, "Why did this happen to me?"

Some even refuse to accept the diagnosis, won't co-operate in treatment, and try to carry on as though a disease does not exist.

Just about every doctor has a Lad experience at times with patients who deny symptoms — common ones are chronic cough, blood in sputum or from some body orifice, persistent pain, and a host of others. There is also the patient who even in the doctor's office, will deliberately withhold mention of significant symptoms but elaborate on minor complaints. Incredible! Of course. But human emotions react strangely at times.

So, Mrs. W. R., your husband may not be the most difficult kind of patient about his illness if he knows he has diabetes. I hope that he obeys instructions as to diet and medication, because when the disease is treated properly, the patient can live a better life. The danger depends primarily upon refusing to follow a prescribed diet and to take adequate amounts of medication, with periodic checkups to see whether any change is necessary.

It might help if you can get your husband to read my book, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease," because it will show him that the problem is far from hopeless. (The booklet will be sent in return for a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin. Address requests to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Joy in his depressed frame of mind, he may indeed need a psychiatrist, but if he is unwilling to seek such aid, there is little you can do.

There is a possibility that his regular physician, if informed of this depressed attitude, might be able to help him by more complete explanation of the problem. One of the so-called "psychic energizer" medications, which in recent years have been effective in combatting emotional depression might be beneficial. The precise type of depression would guide the selection of the right drug.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have osteiosis in both ears but hearing has been partially helped by an operation. Is this condition hereditary? I know of no one in the immediate family who has had it. Will my children be likely to inherit it? — Mrs. I. B.

A family history of otosclerosis is found in about half of such cases, indicating that heredity plays a part in but not the whole story. There is no way to predict whether your children will have it, but lack of other cases in the family is a good sign. It usually appears in 20's and comes on so slowly that the individual is not aware and hence delays treatment.

Note to Mrs. C. W.: Yes, gargle is decidedly habit-forming, being a tincture of opium. It has its uses, such as in curbing severe diarrhea for one, but it should not be taken frequently. In the past it was prescribed too often for soothing restless babies. In my opinion it should almost never be used for that.

A Disinterested Public

Oshawa Times

Undoubtedly Canada is approaching a major crossroad of financial relations between the provinces and the federal government. The competing allies are great but this should not preclude the proper parliamentary discussion and decision on matters touching the lives and pocketbooks of all Canadians.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson is the politicel mood of the Canadian voter-reports 40 percent of the voters undecided as to which party they would support if a federal election were called, but in a new high in indecision and was termed by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion as evidence that "considerable soul-searching" was taking place.

It is a time for soul-searching. We can be a pathetic, disinterested, and even disgusted with the manner in which our elected representatives handle the responsibilities we've given them. There's justification based on recent performances for such attitudes. But they're negative and not the answer. For while the Canadian citizen is generally mad hugging, those in office continue to pursue their solutions to Canada's problems. That dissatisfaction is evident does not dissuade them from their ongoing parliamentary discussion and procedures.

Rather than lapsing into disinterest Canadians should be ready to raise a real row. To write letters to the editor, to protest to parliamentarians, to button-hole holidaying members of parliament and the legislature and tell them we've had enough. There can be no indecision on this score.

An admiral has shown he can command national attention. So can every Joe Citizen if he's interested in the affairs of his country.

Letter to the Editor

Belleville on the Move

Editor,
The Intelligencer:
Dear Sir:

Congratulations!

We sincerely hope that your report on downtown business developments, on page two of your issue of Thursday, August 18, will be the beginning of something long overdue in the city of Belleville — Positive Thinking!

This is the kind of thing that will give the needed leadership so lacking in this city, to do away with, once and for all, the negative, doubting, fearful, even derogatory attitudes that seem to have permeated the atmosphere here.

There is nothing wrong with Belleville that cannot be cured by a little pride, a little courage, a little foresight, and yes, even a little hoarding. Articles such as the one to which we refer may be just the spark needed to set off the whole reaction.

Thank you for the encouragement and the much needed leadership. Keep it up!

Wage Claims Spur Inflation

Ottawa Journal

None escaped the higher cost of living revealed in the consumer price index for July. The general level of Canadian prices had to pay was up 3.4 percent compared with July last year. Ninety percent of the costs included in the index cover essentials; and in areas such as food and housing the increases have been prolonged and persistent.

The index is the statistical evidence of inflation and the produced buying power of the Canadian dollar. The index of prices was 100 in 1949, 138.2 in July last year and 144.3 in July this year.

So proceeds the march of inflation which leads to demands for more money by those at work and to pushing of prices by those not at work who have to live on fixed incomes such as pensions.

The difficulties created by inflation would be easier to bear if there were any evidence the Government had plans to assist in eliminating them. The Sharp budget in March made totally inadequate provision for the growing rising costs. Then the Government gave new fire to inflation by approving large increases in pay to longshoremen and Seaway workers. Now it is confronted with a series of industrial strikes and disagreements in various segments of industry, but with the determination of railway workers to have substantial increases.

The Labor government in Britain imposes wage curbs on the theory that the Liberal Government in Canada is attempting to hold office. Prime Minister Wilson did not bow down to the seamen in their protracted strike and their big gravamen has brought down a program of freezing wages and profits which enrages traditional trade unionists.

People are sympathetic with the man seeking more money. Yet the man who demands more money because his living costs have risen is part of the cycle, is spurring inflation. Those on fixed and limited incressed pay are left doubly behind.

In the United States there has been a warning of inflation to hold prices unless business, industry and the unions impose self-discipline. Nothing of the kin has come from the Canadian Cabinet although its own advisers, the Economic Council of Canada, warned 8 months ago that without reasonable price stability serious inequities will develop in a society as different prices and incomes adjust at various speeds to new circumstances.

Canadian-Style Homes in U.K.

Brantford Expositor

Two of the Englishman's dearest dogmas are that central heating is unhealthy and that his house must be of brick or stone, not timber. The first is melting before the spread of central heating in hotels and now by natural gas from the North Sea. The second is crumbling as frame housing has been created, appropriately by Canadians.

Soon there will be 1,700 houses like the Harlow, 20 miles from London, built of Canadian timber by the new timber frame construction methods to designs by The Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation of Ottawa.

British couples, no less than a Canadian couple, like to own their dream home, but getting one is a slow business. The country is still trying to make up for the loss or damage to three million dwellings by wartime bombing and at the same time build schools, universities, hospitals, new towns and offices with a construction labor force far too small and working under restrictive building regulations.

Once the Harlow pilot project has shown that Canadian building methods are practical in Britain as to cost, speed of construction and housing value, the way will be open to Canada for similar homes in other places. There is a serious bigger market in British of Canadian lumber, plywood and other building materials.

It took Ottawa trade officials and industry representatives three years to organize and launch the Harlow scheme with help from the U.K. Ministry of Housing. It promises to be time well spent.

Strictly Personal

George Sand Was No Lady

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Mary McCarthy's retrospect on the novel, "Group," has been turned into a movie, which I saw a few weeks ago. The main characters in the film are said to be modeled on women Miss McCarthy went to college with in the 1930s — most of whom have sunk into decent obscurity.

Authors throughout the ages have been fond of drawing on real-life characters for their books, but they are usually unrecognizable, choosing other writers to depict, and often famous.

Dostoevsky, in "The Possessed," wrote a savage caricature of Turgenev, whom he despised; Zola's "Beatrix" contains recognizable portraits of Gounod, Franz Liszt, and the poet Lamartine.

Hall Caine, in "The Prodigal Son," fictionalized the life of Rossetti and his wife; and Henry James's "The Reverberator" sketched the personality of Robert Louis Stevenson.

George Sand, in "She and He," wrote about her affair with Alfred de Musset; and in "Lucrezia Floriani," she did the same about her relationship with Chopin. (Little wonder she took a man's name as a nom de plume; she instinctively knew she was not a lady.)

Dickens and Stevenson drew almost all their characters from real persons. Anatole France put Verlaine into "The Red Lily," which Proust put Anatole France (along with Monet and other Parisian artists) into his great "Remembrance of Things Past."

In recent times, Aldous Huxley's "Point Counter Point" attracted unusual attention because of its thinly-veiled portraits of D. H. Lawrence and Aldington Murry, H. G. Wells and Belloc, and political figures as Lord Oxford, Baldwin, Churchill and the Webbs.

Somerset Maugham's death this summer reminded me that his novels and stories are studded with characters drawn from real life — including Gaugin, Hugh Walpole, and Thomas Hardy. Several books coming out this season, by Noel Coward, promise to be as hard on him as he was on some of his literary contemporaries.

Occasionally the woman a clef gets an author into trouble. Gutzkhrow, in "Ritt - Ra-Ra", portrayed Maria Jeritza, the singer, and her husband, Baron Leopold Popper. Madame Jeritza prosecuted the author and had him jailed. While Thackeray was so partial to taking real persons for his characters that he was blackballed from the distinguished Travellers' Club in London. Wonder if Mary McCarthy has since returned to Vassar?

Boat Races At Waupoos Draw Crowd

PICTON (Staff) — Thousands of spectators on Sunday were treated to a thrilling afternoon of boat races at Sandy Point Park, Waupoos, where Picton Outboard Club held their Annual International races. The event, sanctioned by the American Powerboat Association and the Canadian Boating Federation, is claimed to be the largest outboard racing event in Canada.

Races started promptly at 1 p.m. and continued every five minutes until 6 p.m. Eleven classes of boats entered the competition and ran twenty-two heats (plus eliminations) with three laps in each heat. The course was one and two-thirds miles of water and skill, thrills and spills were the order of the day.

One U.S. Utility boat was overturned but was not damaged and the driver was uninjured. However, a hydro from Toronto flipped over wrecking the boat.

Winner of the 36 Utility Class was Harry Doolinger of Washington, N.Y., and second was George Pulsbo of Picton. First In C Hydro was John Slithorpe of Picton. First in D Hydro was Bob Surrey of Belleville. First in D Utility was Cliff Kerr of Picton. Winner of J Utility (drivers aged 8-13) was Beth Chalk of Fisher's Landing, N.Y.

Fire Damage In Week Equals Loss in Year

PICTON — Fire damage in one week period equals the total fire losses for 1965. Fire Chief Dunne Forbsy of Picton said fire damage last year was estimated at $40,000. This is about the total amount of damage of the last four fires. The Chief estimates that fire losses in Picton this year will probably run half as much again as the entire fire losses for 1965. The Fire Department here had about sixty calls last year. Already fire calls have soared above last year's total.

Two men were arrested last week and charged with arson.

Life Has Always Been Hard In Quake-Devastated Region

ISTANBUL (AP)—The quake-devastated section of eastern Turkey is a mountainous and arid area where life has always been hard.

Barren mountains dominate the four provinces of Erzurum, Mus, Bitlis and Bingol. The people farm and raise sheep and cattle on its plateaus and in its valleys. The total population of the four provinces is just more than 1,000,000.

Outside the cities, people live frugally in single-story homes of sun-baked mud with flat earthen roofs. The roads are bad. So are communications. In winter, when the temperature drops below zero, horse-drawn sleighs are the only way to get around.

Erzurum is the biggest of the four disaster provinces. It has 375,000 of the area's population. Erzurum City itself, where damage was light, has 91,000 citizens. Many of them work in leather tanneries and sugar refineries, while their rural neighbors produce wool, farm products and dairy products.

Erzurum, an almost circular city ringed by ancient fortifications walls, was founded by the Romans in 422 on what now is the main road to Iran. The Turks annexed it in 1048 from the Byzantine Empire.

RESISTED INVASION

The Russians occupied it in 1828 and 1878, and again in 1916. Its inhabitants are known among their fellow Turks as stout resisters to Russian invasion.

Erzurum is the cultural centre of eastern Turkey. Its schools include Ataturk University, founded with the help of the University of Nebraska in the United States. Mosques and inns dominate the skyline. The city's people live in stone houses of two and three storeys.

The area has been rocked by destructive earthquakes in the past. In 1939, 32,000 persons were killed in a quake at Erzincan, just east of the present disaster zone. In 1858, Erzurum City was almost destroyed by a quake.

BEATLES ARRIVE

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The Beatles came to the U.S. Bible belt Friday and gave two performances that were tolerated by the city fathers, criticized by the Ku Klux Klan and rivalled by a Christian youth rally. Shrieking crowds, mostly teenagers, and a majority of them girls, jammed the mid - south coliseum in record numbers—an estimated total of 19,000.

Armed Police Hunt Fugitive In London Clubs

LONDON (AP) — Armed police raided London striptease clubs early today in Scotland Yard's a nationwide search for Harry Roberts, the third man wanted in the slaying of three detectives.

Nude and near - nude girls scampered to dressing rooms as plainclothes policemen with revolvers in their belts swept through four basement clubs in the vice - ridden Soho district.

Hundreds of men watching the shows were checked and questioned, but no trace was found of the 30 - year - old fugitive. The identity of the girl stripper who was kept secret by Scotland Yard, but a spokesman said her information was taken very seriously.

Roberts' estranged wife is a professional stripper who performs as Hilary Bradley. Her name, She now lives in the south of England.

In other parts of Soho, detectives raided the apartments of call girls with door signs such as "model available upstairs." Again they drew a blank.

HAS THREE GUNS

Roberts, described by the yard as "vicious and dangerous," is known to have three guns and plenty of ammunition. Members of the public have been asked to report any friend tangling with him.

Two other men — John Duddy and Jack Edward Witney—already are behind bars charged with murdering the three detectives who were shot down in mid-afternoon in a quiet suburban street.

The cold - blooded crime horrified the nation and brought demands for the return of capital punishment, at least for police murders. Britain's lobbies are fully unarmed.

More than 400 alarm calls were received by police Sunday from persons who thought they had seen Roberts in various parts of the country.

Every lead was checked, without result. One fruitless tip sent detectives swarming over the Norwegian freighter Tarranger, which was about to leave London docks with 40 automobiles for Canada.

Passengers at all airports and harbors were under constant watch by policemen determined to stop Roberts getting out of the country.

TOLL RISES

SEOUL (AP)—The death toll from South Korea's encephalitis epidemic rose to 43 as 19 more persons died across the country, health authorities reported Sunday. The number of persons afflicted, increased to 399.

Steel Workers Will Vote on New Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Contract renewal settlements between the Steel Co. of Canada and the United Steelworkers of America were announced here Sunday for employees at the company's 14 branch fabricating plants in Ontario, Quebec and Alberta.

Larry Sefton, director of USW District 6, said in a statement that union members will vote today on whether to accept three-year contracts.

Earlier this week, agreement was reached between 11,000 employees of the Stelco main plant in Hamilton, giving them a contract that union officials said will make them the highest paid steelworkers in the world.

Hamilton Local 1005 also is to vote today on its agreement.

Basic wage increase of 28 cents an hour are spread over the life of all contracts. The first 10-cent increase is retroactive to Aug. 1 and another eight cents will be paid beginning Aug. 1. A final 10 cents will be given in Aug. 1, 1968.

LOCATE PLANTS

The Stelco fabricating plants are located in Montreal, Gananoque, Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford and Edmonton.

John Morgan, Local 1005 president, said the new 28-cent increase will bring Hamilton workers out one cent an hour more than equivalent jobs in the United States steel industry by August, 1967. The present U.S. contract expires at the end of 1967.

The statement said trades and assigned maintenance jobs will be increased by two job classes at an average of 13.4 cents hourly.

In addition, wage rates in Stelco's five Montreal plants were brought up to the level of those in Brantford, Toronto and Hamilton.

The statement said the differential in the wage rate between the Gananoque plant and the Hamilton plant was reduced by 3½ cents an hour.

AN OPEN LETTER REGARDING SHOPPING HOURS!

One has only to pick up any newspaper these days to see that all across the country employees are negotiating and, in many cases, striking to obtain, amongst other things, shorter working hours per week.

It seems unfortunate that the employees of retail stores, especially those employed in smaller specialty shops, are not always in a position to benefit from such a preferable situation.

With the trend to additional shopping evenings in Belleville, the following Men's Wear stores met and gave serious consideration to staying open on Thursday as well as Friday evening.

The very nature of our business requires that we extend to our customers a highly personalised service, accomplished with part-time staff of little or no special knowledge. This would be complimented by the part-time student's experience, be they either school students or persons with other regular positions who might be called in for the evening to relieve the regular sales people. To do this would be something less than fair to our customers who would require reliable assistance in the selection of their purchase which, in many cases, amount to articles of considerable cost.

We, the undersigned merchants, have therefore come to the conclusion that, in the best interest of our customers and for the time being, we shall continue to remain closed on Thursday evenings.

It is our hope that the people of Belleville and the surrounding districts will appreciate our position and will agree with the principles we have outlined above. We hope that you will continue to patronize our places of business during the regular shopping hours which include staying open Friday evenings.

Sincerely yours,

Hard for Outsider To Draw Up a Budget

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — My son and his wife have incurred a huge pile of debts which I am trying to help them settle. They have a little year-old daughter, therefore my daughter-in-law does not work and I hope she never does until her child is at least 16 unless, of course, it is simply part time while Bonnie is in school.

I am also trying to help them establish a budget which would enable them to have a routine saving plan. Could you help me with this? They certainly need a guide of some kind. — IN THE RED.

DEAR RED — It's pretty hard to inflict a spending and saving program on somebody else. All a third person can do is suggest some guidelines. I'm sending some spending hints.

Perhaps the real culprit is an attitude: the one we call the dollar-down-and-the-rest-when-you-catch-me policy. Or the keeping-up-with-the-Joneses struggle. Or a we-don't-see-eye-to-eye dilemma.

All will yield to the pressure of a cooperative book-keeping effort and the revelation of where the money goes. Especially if the couple care about each other and are really trying.

DEAR DORIS — I am 14 and my problem is the 15-year-old boy next door. Oh, he's a nice boy all right but he's not interested in girls. He moved in a while ago and I've said hello to be friendly, but he's just not friendly back.

He knows that I exist but he just won't talk to me or any other girls on the street. We've heard of boys being shy but this is ridiculous. — GIRL NEXT DOOR.

DEAR GIRL — One just-past-teens young lady says "Too bad they don't stay that way — nice and shy!"

Just don't make yourself ridiculous by hello-ing him into running like mad in the opposite direction. And try picking on somebody your own age.

Youth Orchestra Gives Stratford Performance

By ROBERT TANNER

STRATFORD — Take one hundred of Canada's finest young musicians, train them for seven months under fifteen experts in orchestral music, then launch them on a national tour. This for the last six years has been the outstandingly successful recipe for the National Youth Orchestra of Canada. This year, a new ingredient has been added, for the tour will be international, taking the group to England, Scotland, France and Germany. Stratford, where the orchestra played yesterday afternoon, is one of the only three places in Canada which will hear them this year. Without any question, Canada's loss is Europe's gain, and we may all be very proud of the cashes of our musical export. Their precision, their dedication, their inherent musicianship, all would be notable in a group very much more mature.

For this phenomenon, much of the credit must go to Conductor Walter Susskind. Undismayed by the almost overwhelming difficulties in bringing together an organization of this kind from over the length and breadth of our vast country, he and his staff have created something new, which can only have excellent effects on the musical life of the nation.

The orchestra's first concert of the season, in a packed festival theatre, received a standing ovation. It opened with a stirring rendering of Smetana's Overture to the Bartered Bride, which was followed by an exciting modern work, Tryptyque, by Montreuser Pierre Mercure. This was given a spirited performance, and in spite of its unfamiliar idiom, the last movement is the first played in reverse), made very pleasant listening. Unfortunately the same could not be said for the cantata for soprano and orchestra "Der Wein" by Alban Berg. This dreary item was not improved by squeezing soloist Mary Simmons in at the back of an already crowded stage, where, in dire pent at any moment of becoming involved in the conductor's baton, she could be heard well by about one third of the audience. She would have been much better placed, both dramatically and acoustically, on the stage balcony whence she could readily have dominated the whole house.

The concert concluded with Dvorak's 7th Symphony (published as Number 2). This Brahmsian work, so unlike the composer's other symphonies, was given a rich and sonorous treatment. It seemed clear that the lilting scherzo was the orchestra's own favorite movement, it is probable that it was also the audience's.

It is often said of Canada (as formerly of Britain) that we are not a musical nation. Anyone who believes this should be made to attend a performance by the National Youth Orchestra. The keenness, the dedication and the obvious delight in their efforts which these young people display should convert them.

Architect A. W. McPhalen of Edmonton, designed this three bedroom brick veneer bungalow which features good separation between the kitchen, living and sleeping areas.

Also worth noting are the windows in the living - dining room which enable the furniture to be placed to maximum advantage; the well proportioned front bedrooms and the large closets throughout the house. The basement contains a large well lit area suitable for a future recreation room. Best orientation would be for the bathroom window to face north.

The floor area is 1,000 square feet, excluding the garage, and the exterior dimensions are 56 feet ten inches by 31 feet six inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 2311, can be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at a moderate cost. First Canadian Ballet Has Stratford Premiere STRATFORD — Since its gala opening last Tuesday night, Canada's first full length ballet has been receiving enthusiastic audiences to the Avon Theatre in Stratford. The work was commissioned by the Centennial Commission, and both choreography and scenario are by Brian MacDonald, official choreographer of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, and now director of the Royal Swedish Ballet of Stockholm. Working very closely with him was composer Harry Freedman, while the sets and costumes were designed by Montrealer Robert Prevost.

Together, basing their endeavors on a centuries - old French Canadian legend, they have produced "Rose Latulippe", the first three act ballet ever created in Canada.

It would be nice to be able to say, without reservations, that their production is an unqualified success. For the first two acts it certainly approaches this goal, but unfortunately in the third act an outbreak of surrealism makes too sudden a change in the whole treatment of the theme, and one is left with the uncomfortable feeling that at least some of this has been introduced almost as padding, in order to achieve the desired length. This is a great pity, as the ballet until the second interval has been fast and exciting, making great use of typical old French - Canadian dance measures.

The story of Rose Latulippe has many close resemblances to that of "Giselle", although it is known to precede it by several years. The title role, that of the young girl who loves to dance, was skilfully portrayed by Annelie de Wieders - Heim, after technical skill and endurance, which did not obscure her pleasant personality, formed a firm pivot to the entire performance. She was ably partnered by Rose's fiance Anselme, whose place in her affections is usurped by the mysterious stranger, a courtier from Quebec, danced with flash and conviction by David Morosi.

In a mainly miming role of Rose's stepmother, Lillian Lewis did not have much opportunity to display her dancing ability, but she made the most of a rather unsympathetic character.

Although this is Mr. Freedman's first composition for ballet, his music, in a very modern idiom, supports and brightens the action on stage, at times fitting it as closely as the score of a Disney nature film. Perhaps not music one would expect to stay at first hearing, yet it has life and drama well suited to its purpose. Both the overture, and the opening set depicting the North Shore of the St. Lawrence River, set the scene as a cold, cold winter's night over 200 years ago. Echoes of the overture throughout the ballet, and Robert Prevost's decor and costumes combine to evoke strongly the French - Canadian world of this period.

After its run in Stratford, the ballet will not be seen again until next summer, when it will be given an extended tour as part of the Centennial celebrations. As such, it will come, rightly and properly, under much critical survey: afterward it is to be hoped that Rose Latulippe, Canada's first major ballet, re-worked perhaps as required, may join the repertoire of other companies around the world.

WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

When we asked for whole wheat bread at the local summer resort bakery the answer was "I'm sorry".

So, the next step was over to the large local grocery store to buy a small bag of whole wheat flour and drive home to make our own.

This was fun for eager knoodlers stood about to give the dough its necessary kneading — and plenty of extras — which, of course, resulted in lovely fine-textured bread. Incidentally the three loaves were all gone in 24 hours, so we started all over again.

LIGHT WHOLE WHEAT BREAD (3 loaves)

NOTE:

Be sure to examine the date on the back of the packages of yeast to make sure they are fresh.

1 package granular yeast
1 tsp. sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
¼ cup shortening
1½ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
2½ cups lukewarm water
1 egg
2 cups (stirred but not sifted) whole wheat flour
6 to 8½ cups (stirred but not sifted) white flour.

Measure the ½ cup lukewarm water in the measuring cup and add the 1 tsp. sugar, sprinkle yeast on top, give a few stir and let stand 10 min.

Into a large mixing bowl measure the shortening, salt, sugar and 2½ cups lukewarm water and stir until the shortening is somewhat mixed and broken up. Add the whole wheat flour and the egg and stir until blended. Now add the risen yeast liquid and about 5 cups of the white flour and mix as well as you can with wooden spoon. Sprinkle your kneading board or counter liberally with 1 cup of the remaining flour and turn dough out to it and knead the flour on the board into it — adding a little more flour to board as you knead until dough does not stick. Now knead it 200-times until it is smooth and elastic. Shape into a long smooth oval, cut into three even portions. Stretch each to the length of a loaf pan. Put into three buttered standard loaf pans, spread tops evenly with soft butter and let rise about two hours or until 1" above rims of pans. Bake at 400 deg. F. 10 min.; reduce heat to 350 deg. F. and bake 40 to 45 minutes longer.

We took one loaf fresh from the oven in the table on a bread board and sliced it as needed. We had beef stew that night and our world-travelling guests used thin slices of the bread to mop up the stew gravy on their plates.

Reasons Given for Many Soviet Union Divorces

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Why do couples in the Soviet Union seek divorces?

A survey carried out in Leningrad suggests that, broadly categorized, the reasons are:

Absence of common views and interests, lack of mutual affection, lack of seriousness toward family life, violation of faithfulness, drunkenness, fighting.

The survey was based on 5 questionnaires distributed to 500 couples applying for divorces.

More than 60 per cent said they loved their partners before marriage.

Asked what attracted them in their partners before marriage, 15 per cent of the men answered "sociable disposition", while 22 per cent gave kindness and 12 per cent mentioned good housekeeping.

Sixteen per cent of the women answered kindness, 16 per cent "delicate approach and attention" and 14 per cent sociable disposition.

Asked what they didn't like about their partners now, both men and women complained chiefly about lack of "attention and delicate approach."

No statistics on divorces are published in the Soviet Union but from what you can gather from Russians and from mention of the subject in the press it's extremely common.

Last December the government announced changes in the law making divorce quicker, cheaper and easier to obtain. Court proceedings were simplified, and a requirement that divorce applicants publish an announcement in a newspaper was abolished.

In the survey, it was found that one out of every five of those responding couldn't live with their spouses because of "constant drunkenness." Another leading factor was lack of proper living space.

One-fifth of the couples surveyed had not lived together for a year, and a further one-fifth had lived together for more than 10 years. One-fourth had lived together five to 10 years.

More than half of those questioned were acquainted with their partners less than a year before being married. Just over one-third had been acquainted less than six months, while 30 couples knew each other only for several days.

TO STARCH OR NOT TO STARCH

For untreated cottons, broadcloth, pique, lawn, percale, dotted swiss, organdy, gingham (all the old standbys our mothers used to starch) plus some untreated cottons and many of the contemporary materials, starching is worth while! Fabrics actually look cleaner and stay fresher longer.

. . . and we have a choice . . . from lightly starched items with a subtle satiny sheen, to heavily starched ones with that crisp, professionally-laundered look.

There's more. Soil removal is made easier. When starched clothes are laundered, out comes the starch, bringing much of the grime and dirt with it.

It's getting better. Some of the newest spray starches on the market have had silicones added; their function being to give an even smoother-looking finish.

This will give body to a garment, and is the answer in wet, immediate, on-the-spot, convenient light-finish starching.

Important: Spray moderately and evenly. Too wet a garment will cause sticking and flaking. If you have overdone the spray starch bit, roll the wet area in a soft towel momentarily to eliminate the excess moisture.

Follow directions carefully — like shaking the can well every time, perfectly aligning the nozzle along the dots and arrows, holding it at just the right slight angle, and rinsing out clogged nozzles at once with water.

As an in-between quick, pick up trick, give a musty dress, blouse or shirt a lift by light spray starching and re-pressing between washings.

Ann Landers
Readers Are Divided On Passionless Hubby

DEAR READERS: The letter from the wife whose 40-year-old husband had lost complete interest in the physical side of their marriage (she signed herself "Getting Notions") provoked an enormous amount of comment from readers everywhere. The expression ranged all the way from, "It's about time somebody had the backbone to discuss this devastating problem in print" to "I wouldn't understand why the newspapers would print anything so rotten."

ANN LANDERS

Hundreds of women wrote, "It was a tremendous relief to know that someone else had the problem. I thought I was the only one."

It might be both interesting and instructive to share some of the comments with you:

From Rochester, Minn.: God bless you, Ann Landers, for having the courage to print that letter and your advice. For years I felt that our marriage was a fraud and that I was something of a freak. My perspective is much healthier since I read the letter and your answer.

Asheville, N.C.: If you print any more dirty letters like the one signed "Getting Notions" I am going to cancel our subscription to the paper.

Boston, Mass.: Please airmail at once the name of the city where the letter signed "Getting Notions" originated. I am sure it was written by my wife who is telling only her side of the story. If I could prove it I could throw her out and take the kids. That bitch has been getting more than notions and I am fed up with her double talk.

Niagara Falls: I hope the woman with the indifferent husband will not seek a solution in extra-marital affairs. Such a "solution" will create a whole new host of problems. I'm in the same boat with "Getting Notions" and believe me there are more than two of us. I have learned that while sex may be an important part of marriage, people can live without it very nicely. I have done so and my life is far more rewarding than the lives of some of my friends whose husbands are great lovers — but nothing else.

Orlando: Please don't tell women with cold husbands to see a physician or a clergyman for counsel. I did that and, believe me, I've never been so humiliated in my life. The clergyman thought I was making a pass at him. He was out of his study like a flash — looking for his assistant — so they could both listen to my problem. The physician got the same idea and called for his secretary to come and take notes on our conversation. It never occurred to me that a woman might use a sexless marriage as an invitation, but apparently it has occurred to my minister and my physician and I think I scared them to death.

Schenectady, N.Y.: Tell "Getting Notions" not to bother about seeing a doctor. What she really needs is a lawyer. I know because I've been there. My husband and I are in our early 40's. We were happy together for 17 years. He begged me to understand — said he had "a problem." Well, I learned that his "problem" was a shapely brunette six years his senior. Her husband hired a private detective and caught them in a little love nest across town. My husband though he had a problem then. I wonder what he thinks he has now?

Close-up

Teback told a news conference Sunday his study of 40 blurred high resolution photos indicated the shutter behind the lens may be at fault—not sticking at the right time.

At the same news conference, the scientists reported that a delicate manoeuvre early Sunday morning altered the craft's egg-shaped orbit, dropping Orbiter from its 130-mile level to 36 miles above the lunar surface at its low point of orbit. They said it is expected to drop to its pictured height, 28 miles, by Thursday.

SEEKS LANDING SITES

Project manager Clifford H. Nelson said the failure of the high - resolution camera system —designed to spot surface features as small as a card table— means the mission is only about 50 per cent successful in achieving its goal of taking close-up of potential astronaut landing sites.

Other experiments — counting micrometeorites and measuring radiation—brought the mission success level up to about 75 per cent, however, he said.

Orbiter was scheduled to begin its survey of the nine selected landing sites today despite the camera problems, but the resulting photographs won't be released for several weeks, spokesmen said.

Both of the camera modes will be used, but there's little hope that problems in the high-resolution system can be corrected, Teback said.

Such pictures, Nelson explained, may have to come from the next shot, Lunar orbiter II.

The bomber made four drops —2,000 gallons at a time—and Beard reported it had dented under control. It was officially "struck off" at 8 a.m. Sunday, but Chief Pearson said it would be late today before the smouldering stump would be completely dampened down.

Reynolds lost a large sawmill, three planer sheds, one of the largest dry kilns in the Commonwealth, a number of smaller buildings and millions of board feet of first - grade lumber stockpiled for export.

Scott Paper lost two warehouses crammed with domestic and export paper, and package containers and paper stored in the yard.

Both firms carried fire insurance.

There were no serious injuries, although five of the more than 200 firemen at the scene were treated in hospital for burns, heat exhaustion and smoke inhalation.

while groups in the north."

He acknowledged that some whites oppose having a Negro for a neighbor but said, "this does not mean that we don't go all out to end housing discrimination."

King noted that whites in the south had opposed integration of lunch counters and motels but such segregation was barred by passage of civil rights legislation. He added, "the same thing must happen in housing."

James H. Meredith, the first known Negro to attend the University of Mississippi, said vigilantes should be organized to hunt down untried killers of Negroes.

Stokely Carmichael, chairman of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, renewed his attack on Viet Nam war policies and said, "I urge every black man in this country not to fight in Viet Nam."

Farmers Busy In Clean-up Competition

NAPANEE — Approximately 100 Lennox and Addington farmers and their families are spending every spare minute in a clean-up, paint-up program as the judging for those in the Farm Beautification contest will take place anytime now. The farms were visited last September by Mr. Ralph Bunbury and good and bad points were noted and reported.

The visit for which the farmers are now waiting will also be made by Mr. Bunbury, who will note the improvements which have been made in a year. The farm showing the greatest improvement will be the county winner. Each county has its own contest. A provincial winner will be chosen.

Mr. Bunbury was for years the representative for the Ontario Department of Agriculture in Northumberland.

Plan Stone Picking Bee At Park

DESERONTO — Deseronto Centennial Park Committee had a problem on its hands and has come up with a wise and a novel way of solving it.

Top soil drawn as after the pent was graded had a lot of small stones in it, not too heavy for even a child to handel, but big enough and numerous enough to spoil a lawn.

Late August and early September are the best times for sowing grass seed, and the stones must be removed in a hurry. And at the meeting held last week, the decision was made to get as many people as possible to help, partly to get the job done quickly, and even more important to give everybody a chance to sometime habit toward developing "our" park. The object from the beginning was to make the park a community project.

The Boy Scouts worked for a few hours one day, and a lot of young folk joined the members of the Deseronto Sports Organization, but a lot more is still a discouraging job for a few.

Next Saturday afternoon everybody will have a chance to make his contribution. Everyone is asked to come a long with a basket to gather stones and put them into designated piles. The piles will be removed by truck.

This is an old-fashioned bee, and, as at all bees in the old days, the women are planning refreshments, Councillor Albert Marks is the chairman of the committee.

Around Town

SIGHT TURKEY VULTURE

NAPANEE — Near Croydon in Camden Township Conservation Officer J. L. Ives of the local office of the Department of Lands and Forests, recently sighted a bird which at first he thought was a large crow.

A close look with binoculars revealed that the bird was entirely black except for its red dish head, identifying it as a turkey vulture. The turkey vulture is a scavenger bird, the report of the Department states, along with hawks and owls, it is a harmless bird feeding on carrion, such as dead animals.

The Department urges sportsmen to take a close look when about to shoot a crow, for fear it may be a turkey vulture, seldom seen in this area.

Nutria Goes Fancy

When Rat Gets Too Ambitious, Looks Grand, Tastes Delicious He Ends Up Skinned and Eaten

$700 ARMFUL — Wallace Hogeboom of Sunny Acres Nutria Ranch holds one of his 17-pound female nutria. This animal is one of the ebony black mutations.

NAPANEE — The lowly rat is coming into his own.

Thanks to him, milady now can have her fur coat and eat it too — if she happens to be a nutria rancher's wife, that is.

The nutria, a big South American water-rat, has a beaver-like face and a muskrat's long skinny tail in between, if he is a mutation, he sports an expensive silky fur coat, worth more than a mink's. It comes in five shades — sbline-white, champagne-white, palomino-gold, ex-cello-lass (a grey shade) and ebony black.

Until now, nutria meat, a delicacy in Europe, had been tasted by few Canadians. Two who have enjoyed the privilege are Wallace Hogeboom, R.R. 5, Napanee, president of the Eastern Ontario Nutria Breeders' Association, and his wife. They report that nutria meat, sufficiently barbecued, tastes like prime beef with a slightly gamey flavour.

This news will come as no surprise to Indians, outdoorsmen and chefs of exclusive northern hunting lodges who long have claimed that the nutria's fur-bearing Canadian cousins, beaver and muskrat are a gourmet's delight. The nutria is just as tasty, 100 ranchers and their wives discovered when they attended a nutria barbecue this summer at the ranch of John Ankersmit, near Union in the London area.

Nutria was in the news last winter for a different reason — 215 of the ebony black mutants were flown to Moscow. The Russians, who have between 30,000 and 33,000 of the animals, wanted their breeding stock to help improve their blood lines. The little rodents settled so well that the Russians have expressed interest in buying breeder stock of some of the other shades. Natural nutria is reddish-brown — and cheap.

One of the breeders who contributed animals to the Russian shipment is Wallace Hogeboom. He keps 234 nutria on his sunny Acres Nutria Ranch on the outskirts of Napanee. He has the velvet-soft nutria pelt in the lightest, yet one of the greatest of furs. Because it comes from an aquatic animal, it is water-repellent. A full-length nutria coat weighs about 15 pounds, as against 30 pounds for mink. It's much more valuable. Queen Elizabeth was presented with one of the first full-length coats, valued at $18,000. A tiny "shoulder-shrug" albino-white cape costs $5,000.

As befits so costly an animal, the nutria is housed in luxurious quarters. Each of Mr. Hogeboom's 20 nutria pens has its own sunken swimming pool, 18 inches deep and 30 inches wide. The heated, 20 by 40 foot trench house is protected by a double-decked as more space is required.

This fall, when the fur is prime,Mr. Hogeboom will have between 100 and 125 animals to pelt, in addition to the orders for breeding stock.

It was at pelting season last year that meat for this summer's barbecue was obtained. Only the best quality were used, and they were kept in a deep freezer until the event.

Now that nutria meat is on the menu, that inefficient meat - manufacturing machine, the beefsteer, who gobbles up acres of grassland to produce a few steaks, had better look to his laurels. He could lose them to a dual - purpose rodent whose flesh satisfies a gourmet's palate while its pelt wraps his lady in queenly luxury.

LBJ

was reported in the meeting. Richard -D'Hagan, Mr. Pearson's press secretary, said the prime minister had described the exchange as an "altogether helpful meeting."

At the last Pearson-Johnson meeting in May, 1965, at Camp David, Md., the president was reported "cool" to the prime minister because of Mr. Pearson's public suggestion shortly before of a pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam. The suggestion came ahead of the official American policy temporarily suspending bombing raids. This time the prime minister made a pointed deletion from the text of his speech, eliminating in delivery the reference to bombs in the sentence:

"So I hope that the guns of Viet Nam and all the guns everywhere may soon cease to fire; that the bombs may cease to fall. . ."

NOT SUGGESTING PAUSE

Mr. O'Hagan said the prime minister is not suggesting another pause and was convinced that the phrase would convey that impression.

Small fleets of U.S. and Canadian navy helicopters shuttled the leaders and their parties through sunny weather to the island for church, tea and then the talks, and finally away again on the first leg home to their respective capitals. Mr. Johnson changed planes for Washington at an air force base in Maine and Mr. Pearson left for Ottawa from Saint John after switching to a transport department aircraft.

Campobello Island and its 1,- 300 Canadian citizens are isolated from the New Brunswick mainland and only a bridge away from Maine. The island was overflowing with both Canadians and Americans Sunday, all carefully controlled by 15 secret service men, 60 RCMP in red coats, and 20 state troopers.

At the afternoon ceremony, the cornerstone was laid for a summer residence near the 17-bedroom, three - storey home where Roosevelt spent many summer vacations between 1905 and 1939.

At the same site two years ago Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Pearson opened the U.S.-Canadian Roosevelt Campobello International Park.

In his address, Mr. Johnson said the U.S. has the means of unlimited destruction "but we do not have the power alone to wage peace."

Mr. Pearson said Canada may not always agree with all the expressions of American policy and power. But it acknowledges that the policy has "no design against the freedom or welfare of any other people."

HONOR 48th

TORONTO (CP) — The 48th Highlanders of Canada had the place of honor among 7,000 service veterans and militia who marched in the Warriors Day parade at the Canadian National Exhibition Saturday. About 850 Highlanders from across Canada and parts of the United States and Bermuda marched in the two-hour parade to the grandstand area where about 30,000 people had gathered.

Toronto Doctor Dies in Crash Near Bath

NAPANEE — An accident at 7.35 p.m. last night on the First Township Road, north of Bath, took the life of a Toronto doctor.

Dead is Dr. Sanford S. Goodchild, of 40 Donevan Rd., Toronto. He was dead on arrival at Kingston General Hospital, where he was taken by Tierney Ambulance.

Police are not releasing details of the accident until Dr. Goodchild's wife has been notified. She is on a motor trip and as far as Napanee O.P.P. know has not been notified of the mishap.

It is believed the driver of the car was a boy in his early teens, a grandson of the deceased.

Provincial Constable Kyte and Cpl. Cockburn of the Napanee O.P.P. investigated the accident. The investigation continues.

Threat Made Against Life Of B.C. Premier

VANCOUVER (CP)—A threat against the life of Premier W. A. C. Bennett of Britial Columbia forced cancellation of his appearance Saturday in the annual Pacific National Exhibition parade through downtown Vancouver streets.

The premier, scheduled to lead the parade in an open car, instead followed the parade from the official viewing stand.

The assassination threat was telephoned to a newspaper and a radio station about one hour before the parade was due to start. The anonymous male caller said Bennett would be shot as the parade was moving along Hastings Street.

The premier later laughed off the threat, saying he doesn't worry about such things.

No Phone Placed In Fire Hall

BELLEVILLE, Ind. (AP) - Members of the Belleville volunteer fire department decided to have an alarm set up which would trigger the telephone bell in the home of every fireman in case of a blaze.

A recent alarm got a slow response, however.

All the firemen were attending a meeting at the fire station. There's no telephone there.

Alaskan Plane Hits Mountain

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Nine persons aboard an Alaska Coastal Airlines plane were killed Sunday when the airliner crashed and burned at the foot of a high peak in the Juneau ice cap about 30 miles north of here.

The crash scene was at the 5,500 - foot level near Eagle River Glacier.

A helicopter pilot who reached the scene, Chuck Geisel of Livingston Helicopter Service in Juneau, said there appears to be no possibility of recovering the bodies from the burned wreckage of the twin-engined Grumman Goose flashliner.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Say by gar, the summer season, 1966 vintage, is rapidly drawing to a close and a hot one it has been.

Bowman George H. Carver is off and running — well, at least on his traditional vacation. The Chief has witnessed the third annual "Festival of Golf", another running of the annual Black Diamond Stakes, a rather disappointing resumption of power-boat racing over Picton way, and several other sport highlights in the past few months.

We have plenty to look forward to yet, however, with local ball titles up for grabs as well as the once-a-year quest for provincial championships.

And let's not forget our soccer club, Parsons Cleaners, which is seriously eyeing the Kingston and District championship this year. The club has been on or near the top of the heap all summer and should take some beating in the playoffs.

Soccer should also have gained a lot more fan interest too after the exciting and at times controversial World Cup matches of a month back. Some people who would not know a soccer ball from a hockey puck got carried up in the newspaper, radio and TV excitement. I were pulling for a personal favorite with as much enthusiasm as they show for Stanley Cup playoffs, before it was over.

On the softball front, playoffs and playdowns usually provide the most exciting ball of the season and there is no reason to think this year will be any different.

This city's OASA entries are a bit too thin in the pitching department, in most cases, to count on winning Ontario honors. But surprises are what make sport the great medium that it is so we should not count the boys out until we see how the wind is blowing. As the faithful know, pitching is the major factor in softball and out-of-town teams always seem to have an ace or two up their sleeves.

District-wise, Picton's strong Intermediate "B" squad and Madoc's bustling young Junior "C" 's should make worthy runs down the playdown trail. Both have captured provincial titles in recent years and would like to add to their trophy shelves.

Our teams enjoyed success on the weekend. Bobcats whipped Kingston 7-2, Point Anne upset Madoc 4-3 and Ellis Midgets tied their series with Peterborough.

By the way, rumor drifted to us while on holidays that Picton may be minus a playing field next year, due to tight removal at the school grounds or something along these lines.

This leads to speculation that Picton might not have a team next season. This is anyone else in Kingston's Little Spahn but floodlights would be needed there.

The county boys are an exciting drawing card in any league which they have played and we felt that softball in the Quinte district would not be the same without them.

We feel too that clubs from centres like Picton, Trenton, Madoc, Tweed and Napanee and perhaps the RCAF base at Trenton could form a superb grouping with perhaps one or two entries from Belleville. This way the fans would get variety.

Such a league would need a strong, unbiased executive, stressing equal rights for all. It would also need the pick of the area's best umpires. And regardless of sound opinions, there are at least as many good umpires here as in any other city of comparable size.

Softball should not have to travel on troubled waters here. There are plenty of experienced softball men around, and some have been hooked at every turn when trying to get the job done fairly, for the good of the sport and all teams concerned.

The new Alemite Park has been a terrific boost for the sport and should be for years to come. True, a few additions, such as public washrooms, are needed but we expect they will come in the near future.

Yes, Alemite Park is a major asset to the sport. So are the brand of players available. And the spectator appear is be getting an even break at the gates for a change. It would be nice to keep the trend moving in the right direction.

Shannonville In Finals

Shannonville rode a big first inning into the South Hastings Baseball League finals yesterday.

Scoring three times in the opening bout Shannonville blanked Cannifton Pirate's 4-0, at Cannifton, to capture the semi-final set four games to three.

Shannonville meets Latta for the championship. All games in the four-of-seven titular set will be played at the Belleville Fairgrounds. The opening game is scheduled for Wednesday night, at 8.30, with the second next Sunday, at 2.00 p.m.

Bill Barberstock hurled superb ball to halt Cannifton's hopes with a two-hitter yesterday. He struck out three and with the aid of solid support, survived six walks without losing his shutout.

Butch Clapp handled the Cannifton pitching. He gave up only five hits and struck out 12 but lacked support from his mates, both at the plate and afield. Clapp walked one.

The loss was belayed Shannonville in the first frame. Bob Detlor followed with a double and Carl Boomhower opened up the 3-0 lead with a home run.

That was all that was needed but they added another run in the third.

Carl Boomhower crashed the home run and a single which Bob Detlor rapped a pair of doubles. Jack Hughes' single was the other safety.

Cannifton's only success at the plate came on singles by Eric Emerson and Butch Clapp

Norman Wins CPGA ★★★★★ ★★★★★ Nine-Under 204

Summer's Song Sweet, Soft For Moe

By KOREY KOROLUK

CALGARY (CP) — The summer season has been soft and sweet for Moe Norman, the golfer from Clifford, Ont.

Norman put together a closing-round 67 Saturday to win the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship with a 54-hole total of 204, nine under par.

Norman's score beat Al Balding's eight under par which set a CPGA record in 1963.

Norman picked up $2,000 and the Seagram Shield for his efforts, running his winnings this year to $13,200, all of it in Canada. He also will receive an expenses-paid trip to the Mexican, the Caracas and the Puerto Rico opens in November.

Some time ago Norman had to turn professional after it was learned he sold his amateur prizes. He no longer can play in the United States amateur national tour because he hasn't attended the Pro Golfers' Association school and won't be able to find anyone to sponsor him for it.

SCORED 207 FOR $1,500

Second - round leader Frank Fowler of Calgary shot a final 71, good for second place money of $1,500. His 54-hole total was 207.

Jack Bissegger of Beloeil, Que., was third, two strokes behind Fowler.

Lyle Crawford of Vancouver was a stroke back of Bissegger at 210. Bissegger picked up $1,200 and Crawford pocketed $1,000.

Calgary has become Norman's lucky town. He won the 1953 Canadian amateur here in an extra-hole final against Crawford. This year he has won the Willow Park pro-amateur, the Alberta / Open and the CPGA. Four trips to Calgary earned him four wins.

At 6,000 yards, the Willow Park course is short by championship standards but is designed to place maximum emphasis on accuracy.

SET COURSE RECORD

Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg, the 1965 CPGA champion, had set the course record of 64 — under-par 63 in the opening round, establishing a course record. But his deft touch deserted him Friday as he soared to 74 and, although he fashioned in three-way tie for fifth place, he was never again really in contention.

Trailing by a stroke going into the final round, Norman caught fire over with a birdie on the first hole and pulled ahead with another on the sixth. But he went one-over-par on the seventh and had to birdie eight to go ahead for good.

Norman clinched his victory on the 14th hole, a 495-yard, par-5 hole that had been giving up birdies all day. He reached the green with a drive and a five-wood, then dropped a seven-foot putt for an eagle. When Fowler birdied the hole five minutes later Norman was two strokes back. They matched scores on 15, 16 and 17, but Fowler went one-over on the 18th when his tee shot found sand beside the green.

Pirates, Giants Close

Sore-Armed Sandy Wins Twenty

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax, whose arthritic elbow forced him out of 6 game just four days before, transferred the pain to St. Louis Sunday as he recorded his 20th victory of the season in Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1 triumph over the Cardinals.

The 30-year-old southpaw was pitching against Cincinnati last Wednesday night when the pain in his elbow forced him to leave the game in the fifth inning.

He received a shot of cortisone that night and two days later was on the sidelines throwing.

He stopped the Cardinals on six hits, struck out 10 and achieved the third 20-game season of his career.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates held a one percentage point lead over San Francisco Giants after whipping Chicago Cubs 8-1. The Giants downed Atlanta Braves 9-4, New York Mets swept Philadelphia Phillies 6-5 and 5-1 and Houston Astros trampled Cincinnati Reds 11-0.

Pittsburgh edged Chicago and St. Louis shaded Los Angeles by 3-2 scores Saturday while Philadelphia defeated New York 5-4, Atlanta lost 6-4 to San Francisco and Houston downed Cincinnati 5-3.

GAVE UP RUN

Koufax, who won 26 games in 1963 and 26 last year, gave up a run in the first inning on three singles, the last by Curt Flood. But the Dodgers rallied for their four runs in the first three innings. John Kennedy drove in two with a single and a sacrifice fly while Ron Fairly and Jim Lefebvre each singled in a run.

Bob Veale pitched a two-hitter and received support from Pittsburghs 18-hit attack. Jesse Gonder, Willie Stargell and Manny Mota each lashed four hits with Gonder driving in three runs. Gonder and Roberto Clemente homered while Billy Williams connected for Chicago.

Atlanta took a 4-2 lead against San Francisco, but the Giants rallied for four runs in the sixth and three more in the ninth, the latter all coming on Jim Hart's homer. Jesus Alou and Hal Lanier each singled across a run in the sixth while Tito Fuentes and Leo Gabrielson brought in the other two with sacrifice flies.

The Mets achieved their winningest season ever with a sweep of the Phillies. Jim Hickman's two-run homer in the eighth inning gave them the opening - game victory, No. 54, by 6-5 pinch - hit blow capped a three - run rally that overcame Johnny Callison's three - run homer.

Tug McGraw pitched a two-hitter in victory No. 55. He received support from two-run doubles by Larry Elliot in the sixth and Jerry Grote in the ninth.

Mowat Homers Twice

Bobcats Upend Kingston 7-2

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Big Lem Mowat crashed home runs on two consecutive trips to the plate here Saturday night while leading the Belleville Bobcats to a 7-2 trimming of Kingston Lakeview Indians.

The triumph before a big crowd at Alemite Park, gave the Tabbies a one-game lead in the two-of-three OASA Senior "B" playdown set over last year's Ontario finalists.

Coach Bob Temple takes his crew back to Kingston for the second game, at McCaffin Stadium, Wednesday night. Game time is 8.00 p.m.

Mowat snapped out of a mild batting slump with room to spare, adding a bad-hop single and a bases-loaded walk to his pair of circuit clouts, scoring three times and picking up four RBI.

He lined a two-out blast in left, after Locke's infield hit, for a 2-0 lead in the first.

The Indians roared back to tie it in the third, putting Arneil's double and singles by White, B. Senior and Pester in a row to start what looked like a big inning. Three Bobcat runners on second and third, there with but one out, and never had more than one runner in any inning after.

Mowat looked after the game-winning run when he slammed his second homer over Charlie Pester's head in centre field.

That came in the fourth and the Cats sewed it up with a final foursome in the fifth. Merraw hit ignited the rally, Locke walked and a two-late force attempt on Terry LeSage's sacrifice bunt loaded the bases with one out. Mowat struked it to force in one, Forrester Brown's fly ball plated another, D. LeSage singled down the ninth and Latchford's infield tap, with two out, made it 7-2.

Bob Lott was touched for nine hits in pitching the victory but only three from the third inning out. He struck out seven and did not walk a batter. Lott got strong support, led by Don LeSage's two sharp plays at 1st.

Starter Ron Brown was the loser, followed in the hill by Bob Lortie in the fourth and Mike McMahon in the seventh. They surrendered ten hits, struck out two each, while Lortie gave up the only two walks.

OASA Opener

Point Anne Tops Madoc

The Point Anne Cometstown on a battle of four-hitters Saturday night, defeating Madoc 4-3, at Madoc, in the opening game of their OASA Junior "C" second-round playdown.

Second game in the two-of-three series is scheduled for the Point Anne ball park Wednesday evening. Game time is 7:00 p.m.

The Cometstown, leaders of the Belleville Commercial loop this season, used a combination of walks and timely hits to earn the decision.

They jumped ahead 2-0 in the first, on a lead-off walk, J. Maher's triple and Marcle's fly ball.

Madoc tied it in the fourth, LeSage singled, Reid doubled him home after two were out and scored himself on an error.

The winners snapped the deadlock with one in the fifth. Two walks and Cook's infield hit loaded the bases and another walk forced home the game-winning run. They added another in the eighth, on another free pass and R. Maher's solid two-out double.

Ron Marcelle pitched the distance for Point Anne. He struck out his four-hit effort with 12 strikeouts and only two walks.

Larry Griffin absorbed the loss with Darryl Kramp taking over in the sixth. Griffith gave up the four hits while whiffing 1. His seven walks were costly. Kramp had three strikeouts in his one inning.

Denny Maher's triple and Eric Maher's double were key blows for the victors. Mike Cook and Vern Whalen contributed a single each.

Ray LeSage had two Madoc safeties. Albert Reid doubled and Brian Stewart hit a single. A hit and a walk gave Madoc a good opportunity in the eighth but Marcle retired Griffin and Reid to leave them stranded.

Point Anne: Cook, D. Maher, Abey, R. Marcle, Rosebush, E. Maher, G. Maher, Whalen, MacDonald

Madoc: Masters, LeSage, Gray, Griffin, A. Reid, Stewart, Atkinson, Bailey, Kramp.

Umpires — L. Barton (P), A. Watkin (1b), J. Tebworth (3b). Scorer: — R. Sedore.

Defence Proves 'Cats Team To Beat

Whip Argos 23-10

By JERRY GLADMAN

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats underlined their status as the team to beat in the Eastern Football Conference.

—The defending Grey Cup champion Ticats are still the team to beat in the four-team Eastern Football Conference.

—The Argonauts, floormates of the IFC's first division for several years, will have to make major changes if they hope to climb out of last place.

* * *

While Hamilton hasn't shown an overpowering offence in their first three starts—all victories—this year, their defence is still the best in the East and, perhaps, in the Canadian Football League.

With the defence condoning the opposition, the Tiger-Cats became an attack themselves enough to score sufficient points to take them to first place.

Pre-season games suggested Argos had finally found a capable quarterback in 23-year-old rookie import Wally Gabler. But Gabler's passing and running ability hasn't appeared enough to dig the Argonauts out of the cellar.

Saturday a porous Argo offensive line allowed Hamilton to dump Gabler behind the line of scrimmage continuously, with a net yardage loss of 79.

SCORED ONLY TD

Fullback Dave Thelen, who led the IFC's ground game last season but started this year at halfback, was Toronto's lone offensive threat in Hamilton. He carried the ball 20 times for 88 yards—74 in the first half. He also caught four passes for 36 yards and scored Toronto's lone touchdown.

The Toronto defence, which played well in Argos first two games, had trouble containing the Tiger-Cats as backup quarterback Frank Cosentino passed for three touchdowns and Hamilton picked up 207 yards rushing.

Veteran end Tommy Grant, playing in his 11th year with Hamilton, was the top man offensively as he scored three touchdowns on passes of 16, 25 and 25 yards.

Patterson set up Grant's first two touchdowns on pass-and-run plays covering 35 and 68 yards. He caught four passes for 117 yards which put him over the 10,000 mark in yards gained for his 13-year career.

Grant was four for 79 through the air.

Don Setherin kicked a 20-yard field goal and added two converts to round out Hamilton's scoring.

WAS SOCCER PLAYER

Wolfgang Falkenscher, a German - born soccer player, kicked a convert for Toronto but missed on two field goal attempts. John Vikmes kicked a 15-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Hamilton rushed for 207 yards and picked up 306 in the air. Cosentino, filling in capably for injured regular Joe Zuger, completed nine of 24 passes and had two intercepted.

The Argonauts gained more yards passing since most passes Gabler did complete went for long yardage. He attempted 24 passes and completed 14 for 242 yards.

Thelen gained 88 of Toronto's total of 98 yards on the ground.

Willie Bethea, Bobby Kuntz and Dick Cobee paced the Tiger-Cats on the ground. Bethea gained 67 yards on 14 carries, Kuntz 39 on 13 carries and Cobee 68 on eight carries.

The victory left Hamilton deadlocked for first place with Ottawa, each with six points. Argonauts are alone in the cellar with an 0-3 record. Montreal is third.

Helene Gagnon Wins Women's Crown

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—Helene Gagnon, 19, of Arvida, Que., made the Ashburn Club here her personal path to prominence by defeating all comers in the Canadian women's open golf championship.

The soft - spoken French Canadian from the Saguenay Country Club, a member of the Quebec twosome that won the national junior team title last year, Saturday defeated Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver one up on the 37th hole of the match-play final for the Duchess of Connaught gold cup.

Her victory marked the end of eight days of gruelling competition here and in neighboring Dartmouth.

Miss Gagnon joined the Quebec team midway through the interprovincial team match at Dartmouth's Brightwood course after Jocelyne Bourassa of Trois - Rivieres had to scratch following a minor swimming accident. She played well in the 18-hole round, but was the well back of winner Marilyn Palmer of Penticton, B.C., in the 36-hole, medal - play Canadian close championship.

When the qualifying round for the Open got under way at Ashburn last Tuesday, Miss Gagnon's name was buried under the list of pre - tournament favorites — Marlene Stewart Streit of Foothill; Ont., Gail Harvey Moore of Scarborough, Ont., Kay Heitsur of Toronto, Rene Cole of Regina, Mary Ellen Driscoll of Saint John, N.B., Miss Palmer, Miss Hitchens and Miss Bourassa, defending Open champion.

Mrs. Cole failed to make the qualifying cut-off after blowing to an 11 on the 18th hole and the others met elimination in the match - play rounds. Miss Gagnon knocked off Miss Palmer and Miss Bourassa, her junior team - mate in 1965, in two rounds Thursday.

She then proceeded to whip Anne Blalock of Portsmouth, N.B., 5 and 3 in Friday's semi-finals, while Miss Hitchens, 22, who won the Open in 1962, edged out Barbara Renwick of Vancouver, one up.

Miss Gagnon spotted her more experienced opponent the first hole in the 36-hole final Saturday, but built up a three-hole lead by the end of the initial 18-hole segment.

Her hot putter then cooled as the afternoon and tension grew warmer and Miss Hitchens, putting together methodical skill and luck, drew even and pushed one hole ahead with only four holes to go.

However, the plucky brunette deadlocked the match on the 34th and the two finalists halved the 35th and 36th to head into a sudden-death playoff.

It was all over on the 37th when Miss Hitchens took two strokes to reach the green and was lying four when Miss Gagnon putted out and captured her first national title.

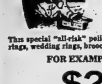
Windsor Canada's Entry



VICTORIA (CP) — Windsor Central, champions of Ontario, will represent Canada in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., this week.

The Ontario club won the championship Saturday by shutting out the British Columbia champions from Kelowna, 2-0, in a final played before about 5,000 fans.

Windsor had eliminated Sherbrooke Lennoxville, Quebec-Maritimes champion, 7-4, in an earlier inning semi-final Friday. Kelowna reached the final with a 5-3 win over the Edmonton Hardisty club which won the Prairie title.

Peter Barone, a southpaw, held the B.C. champions to three hits in the final but it took some excellent defense by his teammates to get him his shutout.

Midgets Even OASA Series With Petes

Belleville Ellis' Midgets defeated Peterborough 3-2 on the strength of their best-of three OASA series at one game apiece. The losers had grabbed a 3-0 triumph in the first game of the series.

Craig Rump was the fuse of the Belleville offence, as he slammed three hits and scored two runs. He tied the game in the ninth inning with a home run twist, enabling Don Fuller to score the winner later in the inning, on a Peterborough throwing error.

Fuller worked the distance on the mound for Belleville, allowing six hits and walking two.

Bell gave up 12 hits for Peterborough, and walked four.

Both teams had two errors.

The third and deciding games is slated for tonight at Madoc. Game time is 8.30 p.m.

The return game will be played here on Saturday, at Alemite Park, at 2.00 p.m., and a Belleville win will bring the nose crown.

John Sprackett pitched the Belleville victory.

It was a nip and tuck contest until the third when Belch's forced ahead 10-4 on the hitting of Kirkham, Sprackett, Pointer, Scarlett, Hiddleston, Ward and Godfrey.

Bill Kirkham was the big gun at bat, slamming four doubles and a triple in five trips. Carl Ward had two singles and a double and David Pascoe a home run. Codling tripled and singled. All members of the team shared the hits.

Local Netters Drubbed 14-1 By Kingston

If being on the short end of a 14-1 drubbing can be enjoyable then Belleville tennis players had a wonderful time in exhibition Kingston netters in the opening round of the annual home and home series for the Doug Grant trophy.

Hard-hitting Dr. Mike Wasicek saved his side from complete humiliation with the lonely Belleville win.

In the feature match of the day 46-year-old Johnnie Johnston ran 19-year-old Dave Hurst into the ground in a two-hour struggle which went to four all in the third set. The exhausted Belleville star was stricken with leg cramps and forced to default his doubles match.

None of the other home players succeeded in capturing even one set.

Representing Belleville were David Hurst, Bill Redgrave, Doug Grant, Mike Walcott, Tom Woodley, Mike Black, James Hurst, Donald Desjulines and Bill Bell.

The series will be concluded in Kingston next Sunday.

Bantams Cop EOBA Crown Over Oshawa

Belleville Ellis' Bantams carried away the EOBA bantam crown on the weekend, as they whipped Oshawa 6-1 in the second game of their best-of-three series

The winners grabbed a 4-0 lead in the fourth, and added two more in the seventh, to win going away. Ellis' outhit Oshawa 14-10.

Terry Meagher drove home Belleville's first run in the fourth frame with a single. He then stole second and third, and scored what proved to be the winning run on Brian Coughlin's infield single.

Jim Wood started on the Belleville mound and was relieved by Wayne Farrell in the second. Farrell lasted the game. Combined, they allowed 10 hits and struck out 10, while issuing two walks.

Oshawa pitchers A. Taylor and McBorovia gave up 14 hits and fanned eight.

Mike Healey and Dave Cass stroked a triple and single each for Belleville. Steve Moore slammed a double and pair of singles, Ken Jury a double and single and Terry Meagher and Brian Coughlin two base hits. Wayne Farrell had a home safety.

Browns Rout Falcons

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

A crowd of 48,546 at Atlanta watched Cleveland Browns rout the Falcons 42-3 Saturday night and they didn't like what they saw. For that matter, neither did Atlanta coach Norb Hecker.

Hecker sounded just as angry as the fans when he said:

"We found some things out about some of the boys. Twelve or 15 of them will be gone Monday."

The Browns broke open a 14-0 game with 28 points in the last quarter against the first-year national football league team who brought catcalls from the fans when they stayed with a ground attack in four futile scoring attempts deep in Cleveland territory.

In other NFL exhibitions over the weekend, unbeaten Dallas Cowboys stunned Green Bay Packers 23-3, New York Giants downed Detroit Lions 17-7, Chicago Bears defeated Washington Redskins 20-10, Minnesota Vikings whipped Los Angeles Rams 24 - 10 and Pittsburgh Steelers tipped San Francisco 49ers 34-17.

In the American League, Boston Patriots defeated Oakland Raiders 21 - 10, Kansas City Chiefs dumped San Diego Chargers 31-21, New York Jets whipped Miami Dolphins 31-14 and Buffalo Bills dropped Houston Oilers 28-16.

Oshawa Pitcher Has 11-Inning No-Hit Victory

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Ron Taylor threw a no-hitter Saturday as Oshawa defeated Peterborough 2-0 in 11 innings in an Ontario Amateur Softball Association Senior B game.

Taylor, a former outfielder who took up pitching three years ago, fanned 19 batters. He faced 34 men.

Ralph Rowe of Peterborough was the only man to reach base, when Joe Plontek dropped Rowe's fly in left field.

Oshawa scored twice in the 11th on Jack McDermaid's bases loaded single.

The loss went to Jim Fife.

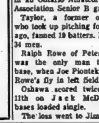
Once Penniless, Now Happy Earning Million a Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A year ago they were penniless and happy on the beach in the Virgin Islands. This year they're apt to earn $1,000,000, yet they manage to remain happy.

They call themselves the Mamas and the Papas, though none of them is.



They look odd, but they sound good, as demonstrated by their biggest hit record, Monday, Monday. Their melodious, harmonic quality is like a breath of smogless air amid today's cacophony.

One of the group is a Canadian, Dennis Doherty, 26, of Halifax, a motorcyclist with a Prince Valiant hair.

I finally caught up with the Mama's and the Papa's at NBC Studios. They were taking part in a Rodgers and Hart special starring Bobby Darin and featuring network's color facilities.

Since I am no good at fourpart harmony interviews, I chose John Phillips, the apparent spokesman of the quartet.

Magee Puts His Sade Role On Film, Hopes That Is All

By RAIMOND PALMER

LONDON (AP)—British actor Patrick Magee, who has been playing one of the most exhausting stage roles of his career for the last two years, now has put it on film.

"And I hope that's going to be the end of it," he said. "That's not, perhaps, the best way of putting it, but that's how I feel."

The role is that of the Marquis De Sade in the Royal Shakespeare Company's production which has become known as Marat-Sade. The full title is: The Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Charenton under the Direction of then Marquis de Sade.

The company completed the movie version in only 15 shooting days. This, said the producer, Lord Birkett, was because it was done on a limited budget, less than $500,000.

NO REHEARSALS

"Of course," said Lord Birkett, "we had the advantage that every member of the cast knows every word and movement of the production from having done it so long on the stage. In fact, we had to be careful to say 'cut' after each shot, otherwise the cameras just go on until they reached the end of the play."

Another factor which helped the rapid production was that a continuous form of lighting was devised for the set. Peter Brook, who also directed the stage productions, moved his actors into and out of the pools of light rather than stopping production while a scene was relit, which usually takes considerable time.

The make-up and costumes of the characters who played various inmates were so bizarre that after the first day a special dining room was provided for them at the studio, "so they didn't put the rest of us off our food," explained one studio hand.

Magee, who has played De Sade since the first stage production in London in 1964, said he found the New York production with eight performances a week the most exhausting.

EXHAUSTING ROLE

"The fact that one was on the stage all the time, and sitting still a great deal, was tremendously physically demanding," said Magee. "Then the play carries a very curious atmosphere, a very claustrophobic atmosphere. And the fact that you're surrounded by the demented—even if you know they are actors—is very demanding.

"I found it a very interesting play. Perhaps exhausting would be a better word."

Lord Birkett said that he felt some of the things the company did in terms of sound recording and photography and the use of additional cameras on the set might prove something of a technical break-through in motion picture making.

Family Affair to Replace Hazel Reruns on CBS

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—When a new comedy series called Family Affair replaces reruns of Hazel on CBS soon, it may seem familiar.

Where have we seen before the swinging bachelor with his secretary who suddenly becomes a foster parent: Sure, Bachelor Father.

The basic situation of Family Affair is the swinging bachelor and his manservant who acquire three wards. But where Bachelor Father had John Forsythe as the gay blade and Sammee Tong as his Chinese houseman, the new series has Brian Keith as the man-about-town and Sebastian Cabot as his gentleman's gentleman.

But this surface resemblance may be misleading. After all there are at best only a double handful of situations suitable for a series. Its real parent is My Three Sons, the long-playing series on the same network.

In this one we had Fred MacMurray playing a widower with three sons, plus an elderly male relative helping out with the household and child - rearing chores.

Keith is committed to only 75 work days on the new series. The rest of the cast will toil on, filling out the rest of the stories.

Cabot is well remembered for his role as a professor of criminology in the Checkmate series.

Little League World Series Starts Tuesday

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP)—The 1966 version of the Little League World Series brings together four teams from the United States and four from abroad in the tourney that gets under way Tuesday in this central Pennsylvania town, the headquarters for Little League Baseball.

West New York, N.J., defeated Huntingdon, Pa., 16-10, Saturday to represent the Eastern United States in the annual series. Other U.S. teams will represent the South, West and North.

Rounding out the eight-team field will be teams from Mexico, Canada, Japan and U.S. bases in West Germany.

These eight squads of boys 11 and 12 years old are the survivors of tournaments that saw more than 4,000 teams taking part.

ORFU Champs Win Opener By 66-0 Score

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — East York Argonauts, defending Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union champions, trounced St. Catharines Saints 66-0 Sunday in their opening game of the season.

The Argos led 16-0 at the end of the first quarter and 36-0 at half-time. They had built up a 66-0 lead going into the final quarter.

SUPPORTS PROPOSAL

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Track and Field Federation is in full support of an American proposal for a pan-Pacific track and field championship meet, the newspaper Asahi reports. It says an idea proposed by the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union was to organize a meet bringing together athletes from the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and other countries in the Pacific area.

Junior Tennis Four Titles For Canada

Crothers Injures Tendon

TORONTO (CP) — While new star was being born at the Canadian National Exhibition's international meet here Saturday, an international star was unable to finish his race.

Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., aggravated an Achilles tendon injury while running in the 880-yard event, was unable to finish in his specialty race—the 880-yards—and ordered to stay off the track for a month.

Meanwhile, Lewis Scott, 20, and unknown runner from Detroit, paid his own fare to Toronto, talked officials into allowing him to compete and won the three-mile event.

Crothers, one of the world's top half milers, first experienced difficulty during the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

He plans to take some time off because "the outdoor season is over and our first indoor meet isn't until January."

He claimed he has doubts that he was considering retirement, however.

"I may not be the best in the world," he said. "But I'll be around."

While Scott may not have the form of a champion, he showed a champion's desire in the competition.

His winning time in the three-mile event wasn't overly impressive—14:04.6, he hadn't slept in 24 hours and had driven from Detroit to Toronto only to arrive a few minutes before the race started.

In field action, Bob Seagren of Romona, Calif., set a Canadian open pole vault record with a leap of 16 feet, 1 inch to break the former mark of 16 ft., 1¼ in. set in Vancouver in June 1965.

The American national track team took all but two of the 18 events. Only Expo 67 stars Toronto and Edwin Roberts of Trinidad and Tobago broke the American stranglehold.

Lepo won the mile with a relatively slow 4:04.6, edging out Gary Weisiger of Los Angeles and Dave Bailey of Toronto.

Roberts won the 220-yard dash in 20.8 seconds, defeating U.S. Olympian Adolph Plummer of Los Angeles and Mark Jackson of Detroit.

The only upset U.S. victory in the international competition was in the mile relay. They ran away from the world record holding team from Trinidad and Tobago in 3:20.2. The Trinidadians set a mark of 3:02.8 at the recent British Empire Games in Kingston, Jamaica.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—Buckpasser came from off the pace in a stretch drive Saturday to win the $82,000 Travers at Saratoga Race course in Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

The son of Tom Fool - Busanda, chirrying Eddie Arcaro of Ogden Phipps, earned $53,600 for his ninth straight victory in 10 starts this year and boosted his bank account to $1,038,269.

Only Buckpasser, Kelso, Nashua, Carry Back and Citation won more than $1,000,000 and Buckpasser became the first three-year-old to be admitted to the group. He did it by matching the track record time of 2:01 3-5 for the 1¼ miles.

Buckpasser paid $2.60, $2.20 and $2.10 to win, place and show and $2.20 and Buckie $2.20.

Swinging Mood, a three-year-old filly owned by Mrs. Gould Wilson of Miami Beach, Fla., led all the way under Bill Shoemaker to Arlington Matron Handicap at Arlington Park in Chicago.

Meadow Skipper, favorite in the grass race for fillies and mares, finished six lengths behind in second place.

At Cleveland, Jolly Jet flashed to victory in the $31,000-added Buckeye Handicap at Randall Park race track, edging Quicksilver by a head.

Imasmartee won the $29,525 Philadelphia Turf Handicap at Atlantic City race track.

At Salem, N.H., Philip Godfrey's Biller won the $15,000-added Grand State Stakes at Rockingham Park.

COMES SECOND

TROY, N.Y. (AP)—Dick Fern of Buffalo averaged 213 points a game to defeat Ross Davis of Montreal, a member of Canada's all-star bowling team in the finals of the Bowlers Club Open at suburban Latham Sunday. Fern ran up a total of 1,278 pins over 10 games. Davis, with an 208 average, finished with 1,094.

Junior Tennis Champs

By JAMES OSBORNE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada faced only slightly better this year than last at the Canadian junior open tennis championships, winning five of the 13 titles compared to three last year.

Of two new titles for Canada one returned from the U.S. and the other was contested only by Canadians.

The two were in mixed doubles and the girls 16-and-under singles, the latter won by Susan Eager, 16, also of Vancouver who won 6-4, 6-3.

The mixed doubles title went to 18-year-old Geoff Harris of Edmonton and Nancy Green of Toronto who beat Susan Eager and 17-year-old Roberto Chaves of Mexico 11-7. The mixed doubles were won by the first team to win 11 games.

Titles in the boys 18-and-under and 16-and-under singles went to Richard Stocton of Garden City, N.Y., a premature U.S. junior who last year took the 14-and-under singles crown.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We plan our holidays fishing in the northern part of Ontario. Could you give us some information on fishing as far as rules and regulations are concerned? — C.S., Belleville.

ANSWER: A resident of Ontario does not need a licence to fish, except in Algonquin, Lake Superior and Opeongo Provincial Parks. Residents under 17 years old don't need licences to fish in those parks if accompanied by a member of the family with a licence. A licence to fish in provincial parks cost $2.25. For details of fishing regulations and a list of the seasons, get a copy of the summary of Ontario Fishery regulations from the Department of Lands and Forests, Queen's Park, Toronto.

CAR PROBLEMS

While driving your car on the highway there are a number of problems you may solve yourself. According to the American Automobile Association, the Automotive Safety Foundation and the National Safety Council here are practical ways to handle some of the most frequent problems.

Stuck horn: Hit the horn sharply several times. If the horn continues to blow, disconnect and pull out one or both of the wires. There are usually one or two attached to the horn. The horn is usually in front of and to the side of the radiator. Have the horn repaired promptly.

Overheated radiator: Steam escaping from the radiator is the most common sign of overheating. Another is the temperature gauge on the dashboard registering at its highest point. Stop as soon as possible. Running the car any distance in most circumstances can damage the engine. If you have water and want to check the water level in the radiator, carefully remove the radiator cap. The cap used on most cars today, allows pressure to build up within the car's cooling system. Hot water and steam may spurt out of the radiator when the cap is removed. With a cloth, slowly loosen the cap. Stand at arm's distance from the radiator. Turn the cap slightly in the counter-clock-wise direction. After you hear the pressure release, turn the cap the rest of the way and remove it. When the water level is low, let the engine cool for several minutes before you add water. Keep the engine idling as you pour. Be certain that the car's transmission is in neutral and the hand-brake applied to prevent it from moving. Then, wait until the gauge indicates normal temperature before starting car again. Drive slowly until you reach a source of water. Should the car overheat with a full radiation, the problem could any several mechanical conditions requiring service attention.

Stuck accelerator: If the accelerator sticks while you are driving, immediately turn off the ignition or, preferably, if you have the power steering or brakes, shift into neutral gear. Cars with these power accessories remain easier to control when the engine is running. Slow gradually and get off the road. Unless the cause of sticking is easily explained—an object might be wedged against the pedal — do not drive further until the cause has been checked by a mechanic.

Wartime C.O. Critical of Defence Head

TORONTO (CP)—Brig. Ian S. Johnston, wartime commander of the 48th Highlanders of Canada, said Saturday Defence Minister Paul Hellyer is making "a political football" out of integration of Canada's armed forces.

In a speech to the Canadian National Exhibition directors, the brigadier said the structure of the armed forces is too important to be "the football of a politician."

"It is now suggested that it might suit the minister's political convenience to create the single unified force in time for the Liberal leadership convention in 1967."

He said servicemen are worried because it was apparent the defence minister had no objective for total integration but won't make any plans.

Brig. Johnston said a conglomerate force without rank distinctions would destroy tradition.

"Tradition is the tool of the wise governor and I suggest to the government that they advise their minister to bend his bone on the firm and proven foundation."

He said the spirit of a regiment couldn't be known to a minister who had spent only two years in the artillery and one year in aircrew.

The brigadier didn't refer to Mr. Hellyer by name but said "the defence minister" was accepting the advice of his special assistants and not his experienced officers.

Brig. Johnston, colonel in chief of the 48th Highlanders, is a prominent Toronto lawyer. A text of his speech was released in advance.

"INSURE WITH BURR"

Fire Dies in Algerian Rebels Now Regime Merely Tolerated

The spirit of optimism that swept through Algeria after it gained independence from France has gone and the leaders of the North African republic seem unable to restore it. A Canadian Press reporter explains what has gone wrong.

By PETER BUCKLEY

ALGIERS (CP)—The flamboyant blaze has gone out of Algeria's social revolution, but the hard flame that was meant to replace it isn't giving much heat.

It has been more than a year since Ahmed Ben Bella was dumped as president and exiled to a mystery villa far from Algiers. Since then, his successors seem to have failed either to give this North African republic an invigorating push ahead or even to guarantee their own survival.

Col. Houari Boumediene, the dark-jowled, tough-as-nails former defence minister who became president, has managed to overcome his shyness enough to make increasing public appearances in support of his own government.

But the general response is lukewarm.

The first heady atmosphere of independence—when anything seemed possible to a movement that had survived eight years of particularly vicious war with France—is apparently gone forever.

Four years after independence, the government of the Democratic and Popular Republic of Algeria seems to be tolerated, at best, by its 12,000,000 people. If it survives, observers say, it will be because the army is still behind Boumediene, its former commander, and because the alternatives don't really seem any better.

POPULAR PERFORMER

Ben Bella was, as they say in vaudeville, a tough act to follow.

For nearly three years he wooed the "fellaghs" of the countryside and the unemployed city dwellers with his flashy style and crowd-pleasing speeches. Ben Bella's Algeria was the centre of attention, a haven for revolutionaries from all over the world and an aggressive beacon of socialist reform.

If Ben Bella didn't give them bread, he at least made sure the circus never left town.

The unspectacular Boumediene has denounced Ben Bella as a "megalo-Messiah" and accused the former president's cohorts of robbing the treasury and misusing their power.

The new government has stripped the revolutionary slogans from the streets. It has also shifted its energies away from dramatic—and costly—gestures of fraternity in foreign lands into more down-to-earth attempts to get Algeria's economy moving.

The change of emphasis has apparently failed to stir up either enthusiasm or dissent in most Algerians.

The most frequent criticism made against Boumediene's regime is indecision.

MUDDLING ALONG

Where have been consultations, plans, negotiations and announcements. But the firm decisions have often been lacking. Economic planning, land reform, democratic elections, foreign investment, administrative reorganization — all seem to be just around the corner.

Routine decisions — including those concerning vitally needed foreign aid and technicians — tend to get sidetracked or lost amid bureaucratic inexperience and backpassing.

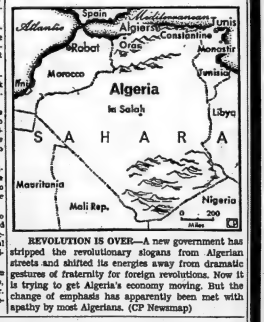
Some day's concession to foreign investors or Algerian moderates seems to be followed by the next day's property seizures or nationalizations to mollify the revolutionaries.

The result is often disillusion on all sides.

One Algerian businessman here reflected what is said to be a widespread feeling when he remarked bitterly: "We have had so many promises that we no longer believe in them. Who cares what they say now? I'm tired of them all."

Long-time residents say that at least the country has become better organized in the last year or so. Rent and taxes are collected now. Elevators and hatchinery often work. Electricity failures are rarer.

But by and large the picture is still grim.



Unemployment runs at a rate of 30 per cent or more in the cities and as high as 50 per cent in the villages, so the streets and cafes are filled with glum, idle young men.

ROOTS LACKING

Attempts to rally the old revolutionary spirit by building up the Front de Liberation Nationale—the former independence movement, now the ruling party—are having scant success.

Many of the famous names from the war for independence have retired, gone into exile or are in jail. Reports persist of torture for political prisoners — many of them Communists — despite government denials.

Even the pride in being Algerian which blossomed during the war has faded.

REVOLUTION IS OVER—A new government has stripped the revolutionary slogans from Algerian streets and shifted its energies away from dramatic gestures of fraternity for foreign revolutions. Now it is trying to get Algeria's economy moving. But the change of emphasis has apparently been met with apathy by most Algerians. (CP Newsmap)

ARMY KEEPS HIM IN POWER — Col. Houari Boumediene, former defence minister who became president of Algeria, is a shy man who leads a government that is accepted with little enthusiasm. If it survives it will be because the army is still behind Boumediene, its former commander. (CP Photo)

With almost no historical roots before France conquered the region 130 years ago, the Algerians find the French imprint harder to shake off than their neighbors in the ancient lands of Tunisia and Morocco.

Educated Algerians can be overheard talking to each other in French instead of Arabic, a practice that would shock even the most Parisoriented Moroccan or Tunisian, and the major French newspapers still outsell the shrill, dreary Algerian press despite occasional seizures and expulsions of French correspondents.

Few observers are willing to speculate about the durability of the Boumediene government.

But they agree that should the government fall, it would almost certainly be replaced by a group still further to the left. There is virtually no anti-socialist movement in the country, only degrees of dedication to socialism.

Boumediene's basic approach seems to be one of socialism tempered by practicality. If that doesn't work, the practicality is likely to be dropped more quickly than the socialism.

Endless Tremors Hit Area

By AHMET BALAN

VARTO, Turkey (AP)—"The whole town was destroyed in a matter of seconds," an elderly peasant said today recalling the fury of Friday's earthquake here.

Witnesses said the small county seat rocked first horizontally and then vertically, and then there was nothing left as all but three of the town's 700 mud huts and concrete buildings crashed down.

Varto was the epicentre of the violent quake that killed an estimated 2,000 persons in eastern Turkey.

The levelled down was jolted again Monday night as seemingly endless tremors continued to ripple the area.

The tremor, described by an interior ministry official as "quite strong," caused no deaths or injuries.

PREMIER SPOKE

Premier Suleyman Demirel estimated in a radio address to the nation that 2,000 had perished in the four-province disaster region.

Demirel's estimate was below those of local officials who said more than 3,000 have been killed — 2,000 of them in the Varto district alone.

Meanwhile, government officials moved to provide housing for homeless peasants before the early winter sets in.

Thousands were sleeping in the open as meteorological officials warned that cool weather usually begins here in this part of August. Demirel promised all efforts to provide new housing before the cold grips the mountainous region.

He said 58,000 families would have to be resettled, and that all injured persons had been given treatment in mobile and permanent health centres.

PROVIDE BREAD

The Turkish army moved mobile bakeries into the area to make bread for the survivors and planes dropped fresh loaves into villages not yet reached by land.

One survivor today sat in the ruins of what had been Varto's high school. He said he had been its janitor.

He pointed to his bandaged hand and said it had saved his life. But he added in tears, "I lost my mother and two children.

"I was home Friday afternoon eating with my wife and children and suddenly when the quake started," he said.

"The roof fell in and the wall collapsed. I managed to get my buried alive but somehow my hand remained above the debris.

"My sister was coming to our place at the time and helped me out. I ran back in with my fingers but my mother and my children were dead."

Parliament Called Into Session, Pearson Pleads With Both Sides To Avert Friday Railway Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Nicholson will meet the presidents of the railways late today to sound them out on the possibilities for a settlement of their labor dispute before a strike occurs Friday.

It was learned the meeting will be the first of a series planned in response to Prime Minister Pearson's call Monday night for determined efforts by both sides to work out a settlement before the start of the strike, called by the unions for noon regional standard time Friday.

He will meet union leaders Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the special cabinet strike committee met today

OTTAWA (CP) — Warning that a railway strike "could be disastrous" for the country, Prime Minister Pearson announced Monday night he has called Parliament to meet next Monday and deal with the impending crisis.

Parliament was to have enjoyed until October 5 a summer break that began July 15.

If a strike begins this Friday as scheduled, the government will introduce unspecified "proposals" to resolve the dispute and get the railways running again.

But even if the strike has been settled by then, MPs will be asked to deal with new legislation that will be based on "a relationship to the earning capacity of the railway companies." It would involve some parts of the MacPherson report which five years ago recommended more freedom for the railways to rate - making and other areas now under rigid federal control.

In a dramatic climax to a long afternoon of cabinet talks, Mr. Pearson revealed the plan in a 300-word telegram to the railways and union leaders calling for "immediate discussions" in a determined effort to settle their dispute before the strike deadline, set for noon regional standard times Friday.

"Such a strike will have consequences for the national economy which are bound to be serious and could be disastrous," his message said.

SUGGESTED MEETING

Mr. Pearson suggested both men meet with Labor Minister Nicholson to seek a settlement, then warned:

"If this effort at mediation should unhappily fail, the government will make proposals to Parliament to resolve the dispute." He did not spell out what the proposals would entail.

He also made it clear that until a strike starts it would be left up to labor and management to work out the settlement. Then he added a spur to such negotiations by the reference to new rail legislation.

Ever since 1959, when the former Conservative government clamped a freeze on freight rates pending new railway legislation, the railways have ar-

Toronto Workers Stay Out

TORONTO (CP) — Eight hundred Toronto railway workers decided today to continue their strike against the CNR and the union is to work is await the Friday deadline set for a country-wide strike.

Union officials said they fear effects of the continuing strike in Toronto may be felt mid-week.

The executives of non-operating rail unions in Sarnia and Windsor meanwhile continued talks that began Monday. There were no indications of general membership meetings.

Railways Will Not Accept Livestock, Poultry Shipments In View of Threatened Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Threatened with a Friday strike, the CNR and CPR Monday announced embargos on freight and express shipments of a variety of goods.

The railroads said effective immediately shipments of livestock and poultry would not be accepted.

Both companies said their embargo would be extended to perishable goods in general. The CPR also mentioned specifically silver and gold bullion, currency, explosives and other dangerous articles.

Both railways said other express and freight shipments will be accepted, subject to delay, up to noon standard time on Friday, Aug. 26.

On that date, 120,000 employees of the two companies and of four smaller lines are threatening to walk out.

The embargo is typical of the way public agencies and private individuals are bracing for the walkout.

A spokesman for the Canadian Manufacturers Association, which represents 8,500 manufacturing concerns across the country, said major layoffs appear inevitable.

"We have a full-employment situation and the company that lays off workers will be in danger of losing them to other firms.

The CMA was "in touch with the government" Monday and President Henri W. Joly of Quebec City said in a statement: "Immediate, direct and decisive government intervention is now called for."

A. E. Frith, general manager of the Ontario Northland Railway, also involved in the strike threat, said its trucking subsidiary and bus system will operate at maximum but are not expected to be able to absorb all freight and passenger traffic.

Some communities north of Cochrane, Ont., are likely to suffer because they are dependent on railways.

Mayor Philip Givens of Timmins said if the strike happens, it will have a worse effect now because this is "an inflationary period with the stock market down and a scary international situation."

Sir Canada spokesman said no appreciable increase in demand for seats has been felt yet. "But we'd know in a day or so."

CPR President Ian Sinclair said in a statement Monday that the firm would try to make sure perishable traffic now on route is moved to its destination.

As for passengers, they "will be advised before they embark of the destinations to which their trains will be operated and of the cancelled train schedules."

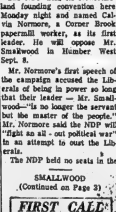
Smallwood Unveils Platform

By DON McLEOD

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Liberal Premier Joey Smallwood, seeking to keep his unbeaten string unbroken, unveiled his government's platform for the Sept. 8 Newfoundland election Monday as the New Democratic Party gathered its forces to make it a three - way fight.



Mr. Smallwood, premier of the province since Confederation in 1949, released a 42-page booklet which he says will be mailed to every householder in Newfoundland to show the voters what his government has done and what it plans for the future.

The NDP held its Newfoundland founding convention here Monday night and named Calvin Normore, a Corner Brook papermill worker, as its first leader. He will oppose Mr. Smallwood in Humber West Sept. 8.

Mr. Normore's first speech of the campaign accused the Liberals of being in power so long that their leader — Mr. Smallwood—"is no longer the servant but the master of the people." Mr. Normore said the NDP will "fight an all - out political war" in an attempt to oust the Liberals.

House Will Sit Till Yule

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — No matter what happens next in the rail strike situation one thing appears certain—MPs have had a mouth clopped off their summer recess.

The summer break that started July 15 was to have lasted until Oct. 5.

But Prime Minister Pearson has given strong indication the next long session of the MPs won't come until Christmas.

In announcing Monday that he was calling Parliament back Aug. 29, Mr. Pearson said Parliament would not deal only with the crisis in rail transportation arising from the rail workers' decision to walk off at noon local standard time Friday.

If nothing had changed by that date, the announcement said, Parliament would propose means to end the strike. If the wage dispute had been resolved, the MPs would tackle new transport legislation.

The strike situation, M still critical, could be fodder for days of Commons debate. It has already generated some snarky language in opposition criticism that previous government interventions in labor disputes have fanned the flames of inflation.

But a study of transportation legislation also would lead to topics that contain enough political powder to keep the Commons popping for many weeks.

Mr. Pearson says the transport matters concern the report of the royal commission headed by the late A. M. MacPherson of Regina—a study of revamp-

Squeeze Hitting Industry

LONDON (AP)—The spectre of growing unemployment haunted Britain's trade union movement today as the labor government's economic squeeze began to take effect on industry.

Imperial Chemical Industries, Britain's biggest private employer, announced the hasty by firing 1,350 workers at three plants producing nylon fibre.

It was the largest reduction by any company since the government imposed drastic credit restrictions and freeze wages and prices five weeks ago. The measures were designed to stabilize the economy and restore overseas confidence in the pound sterling.

ICI's action spelled more trouble for Prime Minister Wilson in his already losing battle to win support from Britain's 7,500,000 unionists for the government's economic measures.

The company blamed high taxation and the credit squeeze for slowing the expected growth of its nylon division. ICI employs a total of 126,000 workers in all its widespread activities.

Leaders of the Transport and General Workers Union declared the dismissals as "callous" and said they would call on the company to withdraw them. Talk of possible strike action was heard among militant unionists.

1,000 WENT BEFORE

Since the squeeze began last month about 5,000 workers— mostly in automobile plants and other consumer industries— have been either fired or put under notice of dismissal because of factory reductions.

Another 6,000 have been told they may have to work part time which would reduce their take-home pay.

Union leaders have been angered by Wilson's identification that it will never foster unemployment as a deliberate instrument of policy.

The total of unemployed in Britain was 365,300 at the last count. Government officials have said they do not expect the number to rise above 450,000 as a result of the economic measures.

Next month the giant Trades Union Congress meets in Blackpool for a crucial vote on whether to support the wage freeze, which will stay in effect for the rest of this year with a further period of "severe restraint" to follow.

The TUC executive has reluctantly agreed to go along with the freeze, but it seems likely to be over-ruled in the showdown by the militant unions at the conference beginning Sept. 5.

U.S. to Train 40,000 Men To Fit Them for Forces

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara today disclosed plans by the U.S. defence department to accept for military training in the next 10 months 40,000 men ordinarily disqualified because of education and health reasons.

He said the number would increase to 100,000 in the next fiscal year and in succeeding years.

The men would undergo intensive training using facilities of the defense department — "the largest single educational complex the world has ever known" — to become "fully satisfactory soldiers," McNamara said in a speech to the convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Text of the speech was released in advance of delivery.

Aides in Washington described the training effort as unique and said men taken into the program will, like draftees and enlistees, be under military authority of the services.

Defense department spokesmen said 85 per cent or more of such trainees are expected to qualify for military duty. Those who do not qualify "will not be retained" in the service.

McNamara blamed poverty for figuring in the rejection of 600,000 men a year for military service, but said military qualification standards need not be lowered.

"What I do believe is that through the application of advanced educational techniques we can salvage tens of thousands of these men each year, first for productive military careers and later for productive roles in society," he said.

Rail Situation in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The wildcat strike situation subsided, an effect of the selection of the date for the official strike, as 2/3 of the 2,000-man shift at the CNR's Pointe St. Charles yards reported for work.

All other CPR and CNR personnel were on the job.

Toronto — Strikers in Toronto, Brantford, Chatham, Sarnia, Windsor and London were either back at work or voting to return after staging wildcat strikes.

Oakville, Ont.—This was the only exception to the return-to-work trend Monday, as 30 CNR men walked off the job.

Sydney, N.S. — 135 non-ops were believed to be voting to return to work until Friday.

Missionaries Report On Four-Year Term in Jungles of Liberia

The Rev. Ronald E. White, his wife Laura and their three children, now on furlough from the mission field of Liberia, West Africa, received a hearty "welcome home" at Calvary Temple on Sunday, as they ministered in the services of the day.

Simply, earnestly and without ostentation, they touched the hearts of their hearers as they objectively outlined the challenge, the problems and the victories experienced during their first four-year term in the steaming jungles of the Liberian interior. There were no complaints nor regrets, but only praise to God for the privilege that was theirs in being able to preach the Gospel and train native pastors and workers in the great work of reaching souls for whom Christ died.

Mr. White stated that there were 400 Pentecostal churches in Liberia and 100 churches in Tchien province where they were stationed. Though not the state church, the Pentecostal church was the largest denomination in the country. He said that, though the work was growing, there were still several unreached tribes. There was a great struggle being waged between devil-worshipping societies and Christianity. In some locations the persecutions against Christians was severe.

PEOPLE WANT CHURCH

There are many towns and villages where the people are eager to have a church, in some cases their motives are wrong. They want a church primarily because it creates a status of respectability and importance in the community. "Isn't it just like that in Canada?" added the missionary.

"I thank God for churches like Calvary Temple, that are true to the Word of God and faithful in preaching the Gospel. The first time I came to Calvary Temple was the first time I heard the Gospel and I believed the claims of Christ and accepted Him as my Saviour. I thank God that we can accept Christ the first time they hear the Gospel. If you don't hear Jesus you have no real purpose in life. Science and education can't take you to heaven. Only Christ can bring salvation, peace and joy to your life."

At the evening service the White family were dressed in colorful native costume. Mrs. White told of her work amongst the women and children and the great need for organizing Sunday Schools. There was no teaching material available for children's classes and she had to write and prepare material herself in a form simple enough that it could be duplicated with a mimeograph stencil.

"How do you teach an illiterate how to teach?" Mrs. White posed the question. She answered that by explaining that there is usually one person in the community who can read. This person will be approached so that the simplified lessons can be read to those who will quiet on verbally the message they have received.

"We thank Calvary Temple for the support given to us. We have been able to obtain labor-saving devices such as kerosene refrigerators, gas for cooking, power plant for pumping water; this results in us to spend more time for the work of the Lord. Food and supplies have to be purchased in Monrovia, 300 miles away; but we are able to get potatoes and canned goods, as also much the same food as in Canada.

Pastor J. M. MacKnight, who was in charge of the services, challenged the people to get a greater vision for the mission field to be faithful in witnessing for Christ in their every day walk of life.

Stelco Workers Reject Offer

HAMILTON (CP) — Workers at the Steel Co. of Canada here have rejected a proposed new contract which had been approved by their union negotiating committee.

A legal strike at Stelco could begin in seven days, but no date has yet been set.

Workers voted on the proposed contract Monday and their union, the United Steelworkers, today released voting figures of 4,494 against, 3,297 in favor, and 21 spoiled ballots.

The union has 11,000 members at Stelco's Hamilton plants and 4,000 others in fabricating plants at Toronto, Gananoque, Ont., Brantford, Hamilton and Edmonton.

The proposed contract, threaded out earlier this month with the aid of a conciliation board, would have covered three years and included basic wage provisions of $2.60 an hour higher than those in the United States steel industry. It also included a cost-of-living clause which John Morgan, president of Local 1005, United Steel workers, described as the best in North America.

leaders to meet "at once for immediate discussions" to prevent the railway strike.

Union leaders were doubtful the crisis could be avoided, even if the federal government expected legislation ordering a walkout. R. C. Smith, chairman of seven non-operating unions representing 54,000 men, said a membership vote would be required to change current plans. Such a vote could not be completed until after Friday, he said.

"No matter what happens, we will be on strike Friday," said C. J. Pelletier, secretary of the joint protective board of the 22,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The prime minister's appeal came in a telegram to the railways asking an immediate meeting with Labor Minister Allmand, appointed mediator in the dispute.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said the government has taken too long to act."

Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker charged "he (the prime minister) is doing what I said should be done a month ago." Earlier, George Hees, former Conservative trade minister, senior member for Northumberland, urged reconvening of Parliament.

In Toronto, CPR declined to 56% on the Toronto Stock Exchange after the strike date was set.

SUSPEND TELEGRAMS

The CNR will suspend all public telegram services but the CPR said it will attempt to maintain its commercial facilities with supervisor personnel.

The short notice of the strike did not catch Canada's shippers by surprise but it did raise warnings from one end of the country to the other that it will taste more than a few days, the strike would have disastrous effects.

gued that they have no way of raising new revenues to meet increased wages.

Mr. Pearson's pledge to give immediate priority to legislation based on recommendations made five years ago by the MacPherson Royal Commission would remove this stumbling block to wage bargaining between the two sides.

The MacPherson report would, among other things, end the freight rate freeze under which the rail carriers into a sick-or-swim rate competition with other modes of transport.

It proposed giving the railways increased freedom to scrap money-losing branch lines and discard uneconomic services to improve their financial position.

A variety of present federal subsidies totalling about $100,000,000 a year would be replaced with a single sliding subsidy starting at $100,000,000 the first year and diminishing as the railways got out of unprofitable lines and services.

Eventually, the only subsidies would be those aimed at covering losses for certain services being maintained in the public interest.

Rates would be adjusted freely by the carriers subject only to a provision that they be compensatory — above actual cost. Captive shippers, who lack alternatives to rail transport, would be given federal protection from excess charges.

For years the railways have been limited to general freight rate increases applied by broad percentage across the entire rate structure. The MacPherson formula would let their managers individual rates according to the competition.

Railway executives have been clamoring for years for implementation of the MacPherson plan. Both the Conservative and Liberal governments promised it but other pressures on the Commons forced it to the sidelines in five successive Parliaments.

OMA Critical of Governments For Delays in Endorsing Plans

HAMILTON (CP) — Delegates at the Ontario Municipal Association's convention Monday criticized the provincial and federal governments for delays in endorsing urban renewal schemes.

David Rotenberg, a Toronto alderman, told the 700 delegates that planners for the two levels of government make lengthy reviews of schemes, which have already been studied in detail by municipal planners and local councils.

Often, decisions of time lost in this duplication, the cost of the land in question goes up and there are changes in ownership, Mr. Rotenberg said.

Former Borden, director of the urban renewal division of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., said the federal department insists on analyzing the schemes because it is putting up 50 per cent of the cost.

Delegates turned down a Toronto resolution which would have trimmed the power of boards of control in awarding tenders.

MAJORITY VOTE

The proposal was that a majority vote of council, instead of the now-required two-thirds vote, reverse a board's decision in awarding a tender.

The convention approved a second Toronto resolution permitting zoning inspectors to enter a building at all reasonable times without the consent of the owner or occupant.

Charles W. Daley, a Toronto lawyer and an expert on zoning bylaws, told delegates that municipalities are "flying blind without an official plan.

"You are opening the proverbial Pandora's box if you carry on development without the guidelines of an official plan," he said.

"It is up to the municipalities to lay down the rules of the road until they are "faced with a fait accompli and the building is up."

On welfare, H. H. Dymond, executive director of the Association of Children's Aid Societies of Ontario, said that the day is past when Ontario should have to put collection boxes in liquor stores to raise funds for a motherless or deserted child.

INCREASED COSTS

Dr. Dymond was defending the increased amounts of money that children's aid societies are requesting from municipal councils.

He said the societies are faced with paying $36 to $38 a day to get treatment for emotionally disturbed children.

"There are a large number of children in the care of the CAS today because they need treatment for emotional disturbance," he said.

"This shouldn't be the job of the CAS. It's health responsibility."

Earlier, civic leaders from across the province voted unanimously to lift the assessment ceiling on Bell Telephone Co. of Canada profits.

As the moment, under the terms of a federal-provincial agreement, municipalities can levy only up to five per cent of the company's gross receipts in any year.

Ordnance Mayor J. A. Hendrie, chairman of the OMA resolutions committee, declared a number of Ontario municipalities consider the rule "unrealistic."

The OMA will ask the province to lift the tax limit.

Writ Issued to Quash PUC Expropriation Bylaw Against Alyea's Property

TRENTON — A writ was issued yesterday in Hastings County Court, against the Trenton Public Utilities Commission. R. E. Nourse, Q.C., of Picton, said the writ was issued to quash the P.U.C.'s expropriation bylaw. Mr. Nourse is counsel for Murray Fawcett farmer, Jack Alyea, from whom the P.U.C. is attempting to appropriate 12.9 acres of land.

Last Friday at Cobourg, County Judge J. C. Carnelly granted a restraining order against Mr. Alyea, and Sheriff Foote was instructed to order down any resistance that might occur when P.U.C. workmen entered upon the land at the week end. The decision by Judge Carnelly was appealed by—Mr. Nourse, on behalf of Mr. Alyea. The application for the appeal will be heard August 31 at Cobourg.

The P.U.C. hopes to expropriate 12.9 acres of Alyea land in order to secure the construction of a water reservoir. Water from Tait Creek, stored in the reservoir, would alleviate a shortage of water in the growing Town of Trenton.

Mr. Alyea has appealed to the Agricultural Federation and the Farmers' Union for assistance. He is fearful that Ontario's expropriation laws have changed. Regardless of the outcome in the struggle to escape expropriation of his land by the P.U.C., the farmer appears determined that some changes in the existing laws will be made.

He said: "As it is now, the small man doesn't have a chance. I am ready to fight this expropriation but many farmers do not have the money to finance a protracted court situation. If my appeals don't help, I'll go to the Attorney General's Office."

Clifford Baker, P.U.C. chairman, says no decision has been made by commission members as to when workmen will move onto Mr. Alyea's land.

"It is a shame this thing has gone on so long," he said, "I hope everything will be settled, soon."

Asked to comment on a proposal by the Ontario Water Resources Commission that water be piped to the city of Quinte area from Lake Ontario, Mr. Baker said: "The commission has met with O.W.R.C. officials to discuss the proposal project but any action on this plan is a long way off."

Proposed Steps A Week Late Says Dief

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's proposed steps to avert a national rail strike scheduled for Friday are a week too late, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Monday night.

He was commenting on Mr. Pearson's plan to call Parliament Aug. 29 and present legislation based on proposals in the five-year-old MacPherson royal commission report.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he proposed last week at a press conference that Parliament be called and that applicable sections of the MacPherson report dealing with railway revenues be implemented as soon as possible.

"He is doing what I said should be done 7-week ago," the Conservative leader said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has allowed the railway problem to develop to crisis proportions.

"Paralysis of the economy in the price which will be paid for the paralysis of the government in the face of the railway problem that has been allowed by the government to develop to crisis proportions."

Legislation recommended by the Macpherson Commission is designed to "sort out where we are competing with other modes of transport, and where the railway is 'dominant,'" Harry Fast manager of the Belleville area of Canadian National Railways, told fellow Rotarians in a classification talk yesterday.

In other words, it it is found that railway monopolies in areas must be maintained this will be done with the aid of government subsidies.

Mr. Fast was referring to the demarcation line between government control of the railway and the company's sphere of influence as one engaged in private enterprise.

"We will continue to apply for abandonment of uneconomic services. The government will determine where there is public need, and if it so decrees the public will have to pay. The rest (other routes) will have to sink or swim in competition with other means of transport."

"Canadian National" he said, "will continue to ask for more freedom of action, "when we can prove we will not harm a community by independent action."

SHEDS LIGHT

The area manager shed light on some unfamiliar aspects of the railway's operation. For instance, Canadian National maintains an industrial department which advises prospective industries of facilities in communities along its routes.

On the technical side, the installation of new equipment is subject to strict safeguards laid down by the Department of Transport.

"If we install a signal system it must be 'fail-safe,'" (a term relating to back-up systems often used with regard to nuclear weapons).

Mr. Fast admitted regulations in this regard could be "pretty cumbersome."

On freight, Mr. Fast said the railway is not yet free to set rates based on cost. That way a community or industry could be ruined.

Noting that in Canada, as in the United States, the railways were built to open up the country, Mr. Fast said the Government regulated the rates and had asked the railways to charge rates based on what the traffic can bear, "so that no one across the country gets hurt."

The area manager said the Rideau area employs 2,500 and handles an annual budget in excess of $25 million. Headquarters in Belleville employs 900 with what he described as a substantial payroll.

Newt Thompson introduced Mr. Fast and he was thanked by Jack Yanover. Vice-president Jim Marker presided in the absence of president Dr. J. F. McCorquodale.

Police Combing Hideouts For Escaped Convict

MONTREAL (CP) — Police, who have orders to "shoot to kill," are combing local underworld hideouts in search for Andre Daoust, 24-year-old escaped convict.

Inspector Paul Gagnon of the Quebec Provincial Police bolstered police said Monday night the fugitive who escaped from custody twice this summer and who has never been known to be taken alive probably has made his way back to Montreal.

Daoust shot his way out of a police ambush last Friday in dense woods near La Tuque, Que., 140 miles northeast of Montreal.

A full investigation has been launched by the QPP into Daoust's escape. He blasted his way out of a police ambush at his cottage and shot it out with policemen armed with machine guns, rifles and tear gas.

KILL ANYONE

Inspector Gagnon described Daoust as an extremely dangerous man who is capable of killing anyone who gets in his way.

The hunt for Daoust, who fled Montreal's St. Luc hospital in June after being transferred from penitentiary for treatment of an injured hand, continued Monday near La Tuque.

Police received a report Sunday night from two men that Daoust commandeered their car in La Tuque and forced them to drive him to Boniface, Que., 70 miles northeast of Montreal.

Daoust was serving a four-year term in Montreal's St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary for the $31,000 robbery of a caisse populaire at St. Leonard, Que., on May 25, 1965.

American Merchant Ship Sunk

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP)—A U.S. merchant ship with war supplies for Viet Nam was blasted by a Communist mine today and sank in the Saigon River. Seven of its American crew members were killed.

The mine ripped a gaping hole in the port side of the 20,000-ton Sinion Victory and nearly foundered the ship's engine room. The ship was run aground at the river bank 39 miles east of Saigon.

Late in the day, the ship was reported blocking one of the two mesh shipping lanes to Saigon.

Elsewhere in the Viet Nam war, a U.S. marine amphibious landing forces of 1,500 men reported today it has made no contact with Communist troops in the 36 hours since it came ashore from navy ships 30 miles southeast of Saigon Monday.

No other ground action of significance was reported.

In the air war, four MIG 17s tangled with a U.S. air force flight 20 miles north of Hanoi Monday. After an exchange of fire, with no apparent damage to either side, the MIGs broke off contact, a U.S. spokesman said.

The spokesman said he had no report of any aircraft lost during Monday's strikes against the north, but Hanoi radio reported two U.S. jets were shot down.

Two planes were shot down by Viet Cong ground fire in the Mekong Delta Monday, one U.S. and the other Vietnamese.

PILOTS RESCUED

Meanwhile, fighting was downed during an air strike 120 miles southwest of Saigon, and the Vietnamese pilot while flying cover during the rescue of the U.S. pilot. The Vietnamese pilot also was rescued.

Meanwhile, Saigon newspapers reported unidentified jets killed 26 civilians and wounded 30 others in a mistaken strafing raid on a convoy of barges near here.

The U.S. military command confirmed today the jets were American. The command said the barges were in a forbidden zone and had fired on spotter aircraft. A spokesman said the local province chief had approved the attack.

The newspapers said the raid was made Thursday as the barges were moving along a forbidden portion of the Mekong River Delta about 25 miles south of Saigon.

In Da Nang, 375 miles north of Saigon, two Viet Cong were killed and six of the Da Nang River Monday night after an unsuccessful attempt to blow up a strategic pontoon bridge, military sources said.

They were captured after other guerrillas tried to distract the attention of troops on the bridge with a hail of small arms fire from both banks.

CARS STAY STOLEN

MONTREAL (CP) — City thefts from 1961 to 1965 totalled $38,485,000 in value, said city police director J. P. Gilbert. He said $5,000,000 worth of cars stolen last year are still uncovered.

Also in the campaign are the Progressive Conservatives, headed by Dr. Noel Murphy. The PCs have announced they will contest all 43 seats. At dissolution, the Liberals held 39 seats and, the Conservatives six. There were three vacancies.

PROMISES HAVED ROADS

The Liberal platform outlined a series of ambitious proposals including a plan to pave 3,000 miles of road in Newfoundland and Labrador and to build a road connecting the island's insular Newfoundland with Labrador.

The government promises to build or rebuild 300 schools and "wipe out illiteracy." A new campus for the Memorial college here would be built and the present $4,000,000 annual grant for school construction would be doubled.

The Liberals also promise improved health services, construction of two or three nursing schools, a doubled value of the fishing industry, landing strips for several communities and more aid to municipalities for water and sewer services and housing.

Mr. Smallwood also promised reduced electricity rates for all Newfoundlanders by next spring.

He said increased federal aid will become from new development of the province's natural resources will pay for his program.

ing transport in Canada that has been languishing in the wings for five years.

Included in the report are such involved matters as shipping structures and subsidies and questions of allowing abandonment by the railways of uneconomic lines.

HINTED LONG SESSION

Mr. Pearson also gave a hint of things to come last week. He said a press conference then that if Parliament should have to be recalled, it would be more sensible to sit through until Christmas than to solve one problem, then recess again.

That appeared to make it certain that MPs, who set 117 days as Parliament's limit for 1966, would be back on the Job with about three months work ahead of the Christmas break.

The prime minister's back-to-work announcement drew unfavorable comments from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and T. C. Douglas, leader of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Parliament should have had a three-week earlier as he had suggested at a press conference Aug. 10.

Th government had allowed the railway problem to develop into a crisis proportion.

Mr. Douglas said the government should have appointed a mediator long ago. Intervention by Parliament should be a last resort, he added.

Driver Loses Licence, Fined $100 and Costs

A wild driving spree through the streets of Belleville July 23 cost Donald Murdock Keller, now of Scarborough, $100 and costs in city magistrate's court this morning. Magistrate T. Y. Wills said that the 20-year-old Keller would also be prohibited from driving for a period of six months.

A charge of dangerous driving was filed against Keller after he was chased through the city by police who clocked Keller's car at speeds of 80 miles per hour. Keller pleaded guilty to the charge.

In the course of the chase police testified that Keller proceeded through a number of stop streets without bringing his vehicle to a halt. Police finally apprehended the accused at the railway crossing at the east end of Station Street, where his vehicle blew two tires. Defence counsel, R. E. Nourse of Picton, informed the court that $400 damage was caused to Keller's car in going over the tracks, not $1,500 as had previously been given as an estimate.

Mr. Nourse contended that Keller was remorseful after seeing a police car following him. Magistrate Wills concurred that such an action from someone who had not been drinking was unlikely unless some degree of panic had been involved.

Airlines Go-Go

The five United States airlines grounded by the now-settled machinist's strike are reported to have resumed operations smoothly.

Stewardesses of one airline were pictured tossing their caps into the air and looking very happy at the prospect of returning to their airborne tasks.

But what of the flight crews — the men who control the complicated machines and pilot them from place to place? Even in normal circumstances, when routine schedules are being maintained, experienced pilots must undergo regular checks of their flying ability.

The long period away from their craft could mean some slight impairment in pilots' flying ability until they get back into the swing of things. On the other hand, ground training and the strict discipline demanded of pilots in their personal lives likely were maintained throughout the strike.

Happy too that the strike has been settled is the flying public itself, not to mention U.S. industry which had lost millions of dollars as a result of the walkout.

Computers at War

The United States is now using mobile computers in the war in Viet Nam.

The mechanical brains, used widely by industry to provide information and solve problems in a fraction of the time achieved by human brain power, are proving invaluable to U.S. intelligence.

Information gathered from prisoners, deserters, agents and from other sources, when fed into the computer, provides U.S. commanders with immediate information on the location of enemy units.

However, the question arises (and there is irony in the thought) why have there been so many errors of late? Faulty intelligence apparently has been at the root of a number of ground and air forays by the Americans in the course of which they have hit their own forces as well as innocent civilians.

Only recently, jets shot up a U.S. coastguard vessel patrolling in early morning darkness. Within 24 hours another jet attack took the lives of 15 Vietnamese villagers, wounded 132 others and killed only three of the Viet Cong enemy. These are appalling errors, and yet they are just incidents in this terrible conflict.

Nevertheless the ultimate and overriding aim of the United States is to halt communist aggression in Viet Nam, as well as discouraging it elsewhere in Southeast Asia. In the process, it is to be hoped that their military intelligence (using computers or not) improves to the point that errors of the sort mentioned here do not occur again.

A Little Bit of Luck

In the attainment of such phenomenal international success, the Beatles likely would acknowledge a certain element of luck.

And yet, together with coincidence, is there not a strong suggestion of predestination in their swift rise to fame? Like them and their type of entertainment or not, their appeal for millions cannot be denied.

A few years ago they were obscure young Britishers playing and working in their home city of Liverpool, and before that in Hamburg, Germany. They had made a few records, and then came the combination of circumstances — luck, coincidence, predestination — that catapulted them to fame and identification with their unique "Mersey Sound."

A young man walked into the Liverpool record store of Brian Epstein (who became their manager) and asked for one of the Beatles' early records. With that they were on their way.

Parallel circumstances combined to ensure stardom for The Supremes, the three young Negro women whose careers started with membership in a church choir.

The Supremes are the high priestesses of the Detroit Sound, a combination of traditional Negro blues, pop music and jazz inspired by Gordy Parks, formerly a $35 a week mechanic now living in a Negro district of Detroit. Parks discovered Mary Wilson, Diana Ross and Florence Ballard, and from that point they, too, were on the road to success.

Moon Pictures

The United States' moon probe continues space and manned orbits of the earth are now so commonplace that the public is now inclined to pay little attention to the marvelous feats of science that they represent.

The latest probe of the moon itself has produced two sharply-focused pictures of its mysterious far side taken by cameras in the aptly-named Lunar Orbiter satellite.

Although they revealed nothing new, the pictures are reported to show much more detail than the pictures sent back in 1959 by a Soviet satellite. Accustomed as we now are to these space shots, the scientific skill involved in their execution is still noteworthy.

Tests Dominate Medicine

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Tests! Tests!" exclaimed my friend, the doctor. "Why do I think thi-tests are the answer to everything in the medical field?"

He is a dermatologist, and one of the big things in this country during the last 20 years has been "skin tests." Not merely for hay fever, but for asthma, hives, and almost any kind of skin allergy.

"How some tests are useful" said my friend. "We can generally track down the weed that causes hay fever. But a lot of skin allergies, tests often tell us practically nothing, and are just a waste of time and money."

"What do you use in their place?" I asked.

"Trial - and - error," he answered, "and a good knowledge of the patient himself — what he's like, what his problems are, how he leads his life.

"For instance," he continued "I can give a patient a skin test for chocolate, and get a positive reaction, which shows that he is allergic to chocolate — but when I give him some chocolate to eat, nothing happens. If we relied on tests, allergic people would be living on an impoverished diet.

"Then why do doctors give so many tests?" I persisted.

"It's partly routine," he explained, "but it's largely because people expect them. Somehow the public has the notion that a test is terribly 'scientific' — as a matter of fact many tests are notoriously inaccurate, and have to be corrected by the doctor's private observations.

"What's the trouble course," he expanded, "from the general belief that medicine is a science. Well, it is, in part — but it is also an art. As much depends on the doctor's insight as on the instruments he uses.

"After all, two violinists can play the same Stradivarius, and one will produce great sounds, while the other will not. Relying on the instruments is as foolish in medicine as it is in music."

Many of skin ailments are 'set off' by a specific food, or by dust or horsehair — but the deciding cause is often some emotional upset on the part of the patient. No test can measure this personal factor, or tell us why some people respond in different ways to different irritations.

"Remember, I am not speaking against tests — but against liking T.B., which are routine and fairly precise — but about a host of other tests, many of which it is more important that the doctor can read the patient than the instrument he uses for the test."

Rideau Area Development

Brockville Recorder and Times

The recommendation of John Tett, Kingston Recreation Director, that there should be a Rideau Parks Commission, similar to the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, is deserving of wholehearted support by the provincial government.

Just how important it is for the development to move as outlined by Mr. Tett in an address to the delegates to the Soil Conservation Society of America conference. Mr. Tett pointed out that the shoreline of the Rideau waterway is falling into the hands of developers and spectators at a "fantastic rate". He expressed alarm that all the lakes and rivers would be gobbled up by the private developer and it will be a case of the public be damned shortly.

For many years we have been hearing and reading about grandiose schemes for development of the Rideau. Only a year ago

Grand-Aunt Was a Witch

Deutsche Korrespondenz

Martina Hirtz,a young Cologne girl will have no financial worries if her great grandmother's grandaunt was a witch.

Martina's father, economist Hans Joachim Hirtz, recently happened to spot his wife's name among the names of old Cologne families engraved at the Gaerzenich, one of the city's town halls. He checked with genealogists and found out that the name belonged to Catharina, a witch burned at the stake in 1627. Experts confirmed the witch was Martina's great-great-grand aunt.

Further digging in old archives resulted in another extraordinary find: the witch's brother willed his fortune to the church, under the provision that his descendants receive study grants. The grant is still valid and, as it has not been used for several centuries, is quite substantial. Church officials are still figuring out the exact amount of the monthly bill they have to pay to if Martina goes to university.

Birth Control Pills Not Retardation Cause

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking birth control pills for a year and a half but would very much like to become pregnant now. However, some women say that the hormones in the pills last a long time in the bloodstream and I could have a retarded child. Is this true? — Mrs. G. N. Y.

No, it's not true. For years I've tried to combat some of the old wives' tales that have been passed down from generation to generation, hoping to clear the air.

Now it seems that some brand new groundless scare stories are being invented. Pay no attention to these rumor-spreaders.

Dear Doctor: There have been quite a few arguments over whether "the pill" causes blood clots, cancer, etc., but now one has come up that I cannot answer.

A friend says her doctor told her that women who continue taking the pills will continue to be fertile until the age of 70. Is this possible? — Mrs. M. B.

The theory was advanced several years ago that it might happen. The argument was that since the pills prevent ovulation, maybe the supply of eggs in you would be stored up and appear later in life.

At first there was no way to say that this couldn't happen. The pills by now have been in use for quite a few years, and we can say that it hasn't happened. The prediction is, you know, was tested abroad for years before it was used in this country, so the evidence is quite strong — and becomes stronger each passing year — that users of the pills are quite fertile past the normal age.

Dear Doctor: I have been taking birth control pills for three years and read that after four years of use it won't work. Are they harmful? — Mrs. S. S.

There is no sign that the pills lose their potency, no matter how long they are used.

As for stopping them after any specified number of years, much uncertainty has developed simply because in the beginning the government recommended them for a limited time.

This was not because any harm was known to occur, but rather because the Food and Drug Administration thought it better to be safe than sorry. So it said.

As extended use continues to show no harmful results, the makers of liver which they are known to be safe becomes greater.

If there is any maximum time for using them, we haven't yet been informed of it.

Probably they are safe to use as long as one wishes — but we can't say that definitely until we have had them in use that long.

You can be certain that if there ever is any evidence that a time limit should be imposed, the government will say so promptly and explicitly. So far there is no such evidence.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend told me you can get diabetes from shock. I doubt this. Please comment. — N. Y.

Shock doesn't cause diabetes, but severe shock can make a latent case evident. This has been noted in countries stricken by war and bombing raids.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Aug. 23, 1966 . . .

Princess Patricia, daughter of Governor-General the Duke of Connaught, presented its colors to the second unit named after her 38 years ago today—in 1954 in a ceremony at Ottawa.

The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry had been raised with a $100,000 grant offered by Montreal millionaire A. Hamilton Gault within 24 hours of Britain's declaration of war.

Almost 80 per cent of the 3,000 men who filled its ranks within seven days of the start of enlistment were former British army men living in Canada—it was called "a microcosm of the British army" because veterans of all but one British unit were among its members. It was the first Canadian unit to see action in the First World War, landing in France a permanent force regiment, the Princess Patricia's has since many military decorations than any other Canadian unit.

1775 — King George III proclaimed open rebellion to the Thirteen Colonies.

1788 — The French revolutionary government announced conscription of the entire male population.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—1916 — Russians recaptured Kuch in the Caucasus; Germans made gains north of Strupino in Macedonia; the British captured a German trench system south of Thiepval.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—Prime Minister Mackenzie King was both cheered and booed while addressing Canada's overseas army in Britain; Marshal Klement Voroshilov organized a "last man" defence of Leningrad; a German-U.S.-Spanish agreement for an exchange of workers was signed.

Ottawa Offbeat
How Far Will Johnson Go On Secessionist Issue?

By GREG CONNOLLEY
RICHARD JACKSON IS ON HOLIDAYS
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The politicians at Ottawa have been watching with an interest that has been Premier Johnson of Quebec is going to react on the key issues between the province and the federal government.

So far Mr. Johnson has moved cautiously in his relations with Ottawa. About all we have heard from him of any major consequence was his complaint about federal-provincial fiscal relations. Of course there was nothing really startling about that because the nine other premiers sing the same sad song.

Just the other day Mr. Johnson surprisingly agreed there would be a sizable exodus of French Canadians if Quebec seceded from the rest of Canada.

And even his firm assertion that Quebec would seek equal status as one of the two Canadian cultures was conciliatory in tone.

But prior to becoming premier, prior to the spring election that saw the Lesage government booted out of office, Mr. Johnson seemed as though he would be a formidable foe to Ottawa.

He was talking about the two nations in Canada and at times he sounded very sympathetic to the causes espoused by the Liberal separatists.

In Ottawa there was concern over the utterances of both Liberal and Union Nationale leaders in Quebec particularly when it came to nationalist sentiment.

On the Liberal side there was Rene Levesque and, to some extent, Eric Kierans, sounding as though Quebec was almost ready to march out of Confederation that very afternoon.

Even former Premier Lesage was pretty good at this sort of thing on occasion, although latterly he had lashed out at separatism.

BOUGHTMAN

Well, if the Ottawa politicians were uneasy about Mr. Lesage and his colleagues, they were downright fearful about the prospect of a Union Nationale government. They had the impression that the UN party represented a far greater threat to Confederation than that mounted by the Liberals.

So, in addition to astonishment, there was concern after the June 5 election when Mr. Johnson clear that Johnson was and his League was out.

What was behind Prime Minister Pearson; and his French speaking colleagues' fears their fears is understandable. They seemed to brace themselves for the worst and set to attempt to rationalize that it wouldn't be all that bad.

And, indeed, Premier Johnson was some relief for M. Pearson and his cabinet in the view that they could now talk business with Quebec than in the past.

With Jean Lesage out of office, the Liberals at Ottawa would not have to cater to Liberals in Quebec. While it they would not want to antagonize Premier Johnson unduly, they could afford — from the Liberal point-of-view — to do battle with the UN should the need arise or they are not afraid to tangle with premiers of other non-Liberal provincial governments.

But any arguments of this kind would be on normal fighting ground with the provinces. Ottawa does not want disagreement with Quebec to degenerate on the question of national unity.

In all seriousness, the League government would have found Premier Pearson more than enough with talk about an Independent Quebec.

As for Mr. Johnson, the Pearson government perhaps fears that once Johnson settles in as a premier and becomes active in constitutional questions he'll desperately hoping for the best.

There is, indisputably, that uneasiness in Ottawa about Quebec and the future of Confederation.

INTERNAL PROBLEMS

There is a touch of commentary on this state-of-mind in the parliamentary press gallery where each year there are starried by the noon-day gun, which, oddly enough, always sends scrous the Ottawa river toward Quebec.

French - speaking reporters say — they, too, are fired at as again — look out, one day we may return the compliment.

Just then for, at least, Premier Johnson has given Ottawa little cause for concern. He is not known, he has had more than enough in what we might call domestic affairs to keep him busy. Perhaps he just hasn't had time yet to think about the fate of Canada and the rest of Canada.

Indeed it may be some time before Mr. Johnson will have any leisure for constitutional arguments with Ottawa. It appears that an inheritance of problems from the Lesage government will keep him occupied for some time to come.

Some people in Ottawa wonder if Premier Johnson just might follow something of the line adopted by his one - time leader, Maurice Duplessis, in relations with the federal government.

Mr. Duplessis ran a kind of Quebec with himself as monarch and he carried on a running battle with Ottawa over various matters.

But the late Mr. Duplessis stopped well short of any outing out of Confederation.

It would indeed be a rather ironic commentary if he calm, urbane Mr. Johnson turns out to be more of a problem — in terms of national unity — than Jean Lesage.

One can turn back of course to pre-election utterances of Mr. Johnson that would excite the blood of non French-speaking Canadians. But we must note that Mr. Johnson too is a politician and must say things on occasion to please certain segments of the voting public.

Certainly though Premier Johnson has been quite restrained in this far on considerable matters and official Ottawa is hreathing somewhat easier.

Strike at School Building Site

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Referring to your articles on the dispute over non-union painters coming strikes at the the June 5 election. Mr. Hall, a sign-carrying participant in the picketing in question, differ in that fact? members of 1208 Sheet Metal Workers Association were manning the picket lines at 6.45 a.m. Men employed by the general contractor did not report for work.

On all construction jobs, the contractors base their estimates on the prevailing rate. The outcome of this counts on efficiency, not using wages as a means of competition. The contractor is lax, when he accepts a bid not knowing whether or a subcontractor is using union a student at a minimum rate set by the Ontario Government. Apprenticeship rates are available.

As outlined in a Toronto Telegram by a labour economist, "if he take home pay of the family of two children was under $5.62 per week, there was a certain degree of poverty existing."

The second problem is this, new Canadians are moved principally from both the contractor and the union. The majority do not speak English. Man cannot serve two masters. But how do they serve? This problem? If he crosses the picket line he is subject to a fine, if he recognizes a picket line, he will eventually be fired or laid off by the contractor. Then again, the onus is on the contractor, he takes advantage of their condition, language barrier I mean. A sailors brother-in-law or an English-speaking new Canadian will content his authority.

Respectfully submitted,
L. M. Daley.

Auto Firms' Net Profits

Brantford Expositor

The success of higher wages and greater materials on car makers' profits is clearly shown in this week's reports on Australian sales and net earnings. The figures also give a clue to the relative profit per car.

In the second quarter, GM made $1 of net profit on every $10 of sales. A year ago it earned $1 on every $12 of sales. Ford's second quarter profit works out at $1 every $15 of sales against $1 of sales a year ago, and Chrysler netted $1 on $28 of sales compared with $22 of sales last year.

A car factory-priced at $2,295 would, in the April - June quarter, bring GM $225 profit, Ford $150 and Chrysler $80.

Tilco Owner Against Unions Says Witness

TORONTO (CP)—A striking woman employee of Tilco Plastics Ltd. at Peterborough told a labor relations board Monday that Tilco co-owner Harold Pammett had told her he got rid of the union and he would get rid of the Textile Workers' Union of America.

Lillian Downer, who has been employed by Tilco for the last eight years, said Mr. Pammett added: "The union is going to tell me how to live. I am not going to be run by any union."

Miss Downer was giving evidence before a labor relations board panel hearing an application by the union for permission to prosecute Tilco for failure to bargain in good faith.

Mrs. Bronia Perybyez, who had been employed by Tilco for seven years, said Mr. Pammett told her: "There will be a contract only over my dead body."

Playground Activities Close for Year on Friday

By GEORGE CAMPBELL
Supervisor of Playgrounds

The summer is rapidly coming to an end, and with it the end of playgrounds for another year. Friday Aug. 26 will bring all the playground activities to a close.

Although thwarted by the not ready this week, the playgrounds are offering an exciting wind-up program for all of the city's playgrounds are having special events every day this week in order to end the summer with a flourish.

The big event of the week will be the Talent and Awards Show on Thursday beginning at 1 p.m. at East Hill playground. All the awards earned by the children will be presented as well as a "month of talent" from each playground. Everyone is invited to attend this final special event of the summer.

While looking ahead to special events we must not forget the excellent work by Jan Worrell the leader on Churchill Heights playground. This work combined with the children's enthusiasm has earned the Best Playground of the Week banner.

Railways

to truckers from citizens anxious to book places for their goods on alternate forms of transportation.

The Provincial Transport Co., which provides bus service to points throughout Quebec, has been clocking for extra buses to help take up the slack that would be caused in the Metropolitan Montreal area by a train strike.

Spokesmen for oil companies have pointed to the more remote areas as the first to suffer from oil shortages if the strike lasted more than two weeks.

Some slowdowns could occur in delivery of cars, but auto companies are shut down anyway for purposes of the annual model changeover.

The chemical companies said they could be affected by a railway strike within a few days.

"Trucks just don't have the capacity to carry things like liquid oxygen and nitrogen," said an official of Union Carbide Canada Ltd.

One department store chain told of building up warehouse inventories in recent weeks, while the steel industry felt it would not be seriously affected.

William Dunlop, president of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce, said Winnipeg's geographic location would make the effects doubly serious.

"We have to make sure we have that the utmost amounts of wheat can be shipped to ports."

NOT ENOUGH DRIVERS

Hume Gibson, president of the CMA's Maritime division, said many firms producing market goods would resort to highway transport but operations would be severely limited.

One problem for trucking firms is the shortage of drivers.

Harvey Scott, assistant general manager of Manitoba Pool Elevators, said the federal government should intervene and prevent the strike.

"As far as we can see it, the western Canadian farmer will be one of the first to suffer from this. And if he suffers the whole western Canadian economy will feel it very quickly."

Some trucking officials in Montreal have said firms cannot afford to operate additional equipment during a strike because of the sudden decrease in business back to normal levels which would follow settlement of a rail lineup.

In Montreal, officials of the 1967 World's Fair expressed fears that a rail strike would delay their preparations.

Garnet Brown, president of a Halifax food firm, said if the strike lasts one week the Halifax food industry will be hard hit. "We'll have to rely on trucks and increase our stocks."

James Mingo, chairman of the Port of Halifax, said the port, now in the slow season, would be minimally affected. All cargo coming into Halifax moves by rail, except grain which comes mostly by vessel during the summer.

Nova Scotia's premier, Robert Stanfield, said a strike could be serious "for the whole country" if it lasts any length of time.

The province's major power utility, Nova Scotia Light and Power, said its coal and oil operated generating facilities will continue functioning since adequate supplies could be brought to them by ship.

In Sydney, N.S., a spokesman for Dosco said the strike likely would not idle the collieries.

However steel shipments, 83 per cent by rail, 13 by vessel and two by truck, would be affected.

Drafting of Canada As Member of UN Security Council Seen

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It looks as if Canada will be drafted soon by Western European governments as a member of the United Nations Security Council for the next two years.

Canada hasn't preached for such a call by any bloc and it is difficult to imagine a more ticklish international position in which this country could be placed.

Canada is supporting voluntary economic sanctions against white-supremacist Rhodesia but a concerted Commonwealth effort has so far failed to bring down the Rhodesian government led by Ian Smith. Another Commonwealth p r i m e ministers' conference on Rhodesia will be held next month.

The African nations are becoming more and more restless; most strong debate and resolutions are expected at the 21st General Assembly, opening Sept. 20, on Rhodesia, the Portuguese territories of southern Africa and on Southwest Africa, mandated to South Africa in 1919 by the League of Nations.

Canada's position is that the General Assembly cannot invoke sanctions or call for the use of force in these situations; that this responsibility belongs to the Security Council.

FACES PROBLEM

If a member of the security council, Canada would be faced with the problem of probable new demands by the Africans for mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia — and against South Africa if it flouted such sanctions.

The Canadian government is understood to feel that the UN as a whole is not prepared to use force to make mandatory sanctions stick. Most peacekeeping operations by the UN now have to be financed on a "community chest" basis of voluntary contributions.

Only 20 to 25 of the UN's 117 members have made contributions to try to get the UN out of financial debt brought on by peacekeeping operations.

At the UN General Assembly, Canada will make another attempt to put peacekeeping operations on a sounder basis so that the recurrent financing problem can be avoided.

Other questions which will be debated in the General Assembly include disarmament. Communist Chinese membership, a report on the UN conference on trade and development, a proposed organization for industrial development, food aid and recommendations on UN fiscal practices.

But African matters are expected to dominate the session, even to the extent that debate on issues may be held over to the next session with the opening general debate.

Successful Living

Finds Aspirins Among Birth Control Pills

DEAR DORIS — You, Doris, are the only person that I can turn to in this uncertain and unbearable predicament. I'm terribly depressed and discouraged.

My daughter is 16 and very well built and mature for her age. As a result, she is constantly on the go, and comes home very often (more than four nights a week) too late for a girl her age. To put the top on the whole affair, I've been finding aspirins as a substitute for my birth control pills. My husband and I have come to the conclusion that we have raised a slut.

DORIS CLARE

What I am ever going to do I don't know. What is your solution? — PERTURBED.

DEAR PERTURBED — I'm perturbed — not at your girl, but about you. How did you get to the point where you could look at your own daughter as at a stranger you would label with an unkind name.

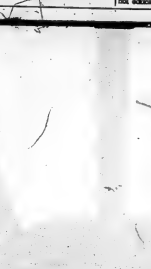
What happened when she sought to question you, years ago? Do you welcome her friends in your home? Do you never put limits on her curfew time? Have you stopped talking woman to woman, if you ever did.

Somehow she has been allowed more freedom than she can handle.

My advice at this point would be a right-about-face toward making your home as open house for her friends; a reasonable limit on dates-per-week and a discussion with her and the B.F. about the time she is expected home.

Put the pills where she can't find them. This subject will have to wait until you and she begin believing in each other again.

* * *



(Do you wonder why people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

Report Given Of W.C.T.U. Summer Camp

The Consecon Children's Camp under the direction of the Women's Christian Temperance Unions of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward Counties report a most successful year.

Belleville is interested in this camp because in 1957 it contributed toward the payment of the camp site, which amounted to over $3,200 contributed by doctors, business men and others. All were interested and a report is published each year.

This camp is used during July and August by many different groups regardless of class or creed and is a non-profit camp.

This year the group under W.C.T.U. had the camp the first ten days of July and other groups will continue to the end of August. This group enrolled 68, 15 of which came from Toronto with the Director Miss Edna Grant. Other places represented were Napanee, Kingston and Picton. Awards were given at the end of the session to campers who had done outstanding work and honor badges in swimming, craft, Bible verses memorized, nature study, sports and alcohol education.

PARIS INFLUENCE OBVIOUS—Czech fashions, which will be shown daily at Expo '67 next year, are influenced by Paris, as are Canadian fashions. In the centre is a lemon pleated georgette cocktail dress, and at right, a cotton afternoon dress in blue-green print. The pure wool afternoon dress features a brown leather belt. (CP Photo)

Czech Gowns Due for Expo Viewing

By MARGARET NESS

PRAGUE (CP) — Czechoslovakia will present a daily fashion show at Expo 67 next year so some Canadian reporters were invited to see current Czech fashions at Salon Eva and the Institute of Interior and Fashion Design in the capital.

In the salon collection the influence of Paris was just as noticeable as in our own styling. One cream dress in a diagonal weave combined a high roll collar and a low-slung brown leather belt. Several skirts were knife-pleated. One was in sea-green wool crepe with a flipak flirt to the skirt.

Prices were extremely reasonable for haute couture designs, with individual fittings. A sleeveless pink knitted dress with white V-banding from the shoulders cost only $20. A gold-lace short formal with motif of brilliants and a raised pattern of lace daisies appliqued on the skirt was $105.

The ready-to-wear collection compared most favorably with any collections I have seen in Europe, London or New York. Mixed in the present trend were industrial slipped corduroy costumes and several interesting ski outfits. One black-and-white nylon jacket was printed in op-art design and sported a white fake fur collar. The pretty model wore white stretch pants.

Completely up-to-the-minute was a white cotton suit with pink-and-white gingham blouse and a big pussycat bow. I was intrigued by one hat which appeared in several fabrics and colors. It was identical to the hat featured by Sally Victor of New York in her spring collection and inspired by Manet's painting, Boy with Cherries, even to the cigar-butt effect, standing up on the top of the hat.

WATCH WORLD SCENE

An international flavor to Czech fashions is no accident. The institute, founded in 1949 when the fashion industry had been completely destroyed during the Second World War, has sends representatives abroad to keep up with the trends.

The institute creates 80 own designs and shows them twice a year to the ready-to-wear manufacturers, who are not compelled to accept the styles shown.

About 40 per cent of Czechoslovakia's total trade with Canada is in textiles, Vilem Havelka, the Czech public relations officer for Expo 67 explained, so clothes count at both ends of the deal.

Most Czech designers are women, often university-trained and with a practical appreciation for fabric — production or design.

The fashion industry seems to be flourishing in Czechoslovakia, although there are only two "enterprises" for women's and two for men's clothes, which we would call couturiers and tailors. There are about 60 companies making ready-to-wear garments.

At the Eva salon, 80 models are shown every six months. The staff numbers 200 and there are about 2,000 customers.

Duplicate Bridge Session

Would you believe that there once lived in England a nobleman who had a standing wager that he would not hold a hand without an honor, without even a ten? This Lord Yarborough must have had many takers for it is recorded that during his card-playing life-time he made many thousands of pounds out of his pet bet. The wonder is that so many players took him up on it as the odds were almost 2,000 to 1 on his side. At any rate he developed a sure source of artificial interest in weak hands.

Today in duplicate bridge when every hand held, weak or strong, is of the same value as any other in one's final score, it profits a player to take a real interest, and try to make the most even of a "Yarborough".

Consider for example the following sets of hands: East, spades 8, 5; hearts, A, Q; diamonds, 10, 7; clubs, A, K, Q, 9, 6, 4, 3; South spades, A, K, 10, 9, 7, 3; hearts 10, 6; diamonds, Q, 9; clubs, J, 10, 5; West spades, 4, 2; hearts, 9, 8, 7, 5, 3; North, spades, Q, J, 6; hearts, K, J, 3, 2; diamonds, A, K, J 8; clubs, 8, 7.

After East opens the bidding with 1 Club, South eventually reaches a contract of 4 Spades, and West leads naturally, the 5 of Clubs. Looking at all four hands, one can easily see that when East takes this trick with the Queen, and returns the Ace of Clubs, West should trump his partner's Ace, and lead a Heart through the King-Jack, and thus set the Contract, and that quite in this way can the defence win. This example shows aptly how important even a "Yarborough" can be.

The next Duplicate Bridge is on Tuesday, August 23, at 7.30, at the Golf Club. Everyone is welcome, and novice players are especially invited to try the game.

Mother-to-Be Places High In Tourney

HAMILTON (CP)—One Hamilton mother-to-be has no intention of sitting home knitting until the baby arrives. She prefers to heave a 16-pound bowling ball.

Mrs. William J. Campbell is pretty good at it, too. She took sixth place in this year's Tournament of the Americas in Miami and that makes her sixth best woman tenpin bowler in North and Latin America.

Joyce Campbell, Mrs. Harold Schatz of Hamilton, Mrs. Donald McLachlan of Oshawa, Ont., and Mrs. William Wetzman of Streetsville, Ont., were chosen to represent Canada in the week-long tournament.

"My doctor said it was all right to bowl, and if I felt OK there was no reason why I couldn't go," says Joyce, expecting her baby in the fall.

She bowled 36 games in six days. Although her condition didn't bother her "it slowed me down because I was scared to bowl too hard in case I hurt the baby."

"I'm pretty sure I could have placed second or third if it weren't for the baby."

Organizers said they'll try again next year—with a different title.

Grannie Has Moved In With Man in Seventies

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please do not think this letter is hoax. I need help before my married children find out what heir grandmother is doing.

My widowed mother, who is her 70's, has oved in with a man about the same age. mother refused to live with any of her children and she won't live with another woman. She ill lose her share of my father's pension and social security if she remarries. The man she has moved in with is on a modest pension and is not covered by social security. They both are more content better than either of them could ve alone.

Mother has always been adored by her grandchildren and shudder to think what their reaction will be when they learn bout her new way of life.

The two are planning a winter vacation in Florida and October says she is prepared to ignore the gossip. She told me yesterday, "We enjoy one another and have a good life together. There is nothing immoral about our arrangement, I am his unpaid housekeeper. We have separate bedrooms and so long as we are straight with the Lord we feel it is nobody's business."

Please advise. — DAUGHTER OF A DELINQUENT.

DEAR DAUGHTER: It may well be that nothing immoral is going on, but this living arrangement certainly does give the appearance of a delectable morsel to chew on.

My advice is to make no judgments, no apologies and no excuses. If your children have questions, suggest that they talk to your mother. The burden of explaining should be on her, not you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife has been told by more than one doctor that she must go on a strict diet and stop smoking or she will not live more than a few years.

The woman is only 40. She refuses to do either and it is driving me crazy. Whenever I say something to her about lighting one cigarette off the other or taking for a second helping of potatoes she gets angry and snaps, "Will you please stop nagging me?"

I know she reads your column faithfully. Can you say something to her that I haven't said? — A HUSBAND.

DEAR HUSBAND: Probably not, but I'd like to say something to you.

When people continue to smoke, eat — and yes, drink excessively — after a doctor has warned that it could kill them, it means only one thing. It means they don't care if they live or die, in fact they may subconsciously wish to be dead. So you see it is not a matter of gluttony, or a lack of discipline. The real question is how do you get people to want to go on living?

STRUDEL VARIATIONS

In May in response to a reader's request I gave a recipe here for Strudel. Subsequently I received letters from four readers, all of different European nationalities, criticizing my method. One said her baked strudel pastry was as hard as shoe leather. Another said she used oil, not butter. Another said egg made the dough tough. The chief objection was about rolling pastry vs. crumbs in filling.

I was dismayed for these girls all seemed to be knowing strudel makers. Since then I have made apple and pizza-apple strudels and oil, but I reserve all of the corrections, being guided too, by a Ukrainian cook of my acquaintance. I know I cannot please everybody but European strudels are as different as Canadian apple pies.

Strudels are very difficult to make so only attempt this tedious but delicious pastry when you are full of energy and patience.

Dinner Menu

Moore

Broiled or Fried Shoulders/ Lamb Chops; Mint Jelly or Sauce; Fresh Frozen Shoestring Potatoes; Shredded Green Cabbage; Hard Rolls; Sliced Peaches and Cream; Tea.

STRUDEL — APPLE NUT AND PINEAPPLE NUT:

Dough: 1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ tsp. salt, 1 egg, 1/3 cup lukewarm water.

Sift flour and salt into mixing bowl, make hole in centre, add egg and water and mix. Turn out on floured board and knead for 20 minutes steadily. Get help from your right hand man when you tire. Dough should be perfectly smooth and elastic. Cover with large warm bowl and let stand for 30 min. to 1 hour. (Or if desired wrap in triple plastic bag and let stand overnight on kitchen counter — not in refrigerator.

Filling No. 1: 6 to 8 cups 20-oz. tin crushed pineapple, well drained ,10 tbsps. finely rolled cracker crumbs, ¾ cup finely chopped walnuts, ½ cup sugar, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ¼ cup slowly melted butter.

Mix filling ingredients but reserve about 1 tbsp. melted butter from either one to brush dough when it is rolled out. The next step is difficult and the most important characteristic of strudel. I advise you to do it in two operations. Cut floured dough in half. Place one half on lightly floured large smooth tea towel or cloth and roll it out as thinly as possible — about 1 foot square — with rolling pin. Flour your hands lightly, place one hand, palm down, under dough and stretch gently with the other towards edge of table. Keep the dough by lifting it gently. Carefully stretch all over until you can see through it. One-half of the dough I stretched measured 32 x 18". You should not tear it or allow it to fold over on itself and should keep lowest lightly enough floured to prevent sticking. With your pastry brush it with melted butter and spread with half of filling to within 1" of edges. Start rolling from one corner and roll diagonally into a long roll. Mine was 36" long. Tuck this ends under. Carefully lift to buttered cookie sheet and shape into a curve. Brush top thoroughly with melted butter. Repeat with second half of dough and filling. Place at least 3" from first roll on cookie sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 min. then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 min. or until rolls are crisp and golden. Cut into 1" slices and serve warm. It took me an hour to make 1952 was eaten in 10 min. — but it was wonderful.

'Foreign Children' Blamed For Very Bad Behavior

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — "Look at that!" said the indignant Muscovite who works around a Moscow apartment building and is copied by foreigners. She was pointing at a couple of shattered switches in the dimly-lit lobby.

"Foreign children," she said, growing more agitated. "Very badly behaved. Our Russian children would never do a thing like that."

"Look at that!" said another such worker a few days later, pointing at some scrawly chalk marks on the walls of the elevator. "Foreign children. . . . Our Russian children would never do anything like that."

The antics of foreign children living here hold many Russians in fascination. All, however, are as upset by what they see.

Some take secret satisfaction from the fact that foreign youngsters — at least a good many — appear to act up more than Russian kids.

To the odd Russian, the skittishness is but one more mark of the "decadence" of Western civilization.

"Perhaps our children are better organized," said a Moscow mother cautiously during a discussion of some new incident. She meant to suggest that Soviet children really are brought up. And you could see she was pleased.

WALLS DEFACED

Not all Russians see the difference in cultural terms but for those who do there is plenty of pictorial evidence in tenement buildings occupied by foreigners.

In one such building, a big 16-storey structure, walls have been defaced at practically every floor. Armed with ordinary chalk scribbling there have appeared at times a wide assortment of provocative drawings.

There are at least 20 nationalities represented among families living in the apartment block and foreign adults themselves wonder what manner of child from what exotic land produced the drawings.

Other forms of childish misdemeanor include using the elevators as toilets and, in winter, pelting passers-ups with snowballs.

In contrast, Russian children seem definitely less inclined to kick up their heels. I have seen them in classrooms and in school corridors and there it far less noise, far less setting up and generally less turmoil than you would find in a comparable crowd in a Western country.

In addition, however, there is noticeably less spark and sparkle, less straining at the leash mentality as well as physically; greater acceptance of things as they are.

NEED TO STRETCH

Sitting too long in one position, while travelling or watching television, has been found to be a cause of leg thrombosis.

MORE ON STARCH

For the white collar man (I prefer the blue stripe type myself) who insists on heavily starched cuffs and collars, I still have great respect for good old dry starch which must be prepared with boiling water.

Absolutely no one can argue with the glorious, board - like finish you can get every time. The kind of body that defies liter dipping and squeezing and keeps a stiff upper tab right through the whole day, and . . . the price is right!

However, some of the preparation of liquid starches (many have bleaching added) perform almost the same tasks when used as directed and they are a cinch to use. As might be expected, the cost is considerably higher.

Packaged instant starch is excellent for starching a whole load of clothes at once. Try this.

Depending on degree of stiffness desired, fill or half-fill tub or machine. Gradually add contents of a 10-ounce packa g e of instant laundry starch. Stir briskly as you work or allow machine to agitate.

Add the clothes and stir well again. Do not rinse. Simply damp dry and iron immediately; or thoroughly dry and agitate, and roll in a damp towel or plastic material to hold for ironing. Ironing temperatures is always important. Set iron carefully at temperature recommended for the fabric then let it about three minutes, 'till the iron is ready with a good steady heat. Too hot a temperature r e causes sticking — too high a temperature causes scorching.

You can rotate as a n e x t r a smooth finish and produce gleaming bankies that the man in your life will be proud to wear, and wash the freshly laundered hankies well through the solution.

DAMPENING PLAYS A PART

For optimum ironing results, fabrics must be evenly and sparingly with water. Do not rob tightly — just firmly.

Stretching can be avoided by ironing with the fabric weave. Best results are obtained by ironing small areas first — save the wide open swoopy spaces 'til the last.

Since dark cottons don't like to mingle, separate them from the lighty articles before laundering. Wring out thoroughly after finging and squeezing through the starch solution several times, and t h e n always iron them on the wrong side to prevent a big happy shine from appearing on the right side.

A touch-up on the right side is allowed if a pressing c l o t h is used. Apply this rule to s i l k s, acetates and rayons as well, unstarched of course.

Your Car

Don't Let Lights Lead You Astray

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

At midnight, life can Changed into a hearse; It seems he had taken A turn for the worse.

Dead-white headlights have decupied many a car off a winding road. And, more often than not, the beams themselves were blameless. Headlights had become nearsighted because of a failing battery, heavy corrosion or looseness at cable terminals, improper generator (or alternator) charge — or dirt. That dirt on the lenses which dimmed and distorted the beams.

But, it's not only what's up front that counts.

Rear vision guard — tail lights and stop lights — are just as vital to night driving s afety. Burned out bulbs or fuses are the most common trouble, here. After that, check stop light switch, terminals, socket connections.

If both tail lights and stop lights won't light, or if they are brighter, the bulbs are incorrectly installed. Just remove them, turn them halfway around and reinsert.

From E. G.: "For a pinhole leak in a tubeless tire, use a 'tire dope' that is put in from the side without taking the tire off the rim."

Some plugs can. But this is recommended only for temporary repair.

L. P. writes: "If the steering system feels like a real jackpot, what would cause a sudden steering 'feel'?"

Front wheel bearing wear or looseness.

C. R. asks: "I have a '55 six-cylinder sedan which I bought new. It has driven 96,000 miles. A week ago, I noticed oil in the radiator water, so I checked it, found it and refilled. Now, there's an oil film on the water again. Where is it coming from?"

It's engine oil, getting into the cooling system. A damaged cylinder head gasket.

From. R. H.: "Despite a recent ignition and carburetion tune-up, my engine continues to stall at traffic stops, climbing hills, at cruising speeds — anytime I go above 30 mph."

This could be due to a sticking valve, or a weak valve spring.

Blueberry Growers Wage Battle Against Starlings

UNEMPLOYMENT UP — A record number of teen-agers flooded the job market in July, causing unemployment to jump from 230,000 in June. For the first month in 1966, the July total equalled the number of unemployed for the corresponding month of 1965. Issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the immigration department's manpower division the report put the unemployment rate at 2.1 per cent. Adjustment to discount seasonal factors increases the percentage to 2.3 compared to 2.7 per cent in June.

(CP Newsmap)

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Blueberry growers in the pinch part of the Fraser Valley are waging a full-scale battle to save a bumper crop from starlings.

Last year starlings ate 125 tons of the berries, worth $62,000. This summer, with a crop estimated at 80,250 tons, birds are looking for an even bigger feast.

Bill Hughes, assistant to the senior biologist for the Canadian Wildlife Service in British Columbia, said 20,000 starlings were roosting daily in one block on Lulu Island.

Senior biologist Bob Harris said: "This is only the beginning. Within a few weeks we'll have many more thousands. We only will they wreck the latter half of the crop but they'll present a constant danger to aircraft."

Farmers are using nearly 100 acoustic guns in addition to standard shotguns—to kill or frighten away the birds. The acoustic guns, which fire blanks mechanically all day, resemble infantry mortars or mounted bazookas.

Frank Shaw, one of the more than 300 growers, has one acre under "protective netting" and still has to employ six starling traps, six acetylene guns and two shotguns.

"It's costing about $1,000 for stuff to secure them off," he said. "I don't know how much I will do any good but we'll try. Dead-peop-lee just left the last load of the crop and they found they wouldn't be scared away."

Some farmers have tried using tape - recorded starling warning cries amplified many times but the birds apparently get used to the so - called "shrieks of terror" and other scare tactics.

An estimated 300,000 starlings spent the winter in Vancouver and Victoria and the birds they have their crops attacked eventually by flocks of 800,000,such as were reported in parts of the eastern United States in recent years.

Teetotalling Algeria Flooded By Ocean of Rich Red Wine

Algeria—a major wine producer, is having trouble disposing of its output. Most of the wine produced is drunk at home by Moslems who abstain from alcohol; France is cutting down its imports; the dilemma facing Algeria is described by a Canadian Press reporter who visited the country.

By PETER BUCKLEY

ALGIERS (CP)—Oceans of rich red wine seem about to flow over Moslem Algeria's Mediterranean coastline.

To a remarkable degree, Algerians and other North Africans obey the Islamic law forbidding beer or the occasional whisky, particularly if they have already sampled the temptations of Paris or other international cities during their studies.

But even in the nightclubs of Casablanca or Algiers or Tunis, the standard drink for Moslems is a Coke. In the countryside, Moslem seen drinking liquor could expect the full weight of the law and public opinion to fall on him.

Nevertheless, vineyards rich cover almost 1,000,000 acres of Algeria, 10 per cent of the agricultural land. Wine remains the country's second largest export item after crude oil from the Saharacraving $155,000,000 abroad last year despite a drop in French purchases.

The producers of vin ordinaire in France, faced with a surplus of their own, have been pressing the French government to reduce the amount of Algerian wine imported, at a bonus price—under post-independence agreements between the two countries.

PRICE TOO HIGH

Last year Paris took only about three-quarters of the amount earlier agreed on and there is a possibility of further cuts this year.

Algerian government policy is to divert some of the older, less-productive vineyards to other uses. Even this program has drawbacks since vineyards require many members of workers—than most other forms of agriculture and Algeria already has a drastic unemployment problem.

There have been attempts to develop non-alcoholic grape drinks or convert to table-rine grapes. Neither has proved a success.

Nor has the government had much luck selling its wine outside France.

France began buying inflated prices for Algerian wine years ago as a form of agricultural subsidy to Algerian settlers. Observers say the cost to consumers in other markets, per Algerian has consistently sought a similar price for its wine elsewhere.

"It's almost an insoluble dilemma," said one Westerner in Algiers. "Algeria can't stop producing wine, it can't consume it and can't sell it. It's too bad it can't be used to irrigate the desert."

Tomorrow: Self - management proves mixed blessing in Algeria.

Pinch Hitting

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Sid Forster, popular co-coach of the Belleville Kenmore senior baseball club of a few years back, drove through town this past weekend on a holiday trip.

Sid passed along regards to his friends in town and checked on the baseball situation.

He also had some startling news.

"Believe it or not, I have switched to football (softball) up around Windsor. I never thought much of the game before but it surprised me," he said.

Forster is hooked up with a top Senior "A" club, in a coaching capacity, in the Windsor area.

The club has had a pretty successful season to date, winning one four-team tournament where each club put up $500, winner take all.

Sid says his team plays in an International League but is the only Canadian team entered, "and the OASA is not too happy about us playing in the States." The team is entered in the OASA Senior "A" playdowns.

Forster hopes to get together with some of his Belleville buddies at next spring's OASA Convention, in Toronto.

According to a representative of the Quinte Tennis Club, that organization has a very uncertain future.

In a report turned in on the weekend about the annual Kingston-Belleville home-and-home competition for the Doug Grant Trophy, it was stated that this city could not produce a fully representative team. Kingston won 14 matches to Quinte's one on Sunday.

It was also noted that the Grant competition was the only one in which the Quinte club is participating this summer.

"Considerable difficulty has been encountered in maintaining the membership of the Quinte Club which faces an uncertain future," said the report.

No reason was given for the fact but it was stated that many younger players have dropped out of play.

Not too many years ago, the Quinte Club belonged to a competitive league that included entries from Batawa, Trenton, Campbellford, Trenton and others, if our memory serves us correctly.

Apparently, unless something is done along the lines of a league or tournaments to keep the young players interested, the sport is in danger of fading away altogether here.

Who is going to win the Commercial Softball League championship this fall?

One league follower picks City Hotel and Lightfoots to meet in the finals, but wants to be around that. If our crystal-ball gazer hits the mark on his prediction, it means that third-place City must eliminate the Point Anne team that ended in first by a mile and fourth-place Lightfoots must knock off the runner-up Stewart Warner team.

It's a highly-competitive league and we would not risk the price of an Ernie's draft on any of the clubs.

Point Anne took the playoff crown last year but they picked up steam by just nosing into the fourth and final playoff spot after a sudden-death game. Perhaps their runaway with the loop this year does not leave them as win-hungry for playoffs. That's what happened to City last but the Hotelmen just might reverse the procedure this year.

Lightfoots can score runs but they seem to have a lot scored against them for a club that hopes to cop the crown.

Stewart Warner appears to have the best overall balance but also seem to be slump-prone.

Just for the sake of crawling out on a limb, we'll back our earlier informant and call the young and speedy Consentmen to clash with the Waterman's for the title. It should be a tidy tussell between Point Anne's Ron Maracle and Stewart Warner's Doug Ellis.

But, like him, we won't guess at a winner.

Dominion Bowling

Ont. Takes Early Lead

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sparked by an outstanding performance by Gord McMillan of Oshawa, Ontario moved into the early lead Monday in the Canadian lawn bowling championship.

McMillan's three victories in the singles competition, plus two wins in each the pairs and teams event, gave Ontario a one-game aggregate lead over British Columbia which had two wins in each of the three divisions.

McMillan swamped Him Hole of Edmonton 21-8 and then stopped Howard Gorman of Halifax 22-14. In the third game, he took out John Henderson of Westmount, Que., 20-8. In fact a bye in today's first round.

In the doubles event, British Columbia was unbeaten in three games. Doug Coyle and Andy Rae of Vancouver stopped W. Wallace and A. J. Church of Alberta 17-14. Then they took out George Robbins and Ron Jones of London, Ont., 14-10 before taking a 20-13 decision from the Winnipeg pair of Ed Brown and Stan Townsend.

Ontario had an unblemished 2-0 record in the teams competition. Allan Bradley's Kitchener team defeated Tom Hunter of Lachine, Que., 24-12 and then trounced Peter Whalen of Nova Scotia 18-7.

Saskatchewan and Quebec both have 2-1 records in the teams.

Manitoba came out of the first day's competition without a victory. Three draws were scheduled today with a final round Wednesday.

18-17 Squeaker ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Runback Was Key

Eskimos Nip Riders, Vacate Cellar

By JIM MEAVES

REGINA (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos climbed out of the Western Football Conference cellar Monday night, over the backs of Saskatchewan Roughriders by squeaking an 18-17 victory.

Eaks coach Neil Armstrong said that while his defensive squad was too cautious in the second half, the offence was greatly improved.

But the defence was the key to unlocking the cellar door and moving Edmonton to third spot in the league with a 3-3 record and four points, two behind Saskatchewan with six points and a 3-2-1 record and Winnipeg, also with six points, on a 3-1 record.

The big play was halfback Fred Wilkes' 32-yard return of a short kick by Saskatchewan's Jack Abendschan early in the second quarter as the Eaks trailed 8-0. At halftime Edmonton led 18-4 with the Roughriders scoring a field, getting the third quarter and an unconverted touchdown in the final minute of play.

Rider coach Eagle Keys agreed the punt return for the touchdown was the turning point.

"That shook everything up. The defence didn't really recover until the third quarter. They should have had plenty of chances but we just didn't take advantage of them."

Abendschan opened the scoring in the first quarter with a single and then converted quarterback Ron Lancaster's touchdown.

Tommy-Joe Coffey added six points in the second quarter court with two converts, a single and a field goal, Garry Lefebvre responded out Eaks' scoring, catching a Handy, Kerbow pass for a 32-yard touchdown.

A crowd of 6,000 saw Lancaster move his squad to the Edmonton 25 from the Saskatchewan 38 to set up Abendschan's third-quarter field goal.

In the fourth quarter Kerbow fumbled on the option at the Riders' 43. Gene Wlaziuk recovered for Saskatchewan and one pass later, as the clock moved into the final minute, Lancaster hit Gord Rowland in the end zone. But Abendschan missed the convert and the chance to give Regina a tie.

Lancaster completed 18 of 36 passes for 308 yards and kept the ball six times to gain 30 yards on the ground, including his touchdown.

Kerbow gained only 45 yards on three completions in 14 pass attempts, but guided the Eaks to 180 yards along the ground compared with the Riders' 71.

Quarterback Steve of Edmonton's hard-charging defence, the Roughriders had 28 first downs compared with Edmonton's 12 but were unable to use them to advantage.

Jim Thomas, a three-year Eskimo, retained his lead in WFC rushing, adding 89 yards for a total of 626. His longest of 12 carries was 28 yards.

Saskatchewan's George Reed, who won the conference rushing record last year, carried 12 times for 64 yards—his longest sight—to give him a tally of 570 yards in second place, well behind Thomas.

But Reed caught three of Lancaster's passes good for 40 yards, and shaded teammate Hugh Campbell who was held scoreless, gathering in three of four passes for 67 yards.

Grant Opens Big Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One productive night moved veteran halfback Tommy Grant into a commanding lead in the Eastern Football Conference scoring standings.

Grant, an 11-year man with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who was locked in a three-way tie for first place last week, scored three touchdowns against Toronto Argonauts Saturday night and took a 15-point lead in the scoring race.

Grant's three touchdowns gave him five for the season and, with 11 games to go, he seems almost certain to surpass his personal high of eight touchdowns in one season.

Peter Kempf, picked up by Montreal Alouettes from British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, is second place with 15 points while Don Setherin of Hamilton has 13 in third place.

Kempf has kicked three converts and two field goals to go with the one touchdown he has scored. Setherin has six converts, two field goals and a single to his credit.

The rushing department is led by Bob Paremore, an American sprint star who went to Montreal from Atlanta Falcons of the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League. Paremore has gained 570 yards on 83 attempts for a 6.4 average and one touchdown.

Paremore leads a nine-yard lead over Bo Scott of Ottawa Rough Riders, but Scott has only averaged 4.9 yards on 41 carries.

TOPS IN CATCHING

Bobby Taylor of Toronto Argonauts, an off-season acquisition from Calgary Stampeders of the WFC, is top in the pass catching department with 18 receptions for 258 yards and a 14.3 average. He has scored one touchdown.

Grant is second in this category with 11 catches for 195 yards and a 17.7 average.

Russ Jackson of Ottawa retained his lead in the passing department, 21 completions on 36 attempts for 361 yards and four touchdowns. He has a .554 average. Frank Cosentino of Hamilton is second with a .379 average on 406 yards. He has completed 22 of 58.

Larry Fairholm of Montreal and Setherin remained tied in pass interceptions with three while Willie Bethea leads in kickoff returns with an average of 36.8 in five runbacks.

Toronto's Dave Mann leads with a 42.3 average on 27 punts. Joe Zuger, the East's top punter the last two years, is second with a 41.6 average.

Jim Copeland of Toronto leads in punt returns with an average of 7.3 yards on 18 carries.

Protest Voted Down In Departmental

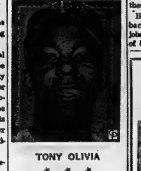
A protest by the Intelligencer against Public Works was turned down by a Commons vote at a special Departmental Softball League meeting last night.

The Intelligencer leads the three-of-five set two games to one. One game was tied and another, the one concerning the protest, was called off by the Public Works.

In the other semi-final, City Hall leads Fire Department 2-0 and they are scheduled for Hillcrest School at 6.30 tonight, and again Thursday if necessary.

Game time, starting Monday of next week, has been advanced to 6.00 p.m. due to early darkness.

The final series will be a four-of-seven, played as close as possible after the completion of the semi-finals. League president Al Rump said Public Works nights for the finals. He is also attempting to secure a better playing field for the finals of but has had no success to date.



A letter concerning several matters is being sent to the umpires by the league. Other clarifications of certain league matters were also discussed.

Says Records Will Fall

'Sliver' Picks Oliva To Hit .400

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Williams, former batting star of the American League Boston Red Sox, said Monday he believes several baseball records will be broken in the next decade.

TONY OLIVIA

Williams, who batted .406 in 1941 to become the only major league player to average .400 mark in modern times, said opportunities are the determining factor in setting sports records.

"A new batter in a league is not known to the pitchers and he has an ideal opportunity to break or set a record. It's an opportunity that usually only comes once in a career."

He told a press conference at the Canadian National Exhibition that in the next five years he expects to see at least five major league players top the 300 homer mark.

He also expects his own modern-time record of a .406 batting average will be broken.

"I'd say Oliva (Tony Oliva) is the batter most likely to do it. He's young, strong and a good hitter."

But the trend in the big leagues today is for more home runs and fewer base hits, bringing lower batting averages.

New ball parks, night games and traveling also make a difference in players. Some ball parks are easier to hit in and use of relief pitchers also keeps averages down.

Williams retired from baseball in 1960 after playing 25 years of professional ball, 20 of them in the major leagues.

He said he had turned his back on major league baseball jobs because he had had enough of baseball.

Rain Erases Numerous Playoffs

Rain played havoc with the ball schedules last night, erasing playoff games left and right.

Two Commercial semi - final games were washed out, and one of them, Point Anne vs. City Hotel, has been re-scheduled for King George School at 6.30 tonight, weather permitting. The other series, between Lightfoots and Stewart Warner, goes under the lights at the Alemite Wednesday.

Also postponed was the Departmental playoff between the Intelligencer and Public Works. They are scheduled again Wednesday, at 6.30, while City Hall and Fire Department play in their semi - final tonight.

Trudeau Motors at Peterborough, slated for 8.30 last night, was switched to this evening, same time and same place. The return game is at the Alemite here Thursday.

Peterborough and Belleville Midgets han their third and deciding game washed out and it will be played, in Madoc, tonight at 6.30.

Also coming up in OASA playdowns: Belleville SACO batmans travel to Scarborough for 8.00 p.m. Wednesday, with the second back here sometime on the weekend; Ellis Juniors trek to Peterborough for a series opener at 8.15 Thursday; and Point Anne plays host to Madoc in their second game tomorrow evening, at 6.00.

So Says Lawyer

Meet 'Rev. Cassius Clay!'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The lawyer for heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said Monday he will appeal to Clay's local draft board for a deferment on grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister.

"This is something that should have been brought to light in the first place," said Hayden Covington. "It's been hidden under a bushel basket and. It's my duty to bring it to light."

Covington, who handled hundreds of Jehovah's Witnesses cases during the Second World War, will represent Clay at a hearing today on the champion's appeal as a conscientious objector.

"This does not mean he will change his appeal," Covington said. "It merely means that this man is both a conscientious objector and a minister."

"Muhammad Ali (Clay's Muslim name) was appointed a field minister of the Muslims by the Elijah Muhammad in 1964," Covington said.

Covington said the ministry appeal was not connected directly with his appeal as a conscientious objector, but would go directly to Clay's local board, age.

"Gives Us New Personality"

Stamps Send Liske To Defuse Bombers

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bud Grant heads three more regular-season victories to reach 100 as a Western Football Conference head coach.

Grant directs Winnipeg Blue Bombers in search of number 86 tonight in a non-televised clash with Calgary Stampeders starting at 8 p.m. CDT. (8 p.m. EDT)

Grant, a Wisconsin native, is in his 10th season as Bombers coach, following two years as a player. The club record during the Grant era: First five times, second twice, four Grey Cups in seven appearances.

Right now, the Bombers want to make sure it's four since. They shared the top rank with Saskatchewan Roughriders, who is idle, at edged 15-17 by Edmonton Eskimos in Regina Monday night.

They went from Calgary great-manager Rogers Lobew is that. "The boys are feeling good." The Bombers' Stamp peoders tripped Saskatchewan 30-1 last Wednesday to send a three-game touchdown and victory drought.

Coach Jerry Williams intends to use the same lineup against Winnipeg, which means Pete Liske calling signals.

DAY NOT DOE

Williams says Liske provided the Stamps with a new personality, "we needed a change." He added that didn't mean that quarterback Eagle Day won't be back.

The Bombers last met Liske Aug. 7, 1965 in Toronto when Liske was wearing the Argonauts hue, and he passed the Boatmen silly for a 34-32 victory. For Winnipeg, it was the only defeat in their last eight matches of 1965.

Grant said the Bombers will not make any particular defensive adjustment because "Liske doesn't change Calgary's offense that much."

The Bombers did spend considerable time watching films of Willie Booker, new Calgary fullback replacing the injured Lovell Coleman. Acting as a personal bodyguard for Liske is the Saskatchewan game, Rose Greenwood the Bombers with his blocking.

Phil Minnick, who helps back the Winnipeg Boe, has a swollen ankle but is expected to be ready for Calgary, whose receiving strength Edmonton and British Columbia Lions partners.

Eskimo Roger Kramer has joined the Stampeders from Boston Lions of the National League but will not see action until Saturday night in Edmonton.

Pete Warren, a former Argonaut, has recovered from knee surgery and will be taken off the Calgary injury reserve list next week.

The Tracks

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP)—Cool Reception, a two-year-old filly by Nearctic, won the featured $2,000 Thoroid Purse Monday over seven furlongs on the heavy course at Fort Erie race track.

The colt, owned by Mrs. W. H. Seitz and Mrs. V. P. Lowe, was odds - on favorite and returned $3.20, $2.70 and $2.50. Goldcrest was second and Swamp Rabbit third.

It was the second win of the afternoon for Avelino Gomez, who rode Mugger Hogger to victory in the fifth race. The associator of Mugger Hogger and Spartan Girl returned $10.20.

Jockey Sally Goodale of Montreal won the first and Sackie Reed in the second paid $14.20.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue. A renowned research institute has found a healing substance with astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoidal pallidarin. It relieves itching and discomfort in most cases, and speed reduction of the injured inflamed tissue. In case after case, while not actually relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Mud Hens Halt Leafs; Jets Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rain prevented Rochester Red Wings from picking up half a game on first - place International League-leading Columbus Jets Monday night when a scheduled twin bill was cancelled between the Wings and Jacksonville Suns was halved.

Rochester won the first of two doubled games 6-1 while the Jets battered Buffalo Bisons 6-1. Columbus and host Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 while Richmond Braves and Syracuse Chiefs also were rained out.

Timely two - run singles by Mike Ferraro and Bill Bethea and three double plays proved the undoing of the Maple Leafs despite the heroics of Russ Gibson who was three-for-three at the plate, driving in all Toronto's runs.

Columbus' ace southpaw Wilbur Wood shaded his shutout streak to 25 innings before Jim Lefebvre belted a two-run homer in the third inning to enable Wood to notch his 12th victory against 10 setbacks.

Lee May got to Woods for a homer in the seventh inning, but by then the Jets had scored twice each in the fourth, fifth and sixth.

Frank Bertaina won his ninth game in 20 decisions for Rochester.

Gonder Paces Pirates

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jesse Gonder finally is catching up with Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson again, but he'd rather catch up with Yogi Berra.

Gonder, who was a high school chum of Robinson and Pinson, continued hitting like the two sluggers Monday night, rapping three hits as Pittsburgh Pirates edged Philadelphia Phillies 6-5 and maintained their one - percentage - point lead in the National League pennant race.

Gonder, a reserve catcher, has started the last three games for the Pirates and has collected eight hits in 13 at bats, raising his average 34 points to .305.

But as elated as Gonder is about his hitting, he prefers building his batting as a catcher an image he contends has been marred unjustifiably.

"I'm not a bad catcher," he said, "but to say this, but I have to blame the New York press. When I was with the Mets, the press was building the Mets' image. Any time a player did something wrong, they'd play it up big."

IT WASN'T FAIR'

"Like one day the headline read: 'Gonder drops pop fly, Mets lose.' I don't think I got a fair shake."

Gonder, 30, has traveled extensively since attending McClymonds High School in Oakland, Calif., with Robinson and Pinson.

He played with 11 minor league teams and four major league teams — both New York, Cincinnati Reds (NL) Milwaukee—before joining the Pirates this season.

He's still considered a second - stringer, but his pinch hitting prowess adds one more potent bat to the Pirates' already potent attack.

He's socked his only three doubles this season in the past two games, and his six homers are only one less than his major league career high of seven.

In other National League games, second - place San Francisco Giants defeated Cincinnati 5-2, Los Angeles Dodgers edged Atlanta Braves 4-3 in 10 innings, St. Louis Cardinals blanked Houston Astros 3-0 and Chicago Cubs downed New York Mets 8-4. There were no games scheduled in the American League.

BLUE POWERS RALLY

The Pirates added 14 other hits to Gonder's three. One was Bill Mazeroski's two-run triple which powered a four-run rally in the fifth inning. Mazeroski got the three ahead of Philadelphia 44 with the triple, then scored as Bob Bailey singled.

Hal Lanier scored on Leo Cardenas's fifth - inning single, putting San Francisco ahead 3-2, then added a two-run single in the eighth. Reliever Lindy McDaniel preserved the victory by blanking Cincinnati over the last six of the last four innings.

Lou Johnson's two - out run-scoring single in the ninth inning kept Los Angeles three games out of first. Ron Fairly's nine-out single tied the score in the third 3-3 in the eighth, but Atlanta tied it in the ninth on Mack Jones' sacrifice fly. Hank more to a room.

Argos, Als Looking For Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eddie Hatfield, slumbanging around the Eastern Football Conference with a record of 33, seems determined to prove that Hamilton's Tiger-Cats are a poor substitute for the old folks' home.

In the Ticats' 32-30 victory over Toronto Argonauts last weekend, Patterson caught two successive passes prior to the first touchdown and made key plays later that helped the Ticats defeat the Argos.

In the fourth quarter a completion for a key first down by Patterson, now in his 10th EFC season, was a big lead in arranging the final touchdown.

"Maybe we would have lost anyway," said Bob Shaw, Argo coach, "but it was that big play by Patterson that beat us."

That victory, Ticats's third in a row, moved them into a first-place tie with Ottawa Rough Riders. Each plays once before their Labor Day meeting at Hamilton.

The hapless Argos, winless in three starts, resumed workouts Monday for a tuneup with Riders next week and called on an airlift to bring in a production ground crew.

Reported in Toronto were halfback Ken Carson, formerly of New York Jets, guard Joe Abenzano, also of Jets and Roy Cosse, who was with Minnesota Vikings.

Ottawa's Riders had no serious injuries to report. They had a light practice Monday since their last game in Montreal Aug. 17. General manager Red O'Quinn said the layover to Aug. 30 was good coming at this time. Early in the season, it made players hungry to get back, he said.

Montreal players spot the lineup Montreal Alouettes are preping to throw at the Texas Westnight at Hamilton.

Newcomer George Kinsey, from Houston Oilers of the American Football League, will start at right defensive end.

Both quarterbacks Bernie Faloney and Sonny Homer will be dressed against Ticats.

HOW TO REGAIN SWING RHYTHM

More often than not, when a golfer falls into a slump, it is because his swing rhythm has been improperly altered. Whenever you find that you are consistently following to meet the ball squarely, I suggest you first try to restore a smooth rhythm to your swing.

A good way to regain rhythm is to practice hitting tee shots with your driver, while swinging this club as if it were a 9-iron. Don't give it a full driver swing (No. 1), but rather take a relatively shorter swing (No. 2) as if you were executing a shot of about 100 yards.

You will find it quite simple, using this technique, to meet the ball squarely. Once this is done, then proceed to gradually lengthen your swing until it becomes of regulation length for a driver.

This simple practice technique will help you regain feel and control of the whole swing and your normal swing rhythm will return.

Roger Millar Show Added To Variety on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Roger Miller, composer of You Can't Roller Skate In A Buffalo Herd and My Uncle Used To Love Me But She Died, may be just what television needs: A new variety star with style and personality all his own.

Miller, whose best-known hit on NBC will be a candidate for public approval in the new season, is a tall, skinny, 32-year Texan. He has a built-in hatred of the cliche scarwar.

Instead of telling you about the great guys he's working with in his new show, he'll murmur something about it being "something like swimming—you panic you drown."

The Roger Miller Show will be the only two-hour excursion into variety on television in the season that starts in a couple of weeks. There will be 30 variety programs wearing on the three networks. Three of them will be hour shows: The Red Skelton Show and The Lawrence Welk Show — have been around almost as long as television itself.

There also will be two other new hour shows this season.

BERLE COMES BACK

Milton Berle is coming back on NBC and he promises there will be a revue. Garry Moore returns to CBS after a two-season absence.

Miller will be the only new face.

Miller, not yet 30, has made a fortune with his music—composing many hits, of which the biggest has been King of the Road, and as a recording star.

"I was born on a remote farm near a remote town in a remote section of a state (Texas)," Miller said. "I had an eighth-grade education. I was terribly frustrated and totally ambitious and I just wanted to be somebody. I thought I could do it by being an entertainer."

The Western Rule

Rollout Q.B. An Extra Threat

By JOHN SHORT

EDMONTON (CP) — Despite recent rule changes intended to reduce the emphasis on defence in the Canadian Football League, observers and officials are unhappy that the anticipated flow of points has been slow developing.

While defensive play has been elevated to something of an art, most agree an all-round offensive weapon is needed.

Some, like Calgary Stampeders coach Jerry Williams, have advocated four downs for a first down. Others say the move to third low-scoring team is part of a trend that will reverse itself in time.

Most western conference coaches concede that defence is ahead of the game at this stage. All have come up with an additional threat—a rollout quarterback.

Now that Peter Liske has replaced Eagle Day, at least temporarily, as Calgary's starting pivot, every club in the west has a quarterback capable of running.

Liske held the ball several times last Wednesday and helped balance a Calgary attack apparently rendered impotent by the loss of starting backfielders Lovell Coleman and Ted Woods. In that game, Calgary battered Saskatchewan Roughriders 36-1.

Awkward but effective, Liske's running showed last year by Jon Kenny Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Joe Kapp of British Columbia Lions, Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan and Randy Kerbow of Edmonton Eskimos in the ranks of western roll-out threats.

Kapp, basically a drop-back passer, is rugged enough to carry the ball although he lacks speed.

TITLES SIMILAR

Kapp and Liske have similar playing-call and solid—and similar running styles.

The other three starters possess good speed to complement their passing.

Lancaster, the premier quarterback of a Canadian quarterbacks, probably has less sheer speed than either Ploen or Kerbow. But his ability to evade tacklers while rolling out keeps him a threat to run at almost any time.

Ploen has occasionally started for Winnipeg as a halfback and Kerbow, originally a flanker, has demonstrated running ability as both a roll-outs and after pass-receptions.

"He's no (Jackie) Parker," says Jim Trimble, coach of Hamilton Armstrong. "But he's quick and willing to run. He gives us an added dimension."

Armstrong made the most recent addition when he picked up Bill Lancaster, a free-agent from Trinidad. Calgary, hoping to patch a weakened front wall, welcomed offensive tackle Roger Kramer back from a trial with Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League.

OWNED SHOWS

THAMESVILLE, Ont. (CP)— Funeral services will be held Thursday in Toronto for Howard Jones, 48, owner of King's Shows, who died here Sunday of a heart attack.

Western Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jack Abendschan collected five points Monday while his Saskatchewan Roughrider teammates shoehorned an 18-17 defeat from Edmonton Eskimos to take over second spot in the Western Football Conference individual scoring race.

The field goal, single and convert booted by the 28-year-old American boosted his total to 74 points, to behind teammate Hugh Campbell.

His fellow-leading opponent, Tommy-Joe Coffey, scored six points on a field goal, two converts and a single to move him into a fourth place tie with Larry Robinson of Calgary.

The leaders:

Girl From UNCLE Plans To Wed Man From 2001

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Social note: Aug. 37, or maybe Sept. 3, Stefanie Zofia Feierbierivicz will marry Irish Barry Yurosek at Lake Tahoe, Nev.

This news might attract little attention here or Polish-American circles, except for the fact that the bride and groom are Hollywood's favorite actor and actress Powers and Gary Lockwood.

She is television's new Girl from U.N.C.L.E. and he is out of this world in 2001, a Space Odyssey.

Both are American-born; he is half-Polish, she is totally so. Their meeting couldn't have been more American.

"I was playing third base on a girls' softball team that played in Beverly Hills," she explained. "Gary happened to be going with another girl who played softball."

He didn't come to notice for a couple of years; that's how long it took him to ask for a date. Their courtship was brief and she joined him on his London location for Odyssey. Upon their return, the match they decided on a wedding.

NO BIG WEDDING

Originally it was to be a big affair in Beverly Hills, but they decided against it. What convinced them?

"The guest list," said Stephanie. "My own list grew to 500, and Gary's didn't even have a hero. Gary's family does not have a big family."

She figured the bill for the wedding would have amounted to $2,500 and "that's a big salary for me." Result: The decision to fly off to Tahoe with a few friends and their families. Stephanie still hasn't decided on a date, but figures it will be in this month or early September.

Honeymoon? Forget it. Stephanie will return to location for Girl from U.N.C.L.E., and Gary plans to leave for his own company.

"We both realize the hazards of getting married in our profession," she said. "Look at the divorce statistics. Among the normal population, it's the fact that 50 per cent of actors' marriages don't last."

Eight Strokes Up

Ontario Juniors Grab Lead

By BOB PARKINS

BRANDON (CP) — For nine Canadian provinces, the Canadian junior golf championships and interprovincial team matches began to take on a gloomy note after just one day of play Monday.

Not that the 19th—Ontario—was worried.

Ontario's provincial team built up an eight-stroke lead on its nearest rival, partly on the strength of a 79 by Peter Turner of Toronto, as it opened defence of the title it won last year at Hamilton, Ont.

And Turner's 37-33 on the Brandon Golf and Country Club course, coupled with strong performances by several other Ontario golfers, made it apparent that the province is out to retain the individual title won last year by Ian Thomas of London.

Turner's score helped offset an 81 by Gar Hamilton of Toronto, Ontario's defending champion.

A 72 by Ken Throndson of Brampton, which left him in a three-way tie for second spot behind Turner, plus a 74 by Wayne McDonald of Oakville gave Ontario an aggregate 297, eight better than Saskatchewan at 305.

Prince Albert's Ted Rich also had a 72 to pace the runners-up. Rich Falk of Saskatoon followed with 75, and Lawrence Bemford and Rick Mayhew, both of Saskatoon, each had 78.

British Columbia, after its third team title since the matches were inaugurated in 1958, was forced to settle for fifth of a tight scramble that left Alberta and Nova Scotia with 311 each, Quebec with 313 and Manitoba with 315.

New Brunswick - Prince Edward Island at 327 and Newfoundland with 330 trailed Bobirwin of Charlottetown managed the only sub-80 round among the Atlants provinces with a 77.

Monday's opened its seventh place standing largely to the power hitting of Jason Peakman of Fort Arthur, Ont., who joined Rich and Throwridge at 78.

Thomas, 17, the defending champion, shook off two closebogeys in the middle of a wet, cool day for a 73, matching the best efforts of Bob Smith of Kamloops, B.C., and Dale Talon of Noranda, Que.

A stroke back of them were McDonald and Graham MacIntyre of New Glasgow, N.S., champion in Nova Scotia whose 74 tied him for seventh with Alberta in fourth place.

Of 121 golfers, only 41 others were able to top a sub-80 score from the 6,165-yard course.

The second 18-hole round of the qualifying set goes today with the top 96 scheduled to graduate to six rounds of match play beginning Wednesday. The championships wind up with a 36-hole final Saturday.

Farmers' Problems Outlined at Agriculture Meet

NAPANEE — The problems facing the farmer today are too big and too complex for him to solve himself, and only the government has the power to bring about a solution. This was the general opinion which prevailed from a meeting of minds at a special meeting of the Lennox and Addington Federation of Agriculture, last week.

The local members wished a clarification of the feeling of the Federation as a whole, to outline the policies and programs regarding the problems facing agriculture. They requested that someone from the provincial office should address them and next week's meeting was the result. President of the Ontario Federation, Charlie Hudson of the Essex County summed up the situation as seen by the provincial executive, in a meeting which lasted four hours. Much of the time was taken up with discussion, with leading farmers of the county outspoken in their opinions.

Mr. Hudson deplored the fact there is so little co-operation between the Federation of Agriculture and the Ontario Farmers' Union. "Neither of us has the answers to the farmer's problems yet", he said. "We both know the problems but neither of us has the solution." The two bodies should work more closely to find that solution, he believed.

As an example of this lack of co - operation, Mr. Hudson cited a recent happening. The Federation and the Union had agreed to approach Federal Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene with a demand for higher milk prices. The Union, however, had gone to him alone without notifying the Federation.

"The interests of the farmer can best be served by trying to work together, and not by fighting each other," Mr. Hudson affirmed.

"The problems of the Ontario farmer won't be solved until the government changes its policy", it was stated during the meeting.

Teacher Attends Summer School In United States

NAPANEE — Miss Marilyn Parks of R. R. 3, Napanee, is amazed at how little the people of the United States appear to know about Canada. She was one of approximately 4,000 students attending Cornell University in Ithaca, N. Y. during the summer.

Miss Parks completed two courses in Home Economics at Cornell last summer, and two hours this year, one in nutrition and one in flat pattern designing. She is on the staff of one of Kingston's secondary schools.

LAUNCH NEW SHIPS

Japan is the world's biggest ship-builder, followed by Britain and West Germany; Japan launched four times as much tonnage as fourth-place Sweden.

Install Water Mains Along Highway 41

NAPANEE — Water mains are being laid on Highway 41 which may eventually carry water, although no agreement has been signed. Plans for using the water were discussed informally two years ago and the British - American Oil Company is now laying the pipe to supply water in its service station and restaurant in Richmond Township.

Water will be needed, also, for the proposed Regional Detention Centre, which will be in Richmond Township, also. A meeting held in the Richmond township hall last Friday night was attended by members of the Richmond township council, and the Napanee Town Council, for a preliminary discussion of supplying services to the area.

The problem in both cases is a complex one. Napanee has already a full time water manager of the town waterworks department states. Water supplied to the Richmond township is revenue and help ease the burden on the Napanee taxpayer to pay for the expensive filtration plant installed a few years ago.

Next Tiger Manager Consider Lopez, Richards

DETROIT (AP) — Speculation on the next manager of baseball's Detroit Tigers began almost as soon as the late Charles Dressen suffered his second heart attack last May.

Nobody said it then, but there was little doubt Dressen would never return to the dugout.

Coach Bob Swift may have been the logical choice after he was taken to hospital with what was later diagnosed as lung cancer, but Manager Jimmy Dykes' two-year-old, Drummond R. C. driven by Keith Waples of Victoria Harbour for owner Reid Cournoyer of Drummondville, Que., made a break early and finished ninth in the 10-horse field.

Third-place money of $3,000 boosted Jimmy Boy's season earnings to $8,711.

He is now home and in good condition.

The Trots

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP)—Pay Dirt was the Norman Woodworth of Winthrop, and driven by veteran Ernie Avery of Providence, R.I., Monday night won the $25,000 Scotland Trot at Yonkers Raceway.

Pay Dirt won in 2:05.3, 1-5 of a second off the time for the fastest mile by a two-year-old trotter set by Bullville Irish in the U.S. this year.

Hickory Rhea was second and Harwood Boy, owned by Sheridan Revington and William Easterington, both of Laurel, Ont., and driven by Buddy Gilmour of Ridgeway, Ont., was third.
